How the Beauty of A Woman's Face May Be Set To Music

Science Discovers How Milady's Admirer of the Future May Translate Her Into a Beautiful Opera to Take the Place of Love Sonnets

Right—Lady Diana Manners and the chord produced by her profile.

To the right—The apparatus for transmuting the face into musical tones. Attached is one of the tone photographs.

THE calm, terse announcement that a woman's face may be set to music, arranged into chords and played upon the piano, the organ or, even, the more appropriate violin, would seem, at first glance, to be the exclamation of some unusually imaginative poet.

But when the announcement is identified as originating with a most matter of fact scientist, one of the distinguished members of the faculty of such a prosaic university as the Case School of Applied Science, the statement suddenly proves worthy of attention.

Prof. Dayton S. Miller of the Case School, which is in Cleveland, has declared that every woman's face is a musical composition; that it may be scientifically interpreted into melodic rhythm and, of course, played upon any musical instrument.

From Prof. Miller's revelations of the progress he has made in finding tangible music where the poet for centuries has found the music of dreams, it is but a step to that time when the poet no longer will write sonnets to the mistress of his heart, but will instead, compose her into an opera.

Prof. Miller's method is simple. One wonders why it was not discovered before. His demonstrations are convincing and complete—on this page there are reproduced photographs which are amazing evidence.

Even the formula is startlingly brief. Scientific experimenters learned some time ago that they could photograph musical sounds. Sensitive plates were made that would receive the imprint of the wave agitation resulting from the note struck on the piano or the organ.

Sound waves were found to be an arrangement of curves—the progress of sound through the atmosphere caused disturbances in a series of undulations.

Every note, of course, registered on the photographic plate a different curve, or series of them.

Professor Miller speculated, as poets always have—and even, it would seem, men of science also—upon the symphony of the curves that make a woman's profile. In a frivolous mood, though no doubt somewhat curious, he caused an entire melody to be photographed and carefully examined the photographic curves it produced. Here and there he found undulations on the plate which corresponded exactly to the curves with which the feminine face is shaped.

Perhaps his frivolous attitude suddenly became serious. At any rate, he continued his experiments. He transferred to paper the profile of a pretty girl. He photographed chords and melodies until he had subtracted from the mass of photographic plates he thus accumulated, single sound curves which placed together reproduced the feminine profile. Identifying the notes to which the sound-curves belonged, he placed them on the scale and saw before him a perfect, harmonious chord—which, struck upon the piano, resulted in a pleasing musical ensemble.

That was the beginning. The musical key to a woman's beauty had been discovered. Continued experiment reduced the theory to a fact accomplished. Hence the prospect that it will not be long before the modern troubadour may storm the heart of his enchantress by translating her physical charm into a soulful opera, or an operetta, or a merry, lilting comedy of music—according to her personality, and the completed score then shall be his souvenir of love.

One of the world's most beautiful faces which has been reduced to its musical expression was that of Lady Diana Manners. The thought that Lady Diana's loveliness may now be expressed in a single chord, struck upon the piano or drawn from the violin, presents an interesting prospect indeed.

So far Prof. Miller has carried his experiments no further than the production of the single chord which is produced by the grouping of the different notes which, photographed, produce the completed profile of the face. But the most stupendous opera is founded upon a single chord—the chord, dissected, becomes the basic theme, and it is from this theme the composer builds his musical structure—the single chord expressed in infinite variety of melody.

May not the inspired composer, impressed, for example, with the splendor of Lady Diana's beauty, find his theme, and his melodies, grow to a symphonic masterpiece from this single chord? May not the impelling beauty of his composition inspire, too, the lyrical accompaniment—until, his inspiration materialized, he may usher Lady Diana to the premiere of her very self set to music?

And not only in the perfect Grecian profiles of such feminine loveliness as that of Lady Diana that the most enchanting music may be found. Prof. Miller declares that there is melody in every woman's face—and this member of the faculty of the Case School is by no means a poet, but a most unsentimental scientist. It was he who invented the delicate instrument for the photographing of sound waves. He followed closely the experiments of Bell, with the telephone and Edison with the phonograph. He was not content to stop with these great inventors—the mere reproducing of sound. He began the long experiments which finally resulted in his ability to visualize sounds—to actually see them, by means of photography. It was not, therefore, a quest of some sentimental achievement that actuated him or gave him the means of putting feminine charm down on paper in a series of music notes.

The instrument used by Prof. Miller is extremely delicate. The vibrations of a sound are carried to a diaphragm which oscillates a small mirror. A tiny, but intense beam of light falls on the mirror and is reflected to a moving, sensitized film, on which are recorded the curved lines corresponding to the sound waves vibrating the diaphragm.

Music Is Transformed Into a Human Profile

Many instruments were tested and almost all conceivable tonal combinations were utilized in his experiments. Prof. Miller asserts that the most beautiful lines produced were those recording the contralto register of the French horn. He engaged an expert to play the horn. Then he developed his film and, to his astonishment, discovered that the curves produced by the sounds of the horn were in the shape of a facial profile. It was easily distinguishable as a feminine profile.

In finding music in the feminine face, and translating it into actual musical sounds, each face into its own chord and musical theme, Prof. Miller has only reduced to scientific evidence what has hovered unexpressed in the human mind for ages. Always there has been an association of woman and music. Those who have been satirical have made it a trilogy by adding "wine" to the phrase, but the more respectful minded have always sensed a sincere and beautiful association between feminine and melodic charm. And the two seem often to have expressed themselves, in history, in association with each other.

Who does not recall the "Odyssey," and the Sirens who sought to lure Ulysses to destruction by their beauty supplemented by song. And is not Heine's "Lorelei" of a similar company which knew the potency of music and femininity combined? Through mythology, through the Norse sagas — the Nibelungen Lied—Miriam, who sang and danced before the returning hosts of Judea—all these appear to prove the unconscious association of woman and music, as if it has long been understood by instinct that every woman was but a component of a song as a symphony.

Machine to Separate Sound Waves Invented

Very naturally, Mr. Miller was amazed. He thought the result attained was accidental. Again and again he called for melodies from the horn—"Ave Maria," "Home, Sweet Home," "The Lost Chord"—an endless procession of musical sounds and tonal combinations were played for him, and wherever there was harmony the profiles of what appeared to be beautiful women in endless succession and combination appeared on the film.

Having accomplished this much, Mr. Miller wondered what he would do with his discovery—how he would apply it practically. Reasoning that if a combination of musical sounds produced a human profile then a human profile should produce musical sounds, he began a new series of experiments. He made use of all theories and discoveries relating to musical sound of which there was dependable record.

In 1844 the scientist Ohnd, at Munich, declared the principle that beautiful musical sounds are the blending of separate, simple, component sounds. He attempted to analyze chords by ear, but failed. Since those days science had made vast strides. Edison and other inventors had made it possible to reduce sound to its component parts.

Prof. Miller found that simple tones, when combined, form simple curves on the sensitized film. By the use of his own harmonic analyzer it was found possible to pick complex wave forms to pieces and to obtain the simple wave forms which, in combination, make the entity.

Investigation showed that musical sounds were represented by composite curves which appeared to flow smoothly, with rounded bends and symmetrical groupings, in an effect pleasing to the artistic eye. On the other hand, discords are represented by waves of sharp points, "zigzags," and what may be termed "kinks."

The richer the musical sound, the more complex it is and the more complex becomes the wave form, but such forms always are beautiful in lines and flow smoothly.

Prof. Miller decided to transmute some feminine profile into musical sounds. He chose for the test the face of a young woman whose profile was especially graceful and pleasing. A photograph of the actress was placed in a projecting lantern and thrown upon a sheet of paper. Then the profile was traced and by means of the harmonic analyzer resolved into its simple component musical curves. There were found to be fourteen such separate curves.

Then fourteen organ pipes were selected, each of which was known to give a sound with a simple curve corresponding to one of the simple curves of the young woman's profile. The pipes were sounded simultaneously. The resulting tonal effect was a rich harmonious chord, with a sound much like that of the French horn which suggested the experiment.

Then the process was reversed. The organ pipes were sounded before the photographing apparatus and on the sensitized film there appeared the profile of the young woman as perfect as the original photographic outline.

Further experiments are now being made not only in the Case School laboratory of Prof. Miller but by other scientists. It is proposed to actually compose a completed musical work from the face of some beautiful woman, or, as Prof. Miller says, "from the face of a woman, for any woman is beautiful if only her soul is free, and as all music differs so does all beauty."

How interesting indeed will these experiments be! Will they not, in their progress, reveal some hitherto unknown romances? Was it, perhaps, the memory of a woman that inspired "Home, Sweet Home," and if that quaintly beautiful melody is returned to its basic theme will the curves this produced reveal the profile of her of whom Payne was thinking when his loneliness was translated into his enduring song?

Verdi composed his "Aida" for the Khedive of Egypt. The first performance was during the dedication of the Suez Canal in a theater especially built in the very shadow of the Pyramids. What profile would result if the march of the high priests from "Aida" was photographed? Cleopatra? Some Italian signorita?

Could Science Bring Joan of Arc Into View?

Would Haydn's "God Save the King" resume itself into Consuelo, the heroine of George Sand's novel of that name, in which Haydn is the hero?

And what grotesque profile would adorn the film if modern "jazz" were to be played into the device? Would the wail of the saxophone and the clash of the cymbals, plus the thumping of the drum, result in a beautiful profile? Or would a witch of Endor—a Medusa, come to view?

There is yet another side to this interesting experiment. If eventually we can transmute human faces into musical sounds, then "say it with flowers" will be replaced by "say it with song." Lovers will no longer be content with photographs of their beloved. They will want the musical equivalent to be played on their phonograph or player piano.

They will classify her by the key in which they can play her profile. Of course this is merely jocular, but then even austere science can smile at times.

Speculation may well lend itself to varied imageries. If youth of the future composes an opera built upon a leit motif from the young lady whom the composer adores, and she is beautiful from a really artistic viewpoint, then the opera undoubtedly will be melodious. But should she be handsome only because seen through the eyes of love, then we may get another much criticized "Salome." Or is Prof. Miller's gallant theory correct, and are we assured that woman can produce no discords?

The possibility of photographing sound waves accurately opens a wide field of research. Perhaps it will be possible to read character from the photographic-sound record of a man or woman. The profile, translated into sound, may reveal to us things which even the psychoanalyst has failed to discover. Too, a woman's voice, translated into a profile may reveal the profile of such a man as would be her ideal.

As has been said above, the possibilities are endless—and Prof. Miller's further experiments will attract wide attention.

May Make Venice City of Dry Streets

VENICE without water would hardly be Venice at all, but we are assured there is a possibility that the picturesque Venice of to-day may become a city of the past, and eventually Venice may be waterless.

According to Marinelli, the regular increase of the delta of the river Po is such that in process of time the northern Adriatic will be dry and Venice will be no more upon the sea. A comparison of the Austrian map of 1823 with the record of the surveys made within recent years shows that the mean annual increase of the delta during these years has been three-tenths of a square mile.

An encroachment upon the sea of three-tenths of a mile in a year means a large increase in a century. It appears that the total increase in six centuries has been about 198 square miles. The increase is continuing, and the Gulf of Venice is doomed to disappear.

No immediate alarm need be felt, and it will not be necessary to hurry off to Venice to take a farewell look at the city in its present picturesqueness. It is calculated that between a hundred and a hundred and twenty centuries will elapse before the entire northern Adriatic will have become dry land.

WITHIN the last few years improvements in the stereoscopic effect of relief maps have been attained by a unique color scheme. The effect is well shown when a square is colored with the reds in the center, and the yellows, greens and blues ranged outside. Such a square appears to the eye to be raised in the center.

If the order of the colors is reversed, the central part of the square appears to be depressed. In arranging the colors the tints are varied by careful graduation.

Radio on Railroad Trains

Complete use of the radio in Canadian railroad trains is now in the offing. Tests proving that radio messages can be received inside speeding express trains without the use of outside aerial have been successful. Already many railroads are featuring radio programmes.

Hear Canada First!

In the past a man could get completely out of touch with the outside world by the mere process of getting aboard a train. From now on there will be little difference between travelling across country in a Pullman car and travelling across in a telephone receiver.

The public will now do its travelling entirely by Ear.

"Did you enjoy the beautiful trip through the Rockies?" you will asked the 'cross-country tourist. "It must have been exquisite."

"Yeah," he'll reply; "I never heard Al Jolson's voice so clear, and there was a jazz number by Salvini's Boardwalk Band that was a whiz."

"And, oh! tell me about Lake Louise! Wasn't it magnificent?"

"Best part of the trip. The French horns and 'cellos were wonderful, and there was an Indiana Blues number by Nora Bayes that was the turtle's upholstery. I never heard the Bedtime Story sound so clear."

* * * *

Of course, the advent of radio train service means more work for the train caller. He'll have to memorize a new piece:

After which the travelling folks will jump from the station benches, clutch their tuning forks and crystal sets, and rush aboard.

Elderly Lady: Can you tell me whether this train plays "Silver Threads Among the Gold?"

Train Caller: No, ma'am; take the W J Z local for that number.

Beautiful Young Lady: Can you show me what train to take to hear "Kiss Me Again," "Love's Sweet Song," and "I'm Crazy Over You?"

Train Caller (very embarrassed): I certainly can. Step this way, please!

Indignant Commercial Traveller: My train is two hours late again. Whatzamatah?

Wild Business Man: Say, looka here! What's the trouble with the 2.15 express?

Station Master: Three hours behind time. It had to stop at Gopher Prairie for a new crystal set.

Railroads may shortly announce the suspension of certain trains because of unfavorable static conditions.

Wreck Verdict.

"Cause of collision between Express W X Z and Local K J H: Engineer Johnny Jones was listening to 'Uncle Wiggly-Wiggly's Bedtime Stories' and did not see the train ahead. Flagman of train ahead should have gone back to protect train with red flares, but failed to do so. Find he was listening to the 'Sextette From Lucia,' and forgot all about being aboard a train. Recommend that president of two broadcasting stations be held criminally responsible for the wreck."

Travel Note: Mr. and Mrs. O. Howe Dumm, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. Lott Dummer and radio sets, left today on the 12.20 for an extended railroad trip.

MEAN INDIVIDUALS MUTILATE BOOKS.

At this period of the year it is seasonable to say something about our magazines and periodicals.

Christmastide is approaching rapidly and it will not be long before the publications we receive take on a brighter look and appear in all the resplendent colours of Yuletide. Clad in such raiment they usually afford a tempting mark for the vandal and the thief.

Reference has so often been made to the depredations of these singularly mean individuals that it may seem almost supererogatory to mention it again, but there is so much in it of real importance to the public at large that it is worth while now and again to draw one's bow across defective heartstrings to discover if any can be attuned to the chords of conscience.

Probably there would be a few people found to endorse the statement that the man or woman who would steal a paper or a book would pick anyone's pocket or that the individual who would cut a clipping from a magazine would hamstring a horse or cut off the tail of a cow. The lack of principle involved is exactly the same in either case and I, for one, am quite confident that if there was any artistic beauty in the tail of a cow the theft of that unornamental appendage would not be confined to the so-called lower orders.

People have been jailed for six months for cutting off a cow's tail and there is really less damage done by such an act than in mutilating a book. In the first instance one or two creatures, including the cow, are injured and in the last probably fifty or a hundred.

Our library during the last twelve months has suffered at the hands of marauders. Some have shown a certain measure of refinement in their work by kindly leaving the covers of a magazine in order to provide at least a counterfeit presentiment of the publication, whilst others not so extreme in their views of the fitness of things have taken covers and all.

It is only fair to add that destruction and theft have not been so much in evidence as in former years but they have been in evidence enough to warrant a plea for the recognition of the sanctity of library property. A magazine taken from the tables means the complete ruination of a whole year's issue for binding as well as the spoiling of a valuable work of reference.

To a certain extent the remedy for this state of affairs lies in the hands of the public. On several occasions reports have been received that persons have been noticed mutilating books or magazines but when more definite particulars are asked for the willingness to furnish them is lacking.

Well-dressed men and well-dressed women according to the information received are as great offenders as others. Perhaps the wearing of fine feathers produces a feeling which rises superior to considerations of the law of Meum and Tuum, but it would be just as well for fashionable malefactors to realize that in the scales of justice lordly sentiments such as these have little weight and that the law can be invoked just as readily to meet the exigencies of their case as of the poorest offender who enters the library.

AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS IS SETTLING DOWN TO A KNOWN BASIS TO-DAY.

After more than 25 years of development, the automobile industry has not yet settled down to a known basis.

Especially in reference to the control of motoring is this true. Laws are still being passed, problems propounded and solutions sought for the ultimate benefit of the automobile driver and pedestrian. All point to the fact that motoring, although more than a quarter century old, is still in its infancy.

Next year 43 state legislatures will meet, and every one of them will have before them some legislation relating to the automobile. Highway commissioners already are busy preparing drafts of new, or amendments to old, laws concerning this phase of motoring. At the same time, state attorneys are ready to submit legislation covering the safety and convenience of the public as it is affected by the automobile.

So far as highway legislation is concerned, there will be proposals for the passage of state laws in compliance and co-operation with the Federal aid laws. The matter of theft prevention, motor car registration, control of headlights and rear lights, automatic signals and other regulations of automobile driving are still to be threshed out. Laws on motor taxes and fees also will be perused for changes and corrections.

Uniform traffic laws are being sought throughout the union, and of the legislators in nearly every one of the legislators in nearly every one of the 43 states whose bodies meet in 1923. Grade crossing elemination is another important problem to solve.

Besides these there are the subjects of highway enforcement, snow removal and dozens of other, although less important, matters to be taken up.

SUFFERED SO FROM HEART AND NERVES LIFE WAS A BURDEN

Mrs. A. H. Lee, Beamsville, Ont. writes:—"I am delighted to let you know what I have to say regarding the good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did me.

A short time ago I suffered with heart and nerve trouble, and was so bad I could not sleep, only about two hours each night. My heart was so bad I had spells when driving on the road and would faint away, and neighbors would carry me in from my wagon. I also took these spells in the night and during my daily work on the farm. My nerves were so bad I would jump out of bed, and was then compelled to walk the floor before I could settle down again, but after taking a few boxes of Sir Malcolm Morris, who holds a commanding place in British Medicine, has just stated that Girls do not eat enough. Light pastries, snatch meals, "teas," are insufficient to maintain really good health.

RADIO NEWS

HARTFORD, Conn.— Listeners-in on the broadcast radio concerts are assuerd freedom from interference by the amateurs of the country.

This asurance come from officials of the American Radio Relay League, the national organization composed of the amateurs who are licensed to transmit on wave lengths of about 200 meters.

Ever since wireless became popular, especially for those who wanted merely to listen in, this darwback against the development of the radio set for the novice remained. Protests came to the A. R. R. L. officials, who finally agreed to co-operate with the novices so that both classes may enjoy the facilitites of the air.

Amateurs are unlimited in the time for transmission of messages, except where special local rules are made. But since most rules concerts are broadcast between 7 and 10:30 in the evenings the A. R. L. L. has decided to advocate a quiet period among its members between these hours.

This request has been sent out to the "hams" of the country, as the amateurs are called. They apply especially to those in congested districts where amateur transmission might possibly cause interference.

"It is to be understood," explains on officer of the league, "that this action of the league is one of co-operation in giving the novice listeners the best part of the evening and in return we shall expect to be able to transmit any time outside of these hours without complaint from the novices."

The Secret of their Satin Jackets

You have noticed the delightful smoothness, aroma and flavor of the coating on Moir's Chocolates.

Do you know how this velvety texture is obtained.

Moir's do not buy their chocolate coatings. They make their own, importing for this purpose the highest grade cocoa beans.

The cocoa beans are first blended, roasted and enriched with added cocoa butter and then ground in powerful machinery for days at a time until the paste has the smoothness of satin and is so close in texture that the air is excluded and the flavor and delicate aroma of Moir's Chocolates almost indefinitely preserved.

Take home a box to-day.

From far off Ceylon, Java and South America come direct the cocoa beans used in making Moir's Chocolates.

BIG BELLY IS NOT AN ASSET

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—"Punch, not paunch!"

That's what too many Americans are in need of to-day before they can set their feet climbing the ladder of success, says Dr. James M. Fitzgerald, noted physician, surgeon and vocational guidance expert here.

Getting in to see Dr. Fitzgerald requires the matter of a solid week's work. For he's a busy man, but not too busy, however, to be jolly and kind to all in need of his services.

The number of folks he has set aright in their search for a definite niche in the scheme of life is legion, as attested by voluminous records of thanks and praise on file in his office.

Scores of big business executives all over the country, bank presidents, clergymen and one member of the board of directors of a great railroad system whom he rescued from the thralldom of a small clerk's pension, are among the few he has helped who owe their success to him.

How does he do it?

Simply by scientific study of the brain power areas, and the summing up of these power units, so to speak, into a single factor which determines the capabilities, talents and aptitude of any person, and his or her fitness for a particular calling.

Dr. Fitzgerald doesn't pretend to be a wizard or anything of the sort. Psychology, physiology and all the arts of the medical practicioner and other agents of science are what he calls to his command in determining who should go to the scrap pile or assume the role of leadership.

Mind and Body Co-operate.

"Delineation of human capacities is only possible after careful and exhaustive study of the physical condition, the mental abilities and the person's heredity and environment," he says.

"All of these contributions play a separate and distinct part in the success achieved by any individual.

"One of the greatest and most absurd fallacies afloat to-day, is the silly adage, 'I can do anything if I will to do it.' No such thing is possible. Our faculties are inherited, and are possible of only a certain expansion through education.

"What the person must do then is to find himself. There are too many six-cylindered stomachs and half-horsepower brains. Adjustment is needed and possibly, if the person anxious to succeed, has it in him to succeed, and develops the faculties about which he knows nothing."

Your Interests First.

Your success, explains Dr. Fitzgerald, depends on the development of your immediate interests. If that is business, for example, first attention should not be paid to sports or other irrelevant matters, when there is the business section of your newspaper to read.

"The mind grows and develops to the fullest attainments of which it is capable through what it feeds upon," he says. "In this respect it is like the body.

"No one would expect a strong psysique on a duet excluded to ice cream, cake and charlotte russe.

"Likewise, it is impossible to produce much of a mind on a mental pabulum restricted to information about crimes, banalities, chicanery, frivolity and other specious subjects.

"The mind, like a teapot, pours out what has been poured into it. Your energy goes the way you direct your attention. And with your energy goes your success."

FISHERMEN IN WANT

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press).—The failure of the herring industry in the North Sea, during the last two years, has been due to the fact that the currents in the North Sea have changed their course says the chairman of the Scottish Fishery Board. The huge shoals of herring which once inhabited the North Sea, near the Scottish coast, have almost entirely disappeared, and with them the living of scores of fisherfolk.

Scientists are preparing a report and a chart which will explain and illustrate the changes of the currents Bottles which usually travelled south are now picked up in the Shetlands.

TAILORED SUITS

COPYRIGHT BY McCALL'S

It is always the strictly tailored suits that appear first in the season. Later there will be elaborate three-piece, fur-trimmed models of new and very fine fabrics with brocaded linings of gay colors.

But this early in the season all the fall suits shown are plainly cut and carefully tailored. Their lines are very simple. They are made of twill or serge or tricotine and are lined in silks of plain colors or small patterns.

The model shown for young girls is most popular. The loose box coat, the new collar and the pockets set at a slant are all likeable features.

The coat to the woman's suit is longer, slightly bloused and has a plain notched collar. Skirts to both suits are plain and longer than skirts have been recently.

GRAFT PUNISHABLE BY DEATH IN RUSSIA

Hundreds Have Already Been Executed By Soviet Government For Their Trickery.

MOSCOW, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press.)—A strenuous campaign against graft among state employees inaugurated some time ago by the Soviet government, has brought to trial in various parts of the country hundreds of individuals, some of whom already have been convicted and put to death for their trickery.

At Nishni Novgorod eight men accused of swindling the government in connection with the installation of an electrical plant along the Volga, were sentenced to be shot while 21 others tried simultaneously were sent to prison for various terms of years.

In connection with the collecting of the grain tax imposed by the state three men in the Moscow district, charged with making false entries by which the government was cheated of great quantities of grain, were sentenced to pay the supreme penalty, while 42 of the same group were acquitted.

BOILS

Made Him Sick and Miserable

Mr. Richard Zaienzoski, McLean, Sask., writes:—"I had been suffering continuously, with boils, for three years, and during that time I tried many different remedies without any success whatever. In spite of all my efforts I was compelled to go to the hospital. This was in the Fall of the year, and right in the busiest time of the season. Upon my return home it just took about two weeks until my neck and arms were again occupied by the boils which made me feel very sick and miserable.

One day one of my friends advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had used less than two bottles I was very much surprised at the result.

It is now over two years since I got in touch with B.B.B., and I have had no bother with boils since. I will recommend it to all persons suffering from any defect in the blood."

A BIRTH FUND FOR CHILDREN

From Professor Samuel J. Holmes, national authority on eugenics and heredity, head of the zoology and biology departments of the University of California, author of "The Trend of the Race," and a dozen other works, comes this carefully considered proposal to governmental bodies and society in general.

That it is an imperative social duty to financially aid or reward parents of superior intelligence, as a means of encouraging them to bring children into the world, is not only the belief of Dr. Holmes, but of eugenists throughout the nation who are issuing warnings that brain production is falling off.

That groups of young college professors' wives are being forced by economic pressure to practice birth

That only about 50 per cent of college women are marrying.

That the people of inferior intelligence are having too many children and those of superior heredity too few or none at all.

That some eastern colleges have actually urged unmarried men to take teaching positions because of poor pay.

Encouraging Childlessness.

"In other words we are actually putting a premium on childlessness," declares Professor Holmes. "A group of University of California professors' wives have drawn up budgets showing that they cannot decently rear children on the money received. Many of them can scarcely dress in the fashion their positions demand. Yet these are the very people who should be producing our future intellectual classes.

"The greatest national possession is its best blood. That is what state and national governments should realize and those intellectually superior ones who bear children should be financially rewarded — not as charity or gratuity, but because it's as much of a necessary investment as anything else they spend money for and a greater investment than 90 per cent. of their others.

"It is a critical situation, and in noting its seriousness I do not speak alone but the voice of the leading eugenists and biologists echo what I say. It calls for a remedy. We cannot let it pass unnoticed unless dire consequences come.

Must Find Remedy.

"Unless something is done the best blood of the nation will be eliminated within a few generations.

"We are literally breeding out our brains."

A similar situation is seen by Prof. Louis Terman, famed psychologist of Stanford University, whose researches show that the chances for unusual children who might become great men and women are growing gradually less.

Just what the wives of professors have to cope with is outlined by groups of University of California women.

Eight of these wives have compiled budgets, based on reports of many others. They include Mrs. Doorthy Hart Bruce, wife of Prof. Harold Bruce, of the English Department; Mrs. G. P. Adams, Mrs. C. H. Bell, Mrs. E. C. Tolman and others who have married men important in college life.

Their conclusion is:

"The only economy which in time enables us to live on our salaries is to have no babies."

Strict Economy Needed.

The report continues: "One college couple, with a baby, cooks, eats and sleeps in the same room. One faculty woman has worn the same winter hat for seven years. Two have worn the same cape for 11 years. A woman with a child of 12 is still wearing her wedding trousseau. Wives of professors are doing all their own washing and that of their children. Many cannot afford the books they need for research and entertainment. Many have to use substitutes for butter; others cannot afford eggs for months at a time when prices are high."

"And yet," sums up Professor Holmes, "we hear of the government and state carrying on campaigns for better babies. We get neither quantity nor quality.

"This sort of propaganda has been carried much too far, for while the people that should be having families are refusing to do so, those who shouldn't have are swamping the country with their offspring.

WHAT OF THE CITIES OF THE FUTURE AGE?

Will the cities of the future become mere industrial centres surrounded by suburbs of homes?

This is a possibility which is made the more apparent by the inuence the automobile is having on city and country life.

A recent survey by the American Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in 60 large cities throughout the country, shows that 135,000 automobile owners drive to these cities daily from surrounding towns. By the same ratio, it is estimated, 500,000 automobile owners have been living beyond the boundaries of the city in which they do their business.

Bureau of Census officials at Washington say the tendency nowadays is for cities to expand in area, rather than increase their population within former boundaries.

It is all a result of quick and easy transportation, say automobile authorities.

Millbrook Lodge Participated in Degree Work--Special Services -- Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 23.—By special invitation of "Golden Link" Rebekah Lodge, No. 81, the degree team of "Golden Sheaf" Lodge, No. 176, Millbrook, motored to Peterborough on Tuesday evening and conferred the degree on five candidates, Mr. and Mrs. Spry, Mrs. Lang, Misses Ethel Reynolds and Lottie Wedlock, initiating them into members in the local Lodge. The Noble Grand, Sister Brailey, occupied the chair, and a large number of members and visitors were in attendance. Following the initiation the election of officers for 1923 took place, those serving during this year having apparently given such good satisfaction that they were returned to their respective chairs by acclamation with the exception of the Vice-Grand, Sister Edith Fry, who was promoted to the Noble Grand's chair in lieu of Sister Brailey, who now becomes the Junior Past Grand of the Lodge. The other officers-elect are: Vice-Grand, Sister May Caird; Recording Secretary, Sister E. Hartley; Financial Secretary, Sister Ethel Armstrong; Treasurer, Dollie Brotherson; the remaining officers are appointed by the Noble Grand, and installation does not take place until after the New Year. Brief addresses were delivered by District Deputy President, Sister Bertha Hamilton, and Brothers G. S. Gervan, Colonel Miller, and P. I. Bentley, and, on motion, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the visiting degree team for their services. After the closing of the Lodge a dainty but substantial banquet was served in the dining-hall, the tables being tastefully decorated with the Rebekah colors, and the waitresses wearing either pink or green caps, with the emblematic three links, and tea-aprons to match; fully two hundred and fifty guests sat down to enjoy the good things provided.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

You can turn gray, faded hair, beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you will get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well known druggist here because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks are not wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you will be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

OTTAWA MEN WILL REMOVE THEIR HATS.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 23. — Canadian Press. — The views expressed by Mayor Kohler of Cleveland, that men should not remove their hats in elevators when ladies enter, because such a practice only jams up the space in the car, and prevents people getting in and out of the elevators, are not unanimously accepted in Ottawa, judging by interviews with well known citizens. Their opinions agree that the time-honored practice by gentlemen of doffing hats should continue out of respect and deference to the gentler sex but they would leave such a matter to the discretion of the gentleman.

(By Stuart P. West)

NEW YORK, November 23 (Special to The Examiner). — Again to-day the movement on the stock exchange had very little reference to th outside news. It was a market like that in the closing half of October and in the week succeeding election day, where for one reason or another a lot of forced liquidation was going on, where banking support was poor and where short sellers were aggressively pushing their advantage.

It was the obvious thing to say that the weakness in the railway stocks and bonds reflected apprehension lest Congress amend the Transportation Act to the serious detriment of the carriers. Likewise there were some who professed to see in the decline a forecast of less favourable conditions in the business world in the course of 1923. But these were not the real explanations for the downward movement.

The main trouble dates back to the spring and summer when the pools and individual speculators loaded themselves up with more stocks than the authorities were willing that they should carry. Pressure to reduce Wall Street loans has been two-fold. It has come on the one hand from the banks and on the other hand from the stock exchange, which, following out its new policy of supervision, has insisted that its members keep their financial conditions sound.

The result in the market of the last month has been a liquidating movement carried on gradually but persistently, entirely regardless of the facts of the business situation which for the most part are favourable, and then only on one object, namely, to cut down bank loans heavily and to set the speculative house in order.

Undoubtedly the fall in railway securities, many of these stocks to-day were off 10 to 15 points from their season's high, has been aggravated by the election results, indicating a growth of radical feeling and much more support for a programme of hostile railway legislature. How much real selling has been due to uneasiness on this score is open to question, but there is no doubt that it has deterred many intending buyers, and in this way has helped along the decline. On the other hand there is no connection between the drop in the general run of industrial stocks, ad the facts relating either to present earnings or to the prospects for next year.

The steel shares, for instance, were as weak as anything to-day in full knowledge that the steel plants are operating at nearly 90 per cent. of the highest in two years.

America Leads in Home Comforts

The average American home has more comforts and conveniences than the palaces of Europe. Home for home, the American household has a well-kept look, an atmosphere of prosperity and contentment you cannot find in the homes of any other country in the world.

In foreign lands, the modernized dwelling, as we know it, is found only in limited numbers and then only in the larger cities.

In America, even in remote rural districts, you find pianos, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, up-to-date heating systems, telephones and numberless appliances that go far to make life easier, happier and more worth while.

You may not realize it, but America's high standard of home life is due largely to advertising. For the development of advertising is distinctively American. It has taken its place as a leading force in bringing together the interests and wants of a great, united people. And a large share of the credit for this development is due the newspapers.

Stop and think how many of the appliances you use, the foods you eat, the clothes you wear, and other articles entering into your every-day life, were popularized by newspaper advertising.

Then you will realize what a vital part advertising has played and is playing in your daily life.

You owe it to yourself to read the advertisements. They mean a lot to you.

STAY OF EXECUTION OF CHILDERS IS REFUSED.

Judge Has No Jurisdiction, the Prisoner Having Proclaimed Himself a Republican Soldier.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—To an application by Patrick Lynch, Childer's counsel, for stay of execution, the Judge replied that he could not give it, as he had no jurisdiction. In refusing, a writ of Habeas Corpus, he declared he must take judicial notice of the fact that Southern Ireland had been enduring a state of war for months, and that plainly it was the duty of the government, whether provisional or finally constituted to preserve and save the country from destruction. Force must be met by force. Childers had entered the civil court for protection while proclaiming himself a soldier of the Irish republic The answer must be fulfilled as the court's jurisdiction was ousted by the state of war which Childers himself had helped to produce.

Why Physicians Recommend Magnesia For Dyspeptics

"Take a little magnesia after meals" is now a favorite dyspepsia prescription among thousands The reason for this lies in the fact that practically ninety per cent of all stomach trouble is due to acid which irritates and inflames the delicate mucous membrane lining of the stomach and makes natural digestion impossible. Medicines, drugs and diets all fail simply because they do not remove the acid, the cause of all the trouble. The value of magnesia, which is neither a medicine nor a drug in the ordinary meaning of these words, lies in the fact that it neutralizes the acid Of the many forms of magnesia such as the oxides carbonates, milks and fluids, the best is undoubtedly Bisurated Magnesia, a teaspoonful or four tablets of which in a little hot water, after meals, instantly neutralizes the acid, stops the fermentation of the food and thus insures painless, natural digestion. Pure Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist and stomach sufferers should give it a trial.

SALE OF GOODS AT ST. PAUL'S ATTRACTS.

Under Auspices of the Ladies' Aid — Booths Are Prettily Decorated.

To-day and to-morrow the ladies of St. Paul's church are very active with their annual sale of goods in the Sunday School Rooms.

Rev. R. Pogue opened the sale in his usual happy style The ladies deserved his well turned compliments and his genial jolly good hum our set the wheels going with the happy helpful spirit, which is so characteristic of St. Paul's Ladies Aid.

At the entrance the young ladies have charge of a booth under the auspices of the Mission Band, the bright attractiveness of which is drawing quite a crowd.

The whole room presents a very pretty effect. The color blending and arrangements of the goods are very pleasing to the eye.

The classrooms which open out in to the big room are in a semicircular plan and very conveniently arranged into separate booths.

Each both is stocked with an attractive line of goods. The Candy Booth decorated in orange and black, is doing a wonderful business in dainty home-made sweets.

Then there are the different booths for handkerchiefs and boudoir caps, soft eiderdown quilts, prettily made Flete underwear, home cooking department, and the book department.

And there is the rest room. Messrs. R. Hall & Son have generously furnished this department, the restful comfortable nature of which is very enticing.

Messrs. Cressman Company have also kindly helped with furniture in other departments. The ladies are being highly complimented on success of their work.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD ANOTHER CHIMNEY FIRE.

Another chimney fire call was put into the Fire Hall this morning, at 8.12 to 190 Brock street. Chimney fires are becoming quite numerous this winter, states Chief George Gimblett, due to unclean pipes.

Science Makes the Dog Safe for Society

In New Jersey the "Needle" Provides a Cure for Hydrophobia, and Dogs Are Allowed to Run Unmuzzled, and Philadelphia Dog Lovers Demand of Uncle Sam a Serum to Destroy Distemper.

Grace Wiley, Magazine Writer, Brings "Chad," Her Favorite Collie, to Be Vaccinated.

Henry Tate Seemed Just as Happy as His Dog "Horace" After His Canine Chum Had Received His Free Inoculation, for Now the Dog May Roam About Unmuzzled.

A Great Dane Stood Up Like a Man and as Tall as One to Receive His Injection of Canine Rabies Vaccine.

By Don Donaldson

SCIENCE at last is giving the dog his day. Rabies and distemper are being fought with the hope of ultimate extermination. Knowledge gained after years of laboratory experiment is being used in this new fight to save the dog both from himself and from disease.

Taking the madness out of a dog sounds much like taking the fangs from an adder. The latter has been done, often. The former now is being accomplished at Englewood, N. J. A dog clinic located at that town has done such good work that the town has placed an ordinance on the books permitting dogs who have been given the treatment to roam at large. The animals are vaccinated with hydrophobia serum. Once this is done they are immune from either giving or receiving rabies.

Less than 100 miles distant from that town, in Philadelphia, dog lovers have banded together to appeal to Washington to begin a research under the direction of the Department of Agriculture to perfect a serum that will wipe out the deadly canine malady called distemper. It has been estimated that the annual economic loss in pet dogs from this disease is $1,750,000. Like the scourges that sweep through the human family, this disease is just as fatal to the dog in the wealthy home as to the cur which makes its bed on a pile of rags. Benson Mann, prominent Philadelphia lawyer, heads the agitation to destroy distemper.

"The success of the government in checking hog cholera by the use of a serum and by isolation of infected animals proves that the same thing can be accomplished in distemper," says Mr. Mann. "It has been shown by Dr. N. S. Ferry of Detroit, that distemper is caused by the bacillus bronchisepticus. It has also been shown that more than 30 per cent. of all of the dogs in the United States contract the disease and of those stricken more than 25 per cent. die. The past year has seen thousands of fine dogs carried off and it is time that the lovers of animals took concerted action.

"Perhaps the greatest loss in recent months was that of Duquesne Nell, valued at more than $15,000, and only excelled in field trials and promise of a great future by that other famous pointer, Mary Montrose. After a remarkable performance at Letohatchie, Ala., this young pointer, owned by J. H. Elder, died of pneumonia and distemper."

The move to vaccinate dogs began 10 years ago in Japan. Some 31,000 dogs were examined and a serum was discovered which, when injected, made them immune from rabies.

Four years ago Dr. A. Eichhorn, then chief of laboratories for the Bureau of Animal Industries, U. S. A., and now director of the veterinary department, Lederle Laboratories, Pearl River, N. Y., attacked the problem in a serious and efficient way. Using the data gathered by Japan, and a modification of the Pasteur treatment, he worked on some 6000 dogs in the State of Connecticut, assisted by C. M. Whittlesley, chief of the bureau of domestic animals, Hartford, Ct. The dogs were all inoculated and in each case the operation was successful. Keen interest was taken in the experiments by the medical world and lovers and breeders of dogs. Maj. W. C. Billings, chief of staff at Ellis Island, N. Y., owner of several fine animals, kept in close touch with each phase of the situation and became an authority on the subject.

Recently, at the request of Alfred J. Tipping, president of the Englewood Kennel Club, Englewood, N. J., Maj. Billings was asked to explain, in detail, to the Englewood Board of Health, all that had been done. Dr. J. Finley Bell suggested the board establish a clinic in Englewood and have laws passed making it compulsory that every dog in the city be inoculated. Members of the Kennel Club, all owners of dogs that have captured national honors, announced that they would show their confidence in the movement by permitting their pedigreed animals to be the first given the treatment.

The board took the matter under advisement and following approval by its members, the Englewood Common Council was asked to amend the dog ordinance, in force since 1899, and make it read that all dogs inoculated under the direction of the board, and tagged, be permitted to run the streets unmuzzled. The ordinance was adopted and the first dog clinic ever established in the world was opened July 31 at David A. Wark's Hazelhead Kennels. Thirty dogs were inoculated by Dr. H. S. Holdenby with Canine Rabies Vaccine (one injection method).

The clinic was conducted along strictly professional and ethical lines. A table, covered with a white cloth, was placed on the lawn. A line was formed and each dog in turn was placed on the table, its muzzle removed and thrown into the discard. Mr. Wark, acting as assistant, lifted the animal by its front paws, deftly tying its mouth closed and bandaging its eyes. The veterinarian, with a chart before him showing the age, weight and breed of the patient, carefully measured out the quantity of serum necessary and quickly inserted the needle behind the shoulder blade.

"Happy," a valuable French Bull, was the master of ceremonies. During the operations he sat at the feet of the veterinarian, an interested spectator. When it came his turn he yawned and sat up, tilting his head at the proper angle to receive the bandage. His tag was placed on under the supervision of Dr. C. H. Higgins. This doctor also examined each dog and stated that the operations had been successful.

"There will be no bad after effects," he said. "Tomorrow the animals will feel a slight stiffness in the shoulder but this can be worked out with a little exercise."

The feature of the afternoon was in the way of a disturbance. Just when the last dog was being sent away, a loud hallo was heard from the roadway. It went like this:

"Hey! I got m'dawg. Kin I come in?"

The crowd turned. In the dusty street stood a boy, barefooted. At the end of a thick rope trailed a mongrel puppy.

The boy told how he had trudged eight miles in the hot sun to get to the clinic. The doctor "fixed" his dog. After some coaxing he said his name was Henry Tate, that he lived on Reade street, Englewood, and his "dawg's name was Horace." He rode home in a limousine. Just before the urchin came Grace Wiley, magazine writer, who had her collie "Chad" made safe for himself and society.

WOMEN AND HOME

Conducted by JEANNETTE

Do Women Dress Well?

Are you satisfied with your clothes after you buy them?

Do you know your type and stick to it?

Do you know how to dress and grow thin—or fat if you like?

READERS OF LOVE STORIES.

Is it the old maids of England who read love stories into popularity? asks a writer in the London Graphic. The Great War, alas! has left us with many charming women who are never likely to be wooed and wed. We have always had a fine bulwark of worthy spinsters, but now it is embattled. A woman, especially when the years begin to fly, must love in print, if she hasn't the chance to do so in actuality. Yes, it is the spinster of middle life who is the great reader of love stories, not the "flapper" who is otherwise employed.

JUST COFFEE

The first thing to remember about the use of coffee in the diet is that it should never be given to children.

This fact once firmly in mind, however, we are ready to consider the true service which coffee does undoubtedly render. It is essentially the beverage of the brain worker and, if judiciously used, may be beneficial.

Physicians and dietitians tell us that taste and appetite play an important part in the selection of proper foods. If we do not enjoy our food it does not give us all the benefit that Nature intended. Coffee indirectly aids the digestion and nourishment because it adds to the pleasure and good cheer of our daily meals.

Like other atricles of diet, coffee should be used in moderation. It is possible to eat too much meat, or eggs, or sugar, or even bread, or milk. People differ in these respects.

The element from which coffee derives its refreshing quality is called caffein. After a searching review of all recorded scientific opinion about coffee, Professor Samuel C. Prescott, head of the Department of Biology and Public Health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, sums up the subject as follows:

"Caffein is a mild stimulant of the heart, increases power to do muscular work, increases concentration of mental effort and therefore the power to do more brain work. It is not followed, except in excessive quantities, by undesirable after-effects."

College Girls Live on Half Dollar Daily; Tell You How to Do It

FOUR OF THE YOUNG WOMEN WHO LIVED ROYALLY ON 50 CENTS A DAY. LEFT TO RIGHT: ROBERTA ILIFF, HELEN G. ANDRE, HELEN NICOL AND MAUDE SHEA.

By Marian Hale.

Fifty cents a day for three squares—that hardly sounds possible, does it

However, six girls from Pennsylvania State College this summer proved that three bounteous, man-sized meals may be provided for less than that—for 47.1 cents a person, to be mathematically exact.

The girls are proud of their domestic achievement, and are quite willing to tell the world how they did it, and even submit a week's bill of fare to show conclusively that no one suffered during the experiment period.

"Six girls and an instructor lived at the house," one of the girls explained. "We took turns being assistant cook, cook, waitress and hostess."

Baked Ham with Potatoes

Cut a slice of ham into pieces for serving.

Pare and cut up five or six potatoes into very thin slices as for escolloped potatoes.

Arrange the ham and potatoes in alternate layers in the baking dish and cover with milk. Bake two hours in a moderate oven.

Cocoanut Jumbles

One can condensed milk.

Two squares chocolate, melted.

One-half pound shredded cocoanut.

Mix ingredients together. Drop on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven 15 minutes.

FIRST CAREFULLY STUDY YOUR TYPE MAKE YOUR CLOTHES CONFORM TO IT

Incorrect

Correct

This is the First of a Series of 12 Articles on the Art of Dressing Well By Making Clothes Suit the Particular Type of the Wearer.

Do you know your type?

Do you get what suits you, individually, when you buy clothes, or do you buy gowns because they look pretty in the shop, or because they are similar to the ones affected by your favorite movie star, who may be your opposite as to type?

Do you know your worst points as well as your best ones?

The well-dressed woman is the one who knows the truth about herself, not the one who patronizes the most exclusive costumers or who gets the biggest bills the first of the month.

The tall, slender woman requires one style of gown, the short, stout one another. The same hat that glorifies the narrow face caricatures the broad one.

LEARN YOUR TYPE.

Since every woman wants to look her best, she must learn her type. Let us take up today the problem of an evening gown for the tall, heavy type.

The two photographs show you two gowns, both attractive in themselves, one correct for the model who is wearing it, the other sadly inappropriate.

Its brilliance and unrelieved glitter make her conspicuous and call attention to her stoutness. The unrelieved bodice reveals her exact size and gives her a square, solid appearance. The shoulder line is most unbecoming.

CHARM IN SIMPLICITY.

But place on the same woman the simple evening gown of black crepe and the effect is entirely different. There is an actual illusion of slenderness, as well as pleasing dignity.

The falling sleeves break the line of the waist and add a note of deceptive artistry. They conceal the bulging flesh about the arms. The plain back and front give a straight silhouette. Draperies hide the width about the hips and make an attractive hem line.

The intricate and interesting beaded design which adorns the back and front of the frock is done in a large, bold pattern, appropriate to the woman's lines. No one would ever think of her being stout, because her dark, well-cut gown shows only her best points.

Notice, too, that she wears her hair plainly instead of adding a headband that makes her face appear broad and adds to the general effect of "fussiness" which every large woman should avoid.

DOUGHNUTS

MOTHER'S DOUGHNUTS

Cream a generous half cupful of butter with two cupfuls of sugar; add three well-beaten eggs a cupful and a half of milk, and about five cupfuls of flour, which has been sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add this flour gradually until you have enough to make a dough that can be rolled out, so it may not take the full amount. Roll out, cut into rounds, drop into boiling cottolene or other fat and fry to a golden brown Drain in a colander, and while hot sprinkle with powdered sugar.

RAISED DOUGHNUTS

1 cup milk 1-4 yeast cake, 1-4 cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon salt 1-3 cup butter and lard mixed, 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1-2 grated nutmeg. Scald and cool milk; when lukewarm, add the yeast cake dissolved in water salt and flour enough to make a stiff batter let rise over night. In morning add shortening melted, sugar, eggs well beaten, nutmeg, and enough flour to make a stiff dough; let rise again, and if too soft to handle add more flour. Toss on floured board, pat, and roll to three-fourths inch thickness. Shape with cutter, and work between hands until round Place on floured board, let rise one hour, turn, and let rise again; fry in deep fat, and drain on brown paper. Cool, and roll in powdered sugar

DOUGHNUTS

1 cup sugar 2 1-2 tablespoons butter 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, 4 teaspoons baking powder 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon grated nutmeg, 1 12- teaspoons salt. Cream the butter, and add one-half sugar. Beat egg until light add remaining sugar, and combine mixtures. Add three and one-half cups flour, mixed and sifted with baking powder, salt and spices; then enough more flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Toss one-third of mixture on floured board, knead slightly, pat, and roll out to one-fourth inch thickness. Shape with a doughnut cutter, fry in deep fat, take up on a skewer, and drain on brown paper. Add trimmings to one-half remaining mixture roll, shape, and fry as before; repeat. Doughnuts should come quickly to top of fat, brown on one side, then be turned to brown on the other avoid turning more than once. The fat must be kept at a uniform temperature. If too cold doughnuts will absorb fat; if too hot, doughnuts will brown before sufficiently risen. See rule for testing fat.

DOUGHNUTS II

4 cups flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1 3-4 teaspoons soda, 1 1-4 teaspoons cream of tartar, 1-2 teaspoon grated nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 tablespoon butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 egg. Put flour in shallow pan; add salt soda, cream of tartar, and spices Work in butter with tips of fingers; add sugar, egg well beaten, and sour milk. Stir thoroughly, and toss on board thickly dredged with flour; knead slightly using more flour if necessary. Pat and roll out to one-fourth inch thickness; shape, fry and drain. Sour-milk doughnuts may be turned as soon as they come to top of fat, and frequently afterwards.

DOUGHNUTS III

2 cups sugar, 4 eggs, 1 1-2 cups sour milk, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 2 teaspoons soda, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg, flour. Mix ingredients in order given; shape, fry and drain.

A Thought

Hast thou heard the secret of God? And dost thou restrain wisdom to thyself?—Job 15:8.

Secrecy has many advantages for when you tell a man at once and straight-forwardly the purpose of an object, he fancies there is nothing in it.—Goethe.

HAS RARE ABILITY AND WINNING PERSONALITY

Women Candidates for Legislature Should Learn A Lesson From Lady Astor.

The return of Lady Astor to the British parliament delighted the Canadian women who were privileged to meet her on her brief visit here last spring. Lady Astor is a woman of rare ability and undoubted personality and has the courage of her opinions.

In the provincial elections which are looming up there will no doubt be several women candidates and it behooves up to select women of Lady Astor's type—ladies in the best sense of the word, who without rushing into fads, will still make a strong stand for right principles. We may as well make up our minds to women in parliament and let us send our best.

AS TO THE BEE.

I know the busy little bee
Improves each shining hour
By bringing honey home, which he
Will not himself devour.
I know he goes on weary flights
To gather grand collations
Which will allay the appetites
Of other generations.

A hunk of pollen now and then
Is all he has to feed him;
The honey's served in winter, when
The younger bees succeed him.
For months they'll feast around the hive
His relatives and neighbors—
But he, alas! won't be alive
To profit by his labors.

The busy bee is often praised,
We're bade to imitate him;
Full many a poet's voice is raised
In songs to adulate him.
We're told the wasteful ways of men
Beneath our feet to trample,
And to observe the bee, and then
To follow his example.

But vainly do these poets ask
Of us our admiration;
The creature's labors are a task
Of supererogation.
His industry is most intense,
As we have often stated,
But we are sure his common sense
Is vastly overrated!

All Fat People Should Know This

All fat people owe a debt of gratitude to the author of the now famous Marmola Prescription, and are still more indebted for the reduction of this harmless, effective obesity remedy to tablet form. Marmola Prescription Tablets can be obtained at all drug stores the world over at the reasonable price of one dollar for a case, or you can secure them direct on receipt of price from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Michigan. This now leaves no excuse for dieting or violent exercises for the reduction of the overfat body to normal.

Costume For School Miss

The school girl's costume is receiving a little consideration now from Dame Fashion.

A smart frock that allows for absolute freedom and still has very good lines is this harum-scarum dress of blue trimmed with rows of white braid.

The full skirt forms its own bloomers.

What child would not appreciate those roomy pockets? And what is more typically youthful than the neat sailor collar?

Headed For The Arctic

Any young woman who is planning a jaunt to either of the poles this winter will want to include the garment illustrated in her kit bag.

It is recommended for Christmas masquerades, amateur theatricals (The Three Bears or Beauty and the Beast) or for zero weather.

Our best people are wearing them. The best shops are showing them. They are seen on all fashionable sleeping porches. They are made of flannel or any other wooly stuff that one prefers and may be neatly trimmed with colored pipings if one's fancy runs to ornamentation.

ANCIENT EGYPT WAS PRETTY MODERN LAND

Days of the Pharaohs Saw Battles Between Long and Short Skirts.

Ancient Egypt was a pretty modern sort of place in a lot of ways According to a French scientist Egyptian statuettes dating back to the days of the Pharaohs show that even then there was a battle on between long and short skirts. Some of the statuettes show ladies wearing skirts that just reached their knees, while others show long dresses that might have been copied from the designs the French dressmakers are making this year. Perhaps in another forty centuries the question will be settled for good—perhaps.

Beer having led our logical minds to Egypt, and Egypt having led it to skirts, we may well go on to the wearers of skirts. The flapper still is receiving a lot of attention, and the wise men are divided as to her merits. Says Doctor Clarence Bartlett, president of the Pennsylvania Homepathic Society: "Flapperitis is bringing about insufficient sleep and under-nourishment and making physical wrecks among the young of the modern city." That sounds serious, but there's a bright side, too. The Reverend Almer [illegible] pastor of an Evanston, Illinois, church, presents it. "Flapperism," he says, "is not a disease, but a diversion. The girls are a jolly lot, and they will give us the finest generation of women the world has ever known."

Even Scripture seems divided on this momentous question. Jeremiah 31:4 advises us to "Gor forth to the dances of them that make merry." But Deuteronomy, 32:20, frowns on the young folk, saying "They are a [illegible]ation." And perhaps sad experience speaks in Numbers 32:6— "Shall they vex you with their wiles, wherewith they have beguiled you."—The Popular Magazine October 20th.

Historically engineering is one of the oldest of professions.

Mothers who have used Zam-Buk say it is so fine for the many little accidents of daily occurrence in the home—and especially where there are children — that they would not be without it. Not only so, but children who have had Zam-Buk applied to an injury or sore, when again injured, cry for Zam-Buk to be applied. They know that Zam-Buk stops pain. Nothing ends the pain of a cut, bruise, burn, or skin disease like Zam-Buk, and nothing soothes, draws out the soreness and heals so quickly.

Mrs. I. Wilson of Sarnia, Ont., says: "I could not do without Zam-Buk for my children. It is the best ointment we have ever used for burns, sores and cuts."

Mr. L. B. Andresen of 1407 E. 22nd St., Minneapolis, Minn., writes: "When any of the children, my wife or self meet with an accident, we immediately apply Zam-Buk. It has saved us many a doctor's bill."

Mrs. C. B. Ritcey of Riverport, N.S., writes: "My baby had sores on her face, caused by teething. Zam-Buk completely healed them."

Try Doing Next Week's Washing with Rinso

Find out for yourself why hundreds of thousands of women say that they could not face another wash day without it. The two easy steps below will save you hours of back breaking rubbing.

First: For each tub of clothes dissolve a half a package of Rinso into a little cool water until it is like thick cream, then stir in two quarts of boiling water. If the water is hard, or the clothes extra dirty, use more Rinso.

Then, pour into tub—of cool or lukewarm water. Mix well. Keep adding the solution until you get a rich, lasting, soapy suds, even after the clothes have been put in. Do not pour the Rinso direct from the package into the tub.

Soak the clothes for one hour, two hours, overnight, or as long as convenient. Then rinse to remove the loosened dirt, until the water runs clear. Hang them out to dry.

There's no rubbing—no boiling. Rinso is not a washing powder, but a scientific combination of pure cleansing materials that loosen and dissolve the dirt from even the heaviest pieces. It soaks clothes clean in a few hours without injury to a single fabric.

IF YOU USE A WASHING MACHINE

Follow the regular directions given here. Soak the clothes. Then, before operating the machine, add fresh Rinso solution using the same amount of Rinso as you used for soaking. No other product is needed when Rinso is used.

JUNIOR GIRL'S NEW CLOTHES

Half-way between the little girl and the young woman, no longer called a flapper, comes the junior and the problem of her new clothes for fall has brought out some very pretty solutions.

Jersey and wool crepe are favorite materials and especially, perhaps, a new wool jersey with silk stripe.

Navy serge is good, too, and is often made in suspender dresses with pleated skirts that have pongee or dimity blouses with them.

There's not much trimming used: linen collars and cuffs maybe and a bright-colored patch of peasant or cross-stitch embroidery.

The two models shown are very good and the one with long pleats is said to be especially popular.

WOMEN DIETED ON AN ISLAND

How Eight Fat Women Overcame the Caloric Sirens of Obesity.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—This is the harrowing but heartening tale of how eight fat women overcame the caloric sirens of obesity.

They did it by emulating the Swiss Family Robinson—moving en masse to a Pacfic island from which all girth-producing food had previously been removed, and burning their boat-bridge behind them.

For 30 days they dieted, being rationed like shipwrecked mariners, reducing the aggregate avoirdupois for the eight from 2200 pounds to 1960 or an average loss of 30 pounds to the palpitating person.

Returning, they have left footprints on the sands of reduction ventures and claim to have developed fair immunity against custard and cake, butter fat and fricasse.

Let. Mrs. N. Russell of Venice, Cal, president of the heroic aggregation, now known as the "How Thin You're Looking Club", tell the waist reducing details of the United States Island adventure:

'Twas Desperate Act

"We simply followed a dare-and-do impulse All of us, numbering some of California's prize beauties, felt that something desperate must be done. Isolation on an island was the happy inspiration. And in numbers— each watching the other like a hawk—there was strength.

"One of the women was a bookkeeper and typist She kept a daily chart of progress. Another was a physician. She wrote out the daily calory prescription. I've been a trained nurse, and that was my job.

"We rented the biggest house on the island—and needed it for 2200 pounds of concentrated womanhood!

"Our larder had been selected to make it almost impossible to cheat, even if some of us had been so inclined.)

The first three days everyone fasted. For the rest of the time we indulged a 'canary menu' of buttermilk, fruit juices, crackers, boiled vegetables and other non-fat producing foods. It was really no hardship, and the results agreeably surprised all of us. We slept like babes.

Laugh and Get Thin

"We had to be good-natured about it because the tabulator checked our temper and behavior as well as the diminishing poundage.

'Each morning we'd march to the scales, chanting 'We'll weaken in flesh, but not in spirit.' And while swimming, the song was 'Throw out the life line, and draw in the waist line.'

"The average reduction was about 30 pounds. My own was 33. My waist fell off from 49 to 42; hips 62 to 54; bust 56 to 51.

"I'd swell with pride of achievement if I didn't fear expansion.

"Having established good diet habits, we're going to keep it up. We have set a 200-pound weight as our immediate goal. Any one of the octet breaking training rules will be fined—or sent to the island for a second time."

HARRINGTON HAS GIVEN A WARNING

Kemalists Are Told That No Further Encroachments on Constantinople Will Be Tolerated.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 23. — Canadian Press. — Lieutenant General Harington, commander of the allied forces, has issued a stern warning to the Kemlists that any further encroachments upon Constantinople would be at their peril. Addressing a large gathering assembled to witness the boxing matches between British soldiers and sailors at the auditorium of the British headquarters, he declared that the allied forces in Constantinople were a rock marked "dangerous" upon which the Turks would wreck themselves if they persisted in trying the patience of the allies.

"The allies are very conciliatory, very patient," he said. "They have exercised great forbearance and restraint. Our ministers have gone to Lausanne with the same sprit of conciliation, justice and fairness. They are however human, and there is a limit to human nature. Those who try to exceed that limit play with fire; they would be well advised by the referee to break away."

MOST WOMEN LOVE TO SHOP FOR CHRISTMAS

(Contributed.)

As Christmas draws near, the orgy of Christmas shopping which women love, even though they fear it, will soon begin. Each year signs are posted in stores, advertised in the press and on bill boards, "Do your Christmas shopping early," but the lure of the mad whirl holds many back till the last minute. If each woman would make or purchase their gifts earlier than most do, she would provide for her dear firends with a satisfaction that is denied under the present custom, which often amounts to a stampede and reduces saleswomen to the verge of nervous prostration. And so, Christmas instead of being a season of peace and good will, is for many only a day of love, which in its highest form sent the first Christmas gift to earth many years ago, was practiced literally and only gifts prompted by love, coupled with consideration, were sent, Christmas would be much happier for more people.

COMPLEX SITUATION OVER WOMAN'S WILL.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— A complex situation has developed in a will case here following the disclosure in court that Mrs. Mabel Tyler, who died in Winnipeg in 1918 leaving an estate of $7,500 to her two children, had two husbands at the same time. The estate of Mrs. Tyler was about to be settled when John Allison appeared and claimed a share of it, producing a marriage certificate dated Chicago, November 1905 while another certificate was produced in court yesterday showing she had married W. H. Tyler, in this city on June 8, 1914.

In March, 1920, the Toronto General Trusts Company had filed with it an assignment purporting to be assignment of Joseph Allison's share to his wife's estate in favor of the children. Allison claims the assignment is a forgery. Tyler, the second husband, who died some time ago, left no will and no estate. The court ruled yesterday that the Tyler estate did not control Allison's right to his wife's estate and the children's guardian was granted two weeks to ascertain if the Allison assignment is genuine.

GRATIFYING TO ALL WHO ARE SIGHTLESS

That With Passing Years They Become More Adept in Art of Being Blind.

One of the most gratifying things which people who have lost their sight have to think on is that as the years go on they will become more and more adept in the art of being blind.

A blind man, who appears almost miraculously self-reliant, said the other day that during the whole of the years that he has been blind he has continued to improve; he feels sure he will go on improving so long as life lasts. The plain fact is that an intelligent blinded person becomes more and more normal and less and less blind every year that he lives.

"Transformations" of pure white hair, much in demand among society women at present, rost up to $200.

THREE TEAMS MAY HOLD THE WESTERN FOOTBALL HONORS

No Provision Made For a Post-Season Play-Off — Only Seven Games Are Played.

FINALS SATURDAY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press)—The Western Conference football title, won last year by Iowa may not have an owner this year as Michigan and Chicago remain undefeated, and should the three win next Saturday in the season's final games, the Conference honors will be shared by the trio.

Major John L. Griffith, Commissioner of Athletics in the Conference announced that there is no provision in the rules for a post-season play-off, and that the rule limiting the Conference teams to seven games would prevent a deciding contest.

In the final games next Saturday, Michigan meets Minnesota, Chicago will face Chicago, while North-western will furnish Iowa's opposition.

Since the war there have been several disputed titles. In 1919 Illinois lost to the twice-defeated Wisconsin eleven, but because Coach Zuppke of Illinois chose to play seven Conference games, Illonois was popularly awarded the title. The 1920 race was clearly Ohio's while last year Iowa won the title on a percentage basis, without meeting Chicago, Wisconsin, Ohio State or Michigan.

LYNCH IS LOOKING FOR FOREIGN BOUTS.

NEW YORK, Nov 23.—Rumor has it that Joe Lynch is seriously thinking of invading foreign climes and picking up some soft money. Joe seems to have designs on London and Paris.

It probably will be far more profitable for Joe if he stays at home, unless some one of the many challengers for the bantam crown defeats him. Johnny Kilbane took a trip to England and made a hurried return. Johnny admits there wasn't anything that looked like real money over there.

Johnny Buff, when he held both the flyweight and bantamweight titles ,sought to get some of the European coin, but he soon came back with the information that ordinary bouts here paid more than championship affairs over there.

Like Mickey Walker, Joey Lynch can be a real busy young man warding off his many challengers if he is of the incilnation.

AGAINST SHIPPING BILL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—House Democrats, at a caucus late yesterday, agreed to vote solidly against the Shipping Bill, but Representative O'Connor, Louisiana, announced afterward that he would not be bound by the Party action.

QUEEN'S PREPARING FOR THE BIG GAME.

KINGSTON, Ont., November 23 (Canadian Press). — Queens had two good practices yesterday for the game with Argonauts in Toronto on Saturday. To-day will wind up their training here.

It was reported here yesterday that Frank Shaughnessy, the McGill coach, has arrived in the city to help coach the tri-colour. This, however, was officially denied at Queens.

It is understood that an invitation has been extended to Shag to come to the city, but up till last night he had not put in an appearance, and it is not expected that he will do so now.

LATEST SPEED KING IS A MILLIONAIRE.

Dick Jennings, Jr., Pittsburg millionaire, is the latest speed sensation in automobile circles. Recent at St. Louis, Jennings broke the world's record for 5, 10, 15 and 20 miles, formerly held by Barney Oldfield.

The entry into the motor racing game of Jennings will do much to boom the sport. Jennings is the type of sportsman long needed to fill the void left in the racing ranks by the passing of the late David Bruce Brown and Spencer Wishart, and the retirement of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Caley Bragg.

Jennings is a protege of the old master, Louis Chevrolet. Aside from coaching him in the racing game, Chevrolet designed and built the Frontenac in which the records were made.

Here are the marks made by Jennings at St. Louis: Five miles, 3.40; 10 miles, 7.32 1-5; 15 miles, 11.21 1-5, 20 miles, 15.20 1-5.

Jennings broke the five-mile record by 4 3-5 seconds, 10 miles by 24 seconds, 15 miles by 39 3-5 seconds, 20 miles by 32 seconds.

MALONE NOW WANTS CHANCE AT THE TITLE

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 23.—Jock Malone, who is eager for a chance to knock Mickey Walker off his pugilistic throne, doesn't think very well of Britton's conqueror. The new title holder, in the opinion of Malone, is in the class of Johnny Wilson, who is familiarly known as the "cheese champion."

Malone gained a decision over Walker recently in a bout at Boston and says he is ready to repeat the very first time that Walker steps in to the ring with him.

"Walker had the luck" says Malone, "there are a half dozen better welters in the country than Walker and I am one of them."

in 1911. It stood 11 years.

GASOLINE COMPETITION

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press) — Competition in supplying Sweden with oil, including gasoline for use in automobiles, has resulted in price reductions until the liquid is cheaper in this country than in New York City. As a result the motor car agencies are enjoying a period of extraordinary prosperity.

American, Russian, Dutch and German oil companies are active in the competitive field.

BARNSTORMING IS CHARGE AGAINST MAJOR LEAGUERS

Commissioner Landis Has Started An Investigation of Players' Activities.

TWO PITCHERS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press)—Investigation of reports that two major league baseball players are violating the rule regarding barnstorming, by playing winter baseball on the Pacific Coast, was started yesterday by Commissioner K. M. Landis upon his return from the East. The players mentioned are Bill Piercy, pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, and "Red" Oldham, twirler of the Detroit Tigers. They are alleged to have been members of a club which played in Los Angeles last Sunday.

The barnstorming rule provides that "no player shall participate in any exhibition game after October 31, unless in special instances, and then only with the unanimous consent of the Advisory Council."

"No permission has been given to Piercy of Oldham to play baseball after October 31," Leslie M. O'Connor, Secretary to the Commissioner said today.

HARVARD'S FALL UPSET THE DOPE

Princeton's Victory Over the Crimson Was the Biggest Surprise of the Year.

By BILLY EVANS.

Once more the dope has been upset in football.

The defeat of Harvard by Princeton will stand out as one of the biggest surprises of the year when the curtain is rung down.

As is usually the case, a player little figured on in doping out the result of the game, was largely responsible for the upset.

A chap with the unromantic name of Stout who was on the program as substitute end for Princeton was the hero for Princeton, the villain for Harvard.

Coach Bill Roper of the Tigers has a habit of rushing a fresh man into the fray any time he feels that one of his players is weakening. He watches every move of his athletes closely. It seems second nature for him to detect when a player has lost his punch.

While Stout didn't break into the headlines of the Princeton-Harvard game, his entry into the affair was the turning point as I saw it.

Shortly after he had entered the game, only a play or two having punted to Spalding on Harvard's 40-yard line. The punt was high and gave Stout a chance to pick his way through the host of Harvard interferers. As Spalding caught the ball, Stout tackled him viciously and threw him for a six-yard loss.

Back in punt formation, Gherke on the next play, took a perfect pass from Clarke and started a wide swing around Princeton's right end. It seemed Harvard has decided to immediately try out the substitute Stout.

Stout broke through, tackled Gherke so viciously that the ball bounded out of his hands and was recovered by Princeton on about the 16-yard line. Stout's desperate tackle, causing Harvard to fumble, had put the Tigers in a position to score.

On the second play, Gray took a triple pass and aided by excellent interference on the part of Stout, ran the ball to the two-yard line, from where Princeton pushed it over for the touchdown that decided the game.

In four plays Princeton had scored a touchdown and Stout figured prominently in three of the four plays.

BRINTON FIVE-PIN LEAGUE.

Last night th Carlton took three straights from the Sarouks at Solomon's Alleys. Joe Marsden rolled high for the three games with a total of 620. Taylor was next with 514. For the losers, Yarrington was high with 463. Following are the scores:

Sarouks—
Ross	120	120	120	360
Rose	100	157	176	433
Martin	131	127	104	362
Wilson	186	127	115	428
Yarrington	105	153	205	463
Bishop	175	151	112	438

YANKS' TEAM IN NEW ORLEANS.

NEW YORK, November 23 (Canadian Press). — The New York American Baseball Club announced yesterday that the team again would train in New Orleans next spring, reporting there on 10th March, a week later than usual.

The players will remain in New Orleans until 1st April.

TESTERS LOST THREE.

The Testers lost three straight to the Repaicers in the Westclox five pin League at the Water Street Alleys last night. Curry was high man with 526 rolling the high single also with 222. Lundy had 407 Saddler 389 and Yelland 385.

GREBB'S TITLE MAY BE IN DANGER

James J. Delaney (Lef t), Harry Greb (Right).

By BILLY EVANS.

This seems to be a year of upsets for the pugilistic champions.

Johnny Buff, holder of the flyweight and bantam titles, has been shorn of both.

First Joe Lynch beat Buff for the bantam title, then Pacho Villa took over the flyweight honors.

Gene Tunney, light heavyweight champion, was defeated by Harry Greb, Georges Carpentier fell before Battling Siki, and to top it off the venerable Jack Britton was finally dethroned by Mickey Walker for the welter title.

Is Harry Greb due for a surprise when he meets James J. Delaney at Oklahoma City, Okla., on Nov. 17? Will Delaney continue the habit of dethroning champs that has become so popular?

Who is this fellow James J. Delaney? No doubt that will be your first thought when you read of the Greb match.

Sensation of the West.

Jim Delaney, as he is known in fistic circles, is the sensation of the west. His fame has not yet spread to the east, but Mike Gibbons and Mike Collins, who are handling his affairs, feel that the effete east will be saying a lot of nice things about him after his fight with Greb.

Delaney is a product of St. Paul, Minn., known in ring circles as the "City of Champions." Just think of it—St. Paul has produced the Gibbons brothers, Mike and Tommy; Billy Miske, Mike O'Dowd, Jock Malone and Johnny Ertle, all former champions or near champs.

Jim Delaney is the latest output of the "City of Champions" and many of the western critics consider him the flashiest, cleverest and hardest hitting boxer that St. Paul has ever turned out.

Greb Match Big Test.

Delaney is 21 years old, a native of St. Paul and Irish through and through. His father was born in Tipperary and his mother is from Kildare.

The latest sensation in boxing circles is of rangy construction, standing six inches high, has a reach of 79 inches. He is a clever boxer and has a terrific punch when he sets. His footwork is superb.

Delaney will get his first real tryout against Greb. It will give a good line on the youngster, who has been so highly touted. If he delivers against Greb he will be in big demand in the east.

Delaney is a protege of Mike Gibbons. For three years Mike has tutored him. The youngster has been brought along slowly. His backers now feel that he is ready to meet any fighter in the world from 160 to 175 pounds.

"Bring on your Battling Sikis," says Delaney, and he means it.

Inside Stuff Usually Overlooked By the Fans

Many Interesting Incidents Occur During the Game That the Crowd Does Not Know About—Many Fine Points.

(By "Bo" McMillin.)

In reading the newspaper accounts of a football game we only get it form the spectators' viewpoint. It would be an entirely different story and much more interesting if one of the men who took an active part were able to give his side of it as he experienced it.

There are many interesting incidents which occur during a game that the crowd does not know about. Very often fans know when a good defensive play has been made and as so many of the sport writers do not know the finer points of the game, about the defensive formations and how they are changed by the field general to meet each attempt by the offense, that the players' side is rarely given.

As I have previously said, the field general directs the defense as well as the offense. His most strategic position in this is to back up the line. Here he is able to watch the eyes of the opposing backs, he can see the direction their body is pointing. He is in a position to notice any movement made by them that will indicate the point of attack. He immediately warns his men, indicating the direction he thinks the play will come.

Of course there are many times when he will be mistaken in his diagnosis and the play will go in the other direction. But the majority of times a smart football player will be able to work out a great number of these plays. Even the best of them will give away plays sometimes.

In our game with Harvard last year their ends "telegraphed" every pass that they attempted by glancing out at our halfbacks. This, however, was the only instance in the two games I played against the Crimsons where I noticed them giving away a play. It would have been foolish for me to have tried to dope out the Harvard signals, but there have been times when some of our men have been able to get our opponents' signals.

That is usually the fault of the coach. They do not warn the quarterback how to select the proper numbers to go with their signal numbers. As an example, a quarterback calls 14, 97, 63, 54 in the first series. I would infer from this that they were using the first number as the signal number because it is not natural to jump from 14 to 97. The signal should be called 14, 12, 23, 15.

There are a number of different ways a quarterback can give away his signals. But it does not pay to try to detect the signals of a smart team, for if they see that you are doing this they will often cross you up and it may prove disastrous.

We have played a number of teams that used wide, sweeping end runs. Some of the linemen come out to get in the interference on these plays. It is very easy to detect when a lineman is coming out because of the unnatural position he assumes. Our linesman would note this and give the signal so we could set a trap.

Poland does not aspire to be a great naval power, but has set up a very efficient [illegible] force, Commander Maxie states.

MINOR LEAGUE UMPIRES FAVOR FORMING UNION

Umpires Feel They Have Been Played the Role of the Goat in Several Mix-Ups.

TO HOLD MEETING.

NEW YORK, Nov 23.—A union composed of the minor league umpires is the very latest in baseball. It is claimed that the minor league officials feel that in unionism there is self-preservation.

The agitation among the minor league officials was caused by a mixup that took place in the International League last summer. Umpire McGowan got into a fist fight with two Syracuse players, one of them being Catcher McCurdy, recruited from the University of Illinois varsity.

Both players and umpire were suspended indefinitely. The suspension of the player was raised in a few days after he had written a letter of apology, while the umpire was later released from the staff.

The officials of that organization as well as minor league umpires all over the country, didn't take very kindly to the ruling. Similar happenings took place in several other organizations, with the umpire invariably playing the role of the goat.

It is a difficult matter to enforce discipline in the minors at best. Minor league umpires feel that the action of several presidents in placing the penalty on the umpire makes for rowdy conduct, and sooner or later will make it almost impossible to enforce discipline.

It is rumored that a meeting will be called shortly of a number of the leading minor league umpires to discuss the matter. It is possible the conference will be held in Louisville at the time the minor leagues meet in that city in December. As yet no overtures have been made to the major league officials.

ROYAL WINTER FAIR CREATES NEW RECORD

Big Fair Was Officially Opened Last Evening--A Live Stock Centre.

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press.) — Royal Winter Fair has created a world's record. In one day Toronto has become the live stock centre of the continent. Before the afternoon performance was over yesterday, leading stock men pronounced the show the finest of its kind on the continent, if not in the world, in the words of Hon. W. R. Motherwell, it "far exceeded expectations of the most sanguine enthusiasts."

The great coliseum seemed to shrink in size, with thousands of persons surrounding the ring and filling every available seat.

It was most impressive sight when at 8.30 last night His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt officially opened the Fair. With dark tanbark in the centre, backed by a ring of humanity, brilliant lights and walls draped with Royal blue, yellow and white, trimmed with cedar branches, a picture hard to forget was presented.

In one day the expenditure of more than a million dollars on the huge coliseum was justified. In 12 hours an International show second to none in the world came into being. It was a triumph for Toronto, for the province and for the Dominion. The Queen City is now the [illegible] of two of the greatest exhibitions of present times.

"Royal" presents to the public the greatest diversity of attractions. In each department record for province has been established. Visitors may witness thrilling horse jumping, see the pick of the continent, inspect what is said to be the largest exhibit of silver and black foxes ever made in Canada, and enjoy the fragrance and beauty of an unrivalled floral and fruit display.

THE ROADS SYSTEM IS EXPLAINED

building in this county was most gratifying to himself and his Department. Proceeding to the main subject of his address, he said that when he took office there were 420 miles of Provincial Highways designated. This programme included a road from the Quebec boundary to Toronto, the Hamilton to Queenstown road and a third from Hamilton to London. No provision was made for the people of Western Ontario and also of this central part of the Province.

In 1920 the Department of Highways mapped out their Provincial Highway system, designating 1,824 miles distributed in eastern, central and western Ontario, crossing every organized county. That system remains to-day as it was designated, with the sole exception of the road between Dale and Welcome, which was assumed last spring at the request of a deputation from Peterborough.

Uniform Standard.

Hon. Mr. Biggs emphasized the fact that the Provincial roads are built of a uniform standard. They are 30 feet wide from point of shoulder to shoulder, with 20 feet "metalled" or paved, the metal being of stone or graved or other material. This affords a 20-foot roadway with five feet on each side for safety, allowing plenty of room for cars to turn out in passing or for parking to make repairs. The five-foot strips are sodded to prevent the growth of weeds.

From fence to fence the right-of-way on Provincial roads is 86 feet. One of the reasons for this width was to permit the planting of trees at either side with plenty of room to avoid interference with electric power wires. When this detail of the scheme is completed there will be 60,000 trees growing on either side of the 1,800 miles of Provincial highways in this Province. Last year 24,000 of these trees were planted, 90 per cent. of them maples, with some white oaks and nut-bearing trees, and elms in the lower lands.

Peanut Critics.

"We have been criticized for this," said the Minister, "but anyone who can't find anything larger than that to criticize us about has a mighty weak case." It was a common experience that trees could not live under telephone and Hydro lines, but with 86 feet right-of-way ample space was available, and every power line company has had notice that they will be held responsible for any slashing of trees along the Provincial Highways. Permission to trim a tree must be obtained from the Department's forester, and the work, if done, shall be under the supervision of himself or of one of his men.

Protect Pedestrians.

The wide road also gave room for sidewalks or cinder paths on both sides, a protection for pedestrians, and especially for school children, on the outskirts of cities. Suburban development was also taken care of by allowing room for laying sewers and other public utilities without tearing up the roadway. For the extra ten feet depth of frontage that was taken on each side the owner of the property received a new fence erected with posts and gates and entrances. The owners of such properties would benefit from unearned increment during the next five years, more than had accumulated during the last ten, Mr. Biggs declared.

Sound Foundation.

One of the fundamentals of the Biggs system is to put into the roads a foundation that will take care of future growth. "I believe in building from the bottom up and not from the top down," said the Minister. "Possibly it is not the most popular system. Most people have wanted to pave or surface roads as the first thing to do. Fifty per cent. of the cost of a road has been put into it before the metal goes on. Only four hundred miles of highway are ungraded, and by the fall of 1923 there will not be a single foot of Provincial Highway that will not have a square foot of metal on it."

Mr. Biggs said that all this work had been accomplished by the co-operation of the people and by a thoroughly organized and efficient epartment. "No one gets a position on the system unless he is qualified, and ninety per cent. of the men of our department are returned soldiers."

Public's Investment

Mr. Biggs stressed the point that good highways should be regarded not merely as an expenditure but as an investment. "They are an investment that will yield a far larger interest than have other monies we have invested. Ontario is the playground of the American continent, and I don't know any place with such lakes and rivers within a few miles from the United States that compares with this district right here. Hundreds of thousands of Americans are all dressed up but with no place to go. They have travelled all over their own country, and now they want to come into Ontario. But they won't come until they have good roads to motor over.

Tourist Invasion

This year 517,000 American cars came into Canada and Ontario and Ontario got something over 10 per cent of them. Suppose that 250,000 of them came into Ontario for four days that would be one million days and with five persons to a car that would be five million days, and if they spend five dollars a day each, you can get some idea or the wealth the tourist traffic means to this province."

Mr. Biggs contended that good roads particularly helped the people of the lake districts who by virtue of good roads have a greater demand for their produce.

Enemies of Highways

"We have two great enemies of good roads, the speeder and the truck owner who persists in overloading", said the Minister. "We have too much money invested in our roads and we need them too badly to abuse them, I know it is hard to keep your foot off the gas and 95 percent. of the people are not offenders in that respect. They are willing to protect our investment, but the whole 100 percent. will have to be disciplined because of the actions of the five percent. who will speed."

Speaking of the over-loading evil Mr. Biggs declared that he was determined to make it hot for those who ignored the regulations. The maximum loads were going to be reduced in January, scales would be installed here and there and men would be equipped with loademeter jacks, and trucks that were overweight would have to be unloaded on the spot and the driver taken to court.

"And we'll fine them till it smarts" said the Minister, who then dealt briefly with county, provincial, town ship and county roads and the manner in which his department had assisted all of them. "In the next five years ye will have in Ontariobgzz years we will have in Ontario roads we will all be proud of."

As a souvenir of his first visit to Peterborough, Hon. Mr. Biggs was presented by Mayor Taylor with a voluminous album of views of Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes.

ANCIENTS AHEAD THE HOOCH GAME

Records Reveal Man's Earliest Adventures With Prohibition.

When you were a tadpole and I was a fish
In the paleozoic time,
We'd brew our booze in the primal ooze
And roll in the Stygian slime.
We'd make our stills and curse our ills
And we'd serve in the primitive pen.
We were much afraid of the dry squad's raid,
For we bootlegged even then.
—From "Rhymes of a Bootlegger."

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 21.—From the hieroglyphs and historic records of ancient Egypt and Assyria has been coaxed at last the story of man's earliest adventures in prohibition.

And what they say is. "Old stuff!"

For these centuries-old characters and writings tell us that even then did bootleggers flourish and home brew was abroad in the land; that there were dry laws and dry raids, and the boys sat around their Babylonian beer and wailed "them was the days."

To Prof. H. F. Lutz, Egyptologist at the University of California, are we indebted for the exhaustive research that bared these consoling pictures of the past. Professor Lutz has just completed a comprehensive pamphlet on "Viticulture and Brewing in the Ancient Orient."

Aptly enough it was to the crumbling cellars and the urns, that once did duty as containers,—that the professor went in search of his data.

Recipes Galore

And, h boy, among other things he discovered more than 100 "recipes" for "making your own!"

Also he found that prohibition was not much of a success in its first appearance. It came as a religious enactment.

Persia, it seems, was the cradle of the bootlegger. A nation largely occupied in the making of wine, it did not take kindly to the enforcement act. Egyptian monarchs finally interceded, but wine smuggling already was becoming a pet sport.

Professor Lutz discovered that the potency of the humble raisin was appreciated, by dry enforcers as well as the home brewers. From the "Daily Hieroglyph"—or whatever the ancient bulletin board was called—he culls the following, which may sound familiar to many:

"In the year 401, during the reign of Hakim, many people of Cairo were beaten and led shamefully through the streets because they had sold wine, a forbidden merchandise." There you have the fate of the first bootlegger.

Again, he finds this: "Hakim prohibited the sale of raisins and issued orders against importation. Large quantities of raisins were thrown into the Nile or burned, or were thrown into the streets and trampled upon. The vineyards of Gizah were cut down and destroyed."

"First Dry"

It was Mohammed, it seems, who staged the first widespread dry campaign. Professor Lutz finds that there were political as well as moral reasons.

Pliny, that good old wet, is found to have taken up the anti-prohi platform.

It is also discovered from Egyptian monuments that Egyptians were heavy drinkers when the dry law was enacted. Festive parties galore are depicted. Women overcome by wine are frequently found in the figures on tombs at Thebes.

The "eat, drink and be merry" slogan was introduced by hosts who had servant carry the wooden table while he pronounced the toast: image of a corpse about a banquet table while he pronounced the toast: "Behold—drink and be happy, for after thy death thou wilt be as this one."

Finally Professor Lutz concludes that ancient prohibition lasted only for a short time. Among the Moslems, however, it was rigidly enforced and is to this day.

RADIO NEWS

No longer will radio operators aboard see-going vessels have to sit up all night on the watch for any distress calls from other ships. An automatic radio receiving device has been designed to take their places.

This device is meant for attachment to the receiving part of a ship's radio equipment. It replaces the famous CQD and S.O.S. calls.

Instead of these letters ,the code for distress will be four dashes of one second each, repeated three times at regular intervals. When these dashes are received by a ship equipped with the automatic device they are amplified and sent through an electrically operated mechanism which rings a bell in the circuit.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

For making costumes which are sold for $15 to $20 in fashionable shops, women are said to receive as little as 22 cents in some of the London factories.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, New York society leader, has received the French Cross of the Legion of Honor in recognition of her contributions to welfare work during the war.

Signora Geraldine G. Laqredo, who recently dropped more than 1,600 feet in a parachute from an airplane, is the first woman to have achieved such a perilous feat in Italy.

Claiming that her husband spends all his time reading radio books and spending all his spare money for outfits, Mrs. E. R. Tibbs of Washington, D.C., is asking a divorce.

Radio Hastens Civilization

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Civilization will take longer strides with the use of radio than it has ever taken before.

This is the opinion of William Dubilier, radio inventor and manufacturer, who has made the new science a hobby since its early days. Bubilier is one of the first to discard the outdoor aerial in radio reception and plug in on the electric light or telephone wires instead.

"Six months ago,' said Dubilier, 'probably 100,000 receiving sets were in use. To-day it is conservatively estimated that more than a million homes are being entertained and educated by means of the radio telephone.

"I know of no science which has advanced civilization in such a short period to an extent equal to the promising outlook of the radiophone.'

Smaller World.

Distances will be annihilated, Dubilier believes, time will be shortened, nations will be united and even languages will intermingle through the universal use of radio.

"Radio will annihilate distance entirely,' he said, "so that the Japanese, Eskimos, South Americans, Icelanders and Siberians will become neighbors and will adopt a common language. Thus, national hatred and distrust and possibly future wars will be eliminated.

"The farmer will be cityfied. No woodsman or camper will be isolated Every Pullman train will have its radiophone and the stock news tickers are already being replaced by radio receivers. Every modern apartment house will include in its service radio entertainment and news—with the hot water and steam heat!

"Radio universities will be created and regular lectures and courses given."

DESERT PICTURE AND SONG AT THE CAPITOL

This is the condition in which two Broadway favorites found themselves while encamped among the sand dunes near Oxnard, Cal., for the filming of George Melford's production of "Burning Sands" which will be the feature at the Capitol theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"A white tent on the desert, baths in a portable tub, and meals in a mess-tent is a little different from a theatre on Broadway, and a comfortable hotel a block from the stage door" said Jacqueline Logan, former New York Follies favorite, who has an important role in the picture, "but I like it!"

Louise Dresser, vaudeville and musical-comedy star, who makes her second screen appearance in "Burning Sands" expressed the same sentiment. Wanda Hawley and Milton Sills are featured in "Burning Sands" which is from the novel by Arthur Weigall.

The story deals with the love of a young English woman of the nobility for a hermit of the Sahara desert. He treats her coldly, but she persists in her effort to win him and after a series of highly dramatic incidents, in which romance and ttagedy are mingled, succeeds. The theme is the antithesis of that treated in "The Shiek" and it is said by George Melford, the producer, that "Burning Sands" is perhaps the strongest production with which he has thus been identified.

As an added attraction the management have secured Toronto's favorite soprano, "Flora Shaw" for the last half of this week. Residents will remember Miss Shaw singing for their entertainment some time back and the favorable impression created with her classical songs—she has a voice of remarkable range and sweetness and will sing a special number in keeping with the feature picture "Burning Sands."

AT THE ROYAL.

CORINNE GRIFFITH IS CRACK SHOT

Film Star and Her Leading Man Practice Markmanship.

In the making of "A Woman's Sacrifice," which will be shown at Royal Theatre to-night, a battle scene is shown, in which a log cabin is attacked. For this scene real bullets were used in the rifles, as damage had to be done to the building for closeups. A shot fired by Curtis Cooksey, Corinne Griffith's leading man, hit a demijohn and split it open. This demijohn was on the bar and characters were standing at either side of it.

Mr. Cooksey is a crack shot and always hits his mark. However, Corinne Griffith, who was standing near by and out of camera range, declared she could do better. She took the gun from Mr. Cooksey's hands and took careful aim and hit a lamp on the wall and knocked it over. Then after the scene was shot the two had a contest to prove which was the champion marksman. Corinne Griffith made a record of forty-nine out of fifty shots and Cooksey forty-eight out of fifty. Some accused him of falling down purposely, but he declares that he tried hard to defeat the star.

Jokes about prohibition are an awful bore, but we can't help remarking that the title of the new Educational-Christie Comedy, "Any Old Port", refers to seaports and not to anything in the way of thirst quenchers such as a well known wine. Most of the scenes in this comedy, which will be shown at the Royal Theatre takes place on the ocean, on board a big liner.

THE LABOURITE LEADER ASSUMES NEW POSITION.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press). — J. Ramsay Macdonald, Laborite, assumed his new position as the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons this afternoon, and in the debate on the speech from the Throne, declared that the statement in the King's address regarding unemployment was profoundly unsatisfactory to Labor. He said it showed that the Government had no application of the appending tradegy.

FIFTY STUDENTS JOIN MONTREAL FOOD STRIKE

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH M'KIBBIN METHERAL

The death occurred early this morning of Elizabeth McKibbin, wife of Jos. R. Metheral, at her late home, 474 Aylmer street, after a lingering illness. The deceased was a daughter of the late Jas. McKibbin and was born in Smith Township, sixty-one years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss; her husband, two sons, Walter E. and Arthur G., and one sister, Miss Jennie McKibbin, all of this city.

The funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. W. Harold Young at the family residence, Saturday, November 25, at 2 p.m.

Interment in Little Lake Cemetery

MARGARET BUTCHER.

It was with deep regret that the people of Kincaid and district, Saskatchewan, learned of the sudden death of Margaret Butcher, wife of Chas. T. Butcher, second son of Mr. T. Butcher, of Peterborough, on Friday, Oct. 20th. Mrs. Butcher suffered from a slight stroke two weeks previously from which she had apparently recovered, but was suddenly taken ill, passing away within a few hours. Deceased was born in England, forty four years ago, coming to Canada in 1914 to join her brothers. She had previously spent fourteen years at her profession in the old country resigning her position of a superintendent of a large hospital. When the Great War broke out she enlisted with the Canadian forces and after waiting for some time for instructions to go, re-enlisted with the Imperial forces and went overseas in 1916. On her return to this country in 1918 she was married to Mr. Butcher and went to reside on the farm north of Kincaid. Owing to the ever urgent and increasing demand for her services she went to Kincaid in the fall of 1920 and opened the nursing home, remaining there eighteen months.

Mrs. Butcher's life was one of service, being ever ready to help those in need, no demand seeming too great, her kindly spirit as well as her great capability ever inspiring confidence.

The funeral services conducted by Rev. Stickings of East End were held from the home of her brother, Harold Boyd on Sunday afternoon, interment being made in Kincaid cemetery. The attendance at the funeral was the largest ever known at Kincaid, her many friends from near and far trying in some way to pay last respect to one who had done so much for the community.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. As well as numerous sprays and wreaths from personal friends were a "Gates Ajar" from Reeve, Councillors and Ratepayers of Rural Municipality of Pinto Creek; a large G.W.V.A. emblem from Great War Veterans; contributions from The Book Circle, Winona Rebekah Lodge, Dixie School Children, Dixie Ladies' Aid and Glen Bain Homemakers Club.

Deceased is survived by her husband and four brothers, Harold and John of this district, Joseph in England and Frank in India.

GIRLS MINUS CURLS ARE CALLED TO BAR.

TORONTO, November 23. Canadian Press. — In some learned professions bobbed hair is taboo. Not so in law. To-day Miss Adele Thompson, Hamilton, and Miss Florence Daley, Toronto, with shorn curls, were among 13 law students called to the bar by the Convocation of Law Society of Upper Canada.

They were received by Justice Latchford.

W. F. Nickle, K.C., Kingston, Gideon Grant, K.C., and D. W. Saunders, K.C., of Toronto, were made Benchers.

IN MEMORIAM.

CAMPBELL—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Margaret A. Campbell, who died Nov. 23rd, 1921.

Short and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all;
The blow was great and the shock severe,
We little thought her death so near;
And only those who love can tell
The pain at not saying the last farewell.

—From Husband and Daughter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press).—"Do you know that United States is only land on earth, where human beings are burned at stake", is startling question posted in full page advertisemeit inserted in principal newspapers this morning by National Association for advancement of colored people.

Waiting For His Hanging, Bianchi Quakes in His Cage

WINDSOR, Nov. 22.—Frank Bianchi, sentenced to be hanged Jan. 25 for killing Thomas Fraser, is sick with fear.

They are keeping him in a cage in the Essex County Jail in Sandwich, which is scarcely larger than the bunk it contains. Not having room enough for pacing about on the cold concrete, he lies, or sits on the bunk all the time, with his eyes closed, or fixed on wall or ceiling.

By turning his head he may see autumn leaves and blue sky through a window; but perhaps the bars on it fall in the semblance of a gallows, for he turns suddenly away when his gaze encounters them.

Watched With Care

In front of the cells sits a man who ceaselessly looks without expression at Bianchi. This is the death watch, charged with preventing the condemned man's escape, and to frustrate any attempt he may make to take his own life.

Bianchi watched with more than ordinary care; for, during his trial last week, he tried to slash his wrist with a razor blade.

Three visitors come to the cell every day—the jail doctor, his priest and his lawyer.

The doctor gives Bianchi medicine for the illness his anxiety has brought on, and prescribes a diet. The priest, with comforting words of a merciful Court, strikes at the root of the malady.

Desperate Hope

Bianchi leaps to meet his lawyer, Frank W. Wilson. Hope is mingled with piteous fear in his eyes as he gasps: "Must I die?"

"Don't give up hope," replies Wilson. "The judge spoke as if he thought your sentence might be commuted to life imprisonment. I'm getting up petitions now, and everybody seems glad to sign them. I believe we can, at least, save you from hanging."

"I couldn't help shooting him," Bianchi repeats for the thousandth time, his squat form trembling, his hands in his black hair. "Him and the others hit me and my friends first. Can't I protect myself?"

Can Not Read

The lawyer carries a newspaper, but Bianchi does not ask to see it. Reading, either of English or his native Italian, is not among his accomplishments. Without this, there is nothing for him to do in his cell but think of the end.

At night another man comes to relieve the death watch, and Bianchi is even more careful to keep his face averted. When the moonlight throws a great shadow behind that still figure before the cell, it seems as if deth itselfs were there. Bianchi tosses and moans on his bunk, and the guard tells him to be quiet.

Sometimes he sits up and peers at something in his hand, then presses it to his breast. It is a picture of his mother and father in Italy. He came to America four years ago so he could earn enough to support them in their old age.

Society

Mrs. Bomer and children, of Lindsay, are visiting the Misses Jenkins, of Water Street.

Lieut.-Col. W. N. Ponton, "Sidney Cottage," Belleville, announces the engagement of his daughter, Anna Swanwick, to William McGregor Logan, of Hamilton. The marriage to take place December 16th. Miss Ponton is a sister of Mrs. (Dr.) Blagrave, Vicar of St. John's Church, Peterborough.

The many friends of Rev. A. Doner will be pleased to mark that he is slowly recovering after his recent serious illness.

Mrs. G. W. Gilman, 377 Park Street, was at home yesterday afternoon to a large number of her friends. Mrs. Gilman, in black velvet and silver tissue, received in the living-room, which was decorated with pink carnations. In the tea-room Mrs. K. G. Lech presided over the table, charmingly arranged with mauve and yellow 'mums and yellow shaded lights. Mrs. W. C. Ackerman cut the ices. Assistants in the tea-room were Mrs. Ernest Green, of Chicago, Mrs. G. H. Thompson and Mrs. Dickson Hall.

A COSTLY HABIT

Burning the filament too brightly merely wastes the filament and shortens the life of the tube without adding to the efficiency of the set.

LOOK FOR OPEN CIRCUIT

When a steady hum is heard in the receivers after wiring up a set, it may be understood that there is an open circuit somewhere. Trace out the wiring carefully and some little fault will present itself.

FREE AIR

No license is necessary in the United States to receive wireless messages of any kind. There are no taxes. There is absolutely no legal "red tape," of any sort to be feared in connection with the installation and operation of radio sets.

FREQUENT INSPECTION NECESSARY

Watch the connections of a receiving outfit. They gradually become loose and dirty. Make an occasional inspection to keep them clean and tight. Kinks and twists in the phone cord should be taken out because they will eventually ruin the cord.

AERIAL PLACEMENT

The aerial should be constructed as far as possible from houses, trees and other wires, all of which absorb some of the energy and tend to reduce the effectiveness of the aerial.

AN ECONOMICAL SWITCH KNOB

Switch knobs, for your home-made tuner, can be made out of ink bottle tops. By removing the cork and boring a hole in the centre of the black top and inserting an ordinary screw-top binding post in the hole, a serviceable switch may be constructed.

INDOOR AERIALS

If the owner of a rented house refuses to permit an aerial on the roof, an efficient indoor aeril can be made by running a wire around the molding of one of the rooms. In constructing loops try to get the diameter as large as possible. A large loop will give the best results.

WIRELESS FAKERS

When buying equipment deal with reliable abents only. Never take anything that is supposed to be "just as good." Unscrupulous dealers are inclined to exaggerate the receiving power of their sets. Some instruments that are sold to "pick up" messages for a radius of several hundred miles, never receive anything from more than 40 miles.

RECEIVING

With a fairly good receiving antenna and crystal detector set of good design, radio telephone concerts can easily be received at a distance of 15 to 20 miles from the average radiophone broadcasting station. If the receiver is equipped with a single vacuum tube detector and regenerative circuit, broadcast concerts can easily be heard at a distance of 100 miles. If amplifiers are used, in addition to the regenerating detector, the average distance of reception may easily be 200 miles or more. Regenerative vacuum tube receivers often pick up broadcast radiophone stations over 600 miles away.

Severe Kidney Trouble

Mrs. F. Rinehart, Campbellville, Ont., writes:

"I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

DIVORCE MEANS LITTLE TO PAIR

Artist Sails to Re-wed Wife Who Twice Received Legal Freedom.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. — If marriage is a failure, Jerome Uhl, baritone and painter, is not going to admit it without giving it a—third—thorough trial with the same woman. He has sailed for Europe to start over again with the woman from whom he has twice been separated by divorce, owing to incompatability of their artistic temperaments.

Twice they decided they couldn't live without each other; twice they decided they couldn't live with each other; now they have returned to their original view.

Married in 1903

After four years of friendship, they married in 1903. Mrs. Uhl is a cousin of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury and a niece of Mrs. Alexander Brinton Coxe, a leader of Philadelphia society. Mr. Uhl is a son of S. Jerome Uhl, of Cincinnati, a portrait painter, who painted Lincoln and every succeeding President except Roosevelt. He is a cousin of Coles Phillips, painter.

In 1914 Mrs. Uhl noticed her husband was paying more attention to his painting than to his dinners. Many times he became too preoccupied to eat. She went to Reno and divorced him, alleging extreme cruelty as exemplified in his missed dinners. Custody of their daughter, Marion, was given to her.

In the years that followed they met frequently and wrote constantly. He studied painting in Europe a while. They remarried in Santa Barbara, Cal., in 1917.

For two years they were happy, but Mr. Uhl had learned in Europe that he could sing and critics said he might succeed Scotti. For the same cruelty Mrs. Uhl divorced him in 1919, in California. They continued to write.

Mr. Uhl sang in New York with the Century Opera Company and in concerts. Harold McCormick met him and put him in the Chicago Opera Company. But the jealousy of Mary Garden—mind you, he says—kept him from the roles which he should have had and he resigned.

Four weeks ago Mr. Uhl came East and sang in Greenwich, Conn., where his former wife lived. She heard him and forgot her declaration that she had married a dirty-fingered painter whom she loved and not a singer. Reconciliation followed.

Mother and Girl Sail

On Oct. 5 she and Marion sailed for Europe with plans prepared for Mr. Uhl's later arrival. When he reaches Paris they will go to Rome for the marriage. Mr. Uhl will continue his vocal work, being the first American to sing Wagnerian opera translated into Italian.

Marion inherits the artistic abilities of her grandfather, father and mother, and is to study painting at Lausanne, Switzerland, where her parents will establish their home.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You do not, when in company with two persons, invite one to your home and ignore the other. You should wait to extend your invitation until the superflous person is not present.

When you have risen to depart when making a call, leave at once. To keep your hostess standing while you make a prolonged farewell is inconsiderate and impolite.

Council Expresses Its Confidence in Cookman

County Councillors Are Well Satisfied With the Work of the New Officer -Always on the Job-Will Urge Hearing of Griffiths Case.

APPOINT CAPT. WHITE

At the behest of Reeve Eason of Otonabee the Council passed a unanimous vote of confidence in Provincial Constable George Cookman yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know Cookman is straightforward and trying to do his duty, said Mr. Eason. "If the Council would express their confidence in him a resolution could be sent to General Williams, the provincial police commissioner and it would help Mr. Cookman who, I believe, is trying to do what is right and ferret out cases."

Mr. Lillico—He's right on the job.

Mr. Eason — He won't be very long unless something is done."

Mr. Eason's motion was seconded by Reeve Breckenridge of Belmont.

Would Make a Change.

That local mothers' allowance boards should be composed of the Warden of the County and two members of the County Council to act in conjunction with the two women who may be appointed according to the statutory regulations, was a recommendation passed by the County Council yesterday afternoon on a motion by Reeve Shaw, seconded by Mr. Anderson. The opinion of members concurred in the wish that the Council should have a direct connection with the County Mothers' Allowance Board.

No Details.

While the Finance committee was passing accounts an item of $360.85 for the expensese of Detective Boyd between the months of June and August last caused some discussion. The Inspector had come from Toronto to investigate the looting of cottages at Stoney Lake. His expense sheet was not sufficiently detailed to satisfy the members of the Council, who criticized what they considered its inordinate amount. It was felt that the detective work might be done by the officers appointed to this district without piling up such expense as that incurred by Inspector Boyd who, it was stated, apparently had a free hand in auto hire and numerous sundries.

Press Griffiths Case.

In all quarters of the county the impression was gaining ground, it was reported, that the Council had backed down in the Griffiths case and that the former Warden was more or less vindicated.

It was explained that the hearing of this case had been postponed on account of the illness of E. Gus Porter ,solicitor for Griffith, and a motion by Reeves Darling and Holland was passed authorizing Mr. E. A. Peck, county solicitor, to have the case brought into court as speedily as possible.

Appointed Caretaker.

"Capt." W .White who has been the fireman for the county buildings during the winter months, was also appointed caretaker this morning, succeeding in that position Mr. Henderson Nesbitt, who for several years has pressed the Council to relieve him of that part of his duties. As caretaker and fireman Mr. White will be paid $1100 a year and will be provided with living quarters on the second storey at the south-west end of the building.

The appointment was embodied in a motion by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Breckenridge. The cost of fitting up rooms for Mr. White was estimated at $500 by Mr. Coughlin, chairman of the Property committee, who will have supervision of the alterations. Mr. White assumes his new position on January 1st.

Woman Steals For Her Unborn Child

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 24.—As she knelt in prayer at the altar of St. Stanislaus Church, Mrs. Gertrude Hordick was arrested on a charge of larceny — committed, she confessed, in an attempt to obtain clothing and money in preparation for the coming of her first child.

When taken to the station house, the young woman expressed only the fear that her child might be born in prison and begged the police matron to arrange that she could go to a hospital for the birth of the baby.

This was promised to her, and she exclaimed:

"You see, I've planned such nice things for him. He hasn't such nice things to greet him when he arrives in a couple of weeks, but I did want him to look nice, and so I took for him, too. See that pretty pink baby blanket?

"That's for him. Pink is so becoming to babies, don't you think?"

A BRANTFORD MAN PAYS THE PENALTY

BRANTFORD, Nov. 24—(Canadian Press).—At 6.05 this morning Harry Dent met legal death by hanging for murder of Peter Egoian, his landlord. Both were Armenians. Death was instantaneous, 11 seconds being given as time. Hangman Arthur Ellis officiated and there was no hitch.

Hanging of Dent brings to an end one of the most terrible crimes written in annals of local police court. Peter Egoian, Dent's landlord was murdered the latter part of last April and Dent, who served with Canadian forces overseas, was found carrying dismembered section of body to the river. After other portions, had been pulled from the river by a man who was fishing nearby and who saw pail which contained head, thrown into river by Dent.

"The Red House Mystery"

One of the greatest of all detective stories—"The Red House Mystery"—starts in The Examiner to-morrow, and it will offer to our readers many a relaxing hour of real interest.

This novel by A. A. Milne, published in 24 serial sections, is a literary gem of analytical reasoning built up from and around a murder mystery conceived in the mind of an author who oanks with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle as a master in detective fiction.

A. A. Milne is also author of "The Dover Road," "Mr. Pim Passes By," "The Truth About Blayds," etc. all popular novels—but Heywood Broun, of the New York World is so greatly impressed with the excelling qualities of "The Red House Mystery" that he characterises it as absolutely "the best detective yarn since Sherlock Holmes shut up shop."

Watch for the opening instalment to-morrow (Saturday), and prepare for many surprises in Mr. Milne's method of construction in a work which will unquestionably afford you a source of the liveliest enjoyment.

LENINE ADMIRER PROVIDED THRILL

Demands Financial Help for the Jobless and Threatens Revolution.

LONDON, November 24. Canadian Press. — A storm of criticism, raillery and threats of revolution, disturbed the tranquility of the new government at the first working session in the House of Commons yesterday. New members quickly asserted themselves with a firmness and tone which shocked the veterans, with the result that there was laughter, also gibes and jeers, with frequent cries for order.

"If we do not get satisfaction we shall have to deal with you as Cromwell dealt with his predecessors. There is plenty of precedent for revolution in this country," dramatically declared J. T. W. Newbold, Communist member.

Tall, pale, but keen eyed follower of the doctrine of Lenine was the subject of curiosity and interest as he faced the house in his seedy, ill-fitting clothes, but he quickly stirred up the most philosophical, and had to be warned by the Speaker.

"If you wish to challenge us we shall be compelled to take up the challenge," he said. "I say with all the gravity I can that we do not desire to take it up if we can help it."

He said the jobless demanded 30 shillings per week for man and wife, and an amount for rent up to 15 shillings, if necessary, adding:

"And we are going to get it. If we don't get it inside of this chamber we shall go outside of this chamber."

He observed that it was the first time an elected member of the Communist International stood at the foot of the throne, and added that it would not be the last by a long chalk. He was glad that the King was interested in unemployment. "But," he added, "it would have been much better if you had spent a little less money on this tom-fool show of yours," referring to the opening of Parliament.

Reeve Robt. Shaw Retires

Has Completed 30 Years as Member of County Council of Which He Was Twice Warden —Long Career and Honorable

"Bob" Shaw is through. After thirty years in the municipal forum of Peterboro county he has decided to hang up his toga for the last time when the present session ends.

He has had his day, and it has been a long and eventful one, but he realizes that the office to which the people of Harvey township have so often elected him is no prerogative specially ordained for him.

His induction in the County Council was in 1889 after an unsuccessful contest in the preceding year when he was defeated for the first and only time by his friend the late James Ingram, who died last summer. They were friendly enemies on that occasion and it will be remembered of both these stalwarts of the northern township that their opposition in municipal life never strained or disturbed their reciprocal respect and goodwill.

From 1889 until 1915, a span of 26 years, Mr. Shaw served continuously as a member of the County Council. He retired then, and for three years, Mr. Ingram was elected Reeve of Harvey until 1919 when he too withdrew from public life, Mr. Shaw taking up the work again and carrying on during the last four years.

And now he has rounded out three decades in the County Council of which he was twice elected Warden, in 1889 and 1915.

Few men in this country are given the honour and the privilege of enjoying for such a long period the preference of their constituents. Their stay upon the municipal stage is usually brief, a few years and they are gone and soon forgotten in the annual shake up and eventual shake out of elections.

Reeves have come and gone in Peterboro County's Council, but "Bob" Shaw has survived grown old and wise and full of understanding until all the little tricks and tactics, the shifts in the pleasant game of municipal manoeuvres, are an open book to him, so familiar that they are unwittingly signalled to him by old signs that once puzzled but are now easily detected.

Reeve Shaw would probably be re-elected in January, but he feels that he should give way to the younger men of his township who have perhaps been repressing their ambitions out of repect for his Nestorian experience and service and the ability that is still undimmed. But youth must be served, however patient it may be, and it is an evidence of wisdom when the older generation at last moves aside for the new.

"Bob" Shaw has always earned and received the confidence and respect of his colleagues. That aspect of his fine record is one of its brightest features. Thirty years of public service without a blemish on his reputation is not only an accomplishment to be proud of, but it is also an example for the young men who may be just entering the threshold of conspicuous careers.

And with all the honour of personal integrity, a warm spirit of fellowship, a good name and the duties of citizenship well done, "Bob" Shaw has troops of friends who recognize in his announced retirement the fine sensibilities that have ever marked and directed his actions.

CLEMENCEAU A SOURCE WORRY ACROSS LINE

The Tiger of France Lashes Back at His Critics--Invites Senator to Visit France.

THE OFFICIAL VIEW

(By Al. Bradford, Copyright 1922, By the United Press).

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 24.—The American Government regards with distinct disfavor the views being expressed here concerning the foreign policies of the United States by Georges Clemenceau, the war Premier of France.

This was the answer given the United Press by a highly authoritative source in response to an inquiry as to whether these indirect charges of America's foreign relations agreed in the main with the sharp attacks by Senators Borah and Hitchcook on the noted Frenchman's statements.

It is the view of this Government that the French policy which Clemenceau defends is largely responsible for the present economic and political plight of Europe. While France continues to maintain an attitude of unbending repression against Germany, it is felt in Washington that the German reparations question is the root of the trouble in Europe, and that France holds the key to this problem.

Lashed Back To-Day.

The Tiger of France to-day lashed back at his Senate critics in an interview, granted to the Associated Press, replying particularly to the criticisms of Senators Hitchcock and Borah. Clemenceau, after noting that Senator Hitchcock has been defeated in election, had only a few more days left to serve, exclaimed: "Senator Hitchcock calls me militarist. When he is free I dare him to go to France and learn facts."

CHILDERS TAKEN IN HOME OF A RELATIVE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Childers was captured on the morning of November 10 at the home of a relative, Robt. Barton, situated in a wooden and picturesque section of Wicklow.

Two columns of national troops surrounded the Barton house at dawn. One of the soldiers rapped on the door and was answered by a maid. Servant was thrust aside and a detachment of the expedition entered the house.

Childers was found in an upstairs bedroom. He atteempted to draw a pistol but was overpowered. He was taken to Wicklow jail and later to Port-E-Belle Barracks, Dublin.

Uses Blood Sheep Transfusion Cases

PARIS, Nov. 24.—Transfusion of blood which has always been difficult, will hereafter be done with animal blood and without danger, although having the same effect as if human blood had been used. This is the result of the work of Professor Cruchet, a well-known surgeon of the Bordeaux Faculty of Medicine. After years of experiments he has obtained remarkable cures by transfusion of citrated sheep blood.

Cruchet first transfused animal blood to other animals from dog and ox to rabbits, then from ox and sheep to dogs. In most cases he was successful, wherefore he tried from sheep to men, taking sheep blood because it was easier to get, but he says he would just as soon have used blood from any other animal of the same class, especially horse blood.

Doctor Cruchet noticed that transfused sheep blood is well absorbed by men, causing very little temporary fever but no other trouble, while a great improvement in the general condition follows.

FIRE DESTROYED HOME IN APSLLY

Appeal is Made for Gifts of Clothing and Bedding —Owner Lost His Wife Three Weeks Ago.

APSLEY, Nov. 24. — The frame house belonging to Mr. Archie Whitmore, of Lasswade, was totally destroyed by fire on Thursday morning, and all the contents lost except a cream separator and sideboard. The fire started from an overheated stove in the sitting room, and when discovered the room was in flames, which spread with such rapidity to the rest of the house, that Mr. Whitmore was only able to make one trip upstairs in an endeavor to save some of the clothing and bedding, in which he was successful. Mrs. Whitmore died only three weeks ago, and deep sympathy is felt for Mr. Whitmore in this additional blow he has sustained. The children, of whom there are seven, are housed with neighbors. Mr. Whitmore is church warden at St. Paul's church, and the Rev. C. Spence is appealing for gifts of clothing and bedding for the family. There are four girls, 6, 8, 11 and 15 years respectively, one boy 7 and two older 17 and 19.

It is a coincidence that Mr. Whitmore's brother Elijah, was burned out three weeks ago with the loss of everything in the house, and a subscription on his behalf was being taken up in the village a few days ago.

RAIDED STRIP MINE AND GOT FOURTEEN MEN

Ohio Officials Outwitted Pennsylvania Coal Mine Officials—Decided on a Raid.

MADE QUICK TIME

COLUMBUS, Ohio., Nov. 24. — (United Press).—A graphic story of how the Ohio officials invaded Pennsylvania, raided a strip mine before dawn and rescued fourteen Morons who were being held as slaves, was told to-day by Jerry Donovan, superintendent of the Fort Orient Feeble-Minded Institution.

To-day the Morons are safely back at Fort Orient, from which institution, it is alleged, they were lured and then forced to work in the mines.

"We rushed the strip mine several hours before dawn," said Donovan. "We went out from Pittsburg in automobiles. An officer of the Pennsylvania State police accompanied.

"As we had taken pains to know just where the lads in the camp were sleeping, we had no trouble in spotting their tents and dragging them from their cots.

"Officers of the camp, well drugged with sleep, were too groggy to interfere. We loaded the boys, several of them still sleeping, into the cars and dashed away for the Ohio line.

"We knew the strip mine people would go after a habeas corpus and try to take their slaves back if we didn't make good time."

This raid climaxed a long controversy between the welfare departments of Ohio and Pennsylvania. Donovan said that he went to Turtle Creek last August and asked that the men be released, but that the mine officials threatened him with firearms.

Welfare Director Macaveal, whose wards the fourteen Morons are, said he had knowledge that they had been induced to leave Fort Orient by the mining concern, and forced to work as virtual slaves, but that nothing further could be done about it.

"There is little chance that we could convict the guilty persons," he said, "because of the difficulty of proving the boys were actually induced to escape. Furthermore, the Morons' testimony would carry no weight in court."

Macaveal said that before the raid was decided on he had repeatedly appealed to the Pennsylvania Welfare Department to take the boys from the mine and had been informed they had no power to act. The Pennsylvania department also refused to investigate, Macaveal alleged. His appeal to the Pennsylvania Justice Department got action, however, and a corps of troopers was authorized to make the raid with the Ohio officials.

The Pennsylvania troops actually conducted the raid, accompanied by the Ohio representatives.

GIANT CUNARDER IS DELAYED BY STORM.

The Mauretania Reaches Quarantine To-day Several Hours Late.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(United Press). — The giant Cunarder, Mauretania, with 939 persons on board, was delayed in docking to-day after the vessel had displayed 'G.I.' (trouble signals) off Sandy Hook light house early this morning.

The Mauretania reached quarantine at 9.30, several hours late, and the company's officials said she would be delayed 3 hours in reaching her pier, but denied any knowledge of trouble aboard.

Sandy Hook Observatory reported the throuble signals early to-day. The Mauretania was buffeted by terrific storms on the voyage, and in shipping circles, it was suggested some mechanical damage that slightly delayed here.

HOW MRS. CHILDERS RECEIVED THE NEWS.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Notification that he was to be executed this morning was not received by Childers until eight o'clock last night, according to the Evening Standard. His relatives were not allowed to see him, and the first intimation they had of carrying out of sentence was at noon to-day, when they received letter to that effect from the Adjutant General.

Mrs. Childers collapsed when she realized that all was over.

No details of Childers execution were available up to this afternoon. Newspapermen were summoned at noon to Portobello barracks, where bare announcement of execution was communicated to them, saying that Childers had been tried for having a revolver in his possession, that death sentence was passed upon him and that this was confirmed and that he was duly executed at seven o'clock this morning.

Evening newspapers announcing the execution were quickly bought, but there was no evidence of public excitement, while public expressions of criticism, so far as heard, have been confined up to this time to questioning prudence of carrying out execution before court of appeal had finally decided legal issue involved.

Paper enough for the whole world could be made from bamboo and savannah frasses of India much cheaper than paper can be made from wood pulp, chemists assert.

Fake Detective Tricks Woman in Kidnap Plot.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 24.—One mystery was solved and another deepened with the return from Chicago of Mrs. Mary Merritt, 57, who had been missing four days and who Detroit and Chicago police believed had been kidnapped.

Mrs. Merritt disappeared last Wednesday, following a visit to her home of a man who represented himself as a Chicago detective who, he said, would lead her to her daughter, Mrs. Anna Moynihan, missing for three months. Mrs. Merritt said the "detective" introduced her to another man to whom she paid $140, which amount he said he had expended for hospital expenses for Mrs. Merritt's daughter. The man then disappeared, she said, adding that she was forced to scrub floors for three days to earn money enough to get in touch with friends so she could return home.

Police believe Mrs. Moynihan is being held for ransom, but are puzzled by the failure of the abductors to make demands for money on Mrs. Merritt.

MOVEMENT AFOOT FOR A REUNION OF LIBERAL PARTIES

Rumor is Circulated That Lloyd George and the Asquithian Liberals May Unite.

NOTHING DEFINITE.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Political.) — A movement is afoot in both camps for a re-union of the Asquithian and Lloyd George Liberals, according to the parliamentary correspondent of the Times, who asserts that Lloyd George introduced the subject at a meeting of his supporters, giving them to understand that he was willing to take the first step towards such re-union if assured that his approaches would not be rebuffed. The subject was also mentioned in a meeting of the Asquithian Liberals, where, however, the opinion seemed to be that a re-union was not yet a practicable policy.

As the first move towards reconciliation, according to the same informant, the Lloyd Georgian Liberals have decided upon an amendment to the address urging the appointment of a select committee of both Houses to investigate the administration of the Safeguarding of Industries Act and make recommendations. The amendment will be moved by Sir Alfred Mond, who was Minister of Health in the Lloyd George Cabinet, and points clearly in the direction of free trade and modification, if not the repeal, of the Act, which the Georgian Liberals themselves assisted to pass.

Record Shipments of Western Grain

WINNIPEG, November 24 (Canadian Press). — With the close of navigation approaching, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways are making record shipments of grain from the Prairies to the head of the Lakes.

Since 1st September, the commencement of the present crop year, the Canadian Pacific Railway loaded 87,248 cars, the most recent day, Wednesday, accounting for 1,255 cars against 396 for the same period last year

The Canadian National Railways are maintaining a standard of car movements of grain close to the 1,000 mark daily.

The aggregate movement for the season is 66,184 cars and 84,482,000 bushels, as compared with 11,585 cars and 12,275,000 bushels for the corresponding period of 1921.

RELEASE YOUNG YANKEE FROM THE RUSSIAN NAVY.

Was Conscripted in 1919 Because He Could Not Show American Papers.

MOSCOW, Nov. 24.—(Associated Press)—Henry P. DuBellet, Jr., of New Orleans, La., 20 years old, who was conscripted into the Russian navy in 1919 because he could not show papers proving non-Russian citizenship, has been permitted to leave Russia upon representations made by the American Relief Administration.

We DuBellet eventually found his indentification papers, he managed to get a statement from Soviet authorities acknowledging his American citizenship, but the naval commanders at first refused to recognize these as entitling him to release from naval duty. The intervention of the American Relief Administration then was successful. DuBellet has gone to Paris to join his father.

POTATO PRICES DROP.

GAYLORD, Mich., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— The prices of potatoes fell to 18 cents a bushel yesterday at producing centres throughout Northern Michigan, this being the lowest figure paid by buyers in years. The low price is due to overproduction and inability to obtain freight cars in which to move the tubers to the larger consuming centres.

SHOONER FLOATED.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— The schooner Isabelle Parmenter, Boston for Georgetown, S. C., which went ashore on Hodge Fence Shoal in Vineyard Sound during a gale Tuesday, was floated off at high tide yesterday by the Coast Guard cutter Acushnet and a wrecking crew. Divers will examine the vessel's bottom to-day.

COURT-MARTIAL OF ERSKINE CHILDERS IS WITHIN THE LAW

Master of the Rolls Rules That He Cannot Obtain Relief Through Habeas Corpus Procedure.

WILL APPEAL.

DUBLIN, November 24 (Canadian Press). — Erskine Childers, one of Eamonn De Valera's chief lieutenants in the warfare of the Republicans against the authority of the Free State Government, and eight other men who have been tried by court-martial charged with acts subversive to law and order, cannot obtain relief through habeas corpus procedure.

This decision was rendered yesterday by the Master of the Rolls who has been listening for several days to arguments by counsel for Childers for a stay in the execution of the verdict of the military Court which tried Childers.

The Court ruled that he had no jurisdiction. He added that a state of war had existed for months, and that it plainly was the duty of the Government, whether provisional or finally constituted, to save the country from destruction.

The Court's jurisdiction, it was added, had been ousted by the state of war which Childers himself had helped to bring about.

The King's Bench yesterday, on a habeas corpus motion on behalf of two women prisoners, took the same view as the Master of the Rolls, and although an appeal has been made from the latter's ruling in the Childers case to the Court of Appeals, the general belief is that this Court will not reverse yesterday's decision.

The declination of the Master of the Rolls to grant a stay of judgment against Childers leaves the Government free to act at once in carrying out the verdict of the Court that tried the prisoner. It was said in Dublin yesterday that prior to the habeas corpus proceedings Childers had received notice of the intention of the authorities to carry out a sentence of death against him. Nobody knows whether this sentence will be postponed pending a review by the Appeals Court.

The appeal of Childers from yesterday's ruling goes to the Court of Appeals for Southern Ireland, and possibly, though it is not yet certain, from this Court to the Joint Court of Appeals for All Ireland, in which are seated judges from the northern counties.

The whole question of the fate of Childers, however, now seems to lie in the hands of Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence, in consequence of the decision of the Master of the Rolls yesterday, and despite the appeal taken on behalf of the prisoner.

QUESTION OF UNEMPLOYMENT BEFORE PRESENT PARLIAMENT

Irish Bill Will Be Rushed Through But Labor Members Will Insist on Action Regarding Unemployment.

HOUSING PROBLEM.

LONDON, Nov. 24.— (Canadian Press.)— The opening of the business session of Parliament yesterday quickly revealed what is likely to be the paramount question in both Houses, apart from Irish legislation, for which the session was especially called. The keynote of this was struck in the King's speech—unemployment.

As soon as the time-honored ceremonies incident to the State opening of Parliament were concluded and before the new Parliament really settled down to its duties, it became evident that the Government's hope of limiting the discussions to the Irish Bill would be disappointed. Labor, through the mouth of its new parliamentary leader, J. Ramsay MacDonald, immediately fastened on to the governmental confession in the King's speech that it has no new policy with respect to this important question, but only depends upon an examination of the late coalition governments' proposed remedies.

The tenor of the Opposition speeches in the debate on the address was to press the Prime Minister to receive an "unemployed deputation." This, however, Mr. Bonar Law seemed determined not to do. In a further reply to a request by the deputation for an interview last night, he refused again on the same ground, namely, that orderly administration will become impossible if every group desiring to raise a departmental question ignores the responsible minister.

Lord Birkenhead, in the House of Lords, referred to the extreme gravity of the unemployment question, for which no statesman yet had devised a remedy. This may, perhaps, be taken as an indication of the line of criticism which the Lloyd George Party will follow.

John R. Clynes will move an am amendment to the address, expressing regret that the Government has no proposal for adequate treatment of the unemployment problem, nor any indication of a change of policy to enable European customers to buy British goods again, and so restore international trade and stabilize international exchange.

Philip Snowden, Laborite, will second the amendment, but as the House will now take up the Irish Bills, it is not expected that debate on the address will be renewed next Thursday. A number of other amendments are being prepared by the Labor and Liberal groups, dealing with unemployment, housing the Safeguarding of Industries Act, and foreign affairs, including Mesopotamia, so that the session may be longer than previously expected.

While the debate in the House of Commons yesterday focussed mainly on unemployment and social problems, in the House of Lords, it consisted chiefly of foreign affairs.

Viscount Grey, laying stress on the danger of Germany, Turkey and Russia forming a combination together against the Allied, pleaded that everything should be done to maintain a strong, united entente.

The Prime Minister in the Commons was able to give no information about the Lausanne conference, and thought it was not the business of Parliament or the press to interfere in the conference negotiations.

The new Communist member, J. W. T. Newbold and Edwin Scrymgeour, who defeated Winston Churchill in the recent elections, got themselves early into the limelight with somewhat violent speeches. Mr. Newbold came into conflict with the Speaker in his first speech, in which he described yesterday's State function as "a tom-fool show" the cost of which would have been better devoted to the unemployed.

Lady Astor in a speech on the housing problem in which she was frequently interrupted by Labor members with whom she had some acrimonious passages, declared that although she was a onservative, she would vote against the Government unless good housing proposals were provided.

J. Ramsay MacDonald made a successful debut as leader of the Opposition and gave evidence of being able to hold the attention and interest of the House. Mr. Lloyd George was present, but did not speak. Rumors that the intended to retire for the time appear to be unfounded, as he was unanimously elected leader of the Liberals at a meeting held yesterday and is ready to take an active part in parliamentary life.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24. Some nimrods find it necessary to travel to the marshes, along the bottoms of the Illinois and Mississippi river in southern Illinois for the gentle sport of duck hunting, but not W. H. Wilcox of St. Charles, Ill.

Yesterday he was host to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Angell, parents of Miss Dellora Angell, heiress to the $35,000,000 estate of the late John W. Gates, whose engagement to the impecunious son of a St. Charles undertaker was recently announced.

"Stay for dinner and I'll feast you on wild duck," Wilcox told his guests, and taking down his trust stotgun walked down to the bank of the Fox river, a few paces from his home. In an hour he returned, having bagged six ducks. In another hour they were roasted. The Angells pronounced it the best feast of which they had ever partaken.

STORM DOES GREAT DAMAGE IN SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— After being cut off from wire communication with the outside world for nearly thirty-six hours, Sydney and surrounding territory were last night rapidly getting back to normal conditions.

Damage to railways, telephones, tramways, light, power and telegraph lines during the recent heavy storm will run to hundreds of thousands of dollars, officials of the various companies estimated.

PENNSYLVANIA HAS SERIOUS DROUGHTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Pennsylvania is experiencing one of the worst droughts in its history, according to word reaching here fro mall sections of the State.

The situation is becoming serious in the coal regions, where reduction, and in some cases, suspension, of operations seems imminent. Many collieries already have taken unusual precautions to conserve their water supplies. Some small mines already have suspended operations.

The wheat crop, it is said, will suffer most seriously unless there is rain or snow falls very soon. The winter's snows, it is believed, will prevent any damage to next season's fruit crops.

Meteorological authorities in Harrisburg state the drought is the most serious experienced in this State since 1909.

CANADA HAS SPENT BUT SMALL SUM ON MILITARY TRAINING

Per Capita Cost For 1922 Will Be $1.50 as Compared With $14 For the United States.

NO STANDING ARMY.

OTTAWA, November 24 (Canadian Press). — Canada's expenditure per capita on Militia activities during 1922 will be $1.50, compared with an expenditure of $14.00 per head for similar purposes in the United States.

Canada trained 27,284 men this year to 1st November.

These figures were given in an official statement obtained yesterday from the Department of Militia and Defence. The statement goes on to say:

"Quite recently the United States Secretary of War made a public statement that Canada trained 100,000 men during the past summer. According to the figures available, the exact number trained appeared to be 27,284 of all ranks, as at 1st November, 1922.

"In this connection it should be remembered that the United States maintains a standing army of over 150,000 of all ranks. Canada, on the other hand, has no standing army, but only a small permanent force of instructors numbering less than 4,000.

"The best method of gauging the military activities of the two countries in matters of defence, is by comparing their annual expenditure. That of Canada during the present year will be approximately $1.50 per capita, that of the United States, so far as can be ascertained at present, will be in the neighbourhood of $14.00 per capita."

CAVIAR COMES BACK ONCE MORE IN RUSSIA

Russians Are Enjoying the Greatest Feast This Fall in Many Years.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.—(Associated Press)—Russia this fall is enjoying the greates caviar feast in many years. War, revolution, famine and lack of rail transportation interefered greatly with the caviar industry, but it is now going again, as in the old days, and the delicacy is on sale in many shops in the cities, and in the village stores as well, even in the famine areas.

While in Paris, London and Berlin caviar continues a great luxury, costing a dollar or so a smack, here it is doled out to all comers for about a dollar, or its equivalent in Bolshevik roubles, a pound, for the freshest and best. Pressed caviar may be had for fifty cents a pound, and even less, and is very popular with the workers.

SWORE PRISONER ADMITTED GUILT OF GIRL'S DEATH

Sworn Statements From Three Men Cause Interest at Investigation of the Blanche Garneau Murder.

NO ONE PROTECTED.

QUEBEC, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Three sworn statements that one of the men originally charged with the murder of Blanche Garneau, a young Quebec girl, two years ago, but acquitted by a jury after a sensational trial, had admitted that he had actually committed the crime, when produced before the Royal Commission yesterday afternoon, roused the interest in the inquiry to fever heat. Raoul Binet, according to affidavits made in St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary as recently as the end of January this year, by three convicts, companions of Binet in the jail, not only confessed to the murder of Blanche Garneau, but promised he would also kill his own wife as soon as he was liberated.

The affidavits with a most emphatic denial by the Deputy Attorney General of the province of Quebec, Charles Lanctot, that he or any of his officers had ever attempted to shield or protect any one in connection with the Blanche Garneau case, were outstanding features of yesterday's session of the Royal Commission, which is investigating whether or not the Attorney General's Department did all it could to find the real murderers of the young Quebec girl.

AN OBSTACLE REMOVED.

Although the road from Peterborough to the Kawartha Lakes will not be an extension of the Provincial Highway but will be classed as a County Provincial road, forty per cent of the cost of which will be assumed by the Province, there is every reason for this district to feel elated over what has been accomplished as a result of the visit of the Minster of Highways.

Work on improving this section of roadway will be commenced next spring it is expected and the road will be put in first class shape so that motor tourists will be able to reach the Kawartha Lake district in comfort.

The result should be a speedy increase in the volume of tourist traffic into this section of the Province.

With good roads all the way from the American line to the Kawarthas, the beautiful chain of lakes north of Peterborough should become one of the most popular summer resorts in Ontario.

The absence of adequate roads for motorists has been the one thing that stood in the way of the rapid development of this district as a mecca for summer visitors.

That obstacle will in a large measure be removed by the placing of the Peterboro-Young's Point-Burleigh Falls road in the Good Roads class.

It should mean much to the lake district and to Peterborough.

A GOOD START.

Premier Bonar Law has made a good start, although perhaps not one that will make him popular with people who do not think very deeply.

In refusing to receive a deputation of the unemployed, not because he was out of sympathy with their demands, but because he felt that it was the duty of the Minister of Labour to deal with such matters and he did not propose to intervene unless his Ministers failed, the Premier is on sound ground.

Lloyd George tried to do everything himself, a policy that does not succeed any better in politics than it does in business.

The Minister of the Department should be held responsible for matters that come under their jurisdiction. And so long as they are successful in the administration they should be left alone.

That is evidently Bonar Law's conception of a Government and it defies criticism.

Too much, under our system of doing things is usually thrown upon the man at the top.

Here in Canada our Premiers have to receive deputation after deputation that should be heard by the particular Minister under whose jurisdiction the matter under discussion happens to fall.

The Premier of Canada has enough to occupy his attention without being called upon to listen to minor matters day after day. Matters that could be dealt with by the Cabinet Ministers and more often the Deputy-Ministers.

The new British Premier is setting a good example in this respect.

THE NEW LABOUR LEADER.

The selection of Ramsay Macdonald as leader of the British Labour party, and the passing over of J. R. Clynes means that there will little tranquility for Bonar Law and his Government.

Macdonald was chosen simply because he is a fighter and the Labour extremists expect fireworks from him when the House gets down to work.

They were willing to swallow his record during the war, his opposition to Britain's war efforts and his reputation as a pacifist, so long as they secured a leader who would put the Government in its place.

Not very long ago the workers in England had no use for Macdonald.

In May, 1917, he was kidnapped by members of the National Seamen's and Firemen's union as he was about to sail for the Pacifist Socialistic conference at Stockholm and was sent back to London.

They knew that he stood in the way of a successful prosecution of the war.

Now by a strange twist of fate, Macdonald not only become leader of British labour but he is also the leader of His Majesty's loyal opposition in the House of Commons.

A Socialist of strong views himself he is backed by a delegation that includes many extreme radicals and they will count upon him to force the pace in matters peculiarly affecting labour.

The new Government with its economic problems at home and international questions causing anxiety abroad, has enough trouble on its hands without the added embarrassment of an opposition of Socialistic tendency headed by a man who tried to throw sand in the gear box when Britain was in peril.

PETERBOROUGH AND THE FIRE FUND.

The Mayor referring to the discussion that took place among the members of the party which inspected the fire area in Northern Ontario, says that Peterboro's contribution seemed so small in comparison with what other places had done that he felt ashamed at being called upon to tell about the local effort.

But His Worship, after seeing the conditions in the north and being impressed with the great need of help has been home since Tuesday without so far as the public has been able to lear at least taking any steps to see that Peterborough is organized to do its part in the great campaign on behalf of the fire sufferers.

Speed should be a big factor in the case.

As the London Advertiser puts it "To the man who is trying to shove rags into the corner of a shack in order to keep his wife and children warm in the cold weather the methods by which money is secured amounts to very little. The larger object is that it shall come speedily."

Mayor Taylor admits that in the initial campaign Peterboro did very badly.

Is there any assurance that in this larger effort there will be any better showing unless the campaign is taken hold of vigorously and speedily?

His Worship has been over the ground, has seen the havoc caused by the fire, has met the survivors and seen what is being done to put them on their feet again, and has no doubt of the magnitude of the work that must be carried out.

Granted that the majority of people think that this relief work should have been assumed by the province, the fact remains that the Premier has declared that it is the opinion of the Government not to allow the milk of human kindness a chance to operate would be a serious mistake.

That leaves no alternative but for each centre to do what it can towards the general fund.

Peterborough has so far contributed a paltry $1700.

If for no other motive than that of protecting our own good name it must be seen to that this City's contribution to the fire funds will be such as to stand comparison with the quotas of other municipalities.

It is up to the Mayor to get the campaign under way. The impetus must come from him.

WILL MR. WOOD EXPLAIN?

Mr. Henry Wise Wood, the dictator of the farmers' organization in Alberta, lost no time in stating at the time of the Progressive meeting in Winnipeg, that there was "an irreconcilable conflict of opinion" between Mr. Crerar and those "who believe in democratically organized citizenship taking political action as such." It is a fact that the views set forth by Mr. Crerar were adopted by the conference at Winnipeg, where Mr. Forke was chosen as the leader of the Progressive party. Such being the case, Mr. Wood's position makes it incumbent upon him to come forth and state in plain English just what he does believe, and what he does not believe.

The Winnipeg Free Press was a staunch supporter of Hon. T. A. Crerar all through his political life, especially during the time he was leader of the Progressives in Parliament. The Free Press calls upon Mr. Wood of Alberta, to come out from the atmosphere of parables and fables in which he dwells, and tell in plain language just what he does believe about political organization, and the best way in which to give expression to the political aspirations of the people of the west, or any other part of the country for that matter.

Nor does the Winnipeg paper mince words when it calls upon Mr. Wood to come along and defend his case. The Free Press states:

"The people hear Mr. Wood delivering himself of formulas, platitudes, declarations, fine-sounding phrases, but out of the mass of verbiage they see no practicable, understandable scheme of government emerge. They see him talking democracy and practicing, in his own person, autocracy. They observe, with astonishment that in Alberta, where the doctrines of democratic organization, beginning with the individual elector and ascending to the top, are most ardently preached, there is the most clearly defined manifestation of political boss rule in Canada, with the "boss" and the preacher of political democracy one and the same person. They observe principles of exclusion and proscription applied under the specious disguise of democratic equality. They would like an explanation of the mystery, and if Mr. Wood will come out in the open and tell them what his system really is and how he proposes to work it so that he will be able to give effect to the economic and social reforms which he in common with those he criticizes favor, he will be certain of a careful and attentive hearing. He must, of course, fit his plan into our system of government, which is too firmly rooted in the affections and the confidence of the people to be removable short at least of a half century of agitation."

There can be no disguising that invitation to come out in ink and say what is in the innermost soul of this much-spoken-of Wood from Alberta. His theory of vocational representation is hard to grasp. He holds that farmers, for instance, should get together and elect farmers, and that other callings should do the same. On the face of it there is more chance for common ground between men of a district, taking in all callings, than there is for common ground between men of the same calling all over the country. Right in the western country it would be safe to say that a doctor, merchant, banker, publisher, farmer, blacksmith, or any other vocation, would be more or less interested in the same things in the very same district, and they might be very much at variance with the views of a similar group of men (vocationally) in the Province of Ontario or further east.

Mr. Wood should take up quickly the invitation the Winnipeg Free Press to state his case. He should do so in order that there may be no further mystery in regard to where he stands. If clarity of explanation is the one thing necessary he should supply it. We have heard much about Mr. Wood of Alberta, and it would be well to get it first-hand just where he stands and why.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That Detroit judge's grim object lesson for speeders should have its effect not only in Detroit but generally.

Another United States problem just now is to make the immigration figures balance with the total of citizens murdered.

It takes a spectacular killing with unusual trimmings to get a front page place in an American newspaper these days.

The hard winters are gone forever, according to a Port Arthur weather expert. Apparently the hard coal is also going.

Canadians are a long lasting and sturdy race. The Toronto Globe tells of a man who read that paper fifty years and yet lived to be eighty.

The Peterboro Examiner speaks thusly in a recent issue:

"There may be Canadian papers not guilty of making a pun on the name of the new Progressive leader, but they are not on the Examiner exchange list."

Now, why such a rebuke? When that name Forke came out it was so easy to connect it with farm life and it could be done with such a small expenditure of brain power, that paragraphers just naturally rushed at it. Surely they are entitled to pick off an easy phrase now and then.—London Advertiser.

LITERARY GEMS

MAKING PLAY A FETISH.

Natal Advertiser—The tendency is ever to less work and thought, and we are firmly of the opinion that rather than the remission of toil which is the war-cry on every hand, there should be more work, and that greater desire for it which would inevitably supervene on proper knowledge of its value. Unfortunately, from school days upwards, work is held up as a necessity for securing the gold that will see one through life with reasonable comfort and a minimum of exertion. Play has become the great work of life, and few nowadays who stand as the tutors of the generation have the courage to declare it a false move.

REASON JURIES ACQUIT WOMEN

It Is Idle to Talk About Judging Men and Women Alike — Man Cannot Do It.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—It is idle to talk about judging men and women alike. Nature does not do it. Man cannot do it, declares Clarence Darrow, famous Defense Attorney.

For hundreds of years, in what are called the civilized nations of the world, women have been looked upon somewhat as children.

A feeling of what is called chivalry has grown up as a consequence of this attitude. Men are taught that they must give women many courtesies and considerations which men do not give to each other.

Every one with common experience knows that in every way, the law has been both made and administered to give women privileges which men could never claim. If a man kills his wife he is almost sure to hang. But a wife can kill her husband and run little risk of punishment.

If a man strikes his wife, he is a brute and no sentence is too severe. But let a woman strike her husband, or nag him, or make his life unbearable, and the public applauds her and says he deserves it.

Sex As Cause.

Most all murders committed by women grow out of sex relations, whether in the family or outside. Is there any biological reason for this, or would the indiscriminate hanging of women restore equality and prevent this class of murders?

Nature seems interested mainly in the preservation of life, and in its preservation women are the most important. Both as to the bearing and rearing of children, women necessarily take the responsiiblity and must take it.

This is not only true of human life, but it is a law that reaches all animal life as well.

Neither with men nor animals, does the newly born offspring make any strong impression upon the male. Whereas with the normal female, in most cases she is ready to give up her life for an offspring that if not even sufficient age to appeal to her on account of association.

Maternal Instinct Strong.

It is then quite beyond question, that the strength of the maternal instinct is fundamental to the preservation of the specie. All normal life, and most abnormalities relating to sex is based upon this primal feeling.

With a woman, her relations to man, whether conscious or unconscious, means the preservation of the species, and the love of the man is really the love of the child born or unborn. To most women this is almost all of life. No other instincts, interests, feelings or customs stand against it.

When it is interrupted, either directly through the child or indirectly through the male, it means to her an interruption of life. It means that the fundamental law of being is raised in protest. Laws, customs, institutions, and even common kindness are of no effect to control conduct.

Equality Impossible.

For these reasons equality of justice between the sexes is impossible. If men and women could be judged alike, it would ultimately mean the extinction of the human race. Human laws and human customs cannot undo the innate feelings and instincts which are the basis of life.

If human institutions could be evolved where complete justice would be meted out to all, then every person would be judged not only according to his actions, but according to the physical and mental makeup of his machine, and according to full considerations of time and place.

If this were done, probably no one would condemn another. There are very few women who commit murder who could be deterred from it, or in any way influenced, no matter what the consequences might be.

A general crusade, or a general feeling in favor of visiting severe penalties on women who slay, would simply result in sorrow, disgrace and misery to thousands of women and their families without in any way changing the conditions of life.

Not only is it unscientific and cruel to judge men and women alike, but it is really unjust to judge any two human being alike, and the safest was it not to judge at all.

AMERICA NOW BUYING YEAST IN SCOTLAND

LONDON, Nov. 24. — (Associated Press)—A deal is reported to have been completed between a party of American capitalists and the Distiller's Company, of Edinburgh, whereby the Americans will obtain control of the yeast output of the distillery, which has a monopoly of the product.

Since the advent of prohibition in America efforts to produce yeast by other methods than the use of alcohol have not been altogether successful, resulting in a large yeast export trade from Scotland.

RAINS IN AUSTRIA DAMAGE BUILDINGS

VIENNA, Nov. 24 — (Associated Press)—Six weeks of steady rains, broken by but few dry days, have wrought great damage throughout Austria.

The tower of the village church in Tauf Kirchen, Upper Austria, collapsed this week, killing two persons and injuring several others. Salzburg Cathedral, containing the famous Rupert Chapel, is so badly damaged that public subscriptions have been opened for a repair fund. In Vienna hundreds of buildings are reported as seriously damaged by the continued downpour. In this city construction almost universally is of brick faced with about an inch of plaster, ruled to imitate stone. Everywhere this plaster covering is peeling, exposing the brick, and if frost should come before the buildings get dry, very heavy damages are predicted. The situation is aggravated by the fact that there has been virtually no repair work done since the first year of the war.

BELGIANS ACCLAIM COURAGE OF QUEEN

BRUSSELS, Nov. 24. — Elizabeth, Queen of the Belgians, whose courage is well known, has just given another example of her fearlessness which has invoked the admiration of her people.

Her Majesty recently visited the mining district of Limbourg, and while there expressed a wish to go down into one of the mines. Several officials protested, stating that some parts of the mine were flooded and that there was a certain danger in making the descent.

The Queen persisted, and dressed in a miner's outfit, and a leather cap, she went down to a depth of about 3,000 feet. The party explored a large section of the mine before returning to he surface.‡

When Her Majesty reappeared safely at the top the crowd assembled gave her an enthusiastic greeting.

TO PREVENT CHAPPING—

a cream made to shield the skin

The cold winds of winter whip the moisture out of an unprotected skin and leave it rough and dry.

This is the cause of chapping. To prevent it you must shield your skin. The best possible shield is a cream that holds the natural moisture in and keeps the skin soft in spite of wind and cold.

The cream made especially to give this protection is Pond's Vanishing Cream. It is absorbed completely and does not come out again. So effective is this protection that wind and cold cannot harm the skin.

In countries and states that have severely cold climates and long winters—where women simply must protect their skin before venturing out they rely on Pond's Vanishing Cream. The enormous use of this cream in cold climates proves how effective it is as protection against wind and cold. No matter where you live, do not go out in winter until you have protected your skin with this cream.

This cream is too delicate in texture to clog the pores. It contains nothing that can encourage the growth of hair. You can buy it in jars or tubes at 50 cents each at any drug or departmental store. The Pond's Extract Company, 123A Brock Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

For cleansing, your skin needs an entirely different cream—Pond's Cold Cream made with just enough oil to penetrate the pores and remove every particle of dirt.

Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas Church Held a Meeting — Business Changes--Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, November 24. — The Woman's Auxiliar of St. Thomas church held their November meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. George Fowler, a large number of members being in attendance. The president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, occupied the chair, and after the opening devotional exercises a number of important business items were discussed. The books from which various chapters are to be selected for study next year were decided upon, the list including: "The Story of the Year," "The W.A. Handbook" "Our Church at Work," "Popular Series," and "The Church's Year Book." Some arrangements were made for Christmas gifts and supplies for personal friends of the Auxiliary, both here and at other points, and committes appointed to attend to these matters at the proper time. The annual meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. McNeil, when the reports for the year will be received and the election of officers take place. On the third Monday in January the members will gather at the home of Mrs. C. Needler, and the latter will give a talk on "Our W.A. at Work," thus beginning the study for the New Year.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Fowler and a pleasant social hour enjoyed, before the meeting was dismissed. A special service will be held for the Auxiliary in the church on St. Andrew's day, Thursday, November 30th, to be in charge of the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, beginning with the celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 a.m.

Instrutcive Addresses

The addresses given by R. W. Allin, of Toronto, finance commissioner of the diocese, on Sunday last throughout the parish of Millbrook and Cavan and also on Monday in the Parish Hall here, were most interesting and instructive, and were listened to with profit, by the various congregations who gathered to hear him. All financial matters relating to the churches of the diocese were fully and clearly explained by Mr. Allin, who is an excellent speaker, and has fullest information regarding the necessary facts and figures ready to impart at a moment's notice.

No definite date has yet been decided upon for the public meeting to discuss the proposed addition to the school building here as Mr. Hoag, the Continuation School Inspector, who is to address the gathering, has been absent in Western Ontario, and until his return no further arrangements can be made. Cobourg has already completed a new wing for their Public School, which was opened last week, making fourteen class rooms available, instead of twelve, as formerly. One class has been forced to meet in the basement and the kindergarten abandoned and gether, until the increased accommodation was ready for use.

The "Wide Awakes" group of Canadian Girls in Training held their weekly meeting on Wednesday evening with a fair number of members and all the officers, with one exception, in attendance. During the discussion of business items it was decided to appoint a programme committee who will outline the weekly programme from now until the end of the year; this committee, which consists of the following girls, Donna Robinson, Elizabeth Russell, Marjorie Sayles, Knithleen Freelove, Jean Burnham and Gladys Tucker, convenor, will meet at the home of the leader, Miss P. Burnham, on Saturday afternoon to complete their work. At last week's meeting Mrs. Tucker gave the group, fifteen of whom were present, a practical demonstration in the proper care of an invaldi's room; this week a devotional programme was taken up, including the memorizing of Matthew, 5:1-12, a missionary reading, "Jim Lee's Conversion," by Lillian Dallimore, and the singing and story of the hymn, "I'm a Child of the King." The usual games were omitted on Wednesday evening as some of the group had lessons to prepare, and others a practice to attend at the close. Next week each girl is to be prepared to give her favorite quotation, whether prose or poetry, its author and the work from which it was taken, also her reason for giving it preference. The meeting was dismissed with the C.G.I.T. closing verse.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxative

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. Jack Turtle of Cherry Valley, Ont., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. H. S. McLaren of Montreal, Que., who uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs less than a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 23 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

QUEER FEELINGS AT MIDDLE AGE

Women Should Know how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps at This Trying Period

Sheboygan, Wisconsin. — "I was run down, tired and nervous. I could not even do my own housework, could not sleep at night and all kinds of queer thoughts would come to me. Finally I gave up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have kept on improving ever since. I have taken seven bottles now and am so happy that I am all over these bad feelings." —Mrs. B. Langer, 1539 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

For the woman entering middle age Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can be of much benefit. During this time of life certain changes take place which sometimes develop into serious trouble.

Melancholia, nervousness, irritability, headache and dizziness are some of the symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a natural restorative, especially adapted to assist nature in carrying you safely past this time. Why not give it a fair trial?

WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED IN NORTH MONAGHAN TP.

Willing Workers in Distress May Find Jobs Cutting Wood.

BROWNTON, Nov. 24— The Township Council of North Monaghan spent a considerable sum of money last winter in relief work, and fully expect to be again called on this year for aid, although to a modified extent. In looking forward to possible emergencies in this regard, Council is tentatively agreed to furnish work of unemployed in the way of cutting wood, the plan adopted last winter. But it must be distinctly understood that such relief will only be furnished to absolutely honest and willing workers whose circumstances really merit municipal assistance.

SUFFERS DEATH THIS MORNING

Erskine Childers, De Valera's Chief Lieutenant, is Executed for Treason.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Erskine Childers, De Valera's chief lieutenant, in the insurrection against the Free State, was executed for treason at seven o'clock this morning, according to a despatch to the Evening News. Childers was an Englishman.

The execution, which is understood to have taken place in Dublin, was the first reported publicly by the Evening News.

Tremendous excitement is understood to have been caused in the Irish capital by Childer's death. Throughout the night there was evidence of rebel activity, but there was no casualties reported.

Childers, whose wife was an American girl, is by far the most prominent person to be executed in Ireland since 1916.

A noted author and former pacifist, he was known throughout Great Britain. After the Easter rebellion in Ireland in 1916, he interested himself in the cause of Irish independence, finally becoming so extreme, after establishment of the Free State, that he was captured, by orders of the Cosgrave government and executed.

Saskatchewan Had Wonderful Season

REGINA, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Saskatchewan has produced this year the largest wheat crop in her history, despite the drought which affected the district west of Saskatoon, says the crop report issued by the Bureau of Statistics yesterday. All grains have been of excellent quality, the bulk of the wheat grading number one northern.

The grain has been marketed rapidly, the report says. No great shortage of cars is reported, except at a few out lying points. Fall plowing shows an increase over last year. Livestock is in the best of condition and there is plenty of feed on hand. Large shipments of cattle are reported, farmers being obliged to sell in order to meet their obligations.

Potato and root crops have produced abundantly, according to the report, and the quality is good. Corn is now becoming one of the staple grains, although a few years ago its growth in this province was considered impracticable.

The annual production of radium during the last five years has averaged 35 grams, at approximately $120,000 a gram.

RHEUMATISM?

Health is the Most Valuable Asset You Have. You cannot Afford to Neglect It

Crofton, B. C.—"I was troubled for years with inflammatory rheumatism and rheumatic fever. I tried several cures for rheumatism, but did not receive any benefit from any of them. I had been in the hospital for months, being unable to walk. A friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. After taking the first bottle I began to improve, and after taking six bottles I had no more rheumatism. I think Dr. Pierce's Anuric is the most wonderful medicine that any one can take for rheumatism. I have recommended these tablets to several of my friends and they, too, have all been benefited by them."—Melville Collinson.

People are realizing that the kidneys, just as do the bowels, need to be flushed occasionally. The kidneys are an eliminative organ and are constantly working, separating the poisons from the blood. Uric acid backs up into the system, causing rheumatism, neuralgia, dropsy and many other serious disturbances.

This can be avoided by stimulating the kidneys to increased action, and because of its tonic effect on these organs any one would do well to get Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets which are to be had nowadays at almost any drug store or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., for trial package and write for free, confidential medical advice.

Had Constipation For Six Months Was Relieved By MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

A free motion of the bowels daily, should be the rule of everyone, then there will be no constipation, sick or bilious spells, heartburn, foul breath, sour stomach, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, removing the constipation and all its allied troubles.

Mrs. R. C. Hunt, Port George, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled by being constipated for the last six months.

My tongue has been terribly coated, so much that it made my breath bad. I was talking to a friend about it, and she advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, which I did, and now I am perfectly well. My tongue is as smooth as it was before I got that way, and I owe it all to your Pills, of which I only used two vials."

GERMAN SALARIES ARE VERY PITIFUL.

Especially When Reckoned in Canadian or American Money.

BERLIN, Nov. 24. — (Associated Press)—Manual labor is valued above the products of the brain in the industrial top-heaviness of Germany today, if prevailing wage standards can be taken as a criterion.

Ordinary laborers receive an average of about 100 marks an hour. (The present rate of exchange gives—47 marks for one American cent.) Wages for an eight-hour day range from 400 to 1,200 marks, making a monthly pay-check of approximately 9,600 to 31,200. An agreement has been effected whereby shoe-makers and cabinet-makers receive from 67.15 to 116.55 marks an hour. The trunk-makers have been striking for an hourly wage of 100 marks.

In September the salaries of German newspaper editors were fixed by agreement to range from 15,000 marks to 21,500. (Translated into American money, 15,000 marks amounts to $3.19.) A scale was adopted providing that newspapermen receive 15,000 marks a month if they are in their first year at the business, 16,300 if in the second year, and so on up to 21,500 for a man of eight years' experience. "String" news pays at the rate of 1.60 to 2.75 marks a line, according to its nature. Reporters get 70 marks for small notices, 135 for reports of meetings, and 125 for investigations. Articles by critics are paid for at the rate of 275 marks each. A man who works on Sunday gets 500 marks for the day.

Even such wages are acceptable among the journalists of the capital, for high costs are rapidly thinning the ranks of newspapermen and many employees are being thrown out of work. The situation has reached such a pass that a movement is under way among conservative publishers to establish a fund to aid unemployed newspapermen, the leaders being actuated by political as well as humanitarian motives, since they fear much good talent among the writers will drift to the radical press.

The managers of three large theaters in Berlin have announced their houses may have to close because of the wage demands of the stage help. Actors and actresses until recently received a minimum wage of 7,500 marks a month. Now that this has been raised to 22,000 marks, the stage-hands are demanding a minimum wage of 24,000 marks monthly.

The distress in the medical profession has been repeatedly emphasized, and many doctors throughout Germany have commenced bartering their services for produce. Cases have been reported in Berlin in which physicians found the income from their practices so low that they have taken on evening work as musicians in moving picture theaters.

When the board which examines candidates for college teachers' positions recently was called to assemble at Lichterfeld, a Berlin suburb, the members protested that the carfare amounted to more than their pay. They asked for 50 marks an hour, but continue to receive only 3.80. Even this is more than three times the 1.20 marks an hour which a student-teacher draws in Berlin today. Regular teachers are said to receive a much higher salary, the public schools providing perhaps the outstanding instance of salaries for intellectual workers which compare favorably with those of manual laborers. An unmarried teacher's yearly wage, with expense allowances, amounts to 313,064 marks, while one who is married gets additionally 2,500 marks for his wife and 23,310 for each child.

A case recently was reported of a professor drawing approximately 12,000 marks a month. An American pays 2,000 marks more than this every day for a hotel room, with bath, facing an Unterden Linden. Four moderate diners easily spend this on drinks and food at one sitting in a first-class Berlin cafe.

AUSTRIA IS CONSIDERING FINANCIAL REFORMS.

Special Commission is Studying Draft of Administrative Changes.

VIENNA, Nov. 24—(Associated Press)—The Special Commission of the League of Nations is now studying the draft of certain administrative and financial reforms which the Austrian government has placed in its hands. This project is designed to meet the conditions upon which the proposed League loan of about $100,000,000, guaranteed on a percentage basis by six European nations, is predicted.

In its present shape the measure is tentative and, when finally amended and approved by the League, it will be placed before the National Assembly for enactment into law.

The proposals are based on an estimate of the budget for 1923, and reckon on a deficit of about 322 million gold crowns. By the end of 1924, when the reforms have been carried out, it is estimated that the budget will have been balanced around 237 million gold crowns, but to make this possible the League credits are necessary, primarily to cover the deficit of the first two years of the carrying out of the reforms.

The new taxation scheme is very drastic, involving increased revenue from every possible source. General reform in the railways is promised, the administrative machinery is to be reorganized, tariffs are to be raised, the free pass and cost price ticket evil is to be abolished, and the eight hour law is to be honestly applied.

Posts, telegraphs and telephones will be made to pay their way, and all monopolies, such as salt and tobacco, will be made to pay a profit. Since the customs are in part security for the proposed credits, they will be placed on a gold bases, and from this a revenue of 80 million gold crowns is expected immediately, but by steady increases this will be raised to about 100 million by the end of the first year.

A general turnover tax of 12 per cent. on luxuries and 2 per cent. on ordinary articles is introduced, while taxation of ground property and buildings is to be raised to two-thirds of the pre-war rates.

Various administrative reforms, such as the consolidation of some government departments, abolition of others, and a general reduction of the civil list are to play their part, but the plan as to the pruning of the enormous civil list is vague and rather nebulous. Indeed, it is admitted that this last is a most formidable undertaking, as this great body of some 272,000 employees stands fast together and is well organised.

In the main, the whole scheme is very much along the same lines as that proposed by the Austrian section of the Reparations Commission some eighteen months ago as a premise for a loan the Commission might undertake to find, and which fell through.

PARIS HOLDS EXHIBIT POISONOUS MUSHROOMS

PARIS, Nov. 24. — (Associated Press)—For the first time since the outbreak of the world war, the custom of holding a comparative exhibition of edible and poisonous mushrooms has been revived at the Museum of Natural History in Paris.

M. Mangin, a director of the institution, has gathered together 400 different species varying in size from a pinhead to giants weighing over two pounds. The mushrooms will be labelled and placed in the exhibit in sections, acording to their food value and poison danger.

According to M. Mangin, there are only three or four really dangerous mushrooms, chiefly Phalloid Amanites and Citrines, the least particle of which if eaten means death.

WIFE HAS 12 HATS BUT NEEDS SUPPORT

Tells Court She Got Most of Them Before Marriage

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Nov. 24.—How many hats must a woman have before she can be called extravagant?

If the word of Francis Quinlan, of Watertown, is to be taken, a dozen of the so-called feminine failings would put a woman in that class.

"Why, your honor," her husband declared in court after being summoned there by his wife, Catherine, "my wife has 12 hats and four pairs of shoes!"

"Yes, I have," retaliated the wife. "But I got most of them before I was married, three years ago. One of those he fusses about I made out of a dollar's worth of maline and 10 cents worth of flowers.

"Then the blue velvet one which the neighbors talked of and called me extravagant when they saw it, was one I made of two old hats. Mother bought me the one I wore in court."

Mr. Quinlan's lawyer looked at Mrs. Quinlan and said sarcastically:

"That young woman ought to be in Paris. She is a lady of leisure."

But if the reason which Mrs. Quinlan gives for her husband's actions is true the Quinlans have brought forth an innovation in domestic intranquility. Mrs. Quinlan declares heatedly:

"I can tell you what is the matter with my husband! It isn't a case of too much mother-in-law or extravagance, but because mother told us a few weeks ago that she is going to leave! She also said she was going to take the furniture, which is hers.

"He grew panicky then and was afraid he couldn't support the baby and me."

The judge considers how many hats a woman can have and not be considered extravagant and tries to fathom the peculiar quirk to the age-old mother-in-law question.

Mr. Quinlan has been told he must support his wife and baby.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

An Albanian suitor is spared the bitter disappointment of finding the girl he has married is not an heiress, for the Albanian girls wear dowers upon their heads.

Headbands of Turkish paras, small silver coins and piastres indicate their financial rating. A very rich heiress has very large gold coins dangling in her locks to attract suitors.

Denied That He Lost His American Hunter in Woods Near Buckhorn.

In regard to the story of an American hunter having been lost in the woods back of Buckhorn in November: Dr. Robert D. Morgan of Cleveland, writes that the impression conveyed that he was the lost man is incorrect. In part his communication reads as follows:—

"While my hunting partner did actually get lost in the woods, he was not with George Taylor but with another Indian guide.

"I have known George Taylor for a great many years, having hunted and fished in the Province for years, and I consider him one of the most, if not the most reliable guide available in those parts.

"I was successful, thanks to the efforts of George Taylor, in killing a splendid eight point buck."

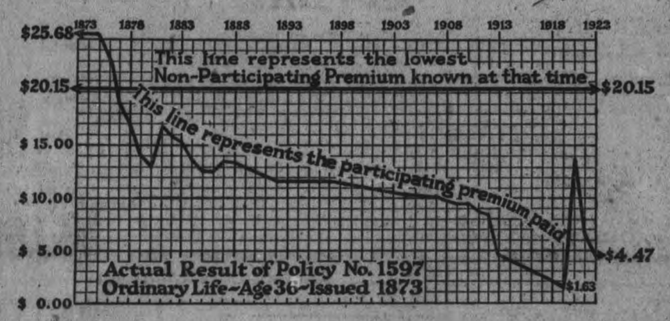
Mutual Profits Pay almost Entire Premium



Here's an actual case of a $1000 policy which costs only $4.47 this year

THE extraordinary advantage which a profit-participation policy in the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada offers to its policyholders is being proved over and over again. Policyholders whose insurance was taken out in the early history of the Company know it best of all, for they have experienced steadily decreasing premiums with scarcely a check for a period of fully half a century.

Hundreds of Such Cases

As a typical example let us take profit-participating policy number 1597, in this company, as illustrated on the chart. This $1,000 policy was carried for the first two years at a premium of $25.68. Inside four years dividends reduced the premium to the same level as that paid for a like amount of the cheapest non-participating insurance known at that time.

Although some of the following years showed slight checks and reactions, the whole trend of the premium was steadily downward, until in 1919 the policy cost the insured less than $2.00! Think of it—less than $2.00 to carry one thousand dollars of life insurance for a vear.

Since then the premium rose a little by reason of the flu epidemic, but this year it was only $4.47!

Saving Totaled $472.85

Meanwhile the non-participating policy issued at the same time is costing $20.15 yearly, the premium at which it started, and which will remain the same as long as the policyholder lives. The difference between the two has meant a total saving of $472.85 to date in favor of the Mutual Profit-Participating Policy.

Could a more graphic illustration of the benefits of real mutuality, as applied to Life Insurance, be asked for?

Our nearest agent can quote you many other cases similar to this and give you full information in detail. Or write the Head Office for our folder, "Insurance at Cost."

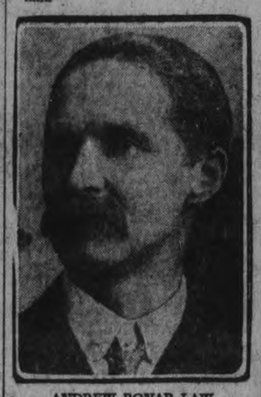
The Man From New Brunswick

LONDON, Nov. 24.—When Andrew Bonar Law was elected to the leadership of the Conservative Party, some ten years ago, the incomparable W. T. Stead, wrote:

"What is the world coming to? Who is this man who is to reign over us in the name of the party that is the bulwark of the Anglican Church, and the stay of the Publican? The answer is that Mr. Bonar Law is a Presbyterian and the son of a Presbyterian minister, and, more strange and incredible still, Mr. Bonar Law is a lifelong teatotaler who celebrated his election to the House of Commons by drinking a tumbler of milk."



ANDREW BONAR LAW

Stead's question and answer became even more pertinent today when the man of whom he wrote has not only succeeded to the highest position under King George V., but has ousted there from one who has been termed in two hemispheres "the most popular man in the world."

David Lloyd George, who earned his first sixpence in a Welsh cobbler's shop, has yielded up his high office at the command of the Presbyterian minister's son of distant New Brunswick. And this in a country which is so often pictured as the preserve of an effete aristocracy, and insular, king-ridden island whose principal service to the world is as a stepping stone to Europe and an awful example to the democratic people of the West of what they might have been but for the grace of God.

Aged Sixty-Four

Sixty-four years have passed since Andrew Bonar Law first saw the light of day in New Brunswick. His parents were of Scottish extraction, his mother being the daughter of William Kidston of Glasgow.

Of his school days he has told the world little, save that he commenced his education in New Brunswick and was later dispatched to take advantage of the better facilities afforded by the Gilbert Field School at Hamilton. Subsequently, he went to the High School at Glasgow where he grew up among his mother's people. In the fulness of time, having satisfied his astute Scottish relatives of his business ability, he was taken into his grandfather's firm, Messrs. William Kidston & Son, iron founders of Glasgow. His spare evenings he devoted to the local debating society, but his time was not wholly occupied thus, for he wooed and won a Scottish lady, a Miss Pieeton Pitcairn of Glasgow.

It is typical of his Scottish caution that he did not plunge into matrimony, as so many do, at a time when an ill-developed career and a meagre purse are the principal characteristics of the bridegroom. Mr. Bonar Law was thirty-three before he embarked upon matrimony, and by this time he was well established in the ironmaster's business.

A Great Sacrifice

The union was blessed with a son and a daughter. In 1909, after nineteen years of married life, occurred the first of the two great misfortunes of Mr. Bonar Law's life. His devoted wife was taken from him. The second misfortune was the loss of his son in the late war. While serving in the Royal Air Force in Palestine, this young aviator "crashed" behind the enemy's lines and died.

From this blow Britain's Prime Minister has never fully recovered. Who shall know the feelings of a bereaved father, and who can imagine the strain upon Mr. Bonar Law as he labored with Mr. Lloyd George, under a mountain of State business, trying ever to conceal a sorrow that threatened to break his heart?

Bereft of wife and son, Mr. Bonar Law has found solace with his only daughter, now the wife of General Sir Frederick Sykes. Lady Sykes is to be the hostess at D..ning Street, and one may say with safety that she will be the youngest hostess who has ever graced the sombre rooms of Walpole's old house.

First Experience

Mr. Bonar Law's first entry into Parliament was in 1900 when he was returned for the Blackfriars division of Glasgow to serve under Lord Salisbury whose ideal is unquestionably reflected in Bonar Law's one word policy "tranquility."

Two years of service in the House were sufficient to bring the new member to the fore, and he became Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, an office which gave scope for his business ability. This rise to office was no mean achievement, for in those days promotion was much slower than now, and after two years in the House, the average member had barely a "nodding acquaintance" with his leaders. But the quiet, unassuming Canadian had scored his mark despite the traditional aloofness of the House, and the fact that parentage and tradition even then counted for much with political leaders.

Under Mr. Balfour, he served until 1906, when he changed his seat at Glasgow for the more convenient London constituency of Dulwich. In opposition, as his Party now was, he made an impression by his outspoken, incisive criticism; being particularly notable for his opposition to Home Rule and for his advocacy of Tariff Reform.

In 1911, when Mr. Balfour had lost the confidence of his section followers, the Conservative Party in search of a leader was confronted with the choice between Mr. Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Walter Long, now Lord Long. Agreement was impossible on either of these gentlemen, and finally a compromise was reached on Mr. Bonar Law. His leadership did not give unqualified satisfaction, and none could say that his future was assured until the war, with its abundant opportunities, came upon the Empire.

Colonial Secretary

In Mr. Asquith's Coalition Mr. Bonar Law made an excellent Colonial Secretary at a time when good relationship with the Dominions was of even greater importance than normally. When Mr. Asquith resigned it was Mr. Bonar Law, not Mr. Lloyd George, for whom the King sent to form a Ministry. The mind of the Conservative leader was made up. Personal feelings were not considered. He was convinced that Mr. Lloyd George was the man to lead the country at this particular time, and, without hesitation, he advised the King to send for the Minister of Munition He himself might have had the prize Mr. Lloyd George was willing to serve under him, but he declined to be master and was content to serve under Mr. Lloyd George.

Mr. Bonar Law worked assiduously and excellently, first as Chancellor of the Exchequer and afterwards as Leader of the House of Commons. The degree of loyalty displayed by him towards Mr. Lloyd George during those trying years, is a classic example of self-effacement and perfect co-operation. Not for him the glamor and credit of achievement or the plaudits of the multitude; the war years for Mr. Bonar Law were years of incessant labor, of sacrifice, and of personal suffering.

Startled The House

When, last year, Mr. Lloyd George had to tell a startled House of Commons that this perfect partnership had come to an end, that this most faithful of colleagues had been stricken down by illness his voice quavered, and his emotion threatened to overwhelm him. Early one morning at a secret hour, lest a sympathetic public should distress him by their attentions, the broken statesman was smuggled out of No. 11 Downing Street, and away to the sunny south of France. Political writers put a finis to his chapter; Bonar Law was gone, they said, gone without ever taking the prize he had merited; never would he carry on the King's government as Prime Minister. It was sad, but fate had been unkind to him.

Then, one day towards the end of the last year, he was seen sitting on a back bench in the House. The Irish Treaty was undergoing its first discussion. The speaker called upon him. The House was hushed. What would he say? Some expected a few words of benediction from a broken man who could no longer resist the lure of his old haunts. But, surprising to all, there was something of the old vigor in his voice. The tired manner of his last few months on the Front Bench had gone. His remarks were lively; indeed he was warning the Government. They had gone so far; very well, but let them beware of further concessions, the limit had been reached. It was little short of a sensation, word went round the lobbies that Bonar Law was himself again, and was shaking a finger at the omnipotent Lloyd George.

A Growing Power

Whereafter he became a growing power in the counsels of his Party. He had warned the Government once, he would do it again if need be. Last month he did it again. He traced with unerring hand the course they should pursue in the near Eastern Crisis. Yet none thought he would again venture into the responsibilities of Office.

Somehow, he had been written off the list of possible Premiers by his own request, as it were.

When, however, it became known that he was willing again to go into harness, there was no hesitation on the part of the Members of Parliament, who assembled at that historic meeting at the Carlton Club.

The need for Mr. Bonar Law at this juncture in the history of the Empire has never been better expressed by Mr. Law himself when he remarked:

"Sir James Barrie has described the difference between Mr. Lloyd George and myself. He said: 'McConnachie is the name I give to the unruly half of myself. I am the half that is dour an calm and canny. He is the phantasy. My desire is to be the family solicitor, standing firm on the hearthrug among the harsh realities of the office furniture, while he prefers to fly around on one big wing.'"

George Out-Manoeuvred

One can well imagine the surprise with which the volatile David Lloyd George, master of political tacticians, received the news that the quiet New Brunswicker, the chess-playing, pipe-smoking, water-drinking Bonar Law, "honest to the verge of simplicity," had out-manoeuvred him, had stormed the castle which he had come to regard as permanently his own, and that he must render up the keys to his old lieutenant.

A few days later, a sober-looking automobile bowled up the mall towards Buckingham Palace. Huddled up in a corner of its dark interior sat a silk-hatted individual in reflective mood, smoking an old briar pipe. The man from New Brunswick was calling for the seals of the greatest office under the British crown.—A.T.

COAL MINERS IN RETAIL BUSINESS.

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press)—Notwithstanding the present business situation, the coal miners of Cape Breton continue to conduct their big retail co-operative enterprise with great success. The Report and Balance Sheet of the British Canadian Co-operative Society for the half-year ended August 2nd was recently submitted to the Sixty-fourth quarterly meeting of its members. The sales for the period amounted to $552,245.07, being a decrease of $64,840.90, and which was attributed by the directors "to continued industrial depression." Nevertheless, the operations of the Society during the six months resulted in a net trading surplus of $57,250.82. It was decided thereout to pay the members a dividend of ten per cent on their purchases.

The Society conducts a central departmental store and bakery at Sydney Mines, and branch stores at Florence, Cranberry, and North Sydney in the vicinity. A fourth branch at Glace Bay has grocery, drygoods, and meat departments. At the end of the period under review the Society had a membership of 2,321, mostly householders, and they had an investment in share and loan capital of $217,410.02.

During the 16 years to Aug. 3, 1922, the British Canadian Co-operative Society, which is affiliated with the Co-operative Union of Canada, has returned to the consumers of the district $751,680.41 as dividends on their purchases. In addition it is the practice to pay fixed rates of interest on share and loan capital; 5% per annum as to one class and 6% as to another class of investment.

NEWS OF ROSENEATH AND THE DISTRICT.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 24.—Mr. J. F. Freure, manager of the Union Bank of Canada, Warkworth, visited friends in town on Sunday.

Mrs. (Dr.) Armstrong is spending a few days in Toronto with her mother, Mrs. Knox.

The radio set which was installed in the Orange Hall, has not proved satisfactory and was not accepted.

Messrs. Hobbs and Moore of the Union Bank staff spent Sunday with friends in Cobourg.

Mr. Ed. Nichol left on Tuesday for his home in the West after an extended visit with friends here.

The fowl dinner given in the Methodist church on Monday evening was a big success.

Tickless Watch is the Bunk

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"Wonders will never cease," declared O. Howe Dumm. "Here's a scientist who has invented a tickless watch."

"A ticklish watch?" queried Dummer. "What's the sense of that?"

"Tickless, not ticklish," snapped Dumm. "A noiseless time-piece—a watch that will not tick under any circumstances."

"I have had a watch like that for years," replied Dummer. "It's no credit to me or to the watch and it reflects greatly on the character of the clerk who sold it to me. A tickless watch is nothing to boast of in the newspapers."

"Your watch has nothing to do with the case," insisted Dumm. "This invention, as demonstrated by Heinrich Schieferstein in Berlin the other day before a board of scientists, may go down in history as one of the greatest of all time. It says here in the newspaper description that the watch runs without the faintest suggestion of a tick."

"It looks to me like a mean trick is about to be played on the man who always holds his Waterbury against his ear to see if it is going or not," replied Dummer. "Hereafter he'll have to take his watch apart and watch the wheels go round every time he wants proof that the old turnip is operating according to the five-year guarantee. What's the advantage of having a watch that's so sneaky and deceptive? Have there been any wholesale complaints from indignant citizens that their watches ticked too much?"

"I dunno the why and wherefore of the invention," returned Dumm. "I'm simply informing you of the newspaper report as a matter of interest."

"It hands me a laugh, that's all," argued Dummer, shaking his own Ingersoll in a futile attempt to hear any sound whatsoever from its innards. "If a tickless watch really has been invented, it's nothing more nor less than a part of the pussy-footing campaign now sweeping the world. It's just another move by the soft pedal element to keep everything sweet and low. I'm sick of it. What the world needs today is more ticking, not less. My slogan, so far as ticking is concerned, is 'More and Louder!'"

"I never knew before that you were a tick enthusiast," remarked Dumm.

"The more ticking the better," rambled on Dummer. "Who'd want to sit in a room with a clock that never made a sound? It would drive you nutty. And who'd pick out a tickless watch by choice? The only man a tickless watch would benefit would be a crooked kewseller; it would help him to sell a lot of timepieces with their engines missing."

"You seem upset by the proposition," laughed Dumm.

"It's the bunk," shouted Dummer, now quite hysterical. "The idea of seriously talking about stopping watches and clocks from ticking and yet saying nothing against fire engines tearing around town roaring and tooting and clanging like a New Year's Eve in hell! If they want to take the noise and tick out of something that can stand it, let 'em take it out of motor fire apparatus. What I can't get through my noodle is why firemen make so much noise going to a fire. I should think they'd try sneaking up on a blaze now and then. They might take it unawares if they tried. And look at all the other noises you have to put up with every day! Can you listen to 'em and then get up any enthusiasm over an invention that takes the tick out of a watch?"

"There's some logic in what you say," admitted Dumm.

"Why don't some scientist do something to take the squeak out of new shoes, or invent a noiseless police whistle or a soundless auto horn or a piano that won't play the scales and Guritt's Exercises for Beginners or sumpin' that would benefit humanity? Why, I've got an invention this minute that is as sensible as this German professor's."

"Shoot it!" ordered Dumm.

"I'm working on a cookoo clock that will revolutionize the cookoo clock idea."

"How so?" asked Dumm.

"There won't be any cookoo in it," concluded Dummer.

A WARM WELCOME FOR REV. J. R. WEBB

Kitchener Congregation Tender Large Reception Accompanied by Enjoyable Programme.

Rev. J. R. Webb, until quite recently pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church here, was welcomed to his new charge, King Street Baptist Church, Kitchener, in a warm-hearted manner by the congregation.

A delightful programme was provided for the occasion, opening with the introduction of the new pastor and his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Stumpf and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lang introduced them to the guests as they arrived. Following the reception a programme of addresses and musical numbers was provided. The chairman, Mr. Stumpf, called upon the representatives of various organizations to speak. The welcome of the local ministerial association was extended by Rev. G. B. McLennan, and Rev. H. F. Schade, pastor of the sister Baptist Church, Benton Street, brought the welcome from that congregation. W. Joyce, senior deacon, delivered the address on behalf of the board of the church. Superintendent A. E. Pequegnat, on behalf of the Sunday School, L. Shelly on behalf of the Young People's Society, and Mrs. R. D. Lang on behalf of the various women's organizations in the church who also presented a big bouquet of roses to Mrs. Webb. All of the addresses were featured by references to the manifest confidence in the new pastor and the affection shown by the congregation. Rev. MacGregor, Fraser, of Peterboro, a friend of the new pastor, also spoke.

Rev. Webb, in his reply to the kind addresses, thanked the members of the congregation, the respective societies and the members of the ministerial association for the kind reception tendered him and Mrs. Webb, and expressed his appreciation of the confidence tendered him and Mrs. Webb, which he found an inspiration for him in the work in the local congregation.

During the evening very acceptable vocal solos were rendered, and refreshments brought the programme to a close.

Of course, this is in connection with telegraphic radio conversation. It is not needed in direct, or CW, radio talk.

CREAM

Ever been on a Dairy Farm—ever seen the pans set out after milking—and the cream that gathers—It's in every can of St. Charles Milk

Yes, the full, rich golden cream you'll find in milk just from the cow

Is what you'll find in ST. CHARLES MILK, for it is rich milk from which over half the natural moisture has been removed and nothing added. Always pure, sweet, and always ready.

Produced in Canada's most famous dairying sections, its surpassing richness recommends it for every cooking and table use.

A pint of ST. CHARLES is a quart of ordinary milk. For cream use it as it comes to you—for milk add an equal part of water.

Every grocer can supply you with ST. CHARLES, "a size for every need".

TOYLAND OPENING

Hurrah! Hurrah! At last it has come. Old Santa has given orders to have Toyland at Turnbull's open in all its splendrous Christmas dress on Saturday morning. Boys, Girls, Mother and Father, all come to see the most wonderful of Santa's Toylands in the City.

Oh what a hustle and bustle there will be. Better get here on time, because Santa is going to be here himself to talk and laugh with all the good little boys and girls.

Turnbull's Toyland has more and nicer toys than ever before. The greatest exhibit from Santa Claus workshops all over the world. It is going to be a regular Fairyland. It looks as if Santa emptied all of his magic packs on our Counters and Platforms. Toyland—Top Floor.

Santa Will be Here To-morrow Morning at 10.30 o'clock on the Second Floor

Boys! Girls! Just think of it! Old Santa will be here to welcome you to his Greatest Toyland in the city. He sent a Radiogram message last Tuesday to arrange a space in Toyland for him, but he sent so many toys to Turnbull's Toyland this year that there isn't room for him, so we have given him the Second Floor to hold his court. Santa will appear on his throne at 10.30 to-morrow morning.

He wants you to tell him what you want for Christmas. He wants to shake hands with you, talk and laugh with you. Who will be the first to see Santa to-morrow morning at 10.30 on the Second Floor?

Santa's Court—Second Floor.

Santa's Mail

All letters from Peterborough children to be sent to Santa Claus are to be posted in his letter boxes at Turnbull's. There is one at the Simcoe Street Doorway and one in Turnbull's Toyland. These are orders from Santa himself.

Bring your letters and notes tomorrow and place them in the mail boxes. Address them thus: "Santa Claus, North Pole, c/o Turnbull's Toyland."

AT COBOURG AND DISTRICT

B. O. T. A. Offender Released From Jail on Paying $200 Fine—Baseball Club Elects Officers.

COBOURG, November 24 (Special to The Examiner). — Mr. and Mrs. E. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, and Mrs. Robert Shearer, Peterborough, were in town attending the funeral of the late Mrs. A. R. Dundas, whose sudden death three days after having been seized with a stroke, has occasioned much sorrow among a very large circle of friends. Her husband, Mr. A. R. Dundas, her mother, Mrs. Simmons, and one sister, Mrs. W. H. Dundas, survive her.

Mrs. Dundas was a charter member of the Cobourg Chapter of the I.O.D.E., a member of the King's Daughters and of the Cobourg Music Study Club, and had been for the past year treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

The funeral was very largely attended. Services were conducted by Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers.

Miss Jean Murray, Hamilton, Mrs. Samuel Wells, Galt, and Mrs. Elizabeth Shearer, Preston, were other out-of-town friends present at her funeral.

At Big Convention.

Paid $200.00 Fine.

G. Tucker, who a short time ago was sentenced by Police Magistrate Horsey, of Bowmanville, to a $200.00 fine, and costs, or three months in jail in a B.O.T.A. charge, paid his fine a few days ago, and was released.

Chicken Thieves.

Chicken thieves have been at work in the town, and William Jenkins has lost thirteen of his fine Red Caps and four White Wyandottes. Some fine fowl which were crated up ready to be sent to Toronto to the Winter Fair were fortunately overlooked.

William Jenkins, Dr. E. W. Hayden, and Dick Waller sent crates of poultry to Toronto, and have received a number of prizes.

Enjoyable "At Home."

The Independent Order of Oddfellows held a very enjoyable "At Home" and euchre last evening, at which there were twenty-two tables. Competition was keen for the prizes. Dainty refreshments and a social hour rounded out a delightful evening.

The Grave.

Word has been received of the death at Zurich of Mrs. Andrew Price, formerly Miss Amy Wilson, and late of this town. She was twenty-eight years of age, and is survived by her husband and infant child.

Bazaar at Armouries.

St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church is holding a bazaar this week at the Armouries, which is being well attended.

Officers Elected.

Owing to the new residence rule of the O.B.A.A., which acects also all affiliated clubs, the Cobourg Baseball Club got down to business early, and at a meeting held in the Town Council Chamber this week, elected the following officers:

Honorary presidents—Mayor, W. J. Crossen, A. R. Dundas, J. D. Hayden.

Honorary vice-presidents—W. L. Allen, Thomas Green, L. H. Wilson.

The officers and executive were empowered to select a manager. A resolution of sympathy was passed with Mr. A. R. Dundas in the bereavement that has come to him in the death of his wife.

Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision met this week, but only a few reductions were allowed on the assessment roll of the town.

"AT HOME" PRONOUNCED ONE OF THE BEST YET.

King George Home and School Association Entertainment a Delightful Warmer.

One of the most successful "At Homes" the King George Home and School Association has yet had was held on Wednesday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Yeotes, 206 Burnham Street. The spacious rooms were opened to the public and were invitingly attractive in their decoration of baeutiful 'mums and colored lights. Choice musical selections proved a delightful feature of the occasion, and from the opening hour in the afternoon until 10.30, friends and visitors enjoyed the kind hospitality of Mrs. Yeotes, Mrs. V. Hamilton, president, and her staff of assistants, dispensed dainty refreshments. The following talent contributed to the musical programme: Mrs. Gerald McLelland, Miss Isabel Couper, Mrs. S. Prison Doors Clang Shut On William Bross Lloyd JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 24.—William Bross Lloyd, wealthy Chicago radical, was put into prison garb early Wednesday.

Late Tuesday night, Lloyd, convicted with 20 others under an Illinois law for radical utterances, voluntarily surrendered at the Joliet Penitentiary, to begin serving sentence of one to three years. It was regarded as probable that Lloyd Wednesday would be assigned to teach a class of other prisoners.

For six days a search had been made for him. It centered around his comfortable home in Winnetka, a fashionable Lake Shore suburb of Chicago, where he was reported to have gone after his last effort to retain freedom had been denied by the supreme court.

Foils Newspapermen.

Lloyd spent his first night of confinement in a detention cell. His arrival at the prison was shrouded in secrecy, but he found a small army of newspapermen waiting.

Shorty before midnight a closed automobile drove up to the entrance of the State Prison grounds. A young man, shrouded in upturned coat pulled down hat, dashed for the prison entrance, followed by reporters and photographers. Lloyd remained in the motor car to bid his wife goodbye, and then leisurely entered the prison, where he was ment by a deputy sheriff who had commitment papers.

Six of Lloyd's co-defendants, who also surrendered voluntarily, started their third day of sentence as Lloyd began his first. The arrived at the prison last Monday. Seven others are confined in the Cook County Jail. Three of five others who have not begun their prison sentences are fugitives from justice.

Dr. Oscar J. Brown of DeKalb, Ill., is near death in a hospital, and the nineteenth, Louis Katerfield, is reported on his way here from Russia to surrender.

Lloyd, by far the richest of the 40, inherited his large fortune from his father, the late Henry D. Lloyd, Boston philanthropist. This fortune was increased by holdings in a Chicago daily newspaper.

Arrested During War.

For years Lloyd has been known as a radical. During the war he was arrested for displaying the red flag on his automobile.

Both Lloyd and his wife, formerly Madge Bird, were active in the movements of the left wing of the Socialist Party. After the Socialist convention in Chicago in 1919, which refused Lloyd and his friends admittance, they formed the Communist-Labor Party, Lloyd was made sergeant-at-arms.

Among Lloyd's radical associates were: "Big Bill" Haywood, now in Russia, and John Reed, first Bolshevik envoy to the United States.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY HAY LOCAL MARKET

A steady supply of wood and hay is coming into the local market. Farmers are selling hardwood by the cord in stove lengths at from $10 to $13, and soft wood, also in stove lengths, at $7.50 and upwards a cord.

Hay, though more plentiful than last year, is still holding firm at high level prices; there were four tons on the market this morning, when prices varied from $12 to $15 a ton. Farmers generally seem quite satisfied that winter should set in now, for their fall ploughing and sowing as well as their outside work is finished. But, as is usually the case, there are a few farmers in Peterborough county still in the midst of their fall ploughing when seriously interrupted by Jack Frost.

As this fall has been a great exception to those in most years, the majority of farmers are now waiting for snow flurries instead of being caught by them in the midst of their activities. With sleighing, the supply of wood offered on the market would be considerably augmented, and prices, in conofrmity with easier means of transportation, would then probably drop to a lower level.

Marriages of 3 Minor Girls Are Annulled.

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—Three minors girls had marriages annulled here by Judge Henry A. Mandell in Circuit Court.

The youngest bride was Marie P. Perentesis, 446 Colborne place, who was 14 years old when she married James G. Davis, a distant relative, April 9, 1921. Davis had been visiting her family. They never live dtogether, she said.

Eva D. Corder, 16 years old, described herself as "a little fool." She married John Mott, a taxicab driver, last Feb. 22, after knowing him a week and seeing him three times. She left him, however, immediately after the wedding, and went to live with her brother, Vance Corder, at 2118 Stanley avenue.

Mary Smith, also 16, living at 2665 Michigan avenue, told the court that she married George Psiftes, 35 years old, while she was working as a waitress in his restaurant at 2681 Michigan avenue, last August. But she said goodbye to him on the steps of the County Building, she continued, and went to her parents' home after going shopping. When Psiftes appeared at the Smith home to receive the congratulations of the family, he was thrown out, the girl testified.

By Stuart P. West.

NEW YORK, November 24. — (Special). — There were a good many more points of strength displayed in to-day's stock market, but there were traces of forced liquidation here and there among special stocks which kept the movement of prices more or less uncertain up to the early afternoon. Those who I I maintained all along that outside conditions were having little to do with the decline on the stock exchange found more support for this view in the happenings of the day.

Professional traders who were busy on the selling side of previous days were equally anxious to take in their short contracts in sections of the list where it was seen that liquidation had ceased. In a word, such advance as occurred during the market of the day was not due to developments on the outside any more than was the decline on the previous days.

At one stage in the forenoon short covering was quite lively. Some of the motor, equipment and oil stocks were selling at 2 to 3 points above their lows of Wednesday and Thursday. And the same was true in a number of the rails. Relief from the severe pressure against the railway list was the most helpful feature of the day. That improved trade conditions were counting at least in one direction was shown by the strength of the sugar stocks. The sugar producers, it is well to remember, had their sugar market down below 2c a lb. They are now facing a 4c market with the possibility if consumption keeps on at the present rate, of something approaching a sugar shortage next summer.

The most interesting contribution in the way of trade news, was the quarterly statements of the four leading porphyry copper companies. These showed that a decided turn for the better came in the three months period ending Sept. 30th. Utah Copper more than doubled its income as compared with this latter proceeding. Ray Consolidated turned a deficit into a moderate surplus and Nevada Consolidated would have done the same had it not been for the extraordinary expenses incurred by the fire in its plant early in July.

Outside of the stock Exchange the day was uneventful. The Bond market naturally was helped by the let up in the selling of the rails but foreign government issues in which there is special interest at the moment, were virtually stationary. In the same way there was no suggestion in the movement of the foreign exchanges of anything fresh in the European situation.

PLANS LAID

TORONTO, November 24.—Canadian Press. — Plans leading to vigorous contesting of all Ontario seats both in the House of Commons and the Legislature, at any by-elections or future general elections, will be discussed and arranged at the second annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Ontario, which opens here to-morrow morning. FIRST COUE CLINIC 'PREPARES THE SOIL'

NEW YORK, November 24.— So many persons attended the first Coue clinic to be held in the United States at the Gamut Club, 42 West Fifty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon that Mrs. Illa Boyce Kirk, the accredited pupil of M. Coue, who lectured last week on her cure, found it necessary to divide the class and give each division in turn the rudiments of the art of healing by gaining control of the sub-conscious mind, the process of autosuggestion.

The class included victims of nerves, asthma, rheumatism, eye trouble, deafness, discouragement, melancholy and other ailments, and a few curiosity seekers. Mrs. Kirk insisted that symptoms were not important. "M. Coue does not care whether the trouble is in the head or the heels," she said. "Now let us begin."

With their hands clasped before them the pupils chanted over and over, "I cannot open my hands," till the words "I can," were uttered, when their hands sprang apart. Several women assured Mrs. Kirk that they had experienced a feeling of complete inability to unclasp their hands while saying "I cannot." One doubting Thomas who asked Mrs. Kirk for an actual demonstration of this inability was told that he lacked imagination and belief. "You will demonstrate it yourself some day," she said "when you succeed in getting your imagination over into your hands."

Before chanting the formula that has made M. Coue famous, "Day by day, in every way, I am getting better and better," the pupils were taught to relax which was accomplished by reciting in unison "My eyes are getting rested," four times followed by "My eyes are getting rested." The same thing was said for the arms, hands, legs, feet and finally the solar plexus.

The class appeared to be very enthusiastic over Mrs. Kirk's attempt to "prepare the soil of the imagination" and promised to put the principles in operation morning and night.

Mrs. Kirk said that M. Coue had no objection to women smoking provided that they did not inhale. His method however cured her of the cigarette habit. She declared that his healing lay entirely in the system, not in the man, although she referred to him as "next to Christ, there is no doubt about that."

GUN BATTLE ENDS ATTEMPT TO ROB A BIG DISTILLERY

Robbers Attempted to Steal 5,000 Barrels of Liquor But Were Met By Sheriff.

CAME IN A BOAT.

PEORIA, Ill., November 24. — A gigantic plot to rob the warehouse of the American Distilling Company at Pekin last night was frustrated by police and deputy-sheriffs after a gun battle, in which at least twenty shots were exchanged, it was announced to-day.

The attackers moved on the distillery in a boat, where between 4,000 and 5,000 barrels of bonded liquor is stored.

Shortly after 11 p.m. fifteen or sixteen armed men made their way in a boat to the side of the distillery facing along the Illinois Rover.

Five of the raiders ascended the wall, and with crowbars broke the main lock on the warehouse door. In the meantime the other men in the boat came ashore.

For about ten minutes the guards battled the robbers, but were finally overpowered. They were rushed into a small shed and placed in charge of Joseph Polak.

While the battle was in progress George Oldman, a distillery employee, spread the alarm, and in a few minutes the sheriff, accompanied by several deputies, were en route to the scene, armed with sawed-off shotguns and rifles.

At the approach of the officers the raiders fled in all directions. Several shots were fired at the fleeing men, but accurate aim was impossible in the darkness.

Aged one hundred, an Austrian burglar was recently arrested in an uninhabited house, where he had lived for a fortnight, drinking the wines in the cellar.

A giant fish, measuring 78 feet in length and weighing 15 tons, nearly the equal of five full-grown elephants, was recently washed ashore at Cape May.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press).—Childers was 52 years of age, right hand man of De Valera, and was placed on trial before military tribunal on November 17 on charge that he had pistol in his possession whin arrested at Wicklow by Free State troops on November 10. PUPILS ATTEND SCHOOL OUTSIDE VICTORIA COUNTY

And Council Objects to paying Eighty Per Cent. of the Cost of Their Education.

LINDSAY, Nov. 24.—A discussion re the attendance of Victoria County pupils at collegiate institutes and other schools outside the county was provoked at the sitting of the Educational Committee of the County Council on Wednesday afternoon by the presentation of a bill from the Beaverton Continuation School for $56.44. This was Victoria's share of the support of pupils who attended the Beaverton School.

It was asked by Deputy Reeve Chambers whether the children had the right to go to any school that they wanted to. He wished to know whether, when there was plenty of room in county schools, the children could go to a school in another county and the county still be billed for support.

Clerk McNeillie stated that the law was very clear on that point. When an adjacent school notifies the town that it is open for pupils, the county must pay eighty per cent. of the support of any of its children who attend there.

Messrs. Staback and Parrington moved that the account be disallowed on the grounds that the proper notice was not given the county and that the total amount of debentures issued was not tabulated with the dates.

In amendment it was moved that the account be left in the hands of the County Clerk to be paid if found to be O.K.

The latter carried.

BERLIN STILL POPULAR

BERLIN, Nov. 24. — (Associated Press)—Although the tourist season in Germany usually is on the wane when autumn sets in, September's daily influx of strangers in Berlin was just as heavy as in July. Nearly one-tenth of the arrivals from abroad were Americans.

SPEAKS HIGHLY OF THIS HOME MADE COUGH REMEDY

Costs Next to Nothing—For a Big Supply.

Whenever anyone in my family catches cold and begins to cough and sneeze, and hawk and breathe heavy, it doesn't take me many minutes to fix up a remedy that will drive away all such troubles in double quick time.

It's no secret—anyone can make a half pint of the finest cough medicine in the world for a trifling sum.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one-half pint—that's all there is to it.

But now you've got a real medicine—mind you—the first spoonful you take acts directly on the membrane of the throat and nose, the tickling ceases almost instantly—the inflammation begins to disappear—up comes the stubborn mucus and often in 24 hours every trace of the cough that frightened you is gone.

It's really remarkable how this home-made remedy acts on the mucous membrane and that is one reason it is so helpful to thousands of Catarrh sufferers.

All Her Friends See a Great Change

When a medicine produces the desired results its praise is sure to be heard. That is why Mrs. Kathrine Neilsen, Holmpatrick, Calgary, as well as thousands of other men and women throughout Alberta, has become such an ardent champion of Tanlac.

"Not in a long, long time," says Mrs. Neilsen, "have I enjoyed such good health or felt so well as I do since taking Tanlac I just think it is the grandest medicine on earth and I never expect to be without it in my house. For several years past I have felt all run down and have been extremely nervous. I had no relish for any kind of food and what I did eat seemed to do me very little good. I felt tired all the time and my sleep was so unsound that it did not rest me. I some how managed to keep going, but it taxed me to the utmost to do my housework.

"So many people here in Calgary were taking Tanlac and praising it that I began taking it myself and the first bottle made a great difference in my feelings. It was only a few weeks until I was enjoying splendid health and since that time, which was about a year ago, I have taken a bottle of Tanlac now and then with the result that I feel strong and well all the time. Everyone speaks of how much better I look than I did before I started taking Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

SALVATION ARMY'S EXTENSIVE WORK.

Inculcates Spirit of Thrift and Insurance Against Distress.

The local corps of the Salvation Army has started a campaign for contributions toward wiping out the debt on their enlarged and renovated temple, and the objective is commended to the public as worthy of generous support. In this connection it might be fitting to emphasize the tremendous scope of this organization's activities, which are not confined to religion and Good Samaritanship, but includes opportunity for material provision against distress of its members by bereavement, accident and by fire. In this way, the Salvation Army not only follows the commands of its Master to carry His word into the by-ways, to save and to hold in a life of rectitude many whom the churches cannot reach, but it inculcates a spirit of thrift and insurance.

The Salvation Army Fire Insurance Corporation, Limited, was registered as a limited liability company in 1909, with head office in London, England. There are agencies throughout the United Kingdom and Ireland. The finances controlled by the Army in insurance corporations adds capital for the Army's work.

The Salvation Army Assurance Society, Limited, also has its chief offices in London, England, and since the issue of the first policy in 1894, has shown wonderful development. In 1921 its funds amounted to 2,010,162 pounds.

The most remarkable progress in the Society's history was made during 1920, while the early months of 1921 were bright with promise of still greater things, and had normal conditions continued there is no doubt advance would have been of a most pronounced character.

Assurance work was undertaken, in the first place, in order that it might help to provide necessary finance for the general operations of the Army. In this respect it has been somewhat successful; now that the initial difficulties are past a still greater measure of success is anticipated.

But the usefulness of the Society is very wide in directions other than finance. Those who work amongst the people know that death in a home often brings the pinch of poverty, in addition to the bitter sorrow of bereavement. And especially is this the case when it is the breadwinner who has gone. Hence the Army's assurance officers and agents encourage that foresight and thrift which provides in advance for eventualities of this kind.

REGENT—Herbert Rawlinson in "Don't Shoot"; George Walsh in "With Stanley in Africa."

Capitol Entertainment

A truly delighted audience greeted the week-end programme at the Capitol last night—a programme which attracts, holds the interest and amuses from the first minute that light is thrown on the screen. The feature number "Burning Sands" is a comedy-drama in which romance, comedy-drama in which romance combined amid sand dunes beneath Arabian skies, the picture presents many tense moments interspersed at intervals with a little mirth provoking, but clean comedy. "Burning Sands" is the story of a young English woman obsessed with love, for a hermit of the Sahara desert, whom she eventually succeeds in marrying. The role of this feminine scion of British nobility is in capable hands of Wanda Hawley, whose conception of the somewhat difficult character, is beyond criticism.

The male principal, Milton Sills, dominates many scenes in this remarkably strong and thrilling production with his marked histrionic versatility. Fascinating dances, a midnight, battle in the oasis and harem revels are features which please the eye.

Flora Shaw, Toronto's favorite soprano, has a good voice of wide range which was heard here to good advantage last night, when her numbers created a favorable impression with the audience.

Lovers of premier motion pictures will not be disappointed by spending an evening at the Capitol, one night this week, for the programme is one in which neither expense nor quality has been stinted.

AT THE ROYAL.

SUN EFFECTS OBTAINED ALTHOUGH OLD SOL HIDES

Many of the scenes of 'A Woman's Sacrifice," which will be shown at Royal Theatre to-night were taken in the far North in the winter with no sun shining for a period of three weeks However, the refraction of light on the snow gave a sunlight effect many times and the picture was completed despite the fact that old Sol hid his face from the players.

The story of "A Woman's Sacrifice deals with the adventures of a young girl in the far North, who in order to preserve her mother's happiness, assumes a great responsibility with the aid of a noble youth who has absolute faith in the young girl. The role furnishes Miss Griffith a part different from anything in which she has previously appeared and one in which she shines.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind incombustible ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before breakfast each morning drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the bowels the previous day's poisons and toxins, and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

COLLEGIATE PLAYS IMPORTANT GAME HERE ON SATURDAY

Locals Will Clash With Oakwood High, Champions of Toronto Senior Schools.

BOTH CONFIDENT.

The local Collegiates gridiron battlers have their hardest and most important game this year to play on Saturday at Riverside Park, when they meet Oakwood Collegiates. Oakwood are the undefeated champions of the Toronto Senior School and the local outfit undefeated champs of Eastern Ontario. The game is a Junior O.R.F.U. semi-final, the winning team playing the winners of the U.T.S.-Sarnia game. Both teams are confident of victory. The locals have practised faithfully, are in the best of condition as was shown in Oshawa, and have proved their worth. Coach Brown says that this years team is the best balanced team that has ever represented P.C.I. During last week he has been practising them especially to meet the Oakwood team. He is confident that if Oakwood come through with a win they must be some team.

Oakwood comes here with a great reputation for speed. They have gone through the Toronto series undefeated. A few of their stars are Byrant, outside wing and deadly tackler; Taylor, their kicker; Crowe, captain and lineman; Standish their flying half back.

The game promises to be the best seen in Peterborough in years, and win or lose the local boys should have a large crowd out cheering for them.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED.

You do not stamp yourself as a social climber by constantly referring to celebrities and prominent people in your conversations. To do so indicates that you must have something of a struggle to know such people or would not be so eager to mention your achievements.

To those of assured social position such obvious methods of flaunting one's position are ridiculous as well as transparent.

TRAINING FOR WINTER GAME

Hockey Players Getting in Shape For O.H.A. Campaign.

Indoor training for the hockey players got away with a bang at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night, Intermediate and Junior O.H.A. players being well represented. Grover Halpin ,who will coach the Intermediates this coming winter took a place in the class, with Walter Jackson, who will look after the Juniors, handing out the "punishment." After going through a series of exercises, the players wound up "first night" with a game of basketball.

The classes will be held on Monday and Thursday evenings from 7.15 to 7.45 o'clock, and Don Loucks will be in charge of proceedings next Monday evening. Newcomers to the game will be welcomed along with those players who have served on the local teams.

FORTUNE ONCE MORE RAN FROM BOWLERS.

The wheel of fortune turned from "Tim" McArthur and his team mates last evening when they fell to the attack of the Rotarians, by a score 9 to 3. The Rotarians chased around one or two in nearly every inning making the final score 9-3.

Dobbin got under some long hits in left field.

The teams were:

Every rugby enthusiast, who can do, should turn out at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon, and support the local Collegiates in their game with the clever Oakwood team, winners of the Toronto Interscholastic group. The girls are getting busy again in preparation for winter sports, and a meeting will be held at the Y.W.C.A. on Saturday evening to organize a city basketball league. The announcement that Willis Cutt, now in Rochester, would like to return to this city for a bout, has been well received in local boxing circles and an opponent will be found for the former local lad. Some good material is being uncovered at the boxing classes at the armouries, there will be plenty of boxers for local competitions.

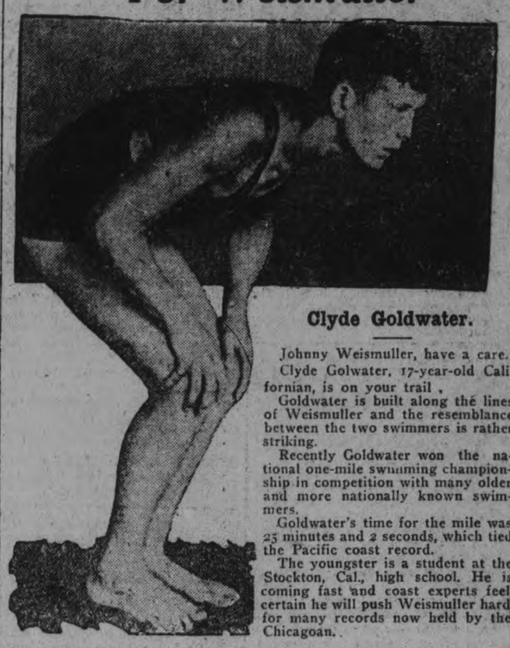
Coast Swimmer is Rival For Weismuller



Clyde Goldwater.

Johnny Weismuller, have a care. Clyde Golwater, 17-year-old Californian, is on your trail ,

Goldwater is built along the lines of Weismuller and the resemblance between the two swimmers is rather striking.

Goldwater's time for the mile was 25 minutes and 2 seconds, which tied the Pacific coast record.

The youngster is a student at the Stockton, Cal., high school. He is coming fast and coast experts feel certain he will push Weismuller hard for many records now held by the Chicagoan.

The Races.

The baseball games were followed by a series of races and a tug of war. Good prizes were awarded the winner of each event and all events were well contested. The resuts were:

Girls race, blindfold, won by Dell Watson.

50 yard race for boys 10 years and under, won by John McFadden.

1-4 mile race for boys 16 and uncontested between Griffith of the Grove School and Francis McFadden, the ofrmer winning by a very narrow margin.

Pole, pillow fighting contest. The entries for this event were too numerous to handle and the entry lists had to be closed before all who wished to take part had an opportunity to enter. After a hard battle Frank Tayne was declared the winner taking the honors from Jack McFadden by a very narrow margin.

Shuttle race between teams of six was won by the team captained by Francis McFadden and composed of the following: Francis McFadden, Harry Hill, Enith Wannamaker, William Harvey, Jack Ridpath and Clayton Ridpath.

A tug-of-war between Trude Waldon's cement works team and John Sabatino's Business Men's team was won by the latter after one of the best pulls seen in some time.

Much of the credit for the great success of the affair must go to the committee in charge which consisted of T. B. Marling, J. J. McFadden and M. P. Kennedy.

WOOLLENS GAVE BAD FALL TO DE LAVAL.

Mrs. Kirk Instructs Large Class in Art of Healing By Auto Suggestion.

The Woolens tied themselves with the Raybestos for Club section honors last evening by grabbing a game from the DeLaval by a score of 10 to 4. The Woolens were after the Separator gang's scalps from the start chasing three across in the first innings. The DeLaval scored in the first and third getting one run in each inning. Each team scored in the fourth making the score at the end of the fourth 4-3 for the Woolens. The fifth proved disastrous for the Separator ball tossers, a bunch of errors and a two bagger by McLean sending in five runs for the Woolens in that innings. The DeLaval got their only other run in the eighth and Woolens added another one in the same innings making the final score 10-4 for the Woolens.

McLean did the slab work for the Woolens in fine style, retiring fifteen of the DeLaval sluggers on strikes.

Fitzgerald the first man up for the DeLaval walloped out a clean home run. Galbraith performed well at short stop, grabbing some hot flies. The DeLaval pulled a fast double play in the third which kept the Woolens from scoring in that innings. McLean and Doughty had a two bagger each.

The players were:

De Laval—Fitzgerald lf, Galbraith ss, Frick 1b, Bell 2b, McIntyre ss, Doughty 3b, Perks p, McGee c, Neary rf, sub Murray.

Woollens—Hopkins c, Hillier rf, Clarke 2b, McLean p, Legros 1b, Kennedy 3b, Stiles ss, Sims ss, Lang lf.

Score by innings:

SHEPPARD SIGNED.

WINNIPEG, November 24 (Canadian Press). — Johnny Sheppard, of the Selkirk team, has finally come to terms with the Edmonton Club of the Western Canada Hockey League.

He signed a document on Wednesday night and will be out with the Edmonton Club in the game against Regina here on Saturday night.

Manager McKenzie, of the Edmonton Club, has gone south in the hope of landing a star defence player from the Eveleth Club.

THE NEW RULE IS WORKING WELL IN THE U.S. COLLEGES

Coaches Did Not Think Much of it at First But It Makes More Difficult Play.

STRATEGY NEEDED.

What about the new rule permitting a team to make one play from scrimmage after scoring a touchdown?

Shortly after the opening of the football season I put that question to a number of the leading coaches. Few of them had anything good to say of the new rule. Some refused to express an opinion until the reform was given a thorough trial.

A few weeks ago I again put the same question to two prominent coaches in the west. Neither coach was of the opinion that the change had added anything new to the game provide any thrills for the spectator.

"The new rule simply resolves itself into a kicking affair," said one of the coaches. "It is practically the old play of the goal after a touchdown with a slightly altered dress. The play is a trifle more difficult, but I don't feel that it has added anything worth while to the game."

That same week I looked over the scores of the big games, and found that most of the teams were missing half of their chances in attempting to score from scrimmage. That proved beyond a doubt that the play was far more difficult than the mere goal after touchdown.

Since coaches admit, and averages prove, that the scoring from scrimmage is far more difficult than the old play, it is only reasonable to suppose that the play carries a greater thrill. The fact that the ball must be passed while the opposing team tries to break through to block the ball, certainly makes the play far more interesting that the old stunt of merely kicking the ball after it had been placed on the ground to suit the kicker.

That the play has possibilities other than mere kicking, that it offer the opportunity to resort to strategy if willing to take a chance, was shown in the game between Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson.

Lafayette led W. & J. 13 to 0 at the close of the second period. In the last two periods W. & J. put on a real comeback. With the score standing 13 to 7 against them, and with only a few minutes to play, W. & J. by resorting to a forward passing game, scored another touchdown.

The second touchdown made it 13 all, as Lafayette had failed at a goal from placeemnt after the second touchdown. The winning of the game was put up to W. & J. on its ability to add an extra point from the scrimmage play. Lafayette expected a kick and centered itself on breaking through and blocking the try.

The heavy going, it had been raining hard, made it a difficult matter to kick accurately. It was here that Coach Neale's team crossed up the opposition. Instead of trying to kick, a pretty forward pass sent Kopf over the line for the much-needed point without the slighest opposition.

Looks as if much of the criticism of the new play was a trifle hasty.

ANDREW WILSON & CO. TORONTO AND MONTREAL

SURE OF LADIES' HOCKEY LEAGUE

Big Meeting to Form Ontario Association Will Be Held in December.

The proposed Ontario Ladies' Hockey Association seems more assured every day, as Secretary F. D. Smith, of the Toronto Hockey League, who is looking after the organisation work is besieged with inquiries from teams from all parts of the Province who wish to enter.

A big general meeting will be held in Toronto early in December to complete the organisation work and elect officers for the coming season.

Among the teams who have already signified their intention of entering are Guelph, Bolton, St. Thomas, Stratford, Chesley, Owen Sound, Wiarton, Hanover, Milton, Gravenhurst, Welland, Mimico, and Cannington, while a great many others are now giving the matter every consideration, and will probably forward their applications before many days are passed

Besides the above mentioned teams, a plan is now on foot in Toronto to organise a Yonge Street group, to be composed of Thornhill, Newmarket, Aurora, and Richmond Hill. A meeting with this intention is being held in a few days so that if the plan carries they will play as a group in the Ontario Association.

While the original intentions were to have only one series, it has now been suggested that two series be formed, to be classed as senior and intermediate.

It is felt in a great many quarters that a strong senior series would prove a popular move. If this is carried out it is probable that such strong teams as North Toronto, Ottawa Alerts, Welland, Varsity, and several of the other longer organised ones, would enter, with the newer ones competing in the intermediate series. That a senior series as suggested would prove a good drawing card seems assured by the interest and enthusiasm that was in evidence last year amongst the fans over any games that the ladies staged.

The games between the Ottawa Alerts and the North Toronto club will long be remembered, as it was a wonderful revelation to the average hockey fan, at the skill and stick-handling that was exhibited by these athletic young girls. Of course, the main difficulty in fostering a senior series such as suggested would be over securing proper rink accommodation, but it is felt that any difficulties in this direction could be overcome.

Good Grid Officials Scarce Few Players Know Rules

By "BO" McMILLIN.

To have a good football game, one that will satisfy both the players and the spectators as well, it is necessary to have capable men in the capacity of officials. During my experience as a player I have come in contact with very few first-class officials.

The reason for this might be easily understood if one would stop to reason it out. Most of the men who work the present-day games are ex-college stars, and it is natural that they should be the first choice when it comes to selecting men for the big games. My experience with star football players, however, has shown me that they know very little about the technical side of the game.

The rules are complicated to a great extent and unless a man takes time to thoroughly work these out, and then see them practiced, he is not capable to officiate in a football game where so much results upon his knowledge and judgment. There are some thirty rules in the book with from two to 10 sections under each, and these are being changed and modified from season to season.

Few Players Know Rules.

Those of us who are familiar with the habits of football men in college know that after a man goes out on the field every afternoon and works hard in runing through the plays and the various routine of the training season, then comes in at night and prepares his classes for the following day, he will not be in a very good mood to spend more time in studying the football rule book. Not when he has a coach to explain the knotty problems to him and a captain to fight out the arguments on the field.

Now don't get the impression that I am not in favor of the entire squad learning the rules, because I am. This year I had rules books for every candidate for my team and we have had classes in the study of these rules. But what I am trying to impress is the difficulty of getting the average football player the do this.

The players think as long as they have a captain and a coach that it is not necessary for them to learn the technical side of the game. I am strongly in favor of each man making himself familiar with the rules before the hard training is started. I am afraid that this is being neglected by a large number of coaches.

Big Colleges Change Systems.

Many times a star football player of former days has been advertised to officiate in a game. Usually he is a big drawing card. Many times this same man will not be familiar with the rules. He will get along fine until he makes a bad decision that decides the game against the home team. Then the school authorities decide that he is not competent and next time they will call on somebody else. Probably another ex-player who is no more familiar with the rules than the first.

Most of the larger institutions are getting away from the old custom of having ex-football stars to officiate their games. They are employing men who have reputations as first-class officials and not as star football players.

The smaller colleges and the high schools are still working under the old system, and since I have been at Centenary College I have received flattering offers to work in college and high school games. I am sure these schools have no way of knowing of my ability as an official, but simply want me as a drawing card. They are willing to take a chance of having their game run in proper manner.

FIRST DIVISION GIVES GOVERNMENT A MAJORITY

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press). — First division in New House of Commons which occurred this afternoon was carried by Government by majority of 103 against Laborite oppostion when Premier Bonar Law moved that Government be empowered to take all time of House for Government business during session; Laborites opposed it.

SOCCER CLUB HAS MANY OBJECTIONS

Toronto Team Objects to Ruling That They Were Playing an Ineligible Man.

The following from the Toronto Star shows that soccer players from that city also have their little troubles.

The K. & S. football club takes strenous objection to the ruling of T. & D. officials at Monday night's meeting, wherein they were charged with playing ineligible players and mulched two points in their games with Dominion Radiator and Queen's Park.

A prominent official of the club stated the fact were as follows: In the Dominion Radiator game the names of the players were handed to the referee long before the game started, this list included T. Houghton, one of the regular players. When the game started Houghton had not put in an appearance and Assistant Manager Dickie in Manager McLaverty's absence asked George Robertson, a junior, whom he had signed up that day, to step in and fill the gap. Unfortunately Mr. Dickie in the excitement of getting the players together, arranging for dressing accomodation and the dozen and one other things connected with starting a game, forgot to notify the referee of the change, and that is what all the fuss is about.

There was no intention on the part of K. & S. to commit any subterfuge, we could not better our position in the league nor make it any worse whether we won or lost, therefore there was nothing to be gained by playing ineligible players. We won the game, however, and Dominion Radiator, looking around for something to kick about decided later on to protest against Robertson playing. If they had come to us at the time and asked for an explanation they would have received it, and the matter could have been thrashed out there and then.

Now the point is that a protest must be lodged with the T. & D. officials and the defending team within forty-eight hours after the game. This was not done and it was a week and half after the game before we knew anything about it. Further, when Mr. Dickie called up Mr. Beeston, secretary of the league, on Monday afternoon last and explained that he could not get down that night to look after our interest, Mr. Beeston promised to hold the matter over until next Monday, November 27th.

Instead of holding it over Mr. Beeston broke faith with the club by allowing the protest to come up and judgment passed against us, with the result that K. & S. received a severe knock in the public opinion.

The Queen's Park affair is another blunder by some one as we know absolutely nothing about it.

The K. & S. team is highly incensed over the way the case has been handled by the league and are through with football and everything connected with the T. & D. until a new set of faces appear on the board. The present officials are entirely to autocratic and single minded to be in control of a league of this size. Soccer is a very popular game but some improvement must be effected in the handling of the teams and rules made must be lived up to by the officials of the league as well as the teams or it is plain to be seen the T. & D. will run itself into the ground.

The K. & S. team were wrong in allowing Robertson to play in any case as he must be registered seven days before he can take part in any game.

OPEN SEASON FOR HEAVIES IN FRANCE

The Boxing Federation Declares Light-Heavyweight Title Open For Competition.

By FAIR PLAY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—It is now open season for light-heavyweights in France. And aspirants for the honors must file intentions to fight for the European title on or before November 30.

This announcement from the French Boxing Federation, made public today, was expected to bring forth statements from Joe Beckett, Georgeous Georges, and many others who want to succeed the discredited Siki, who has been banned forever, and is now in the discard with Jack Dempsey.

The announcement caused considerable speculation in fight circles here today as to whether American light-heavies might file their claims with the French federation for a right to fight for the title. It was generally taken for granted that they could, and, therefore, there was much hunting up of pens and paper by American managers of scrappers of that class who want to get down on the records before it is too late.

As local fight folks here figure, it won't cost anything to record their intentions, and then, if there is enough in it for them to make the trip they will be all set.

The sportsmanlike manner in which M. Hellers, Siki's manager, when the black beat Carpentier took the stern judgment of the French Boxing Federation, is gratifying to everyone interested in boxing. In accepting the inevitable, Hellers spoke a fistful when he deplored Siki's execrable action following the fight that gave him the European title, and then concluded with "by my work, I made Siki a world's champion. I should have liked by my advice to make him a gentleman. I failed in the latter."

If the present personnel of the New York Boxing Commission is to make way for appointees more favorable to the incoming state government, those who follow have been set a very fine example of the right way to do things. No one act of the present personnel deserves more commendation than that of forcing Harry Greb to hold to his contract with George Engle, the manager who made him what he is today. Engle contracted for $50,000 worth of fights for Greb up to the end of December. Greb's breaking off of relations with Engle, therefore, cannot be consummated until that time, the boxing commission has ruled. Greb must not only go on with the half dozen fights scheduled, but he must also go through with them under Engle's management.

TUBERCULOSIS FOUND.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Under the provisions of the Municipal Tuberculosis Order of the Federal Government, dairy cattle valued at more than $200,000 have been destroyed in the greater Winnipeg area during the past four months by order of Dominion Government veterinary inspectors. Between 6,000 and 7,000 animals were inspected during this time, and more than 3,000 re-acted to the tuberculosis test and were slaughtered, according to Dr. J. B. Still, Chief Veterinary Inspector for Manitoba. The Federal Government has paid compensation to the extent of $130,000.

In some cases, Dr. Still said, whole herds of cattle were found to be affected by the disease and were wiped out.

Although $250,000 is annually spent in the planting of oyster shells in Connecticut, there has been continued failure to obtain a set of seed oysters.

BRITISH OFFICERS ATTACKED BY MEN

German Civilians, Armed With Clubs, Attacked Members of the Inter-Allied Control Commission.

BERLIN, November 24 (Canadian Press). — British and French officers of the Inter-Allied Control Commission, who had announced their intention to inspect a munitions depot at Ingolstadt, Bavaria, were attacked yesterday on their arrival at the depot by a band of civilians armed with clubs.

A British officer was injured in the attack. No German soldiers were concerned in it.

The Allied Powers, through the Council of Ambassadors at Paris last week informed Germany that the withdrawal of the military control commission had been suspended until the German Government afforded satisfaction for flagrant violations of the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles during the past six months and showed willingness to abide by the instructions of the Commission.

The note demanded an apology and reparations for incidents occurring at Passau and Stettin against the authority of the Commission. In requesting an immediate reply, the Allies said their patience with Germany was almost exhausted.

POLITICAL FIELD OF AUSTRALIA SEES CHANGES

POLLING ON DEC. 16

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press)—Federal politics in Australia have been undergoing kaleidoscopic changes. A few months ago every careful student of the situation scouted the possibility of any outcome of the forthcoming general elections, fixed for December 16, other than the return to power of Mr. W. M. Hughes, now in his eighth year of office as Prime Minister. Labor's influence being at a lower ebb that at any period in its history as a real factor in Federal politics, the probabilities were all in favor of an increased majority for the Ministry. But the prophets reckoned without the possibility of disaffection in the ranks of the National Ministerialists and of the Country Party, which had ever supported them in time of crisis. And that is just what happened. So formidable is the movement against Mr. Hughes that his continuance in office after December 16 is seriously menaced. It is quite possible that the new Ministry will be a coalition of erstwhile Liberals—followers of the party which coalesced with the Labor Conscriptionists in 1917 under the title of the Country (or Farmers') Party.

New Born Hostility.

The situation in Australia bears a striking analogy to that which faced the electors of Great Britain. A coalition formed to tide the country over the great crisis of the war, especially that phase of it produced by the rejection of conscription, is threatened with disruption. Its leader, admittedly a magnificent war chief, but of doubtful value as a director of national destinies in peace, faces a very real possibility of dismissal. The difference lies in the fact that whereas in Great Britain the coalition has been broken before the elections, in Australia that event awaits the issue of the fight.

What are the grounds for the new-born hostility to Mr. Hughes? The answer is that it is the culmination of steadily growing dissatisfaction in many quarters. In Parliament members are tired of Mr. Hughes' autocratic methods. His has even been a One Man Ministry. The old, constitutional devices of Cabinet administration have long since been cast to the winds. Mr. Hughes has been almost a Tsar. Every decision approaching vital importance has had to await his sanction, and more than once Melbourne has witnessed an absurd condition of paralysis in official channels because Mr. Hughes has been absent in another State. One Minister resigned because, as he said, he refused to be the Prime Minister's messenger boy; but others have proved more pliant. Then again, "Big Business" as Mr. Hughes was wont to call it in his Labor days, is determined to place some limit upon Government interference in commerce. Mr. Hughes has never shed his Socialistic principle—he is vastly proud of the fact—and their application is to be found—to mention but a few instances—in the Commonwealth Government Line of Steamers; in the control of the sugar industry, sadly to the cost of the consumer; in continuous and disastrous meddling, by wages tribunals and other means, in the coal industry; and in the enactment of the crippling restrictions on trade within the Commonwealth and its territories to be found in the Navigation Act. Parliament is alarmed, too,

Italians to Grow Flowers For the Perfumery Trade

GEONA, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press)—Italy is developing a new industry, the growing of flowers for the distillation of perfumes and essential oils. Flower production for these purposes is encouraged in the southern provinces, and it is represented that the profits to be expected are large, compared to returns from other crops.

Experts have studied the situation and report hopefully. They say Italy is favored climatically, and that she has a monopoly already in the production of bergamotte, a basic essence used in virtually all perfumery. Bordighera, on the Italian Riveria, promises to be a center of the new industry.

The perfumes manufactured in Italy already have been favorably received both at home and abroad, especially in South America and the Near East.

It is declarled that the national language in the Free State shall be Irish, with English given equal recognition, as an official tongue.

The Parliament will consist of the King and two Houses—a Chamber of Deputies and a Senate—known generally as the Oireschtas.

"GALLAGHER'S"

A prominent citizen remarked the other day that there were very few homes in the City or vicinity where Gallagher's Remedies were not more or less known. This we believe to be true. Through Incorporated less than a year and a half, the progress made by the Gallagher Remedy Co. Limited has been remarkable.

Those who are using our Remedies are recommending them to their friends, having us mail them to friends in the Old Country in the United States and different parts of Canada. Take a dose of Gallagher's" is becoming a household expression. An ever widening circle of Doctors are recommending our goods.

Last Saturday and Monday, the 18th and 20th we received repeat orders for and shipped one hundred and five dozen, twenty seven and one-half dozen of which went to a Local City Drug Store. We were rather proud of this sale. We have more than doubled our sales over last year. This has been accomplished soley on the merits of our Herbal Remedies. Wherever we sell our lines we have some outstanding case relieved which boosts the sale.

To get the best results use the Blood Purifier and Kidney Remedy concurrently. Any of our Agents will supply you with a special pamphlet telling how to take them. If you are not using "Gallagher's" then you are out of step.

ON FINGERS OF SON RESTS THE FATE OF FATHER

Test Between Love of Parent and Grief For Loss of a Life-Long Companion.

DOUBLE SLAYING

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Nov. 25.—On the fingers of 14-year-old Albert Dinella rests the fate of his father, Antonio, who is awaiting trial here for the death of his two daughters.

For from these fingers will be made known the result of a test of strength between love of parent and grief over the loss of a life-long helper and companion, according to prosecuting offcials.

When the case come up in the Wyandotte count district court, in the term opening Dec. 4, the tale of a harrowing double murder is expected to come from these fingers. For Albert can neither speak nor hear, and it is on the sign language of the deaf-mute boy that authorities will depend for the conviction—or acquittal—of his father.

Will the boy be his father's Nemesis or will he save his father from the gallows?

Prosecuting attorneys and police believe the boy will be a favorable witness for the prosecution if he they point to the fact that Albert's life-long and most cherished playmate was one of the victoms for whose death Antonio Dinella will be tried.

Helen, twin sister of Albert, had been the voice and ears of her brother—until one day last September when her body, hacked and mutilated almost beyond recognition, was found in a sack on the bank of the Kaw River. Only two days before, the headless body of their younger sister Florence had been picked up by police under similar circumstances.

Find Evidence.

Investigation by authorities led them to the crude shack of the childrens' father on the bank of the Kaw River near where it empties into the Missouri in the heart of Kansas City, Kas. They searched the home and came out, they say, with a blood-stained hammer and some gunny sacks, like those in which the girls' bodies had been found. After questioning the father they arrested him and are holding him for trial on a charge of murder.

But the chief testimony in the case, police say, they have not yet gathered. That lies with Albert, the deaf-mute brother of the murdered girls.

Prosecutors point to the close affection between the boy and his twin sister, Helen, to substantiate their belief that he will prove a damaging witness against his father. Not only he and Helen played together all their lives, but the girl had learned to know and interpret Albert's thoughts in a way that he, without hearing and without speech, could not express them.

Boy Feels Loss.

Now, without this help, Albert finds himself more handicapped than ever in his relations with his playmates. He knows the sign language, but his friends do not. He has never learned to write like other boys of his age and it has been only through concentrated effort that he has picked up knowledge enough to print in crude letters words which he thinks.

Police believe the thought of his handicap and the memories of his sister's help and companionship will lead the boy to stand witness against his father, if he knows anything which points to his father as the murderer.

Yet, from Albert alone, no satisfaction either way can be gained Barefoot, even in these chilly November days, he plays along the banks of the Kaw, unmindful of the important part he will take in the destiny of his father.

HE IS VERY, VERY HUMAN THIS "TIGER OF FRANCE"

Georges Clemenceau a Real Character and All One Has Read About Him is True--or Very Well Could Be

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—United States folks are being tickled tremendously by Georges Clemenceau. He's a real character. Everything you've read about him is true—or very well could be.

Take that jug story they tell of Clemenceau. While Premier of France, he used to get up early in the morning. He didn't like to stir his ancient woman servant out of bed at the hour he considered suitable for himself, so he hit upon this scheme for his breakfast. He had her prepare him a jug of hot soup before he went to bed, then he used this hot jug the way some of us used to use a hot brick on cold nights, the way many good ladies use hot water bottles now,—to keep his feet warm.

Next morning he rescued the jug from under the blankets and there was his soup for his breakfast.

Like Peasant.

The first time I ever saw the Tiger was on a drizzly morning in the middle of a barn lot near La Ferte-sur-Juare, not far from the River Marne. This barn lot, with the stable and cow sheds surrounding it, formed the headquarters of the Second Division. Clemenceau had arrived to congratulate the doughboys and their officers for having stopped the German push toward Paris.

Everybody was keen to get a look at the famous fighting French statesman. What they saw was a bedraggled, shapeless overcoat, a battered soft hat, with the brim pulled down all around, a pair of bushy white eyebrows, a protruding white walrus mustache and a pair of very bright eyes boring out of a pink, wrinkled countenance.

He might have been the peasant owner of the farm, come over to see that the doughboys were not mussing up the proud manure pile which dominated the scenery of the barn lot.

Same Old Kelly.

Another time I saw him under very different circumstances. It was in the anteroom of the Foreign Office on the Quai d'Orsay, at the end of the first plenary session of the peace conference. Present were Woodrow Wilson, Arthur Balfour, Clemenceau and a few of us minor characters.

Balfour was being helped by an attendant to his hat, a nice new and very shiny topper.

"Nice hat you got, Balfour," said Clemenceau.

Balfour blushed and replied:

"Yes, my secretary thought I ought to wear a new hat to-day."

"So did mine," replied Clemenceau, jamming over his ears the same battered old felt Kelly that he had worn that day on the Marne—or one equally battered and old.

Eason Censures Deputation For Unfairness To Biggs

Says Chamber of Commerce Secretary Knew That Minister of Highways Was Opposed to Scheme He Was Represented as Being Determined Upon --Curb Reckless Speakers HeSuggests.

An opinion that the County Council had been misled and stultified by the representations of the deputation that had credited the Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Highways, with a decision to construct a Provincial highway through this district to Algonquin Park, was disclosed by the sharp comment of Reeve F. A. Eason during Friday afternoon's session of the Council while the County Roads Committee was in action.

"I asked the President of the Chamber of Commerce where he got that scheme of a highway through Peterborough, Lindsay or Belleville to Algonquin Park, and he was completely at sea. He admitted that he didn't know," said Otonabee's Reeve.

"I asked Mr. Frazer, the secretary, and he said he didn't know for certainty, but he invited me to his office and showed me a map which, he said, was made by Mr. MacLean, the Deputy Minister of Highways.

"I seriously question whether Mr. MacLean ever made that map. Mr. Frazer told me that Mr. Biggs had objected to it. I don't call that gentlemanly and fair. I consider that it was a libel to Mr. Biggs and his record that we were told he was determined to build a Provincial highway through here, according to that map, when they knew that Mr. Biggs objected to the map.

"Knowing Mr. MacLean as I do, I question whether he made the map. Mr. MacLean is known as a cautious and conservative official, who wants to get a dollar's worth of value for every dollar the people spend in roads. I think there should be some way of curbing reckless speakers who are not responsible to anybody."

Mr. Eason mentioned the brief notice of the Minister's visit that had been given the Council, and added that the Council were the final arbiters of local roads, and were also the most concerned financially.

"If we had some legislation to keep out these city people and their spurious stories, it would help the Council and save a lot of our time," Mr. Eason concluded. He did not resort to the common excuse that he had been misreported in his criticism of the Biggs policy which he predicated on the deputation's reiterated statement that the Minister was bent on running a Provincial highway northward through Central Ontario.

"If Mr. Biggs said that" was the hypothesis of his censure which he turned yesterday against the deputation with the admission of one of its speakers that Mr. Biggs was actually opposed to the scheme he was said to have decided upon whether the people were in favour of it or not.

SUBURBS WILL VOTE ON BYLAW AT ELECTIONS

Referendum In Monaghan Township on Proposal to Institute a Surburban Area Service Board.

FOR UTILITIES

By a majority of 23 to 10 ratepayers of North Monaghan township at a meeting in May's School last night authorized their Council to submit at the municipal elections in January a by-law for the application of the Suburban Area Development Act in two designated districts south and south west of the city.

This act provides for the election of a Suburban Service Board of five members empowered to enter into agreements with the city for the extension into the suburban areas of public utilities such as sewerage and sewage disposal, electric light, water, police and fire protection and other municipal services.

The sections defined by Reeve Rye who presided were as follows: (1) the district bounded on the north by Frank street to Western avenue including the lots on both sides of this street, on the west by Western avenue to Lansdowne with lots fronting on both sides, on the south by Lansdowne street, only the lots on the north side, and on the east by Monaghan Road from Lansdowne street to Frank street; (2) on that section east of the river and south of Lansdowne street, also north of King George and St. James street and west of Monaghan Road.

Explained Statute

Reeve Rye explained to an exceptionally large audience the scope of this legislation. The Suburban Board shall be elected only by rate payers in the prescribed area They are authorized to make agreements with the city for the extension and supply of public utilities, to levy special rates to meet the cost of such services and otherwise assume control of and manage the affairs of the Board. They shall prepare estimates of the annual sums required to be raised and submit them to the Council which shall collect the money by taxation. Any agreement between the Board and the city must be approved by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

No Railroading

Mr. Rye explained that if the people in the two areas carried the bylaw when it is voted on in January it could not be implimented until the following January when the first Board would be elected. It could not institute developments and improvements but would begin to function only when ratepayers petitioned for some service such as sewers, water light and the others mentioned in the Act.

Chance for Suburbs

Deputy-Reeve Lillico said he had often heard that the farmers were anxious to get rid of the suburban sections of the township. "I have never heard farmers say that, we are no more anxious for you to go than you are. This legislation gives you power to do what you want in your own area. You are on the job and know your needs better than do we who live out in the country.

Councillors John Barnes and Joseph Bell supplemented the previous explanations and Mr. H. Wood pointed out that the act did not provide for school accommodation which was becoming a serious matter for many of the residents of the township.

Like School Board

Mr. Bell said the Suburban Area Board would be autonomous like a school board. It would present its budget to the Council which would have to provide the money. The taxes would be levied only against the users of the services on a frontage basis.

Thomas Henry thought the scheme savored of annexation "Keep out of the city" he said. "If any one wants to go into the city let him go, without burdening his neighbours."

"I dare say you got a few dollars to try to get us in," he added speaking to the chairman.

"Thank you, Mr. Henry, thank you", replied Reeve Rye.

"I take objection to that remark," said Mr. H. Wood.

"How can you figure any suggestion of going into the city?" questioned the Reeve. "This is to guard against annexation; we are trying to get those outside the city some of the utilities they need and what the city will sell us."

"If any salaries are to be paid, I'd say let it die now?" Mr. Henry advised.

It was proposed by advocates of the scheme that it be given publicity in order that ratepayers should thoroughly understand and intelligently use their ballots.

The Miracle Healer of New Zealand To Enter Politics

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Nov. 25.—(Associated Press)—Wiremu Ratana, the Maori miracle man of New Zealand, is reported to be about to enter politics.

Ratana came under world notice about two years ago as a worker of miracles in healing. Unlike the usual healer, however, he shunned publicity and continued to work on his farm, teaching his people industry and temperance. He denounced the ancient Maori wizardy, and ascribed his powers solely to faith in the Divine Power. The Anglican Church went so far as to approve the work he was doing among the Maori.

Ratana is now believed to be backing the movement of four of his followers to contest the Maori seats at the next general election in December. He is being criticized for the alleged use of his spiritual powers in the material field of politics.

PLENTY FOWL ON LOCAL MARKET

Cold Weather Affects Attendance To-day—Turkeys 40c Pound.

Probably because of the cold weather the market to-day was not quite as large as last week. Upstairs there was, as usual, a big crowd and produce of all kinds was plentiful. Fowl was plentiful and the supply more nearly equalled the demand than last week, when there was actually a glut on the market. Turkeys at 40c. a pound were seen, but not extensively, evidently the king of birds, and his owners realize that Christmas is only a month off. One nice six pounder was offered for $2. One was a sample of those who will be with us at the festive season.

Chickens at 20 and 25 cents were numerous, while ducks ranged from 25c. to 35c. per lb. and geese at 25c. were scarce. A small quantity of celery at 10c. per bunch was seen upstairs.

Eggs ranged in price from 60 to 75 cents per dozen and were more numerous than last week. The demand was small and only for small quantities. Butter was plentiful at 35 to 37c. per pound and appeared to be of good quality.

Novelties For Christmas.

Novelties in knitting and crochet and hand made flowers to tempt the early Christmas shopper were to be seen. Cream at 30c. per pint was in demand. A novelty, which attracted considerable notice, was a basket containing small pots of everlastings which their owner would part with at 40c. per pot.

The outside market was not quite as extensive as last week and many things which the icy winds would destroy were missing.

Honey to the Fore.

Honey was to the fore and in greater demand than usual. Ten cents a pound for the mixed and 15 cents for the clover variety was the prevailing price. Onions at 40c. per peck and $2 per bag were numerous, and one could have either the red or white variety.

Carrots at 25c. and parsnips at 30c. per pk. were present in limited quantity. Red Cabbage at 10 to 20c each and the white variety at half that price and turnips at 25c. per pk. were seen on many rigs. One dealer had a basket of dry white beans at 20c. per qt. Small quantities of sage and summer savory at 5c. per bunch were to be seen. A few citrons at 10c. each or 3 for 25c. were noticed.

Fair Supply Apples.

Apples of several varieties were in fair quantities but the supply was not nearly as heavy as last week. Snow apples (there were only a few) at 45c. per pk. and the aristocratic Spies at 65c. were among the best varieties. One could buy Talman Sweets at $2 a bag, Peewaukees at $2.50 or Spies at $3, but if you purchased a bag of each the apple market was nearly cleared out. One dealer had a barrel of Spies for which he asked $7.

Pork Dead and Alive.

Pork was very plentiful and the price was 18 cents for the front quarter and 20c. for the hind quarter per pound. The beef was 10 and 11c. a pound. A tongue at 40c. awaited a purchaser. The auctioneer drew a crowd in spite of the chilly weather One man with a crate of half-grown pigs which he was willing to dispose of at $15 per pair, besought the reporter to send him some buyers as he had a cold place to stand.

Wood in Evidence.

The wood dealers were on hand with wood of all varieties from the mixed soft wood to the best maple. There was a fair demand and most of it was sold, but in answer to enquiries one was assured that there was more at home which could be procured. The prices were moderate: Maple at $14, elm at $10, mixed hard wood at $10 to $12 and mixed soft wood at $7. The wood dealers were in good spirits and inclined to be facetious, which would lead one to believe that business was good. It's an ill wind or a cold blast which blows nobody good.

Smiles on Scotland.

In the address on St. Andrew, the Patron Saint of Scotland, the Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, pointed out that Scotland has had a most successful era under their patron, whose high religious and moral standard has been that which Scots realize and try to follow.

The speaker continuing said that to-night we are paying a tribute not only to St. Andrew but also to his associates and other leaders who have made Scotland what it is today, a race linked together by religious action and religious feeling. He intelligently expressed his opinion as to why the Scots chose St. Andrew as their Patron Saint, and not some of the other Apostles. Their reason had been, I: opined, was because St. Andrew was a man of reserved character, a man of few words, always energetic, and one who always saw the right thing to do and made provisions for doing it at the right time.

True Scots have been able to inspire others, asserted Mr. MacKenzie ,and every man and woman present is proud of the Scottish blood which flows through their veins.

In conclusion, the speaker expressed his desire that Scottish people who are living in Canada should take advantage of the prosperity of

NATIONALITY OF BABIES BORN IN AIR IS DECIDED

Will Be Subjects of Flag Under Which the Plane is Registered.

REGISTER BIRTH.

ROME, Nov. 24.—If a baby is born 10,000 feet up in the air over a bellowing ocean or over a deserted island, what will be its nationality?

This is one of the grave questions discussed recently at Prague by the Comite Jurisdique International de l'Aviation, which is drawing up an international air code.

But the question of nationality already has been settled by a congress of famous international lawyers, including Col. W. Jefferson Davis, of San Diego, Cal.

Article twenty-seven of the international air code reads as follows:

"In case of a birth on board during an aerial journey the pilot will make a note of it in the logbook. On the first step of the aircraft the pilot will have it filed, and a copy of the document drawn up. The filing will be made as follows: If the place is part of the territory of the aircraft's nationality, file it with a competent authority. If it is foreign territory, file with the consul of the country to which the aircraft belongs. In case there is no consul in the locality forward by registered mail a copy of the document to the nearest consular authority of the nation to which the aircraft belongs."

Chancellor Cuno Says That Germany Must Have a Loan

German Government Will Meet Obligations But Will Need a Four-Year Moratorium.

TO STABILIZE MARK.

BERLIN, November 25 (Canadian Press). — Chancellor Cuno, in the course of a declaration on the new Government's policy in the Reichstag yesterday, said the Government had fully adopted the note sent by the late Wirth Government to the Reparations Commission on 13th November, and was resolved upon executing the programme that note contained.

Germany, said the Chancellor, must have a complete moratorium on reparations in cash and in kind, except deliveries for the devastated areas, for three or four years, and must obtain a loan of 500,000,000 gold marks to stabilise her finances.

The Chancellor laid emphasis upon the statement that the Government considered it was its duty to do everything possible for the discharge of Germany's obligations as the loser in the war, especially regarding the devastated regions, but Germany's vital requirements, he declared, must be provided for.

Referring to the Rhineland, Chancellor Cuno said:

"This Government will never surrender the occupied German territory."

In epitomising the Government's foreign policy, the Chancellor said: "Bread first, then reparations, will be a watchword for the new Government, as this policy of obvious self-preservation is indispensable to the enhancement of productiveness in all lines."

No creditor to whom the reparations problem was an economic and not an imperialistic issue could consistently oppose such a policy, the Chancellor insisted. He hoped that this conviction would definitely spread in the former enemy countries, and that the States, without whose aid he believed the problem could not be solved, would also view the issue solely from an economic angle.

Delegates May Tell Conference Doings

PARIS, Nov. 25.— (Canadian Press).—Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation at Lausanne, has received satisfaction concerning his protest against the 'gag rule" imposed upon the members of the Near East Conference, according to the Temps.

Each delegation, is said, resumes henceforth its liberty of action as to giving out news of the proceedings.

ULSTER WILL HAVE HER OWN VICEROY

Several Names Have Been Mentioned For Vice-Regal Honors in Both Ulster and the Free State.

BELFAST, November 25 (Canadian Press). — It is expected according to the Belfast Telegraph yesterday, that as a consequence of the changes which will result from the passage of the new Irish Constitution Bill by the House of Commons and certain consequent legislation, Ulster will in the future have its own Viceroy, who will be known as Governor of Ulster — an office quite distinct from that of Governor of the Free State Governorship, three names are being mentioned, and two of the men named, the Earl of Granard and Timothy Healey, it is believed, would be acceptable to the Free State. The third, name brought up is that of the Earl of Glenavy, former James Cameron.

Who is to be the Governor of Ulster is not known, but the name of the Duke of Abercorn is being mentioned as being acceptable to Ulster and the Imperial Government.

The Telegraph refers to the negotiations in London in the past few days between the Ulsterites and the Imperial Government, and says it is hinted that Prime Minister Bonar Law's speech on the Irish Bill next Monday may produce an agreeable lessening of the tension in the Irish affairs.

Premier Craig, who has been in London consulting the members of the new Government, said, in the course of a speech yesterday, he was happy to state that the result of his visit to London, although not entirely satisfactory, was still saitsfactory from his viewpoint, and therefore from Ulster's viewpoint.

Unexpected difficulties, he added, had confronted the new Conservative Government taking over the complicated problem of Ireland's future, but as the result of the conferences recently held, Ulster's interests had been well safeguarded.

ULSTER IS READY TO CONTRACT OUT OF THE FREE STATE

Final Arrangements Have Been Made For Transfer of Power From the Imperial to Ulster Government.

CHANGES MADE.

BELFAST, Nov. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—It is understood here that as an outcome of negotiations at London this week, certain powers reserved to the Council of Ireland by the 1920 Act have been transferred from the Imperial Government to the Ulster Government. This would mean that the Ulster Government could negotiate direct with Dublin, which received these powers under the treaty, on any point such as railroads and fisheries, affecting both terrtiories.

Regarding finances, it is learned that the British Government will appoint a commission of three and the Ulster Ministry will appoint a like number to settle all questions relating to allocation of customs, income tax and other revenues, the decision of this joint committee to be acted upon by a joint exchequer board.

If it is necessary to erect customs posts along the Ulster border through the creation of the Free State, the cost of these, which may number twenty will be defrayed from London.

Appeals from the Ulster Appeal Court will go direct to the House of Lords.

It is learned further that Belfast will pay £2,00 otowards the upkeep of the Ulster Governor. This amount is paid at the present time as Ulster's share in maintaining the Irish Viceroyalty. Ulster will have control of terrtiorial waters, a point on which the 1920 Act was silent, and will pay for the upkeep of the Ulster constabulary.

All the preliminary steps already have been taken by the two Houses of the Ulster Legislature to "contract out" of the Irish Free State, a step announced by Premier Craig last month.

THIRTY-YEAR SUIT IS COSTLY PROPOSITION

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Pending in the Cook county courts for thirty years at a cost of more than $10,000 to the litigants, the $500 suit of the late Attorney Frederick H. Atwood against the W. W. Kimball company was dismissed yesterday by Judge Joseph B. David.

Obscured by the death of Mr. Atwood, W. W. Kimball and the latter's attorney, William Bocke, the origin of the suit is uncertain, but is believed to have developed over a piano purchased by Atwood from Kimball.

Three times verdicts in favor of either Atwood or Kimball were appealed to the Appellate court and as often the rulings were reversed and the case remanded to the lower courts ofr retrial. The last hearing of the suit was more than five years ago.

Reprisals Feared For the Death of Erskine Childers

Fear is Expressed in Some Quarters That Execution May Mark the Beginning of Another Turbulent Chapter in Irish History.

LONDON, November 25 (Canadian Press). — The tragedy of Erskine Childers has shocked and startled Britain even more than did the death of Michael Collins. Well-wishers of the Irish Free State, of whom there are many in London, expect that the execution of Childers may mean a new chapter in the turbulent history of Ireland.

In many quarters yesterday the fear was expressed that this chapter may be described by the word "reprisals," and that the reprisals may be bloodier and develop into more intense internecine warfare than that which has gone before.

Many people in Britain were shocked at the news of the execution because they knew Childers; knew him when he bore an honoured name as a British patriot who rendered his country good service in the African War, and when he was something of a hero in the British literary world because he wrote "The Riddle of the Sands," which was hailed not only as a work of great literary merit, but as something of a tract on patriotism.

None of Childers' old friends who were spoken to yesterday seem to know just when and why he underwent the transformation from an ardent Britsh patriot to an Irish revolutionary. His mother was an Irish woman. His family came from a distinguished line. The dead man's father gained fame as an Oriental scholar.

Childers' wife is an American woman, and traces her ancestry back to the United States revolutionary days in the lineage of the Putnam family. She was the heroine of an adventure when Childers, in 1914, as a retort to the Ulsterites landing arms in North Ireland, brought a consignment of arms for South Ireland to the coast a short distance north of Dublin.

Mrs. Childers, who is described as a daring yachtswoman, is said to have steered the yacht to the coast in the darkness of the night.

Why Rheumatism Often Comes Back

The Usual Treatment Does Not Reach the Root of the Trouble.

Most treatments for rheumatism do no more than aim to keep down the poison in the blood and enable nature to overcome that particular attack. Then when the system becomes run-down from any cause the disease again gets the upper hand and it all has to be done over.

Sufferers from rheumatism who have found their condition unrelieved or actually growing worse while using other remedies, would do well to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The tonic treatment with this medicine has proved in thousands of cases that it builds up the blood to a point that enables it to cast out the rheumatic poisons through the regular channels of excretion, the bowels, kidneys and the skin. When this is done rheumatism is banished, and as long as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be immune from attack. This is proved by the case of Mrs. J. Hewitt, Beach P.O., Hamilton, Ont., who says: "For a number of years I was troubled with muscular rheumatism, which caused me a great deal of suffering. I would get rid of the trouble for a time, but it always came back. A friend recommended Dr. Williams Pink Pills and I have not had an attack of rheumatism since I took them, and that is five years ago. I have since used the pills for anaemia and found them equally good, and I now recommend them to any friends who may be ailing."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CRITICIZES THE LACK OF POLICY BY ALLIES.

Lacked Cohesion in Dealing With Troubles in the Near East.

MONTREAL, November 25. Canadian Press. — Severe criticism of the policy of the lack of cohesive policy of the Allies in dealing with the troubles in the Near East following the Armistice, was made at the Canadian Club luncheon here yesterday, by the Right Rev. Rennie MacInnes, Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem.

Bishop MacInnes first criticized the manner in which delays had occurred before the British mandate was signed in Palestine. These delays had led to three years of disturbance and unrest with continual trouble through the unwise working of the Zionists there.

His sharpest criticism was however directed against the United States government for its abandonment of Armenia. He asserted that if the United States had accepted the Armenian mandate and supported it with a small body of troops the Turks would have taken their lot as a beaten nation instead of reverting as now to their old policy of playing off nation against nation.

IRISH CAPTURE A REBEL "GENERAL."

DUBLIN, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—General Kilroy and seventy men of his irregular forces have been captured by General McKeown, of the Free State Army, near Newport. The capture was due to an encircling movement by the National forces, which had been in progress in County Mayo during the past few days.

The Free Staters lost three men killed in the operation.

A despatch from London on Thursday announced the departure of Irish Government troops from Newport to terminate Republican military rule in the little town, which has a population of less than 500 and which has been held for some time by General Kilroy.

A "morgue" originally was a prison room where captives were detained under the eye of jailers and turnkeys so as to enable these custodians to recognize them as occasion required.

Persons who are troubled with any of these complaints can find almost instant relief by taking one tanated calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime and you will feel 100 per cent better the next morning. Tanated Calomel is the only medicine known that acts upon the liver, which makes it the best medicine in the world. No salts, seidlitz or castor oil are necessary to take after, because it is self-eliminating. Do not allow your system to become poisoned with waste, causing all these aches and pains. Tanated calomel is sold at Webber's Drug Store, Charlotte Street.

SOUTH AFRICAN-CANADIAN TRADE QUITE PROMISING.

But is Practically a One-Way Connection, Steamers Not Returning Direct to the Dominion.

QUEBEC, Nov. 25—W. C. Egan Canadian Trade Commissioner for South Africa, was a passenger aboard the Canadian Pacific Liner "Empress of Britain," which docked here recently. Mr. Egan in an interview said that while we are looking for more trade with South Africa Canada is doing remarkable good trade with that part of the empire. In fact, said Mr. Egan, the steamers of Elder Dempster Line, the company that is subsidized on the route from Canada to South Africa, are probably using more cargo space than any other steamers going to South Africa with perhaps the exception of the oil steamers from the United States. At the present time the trade is practically all one way, from Canada to South Africa, and the steamers do not return direct to Canada. South Africa has so far taken no steps to make a direct communiation with Canada. However, producers are making more inquiries than they did, but unless something is done in the way of making a bridge which will mean direct communication with Canada. However, the Dominion cannot develop in a big way. No matter how anxious the South Africans are to trade with Canada they cannot do so without ships to carry their produce.) The South African Government has not yet seen its way to take advantage of the steamers calling from Canada, and to endeavour to make some of them return direct to Canada with only South African produce.

The Elder Dempster service has the only steamers fitted with cold storage travelling from the North American continent to South Africa. Arrangements might be made with that company for at least six steamers a year to return direct to Canada Canadians are anxious to buy South African produce, but nothing much can be done until the Union Government and the steamship company come to some arrangements. The present satisfactory condtion as regards Canadian trade is due entirely to the whole hearted manner in which certain Canadian Manufacturers have cooperated in arranging for representation on the spot. M. Egan here enumerated the Canadian products which are numerous and which could find a market in South Africa, and said that recently there hed been quite a demand for Canadian felt hats.

DEFENCE ACT WILL COME INTO EFFECT ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

The Militia, Naval and Air Forces of the Dominion Will Come Under One Department.

MUCH RED TAPE.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—The National Defence Act, 1922, will be brought into effect on January 1 next. A proclamation providing for this is expected to issue to-day. With this act in force, the militia, naval and air forces of the Dominion will be completely amalgamated in the one department, with Hon. George P. Graham, present Minister of Militia and Defense as Minister of National Defense.

The merging of the three departments has been under way for some time and issue of the proclamation, it was stated, was delayed only because of the great amount of reclassification work necessary in transferring the employees fromon department to the other. When the new act becomes effective one of the first steps necessary, it is understood, will be the transfer of all the present employees to the newly-created department.

With the completion of the amalgamation, there will also be changes in the policy of the air force, the Canadian Air Force under the new policy becoming a branch force for the defense department with its officers and men enrolled as part of the department personnel. At the present time, the personnel of the air force is largely enrolled on a voluntary or short-time basis.

NANAIMO, B.C., Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Alfred Odrogers, a fire boss, and Gilbert McBroom, a pumpman in the employ of the Western Fuel Company's mine here, were killed by an explosion of coal dust yesterday morning. Both were married and leave families

Death of Childers Was Justifiable

LONDON, Nov. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—The execution of Erskine Childers, says the Times editorially to-day, is justifiable on the ground that there is no difference between his case and that of four others executed in Dublin recently.

"The fact that Childers was an Englishman," it proceeds, "in nowise affects the issue. However much Englishmen may regret that his brilliant talents had not been used to inculcate in Irish extremists the English virtue of compromise in matters political, we hold it was his right to throw in his lot with Ireland and exert in behalf of his conception of the Irish people's interests the unusual powers he possessed. So doing, he took his life in his hands and with a personal courage beyond call faced the consequences of his action.

"He challenged the only constituted authority in the country and met his doom. That authority had no choice but to accept his challenge or abdicate all title to lawful trusteeship for the welfare of the State. The Free State Government made their choice with a courage certainly not inferior to that of their adversaries and with a responsibility far graver. We believe the opinion of the civilized world on their decision will be that it was right."

LAKE SHIPPING WAS TIED UP BY STORMS.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Shipping which has been tied up on Lake Superior for the last twenty four hours, commenced from the upper end at noon yesterday. Heavy gales have prevailed since early Thursday morning with occasional flurries of snow. Wireless reports from White Fish Point at one o'clock yesterday afternoon stated that a fleet of twenty grain carriers were still lying at anchor awaiting the weather to clear. Boats which loaded at Port Arthur elevators Thursday totalling 18, moved from the wharf and dropped anchor in the bay.

BARGES LOST IN A SUDDEN STORM ON ONEIDA LAKE

Two Men Drowned, Four Wheat-Laden Barges Sunk and Four Others Piled Up On the Shore.

TERRIFIC WIND.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Two lives lost, four wheat-laden barges believed sent to the bottom and four others piled up on the shore at Verona Beach comprised the toll of a sudden storm on Oneida Lake early yesterday. The dead are: James Specht, of Tonawanda, whose body was washed ashore, and George Gross of Miami, Fla. The body of Gross has not been recovered.

The barges which were in two fleets of eleven craft commanded by Captain Edward Thurston of New York, were on their way from New York to Buffalo when caught by a squall that kicked up waves fifteen feet high. the terrific wind was accompanied by a heavy snowfall. Captain Thurston stated that in his forty years experience on inland lakes and Long Island Sound he had never seen the equal of the Oneida Lake storm.

In the first fleet were six barges towed by the tug "Edward Thurston." Four were pulled away by the wind and waves. Four barges of the second fleet, hauled by the "Bronx III.," suffered the same fate. The tugs rode the storm and reached harbor safely.

Officials estimated at $200,000 the value of the grain on the wrecked barges.

NATURE Protects the Oat

The Quaker Carton Protects the Oatmeal

HAVE you ever noticed the way the oat grows?—The kernel is tightly enveloped within the hull, protected from dust and moisture, and from loss of flavour through exposure. Thus Nature gives us the nourishing kernel, fresh, sweet and clean.

Nature sets the example, and the sealed Quaker Oats carton carries on Nature's work. It protects the Oats after the hulls are removed. It maintains each tiny, flaked kernel unbroken, thus preventing floury meal—and pasty porridge. The Quaker carton brings you the oats sweet and fresh, and with all their original flavour.

The Quaker carton does more.—It protects you, because it guarantees you the finest oats grown. Only the big, matured kernels, full of flavour and nourishment, are used in Quaker Oats, the puny grains being sifted away. The Quaker carton also prevents the waste that occurs where food is bought in bulk.

Quaker Oats is the ideal food for breakfast. It is more nourishing than any other cereal; building brawn and bone for growing children, and providing energy for grown-ups. Quaker is most economical too. Costs less than one cent per serving.

When ordering groceries today add a package of Quaker Oats to your list.

FEWER SPEECHES.

"This is the banquet season! Would it not be a good move to have fewer speeches at these gatherings? A half-dozen addresses in a single evening are too many."—Oshawa Reformer.

With the suggestion of our contemporary to limit the number of speeches at banquets and dinners the Examiner is in thorough accord.

Too often such affairs are spoiled by a toast list of such length as to drag unto their feet eight or ten men, the majority of whom have really nothing to say and take, as a rule, an unwarrantably long time in saying it.

Two or three snappy addresses by speakers who have a message and know how to deliver it without wandering frequently away from the point constitute a much enjoyable programme than the average banquet with its eight or ten toasts.

Incidentally, it is gratifying to notice that the toast to the press is being eliminated from the list at most public dinners.

Just why the newspaper representatives should be dragged into the tail end of a toast list has never been clear to any one connected with the press.

It has always been regarded as a nuisance by editors and reporters, and the Fourth Estate is delighted to find that the old custom is dying out rapidly.

There never was any logical reason for it.

TIME TO GET BUSY.

With municipal nomination day little over a month away, it is high time that Peterborough began to stir itself over the question of the coming election.

The Examiner suggested the other day that the formation of ward associations might stimulate interest and bring out a better field of candidates than has been the case for some years.

No better plan has been brought forward, but it is possible there are other methods that may suggest themselves as promising better results. The Examiner would be glad in the public interest to place them before its readers and would welcome hearing from citizens who have been giving some thought to this problem.

Ward associations, the members of which would be familiar with the most likely men in their own district, might be able to draw up a slate of prospective candidates, and between now and nomination day discuss the situation with them and in this way perhaps induce some of them at least to allow their names to be placed in nomination.

At the same time, such associations could do good work in interesting their neighbors in the municipal elections and thus make possible a larger vote than usual.

There is too much of a "Let George do it" tendency abroad at present, and it is standing in the way of Peterborough's progress and keeping good men out of our municipal government where their services are badly needed.

Is it too much to hope that we may get away from this pass-the-buck spirit this year and create a livelier interest in this most important matter?

PETERBOROUGH'S POSSIBILITIES.

In a letter to the Examiner, which appears elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Edward Courtney suggests that instead of building a toboggan slide at Riverside Park Armour's Hill should be used for this purpose.

Unfortunately, however, the city does not yet own the Armour Hill property and that is not available for use this winter.

Undoubtedly the site he mentions is the ideal one for a slide. It would not be difficult to provide facilities for the splendid winter sport of tobogganing on this property that would not be surpassed anywhere in the Province, and the ease with which a slide could be constructed is another strong argument in favour of the securing of Armour's Hill by the city.

For the present, however, the Riverside Park site is the only one available, and if anything is to be done to provide an opportunity for tobogganing it will have to be done there.

The conversion of Armour's Hill into a park and the development of the Riverside Park property into the beauty spot that its situation and possibilities demand are two propositions that should be adopted as important steps in the bringing about of that "city beautiful" about which so much has been written and said and so little has been done.

They are among Peterborough's unparalleled possibilities, and are just awaiting the arrival of a civic government with sufficient vision to vsualize what they offer and sufficient courage to plan boldly and courageously.

MUST TEACH THE CHILDREN.

So much stress is being laid these days upon the recklessness and carelessness of motorists that it is well to remember that there is another side to the story.

Dr. George Rennie, Chief Coroner for Hamilton, in a letter to the School Boards in that city supplies the testimony that in many cases the motorist is blameless.

"On investigating the cause of death in these cases," remarks Dr. Rennie, "I find that the carelessness is not as a rule with the driver, but with the child. It is quite evident that there are in all cities very careless drivers; but, at the same time, no matter how careful a driver may be it is at times quite impossible not to strike or run over one of those little ones attending school."

In this connection the Hamilton Coroner makes a suggestion that, while not new, is worthy of consideration not only in Hamilton, but in Peterborough and every other centre as well.

He proposes that the last five minutes of the morning and afternoon hours of instruction be devoted to teaching the children the principles of safety first. They should be taught, Dr. Rennie maintains, to remain on the sidewalks and to only cross the road at street intersections.

Most motorists are careful, but so long as the little ones make a playground of the roadways or dash suddenly out into the street regardless of traffic dangers there are bound to be accidents.

The motor car has come to stay and the new conditions it has created must be dealt with.

Instructing the children as to the perils of the street is one simple, yet effective, plan that might be generally adopted, and there is no better place for such instructions than in the school.

INEFFICIENCY IN FARMING.

Hon. Manning Doherty says that the failure of agriculture in Ontario to realize its possibilities is due to inefficiency. Well, there is some hope, says the Ottawa Journal. There has been an improvement, when a Minister of Agriculture or any one else can get up with impunity and tell the farmers so. He would have been a courageous man who a few years ago would have told the farmers of Ontario that they didnt know all there was to know about farming. Hadnt they been at it all their lives?

No doubt there is a good deal in Hr. Doherty's analysis. He finds inefficiency particularly in the Ontario farmers' marketing. He points out that fruits from distant parts of the country and from the United States, no better than or inferior to Ontario fruits, are being sold in Ontario cities in place of Ontario fruits. It is true of other produce of the farm. In the United States and in some parts of Canada marketing has been organized and systematized. The Ontario producers continue largely to follow the methods that prevailed when Toronto was muddy York and Ottawa was Bytown.

It is no longer true that anybody can farm. Farming is a business, requiring the application of business methods and business principles. Farmers have to learn the business and keep constantly improving their business ability if they are to succeed, just as any other business man. Old ways will not meet modern conditions.

Agricultural education, through colleges and demonstration stations, has done much to advance the technicalities of production, but, as Mr. Doherty remarks, the marketing end of the business has been neglected in Ontario. Farmers have not enjoyed the full fruits of their labor, and in consequence farming has not been sufficiently attractive. It has not been able to support its overhead costs, with the result that labor for agriculture is scarce. Farmers' sons have gone to the towns and cities and "hired men" are wanting. If farming becomes profitable enough it should be able to attract and hold sufficient labor for its requirements.

CEREMONIAL AND DEMOCRACY.

One of the "grim, stern, set men" whom Glasgow has contributed to the Labor party in the British House of Commons shouted at the conclusion of the ancient, formal ceremony in the House of Lords on Monday: "We will smash all this", says the Ottawa Journal.

Why? Obiviously because it seemed to him to represent opposition to democracy. Well, perhaps, like others who have gone before him, he will come to see it in another light. The time-honored ceremonial, the dignified formalities attending the conduct of Government in Britain do not trammel democracy. Rather do they protect it from pitfalls. They make for order, for restraint, for responsibility, and from these proceed efficiency, prudence, justice.

The British people know the value of these institutions. They recognize them not only as the bulwark against impulse and passion, against irresponsibility and unstudied experimentation, but as the very symobl of practical democracy. They know their fascinating history from the signing of the great Charter down, through periods when there were mighty efforts to subordinate the popular will to the present time when the people's rights occupy an unassailed supremacy. That is why they reverence them.

Nowhere is democracy more advanced than in Great Britain. In no country is there a greater measure of responsible Government—Government of the people by the people for the people. And in no country is there greater respect for formality and ceremony. These order Government in all its institutions, in the borough councils as at Westminster. And the municipal as well as the Imperial Government in England is an example of the world. Could there be a better demonstration of the control of a people over their affairs than the rapid change of Government and Parliament in the last month? It was all done in accordance with ancient custom.

What would be gained by smashing these traditional institutions? Opportunity for disorder, confusion, recklessness, irresponsibility and the force of impulse. That would not assist to the success of democracy.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As 110,000 people have applied for tickets for the Yale-Harvard game today and only 76,000 can be accommodated, there is likely to be more kicking outside than inside the "bowl."

With car prices going down, pedestrians are also likely to drop unless they watch their step.

A Port Arthur motorist who on Wednesday night smashed into a horse and wagon, was yesterday morning sentenced to a year in jail. A year for killing a horse seems a pretty drastic sentence, but doubtless the circumstances warranted severity.

It is a quiet day when the Telegram and Hon. W. E. Raney do not have a clash.

Eleven thousand people in Hastings County have signed a petition asking that the death sentence imposed on Maurice Barrie, convicted of murder, be commuted to life imprisonment. There is nothing about the case, however, that suggests any logical reason why mercy should be extended to this man convicted of killing his employer. It is remarkable how much sympathy can be extended to a condemned murderer and how little consideration is given to the relatives of the victim.

The Solicitor-General declares that enough coke can be made from Nova Scotia coal to take the place of American coal in Ontario and Quebec. The market is waiting for the goods.

WOMAN BLUEBEARD FOUND IN CHICAGO

Two Women Are Charged With Causing the Deaths of Twenty-Two Men.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Investigation begun by Coroner Peter M. Hoffman Wednesday may result in adding the names of two more victims to the list of persons alleged to have been poisoned by Mrs. Tillie Klimek and Mrs. Nellie Sturmer Koulik, characterized as "women bluebeards" by police.

A Letter from a railroad man of Harvard, Ill., intimated the writer could furnish information indicating two persons whose names have not hitherto been brought into the case came to their deaths through poison administered by one of the two women now held under murder indictments, Coroner Hoffman said.

"I have assigned Detective Sergeant George Scrivner to make a thorough inquiry, and if information in the letter materializes the cases against the women will be greatly strengthened," said Mr. Hoffman. The writer gave his name and address, thought I can't make it public yet."

Should the new angle develop, the list of alleged victims of the women will total twenty-two.

Will Demand Death Penalty

Assistant State's Attorney William F. McLaughlin said he intended demanding the death penalty for Mrs. Klimek and Mrs. Koulik when their cases come to trial early in the year. The indictments reported voted against the women by the grand jury will be returned in a day or two, it is expected.

Coroner Hoffman, aided by Detective Sergeants Balata and Swenson of West Chicago avenue police, expects to exhume the bodies of five children of the two women as soon as other work will permit Dr. William D. McNally to make examinations for arsenical poisoning.

Plan More Autopsies

"Although relatives are averse to having further exhumations made on the plea that more evidence is unnecessary, I believe we should go to the bottom of this case," said Capt. Matthew Zimmer yesterday. "We expect to perform an autopsy in each case warranted by circumstantal evidence."

The accused women were silent when seen at the county jail yester day. Both were adjudged subnormal in mentality in a report submitted to Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, by Dr. William J. Hickson of the psychopahtic hospital

INQUIRY CONTINUES IN GARNEAU MURDER CASE.

Declared Rumors and Stories After Discovery of Body Were Investigated.

QUEBEC, November 25. Canadian Press. — All the rumors and stories which circulated in Queebc shortly after the discovery of the body of Blanche Garneau, the young Quebec girl, who was assaulted and murdered about two years ago, were fully investigated and carefully scrutinized by the officers of the provincial police, according to the declaration made by Charles Lanctot, Deputy Attorney General of the Province of Quebec, before the Royal Commission, which is inquiring into the conduct of the Provincial Department of Justice in this now famous case, when examination of witnesses was continued here yesterday.

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

CHAPTER I

IN the drowsy heat of the summer afternoon The Red House was taking its siesta. There was a lazy murmur of bees in the flower-borders, a gentle cooing of pigeons in the tops of the elms. From distant lawns came the whir of a mowing-machine, that most restful of all country sounds; making ease the sweeter in that it is taken while others are working.

It was the hour when even those whose business it is to attend to the wants of others have a moment or two for themselves. In the housekeeper's room Audrey Stevens, the pretty parlormaid, re-trimmed her best hat, and talked idly to her aunt, the cook-housekeeper of Mr. Mark Ablett's bachelor home.

"Funny thing that about Mr. Mark's brother. Fancy not seeing him for fifteen years."

"As I told you all this morning," said her aunt, "I've been here five years, and never heard of a brother. I could say that before everybody if I was going to die tomorrow."

"You could have knocked me down with a feather when he spoke about him at breakfast this morning. I didn't hear what went before, naturally, but they was all talking about the brother when I went in. Mr. Mark turns to me, and says—you know his way—'Stevens,' he says, 'my brother is coming to see me this afternoon; I'm expecting him about three,' he says. 'Show him into the office,' he says, just like that. 'Yes, sir,' I says quite quietly, but I was never so surprised in my life, not knowing he had a brother. 'My brother from Australia,' he says—there, I'd forgotten that. From Australia."

"Well, he may have been in Australia," said Mrs. Stevens, judicially. "But what I do say is he's never been here. Not while I've been here, and that's five years."

"Well, but, auntie, he hasn't been here for fifteen years. I heard Mr. Mark telling Mr. Cayley. 'Fifteen years,' he says. Mr. Cayley having arst him when his brother was last in England. Mr. Cayley knew of him, I heard him telling Mr. Beverley, but didn't know when he was last in England'—see? So that's why he arst Mr. Mark."

"I'm not saying anything about fifteen years, Audrey. I can only speak for what I know, and that's five years Whitsuntide. If he's been in Australia, as you say, well, I daresay he's had his reasons."

"What reasons?" said Audrey lightly.

"Never mind what reasons. Being in the place of a mother to you, since your poor mother died, I say this, Audrey—when a gentleman goes to Australia, he has his reasons. And when he stays in Australia fifteen years, he has his reasons. And a respectably brought-up girl doesn't ask what reasons."

"Got into trouble, I suppose," said Audrey carelessly. "They were saying at breakfast he'd been a wild one."

The ringing of a bell brought Audrey to her feet—no longer Audrey, but now Stevens. She arranged her cap in front of the glass.

"There, that's the front door," she said. "That's him. 'Show him into the office,' said Mr. Mark. I suppose he doesn't want the other ladies and gentlemen to see him. Well, they're all out at their golf, anyhow—Wonder if he's going to stay—P'raps he's brought back a lot of gold from Australia."

"Now, now, get on, Audrey."

"Just going, darling." She went out.

As Audrey came across the hall she gave a little start as she saw Mr. Cayley suddenly, sitting unobtrusively in a seat beneath one of the front windows, reading.

No reason why he shouldn't be there; certainly a much cooler place than the golf-links on such a day; but somehow there was a deserted air about the house that afternoon. Mr. Cayley, the master's cousin, was a surprise; and, having given a little exclamation as she came suddenly upon him, she blushed, and said, "Oh, I beg your pardon sir, I didn't see you at first," and he looked up from his book and smiled at her.

An attractive smile it was on that big ugly face. "Such a gentleman, Mr. Cayley," she thought to herself as she went on, and wondered what the master would do without him. If this brother, for instance, had to be bundled back to Australia, it was Mr. Cayley who would do most of the bundling.

"So this is Mr. Robert," said Audrey to herself, as she came in sight of the visitor.

She told her aunt afterwards that she would have known him anywhere for Mr. Mark's brother, but she would have said that in any event. Actually she was surprised. Dapper little Mark, with his neat pointed beard and his carefully-curled mustache; with his quick-darting eyes, always moving from one to the other of any company he was in, to register one more smile to his credit when he had said a good thing, one more expectant look when he was only waiting his turn to say it; he was a very different man from this rough-looking, ill-dressed colonial, staring at her so loweringly.

"OPEN THE DOOR," A MAN'S VOICE WAS SHOUTING.

"I want to see Mr. Mark Ablett," he growled. It sounded almost like a threat.

"Yes, sir. He is expecting you, if you will come this way."

Audrey went to the second door on the left, and opened it.

"Mr. Robert Ab—" she began, and then broke off. The room was empty. "If you will sit down, sir, I will find the master. I knew he's in, because he told me that you were coming this afternoon."

"Oh!" He looked round the room. "What d'you call this place, eh?"

"The office, sir."

"The office?"

"The room where the master works, sir."

"Works, eh? That's new. Didn't know he'd ever done a stroke of work in his life."

"Where he writes, sir," said Audrey, with dignity. The fact that Mr. Mark "wrote," though nobody knew what, was a matter of pride in the housekeeper's room.

"Not well dressed enough for the drawing-room, eh?"

"I will tell the master you are here, sir," said Audrey decisively.

She closed the door and left him there.

Well! Here was something to tell auntie! Her mind was busy at once, going over all the things which he had said to her and she had said to him—quiet-like. "Directly I saw him I said to myself—" Why, you could have knocked her over with a feather. Feathers, indeed, were a perpetual menace to Audrey.

However, the immediate business was to find the master. She walked across the hall to the library, glanced in, came back a little uncertainly, and stood in front of Cayley.

"If you please, sir," she said in a low, respectful voice, "can you tell me where the master is? It's Mr. Robert called."

"What?" said Cayley, looking up from his book. "Who?"

Audrey repeated her question.

"I don't know. He went up to the Temple after lunch."

"Thank you, sir. I will go up to the Temple."

Cayley returned to his book.

The "Temple" was a brick summer-house, in the gardens at the back of the house, about three hundred yards away. Here Mark meditated sometimes before retiring to the "office" to put his thoughts upon paper. The thoughts were not of any great value; moreover, they were given off at the dinner-table more often than they got on to paper, and got on to paper more often than they got into print. But that did not prevent the master of The Red House from being a little pained when a visitor treated the Temple carelessly, as if it had been erected for the ordinary purposes of flirtation and cigarette-smoking.

Audrey walked slowly up to the Temple, looked in and walked slowly back. All that walk for nothing. Perhaps the master was upstairs in his room. "Not well-dressed enough for the drawing-room." Well, now, Auntie, would you like anyone in your drawing-room with a red handkerchief round his neck and great big dusty boots, and—listen!

One of the men shooting rabbits. Auntie was partial to a nice rabbit, and onion sauce.

She came into the house. As she passed the housekeeper's room on her way to the hall, the door opened suddenly, and a rather frightened face looked out.

"Hallo, Aud," said Elsie. "It's Audrey," she said, turning into the room.

"Come in, Audrey," called Mrs. Stevens.

"What's up," said Audrey, looking in at the door.

"Oh, my dear, you gave me such a turn. Where have you been?"

"Up to the Temple."

"Did you hear anything?"

"Hear what?"

"Bangs and explosions and terrible things."

"Oh!" said Audrey, rather relieved. "One of the men shooting rabbits."

"Rabbits!" said her aunt scornfully. "It was inside the house, my girl."

"Straight it was," said Elsie. She was one of the housemaids. "I said to Mrs. Stevens—didn't I, Mrs. Stevens?—'That was in the house,' I said."

Audrey looked at her aunt and then at Elsie.

"Do you think he had a revolver with him?" she said in a hushed voice.

"Who?" said Elsie excitedly.

"That brother of his. From Australia. I said as soon as I set eyes on him, 'You're a bad lot, my man!' Rude!" She turned to her aunt. "Well, I give you my word."

"There!" cried Mrs. Stevens, sitting up with a start.

They listened anxiously, the two girls instinctively coming closer to the older woman's chair.

A door was being shaken, kicked, rattled.

"Listen!"

Audrey and Elsie looked at each other with frightened eyes.

They heard a man's voice, loud, angry.

"Open the door!" it was shouting. "Open the door! I say, open the door!"

"Don't open the door!" cried Mrs. Stevens in a panic, as if it was her door which was threatened. "Audrey! Elsie! Don't let him in!"

"Damn it, open the door!" came the voice again.

"We're all going to be murdered in our beds," she quavered. Terrified, the two girls huddled closer, and with an arm round each, Mrs. Stevens sat there, waiting.

CHANCELLOR CUNO

Germany must develop a constructive policy of her own voilition, even at the risk of incurring convulsions, we heartily endorse," declared the Chancellor, who added that stabilisation of the mark must be undertaken forthwith, and that for this purpose the Reichsbank was ready to appropriate half its gold reserve.

The new Government, Herr Cuno declared, also was deeply concerned with regard to effecting amelioration of social conditions within Germany, especially as to their bearing on the prices of foodstuffs and other commodities.

Henceforth, he announced, the importation of luxuries would be restricted ruthlessly. He agreed with Premier Poincare with regard to a foreign loan and stabilisation of the mark, but declared the necessary confidence was not obtainable as long as the "policy of ultimatums" prevented growth of confidence in Germany.

Speaking on Germany's international relations, the Chancellor said: "We will pursue an honest, straightforward German policy having no relation with each words about eastern or western policy, which create an impression that we are desirous of playing off the east against the west, or vice versa. We do not ignore the possibility of tendencies beyond our frontiers aiming at further encroachments, . . . This Government will never surrender the occupied German territory."

MASQUERADE AT APSLEY VILLAGE WAS BEST YET

Beautiful Decorations and Altogether Charming Costumes Combine in Happy Function--Apsley News.

APSLEY, Nov. 25.—The annual Hallowe'en masquerade dance, postponed from October 31, was held in the parish room on Tuesday evening, and proved a very successful and charming function, the costumes, especially those of the ladies, being far more beautiful and correct in detail than in former years. The hall presented a striking appearance, decoratcd with innumerable pixies, bats, owls, cats, witches, etc., and illuminated with grotesque jack-o-lanterns, with shaded lamps shedding a mysterious dim light. The whole decoration scheme was designed and arranged by Mr. Spence, who excels in that art. The judges of the costumes were: Mr. Hendren of Warsaw and Mr. Darling of Lakefield, who awarded the ladies' prize to Miss Grace Carr, representing Night, and the gentleman's to Philip Willis, an Indian Chief. Some of the more striking characters were: Turkish lady, Marjorie Spence; Western Cow Girl, Mrs. Stanley Windsor; Western Cow Boy, Stanley Windsor, (these three not competing). Miss Hallowe'en, Mrs. J. Downing; Mrs. Crawford, gipsy; Hazel Crawford, winter; Gladys Shewen, French maid; Dolly Church and Charlotte Tucker, Indian maids; Amy Lean, Boy Blue; Cicely Spence, sailor boy; Phyliss Spence, Pierette; Lulu Knox gipsy; E. L. Spence, Scotchman; W. Earnshaw, pirate; T. Lean, clown.

COUNTY COUNCIL DEFERS ACTION ON NORWOOD SCHOOL PETITION

Problem of Providing Adequate Middle School Accommodation in Rural Districts Presented By N. H. S. Board's Appeal For Assistance.

OPENED NEW ROOM.

Norwood's appeal to the County Council for relief in their High School problem was laid over on Friday afternoon for another session. Owing to increased attendance, including many students from other townships, even from outside Peterborough County, Norwood has found it imperative either to enlarge their school or to turn children away.

The County Council appointed last June a special committee to investigate this petition, and in September the committee interviewed the School Board, who have opened a fourth room and engaged an additional teacher.

While the Schools Committee was sitting yesterday afternoon, the Chairman, Deputy-Reeve Lillico, read the report of the Special Committee, recommending that a grant be made to the Norwood School equal to the extra outlay necessary for the additional fourth teacher over and above the ordinary grant which they would collect from the county.

Reeve Montgomery urged that this resolution be put into effect when he realized that the county's assumption of the school could not be considered until new legislation is passed, probably during the winter session of the Provincial House. It was held by members that a grant could not be made until a statement of the school's attendance for this school year is received.

Although nothing definite was decided beyond the postponement of action until next June, it was stated that of the $2,000 expended for the new room, 36 per cent. would be paid by the county for Peterborough students from outside the Norwood school section, 10½ per cent. by students from Northumberland and Durham, 10 per cent. Government grant—leaving, as estimated on last year's statistics, about $870, which the Council may take care of.

Extend School Section.

Mr. Anderson: "The question is whether the Council is ready to give assent to the Norwood High School section boundaries being extended to the boundaries of the county."

Mr. Lillico: "We have children in Monaghan outside the city who can't go to a High School because their parents haven't the means to send them to the Norwood or Lakefield schools."

Warden Strickland: "We have six from Monaghan now."

Mr. Anderson said that the question could be postponed as it was necessary that six months elapse after a bylaw was passed.

Wanted Action.

Reeve Montgomery argued that the matter should be dealt with at this session in view of the report brought in by the Special Committee.

"Our board went ahead with the feeling that the County Council would protect them. If it is left until June the new Council might make it disagreeable."

Mr. Anderson: "Something is going to happen soon, and rural people will have better facilities for education, but it will cost them more. The idea prevails that, unless it is a good size, a small High School is not as good as a Continuation School."

Mr. Montgomery moved that the Council provide for the additional expense of opening a fourth form at the Norwood High School.

Mr. Anderson seconded it, and an amendment that this question be left over until the session next June was submitted by Mr. Coughlin and Mr. Nicholls.

Mr. Lillico said no one should think that he was trying to block Norwood's request. He believed that next year's Council would deal honorably with Norwood.

Reeve Scott, Asphodel: "I feel it would be better to give Norwood the extra grant for this year until they know where they are down there."

Offered Round Sum.

Mr. Anderson asked Mr. Montgomery if he would accept $800 and let Norwood take a chance on the rest.

Mr. Montgomery replied that if he had anticipated a proposal of that kind he would have got information on that point.

Mr. Lillico: "The amendment doesn't say the county won't make a grant. It means we are waiting for a statement from the Norwood School Board."

The amendment carried, only four voting for the motion—Messrs Montgomery, J. Scott, Easson and Anderson.

Lakefield's Position.

During the discussion Warden Strickland contended that Lakefield's High School had equally strong claims for assistance and should be considered as seriously as Norwood's.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

Was Life Brought to the Earth by Sunlight?

Astronomical Diagram Shows the Relative Positions of the Sun, Venus and the Earth and How the Sun's Rays May Act as Carriers of Life Germs from the Planet Venus to This Globe.

WAS life in its earliest and most primitive form brought from other worlds to the earth on rays of sunlight? It is around this question that there is going on today a lively debate among the greatest of scientists. This debate had its beginning in the attempts of astronomers to learn something definite about the "living conditions" on other planets. In this connection there is a fascinating theory made famous by the great Swedish physicist and Nobel Prize winner, Prof. Svante August Arrhenius—as to actual "living conditions" on other planets—especially Venus and Mars, the two planetary neighbors nearest to the earth, the former being between the earth and the sun, the latter with an orbit just outside that of this globe.

How sunlight, for example, might act as a carrier of life from the planet Venus to the earth is explained as follows by Prof. Arrhenius:

When the planet Venus passes between sun and earth, rays of sunlight, pressing through Venusian atmosphere, might hurl into space countless particles charged with bacteria spores and animal and plant seeds. Some of these particles might ultimately reach the earth.

The accompanying drawing, showing the relative positions of the sun, Venus and the earth, illustrates Prof. Arrhenius's theory that sunlight corpuscles may be the distributors of life throughout the solar system.

Space, according to Prof. Arrhenius, is filled with shoals of living "seeds," and occasionally spores of bacteria, which settle upon the earth and other planets and commence life in those worlds where conditions are suitable.

"This theory," as Scriven Bolton, F. R. A. S., explains in Popular Science Monthly, "is strengthened by the belief that sunlight is composed of minute 'light corpuscles'—bits of matter that are being incessantly radiated from the sun. That side of the earth turned toward the sun is being continually bombarded by untold billions of these light corpuscles. Though in size extremely minute, yet they are numerous enough to exert a 'push' upon our globe, in opposition to solar gravitation, equivalent to 75,000 tons.

"Many of the particles of dust occupying interplanetary space are smaller than the light corpuscles in question. These dust particles are, moreover, charged with life germs. When light corpuscles from the sun hit those dust particles that are smaller than themselves, they push them along through space, and by chance may transport them to the earth and other planets.

"This force of light, known as light pressure, is powerful enough to detach a living organism from the earth's atmosphere, or that of some other planet, push it out into space, and finally transplant it upon the soil of another world. Twenty days would be required for organisms to traverse the distance separating us from Venus or Mars.

"Prof. Arrhenius considers that while many of the seeds and spores, during their celestial journey, will be killed, occasionally they will retain their vitality and settle upon fertile ground, creating life in worlds that have cooled down sufficiently to form a suitable abode. From this we might infer that all life, from one end of the universe to the other, bears an intimate relationship, and that the higher beings evolved from it and perhaps residing—as some still believe possible—on Venus or Mars, may not, after all, be so greatly dissimilar from ourselves as most imaginary drawings of the 'Martians' have pictured them.

"If the sun's light pressure is capable of transplanting tiny life germs from planet to planet, it might more easily transport the spores of bacteria, since they are still smaller. The planet Venus, our sister world, is, Prof. Arrhenius thinks, probably a suitable abode for the lower species of living organisms. Its vapor-laden atmosphere and sultry climate might conceivably harbor micro-organisms producing a variety of tropical fevers and perhaps, according to a spectacular extension of the theory, to them might even be traced some of the plagues that mysteriously appear on earth.

"Thus, when Venus passes between us and the sun, there is afforded an opportunity for such organisms, if they exist, to be transported to the earth. The solar rays, by traversing Venus's atmosphere, hit the dust particles, which may be charged with bacteria, as well as animal and plant seeds, and convey them to the earth in about 20 days. Conversely, germ-laden dust is being continually transplanted from our atmosphere to other worlds. And so this interchange of matter may be eternally spreading the same species of life throughout the heavens."

In the last published annual report of the Smithsonian Institution, C. G. Abbott, its assistant secretary, argues that recent astronomical evidence proves Mars to be lifeless, with an average temperature of 60 deg. below zero, and a climate drier than the Sahara.

Dr. Arrhenius has lately come to the same conclusion about Mars, believing it to be an arid desert of frozen sand, while Venus, on the contrary, may have a "soggy," cloudy atmosphere, ideal for the breeding of lower forms of life.

These recent assertions that Mars has an utterly frigid and airless climate have been promptly questioned by Prof. William H. Pickering, of the Harvard Observatory in Jamaica, W. I., world famous student of the Martian canals. While it is now widely accepted by astronomers that the so-called "canals" of Mars are not artificial streams of water, Prof. Pickering declares they may well be bands of vegetation. He says, further, that the spreading ice caps seen about the poles of the great red planet are, in fact, frozen water, and not the deposits of frozen carbonic acid gas that other astronomers consider them to be. Prof. Pickering brings forward, anew, technical evidence to show that there is water vapor enough on Mars to permit of some sort of vegetation, or other life, existing there.

While these two opposing theories about conditions of life on Mars are still being argued by astronomers of the utmost eminence, the theory that Venus—the planet nearest to the earth and very like it in size—may have an atmosphere similar to that of the earth has been very lately disputed, as a result of remarkable observations at the observatory on Mt. Wilson, Cal., where spectroscopic studies are said to have revealed no trace of water vapor or oxygen around the planet. On the other hand, some observers advance evidence to prove that there are heavy clouds hanging about Venus, and that her temperature is comparable to the earth's.

So the scientific debate stands today, and meanwhile, the possibility of radio communication with the other planets—provided there are indeed living beings upon them—has made this whole discussion one of the greatest popular interest, while the discussion itself has aroused an intense renewed interest in the original theory of Prof. Arrhnius as to the spread of life spores throughout the universe by light rays.

Why the TURKEY is the U. S. National Bird on THANKSGIVING DAY

THE average American would not feel satisfied with a Thanksgiving Day dinner which did not include roast turkey, cranberry sauce and the other foods which custom has taught him to expect on that occasion. This is the one meal of the year when the menus in millions of American homes, whether rich or poor, are all more or less alike.

What you eat, according to dieticians, is largely a matter of habit, and in nothing, perhaps, is the force of habit stronger, more widespread and more uniform in its results than in the case of America's Thanksgiving dinner.

"We eat the things which have come to be typical of Thanksgiving Day," says Mary Lee Swann, a well-known writer and lecturer on cooking, "because our fathers and grandfathers and our still more remote ancestors have always done so. It's a habit like that which makes us start our breakfasts with fruit and cereal and top off our dinners with a piece of pie or a dish of pudding.

"It is remarkable how the fashion set by the Pilgrims in the Thanksgiving meal to which they sat down in 1621 has persisted for 300 years. We still follow their original menu so closely that if one of the old Pilgrim housewives were to return to earth today she would prepare a Thanksgiving dinner that would be essentially the same as what our modern cooks prepare."

Of all the millions of Americans who eat turkey on Thanksgiving Day there are but few who can tell why their Pilgrim ancestors chose the particular things for their first Thanksgiving dinner and thus established over 300 years ago a custom which is destined to continue for centuries to come.

When autumn of the year 1621 rolled around it found only 50 of the Pilgrim colony on the shores of Massachusetts Bay left alive after the ravages of cold, hunger and disease. But in spite of all the hardships they had endured and the dangers that were still to come this pitiful little handful of survivors felt they still had abundant reason for being thankful. So Gov. Bradford sent out into the woods a party of four hunters "to shoot wild fowl that the homesick infant colony might, after a more special manner, rejoice together."

The results of this hunting expedition explain how it happened that roast turkey formed the principal dish at the colonists' Thanksgiving feast and why millions of pounds of this typical American bird are eaten every Thanksgiving Day.

The game which Gov. Bradford's hunters went after and which they came back with their bags full of was wild turkeys—the direct ancestors of the fowls which are now so thoroughly domesticated.

Thus the turkey became one of the favorite fowls of the American people. So great was its popularity just after the Revolution that it came very near being selected as the national emblem and appearing on the Great Seal of the United States instead of the eagle.

The selection of a national emblem stirred up a lively controversy. Benjamin Franklin at first was among those who favored the rattlesnake as an emblem for the seal, but later he became an earnest supporter of the turkey. He was much disappointed when the eagle was finally chosen, but found some consolation in the fact that he thought it looked a good deal like a turkey.

"I am not displeased," said Franklin in a letter to the Society of the Cincinnati, "that the figure is known as a bald eagle, but looks more like a turkey. For, in truth, the turkey is in comparison a much more respectable bird, and withal a true native of America.

"He is, besides (though a little vain and silly, it is true, but not the worse emblem for that), a bird of courage, and would not hesitate to attack a grenadier of the British Guards who should presume to enter his farmyard with a red coat on."

One of the chief objections to the choice of the turkey as a national emblem was its foreign-sounding name. But this is really no serious reflection on its 100 per cent. Americanism. The turkey is said to have received its name from the fact that its discoverers confused it with the guinea fowl, which originally came from Turkey.

A MACHINE That Can MAKE MINCE-MEAT of MICROBES

AN ingenious little machine for mincing microbes is in use at the Pickett-Thomson Research Laboratory in St. Paul's Hospital, Endell street, London. It is accredited to Dr. David Thomson, director of the laboratory.

Microbes are so infinitesimally small that 5,000,000 of them in a mass are invisible, and 1,000,000,000 are only about the size of the head of a small pin.

To cut up microbes is therefore a difficult task. How this little electrically-driven machine succeeds in cutting or "smashing" them is explained in Practical Electrics. There are two disks, one of which is stationary while the other rotates. The stationary disk has 70 tiny steel knives and the rotating one 80 cutting edges.

The microbes, suspended in an alkaline liquid, are forced against these cutting edges at a speed of 60 miles per hour, with the result that 28,000,000 cuts are made per minute. During the 20 minutes the germs usually remain in the machine they receive 560,000,000 cuts.

But while some microbes are smashed by this process, others are so tough that they come out whole and sound. A machine is therefore being constructed with 450 cutting edges, which will whirl the microbes at the rate of 120 miles per hour, giving 500,000,000 cuts per minute.

Dr. Thomson thus explains the use of the machine. Inoculations against infectious diseases, such as typhoid fever, can be made with germs containing all their poisons or with germs from which the poisons have been removed. If detoxicated vaccines are used, very much larger doses can be administered, and the larger the dose the greater the protection from the particular disease.

In old records and diaries are found accounts of ravages of smallpox, and of the plagues. The great plague in London depicted by Defoe is historical, and Evelyn's diary contains an account of the death of his children from smallpox. It was even the custom sometimes to try to have children catch the smallpox, so as to go through with it in early days and be secure in later life.

Then came inoculation, and then the departure from human virus to the virus of the infected cow. This excited all sorts of opposition, people claiming that the most disastrous effects would follow, involving the imparting of animal characteristics to the vaccinated person. The word "vaccine" is derived from the Latin for cow, although in the vaccine it is quite likely that the cow plays no part.

Woodless LUMBER Now MADE from SUGAR CANE Waste

"WOODLESS" lumber, manufactured from sugar-cane waste and remarkable for extreme lightness, strength, and excellent insulating qualities, is now being turned out by Louisiana manufacturers, who claim that their product will lower the cost of house construction, cut home fuel bills in half, and, when made into shipping containers, save hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in freight bills.

One of the unique characteristics of this "magic cane lumber" is the extraordinary size in which it can be manufactured, boards 12 feet wide and 900 feet long—nearly the height of the Eiffel Tower—having actually been produced in a plant recently erected in New Orleans.

The process by which this new lumber is made from "bagasse," which is the fibre left after the juice is pressed from the sugar cane, is described in Popular Science Monthly. A yearly production of nearly 500,000 tons of bagasse was formerly burned under the boilers of the sugar refineries as the cheapest way of disposing of it, but recently a process has been discovered by which it can be converted into a lumber that will not split, and which is so light that a man can lift a board four feet wide and 12 feet high with one hand.

The first step in the lumber-making process is to cook the fibres in huge vats to kill the spores that otherwise would cause decay. The fibres are then placed in beating machines, which separate them. Here they are treated with waterproofing chemicals and coated with a sticky substance that makes it possible to mat them together.

The final step in the manufacture is to compress the fibres into lumber by passing them beneath heavy steel rolls. The lumber leaves these presses in long, continuous sheets that move slowly through a 900-foot drying oven, heated to 300 deg. F., where the water content is evaporated. This oven is said to be the largest of its kind in the world, removing 120,000 pounds of water daily. The sheets are then cut automatically by saws into standard lengths, and stacked for shipment.

Like wood, the bagasse lumber is composed chiefly of cellulose. The finished product resembles exceedingly hard, tough cardboard. Because the fibres are very long, the material cannot easily be split by driven nails. The felting and compacting process fills the structure with tiny air cells that make it light and impervious to heat.

The new lumber is being used for siding on houses and for making packing boxes. Since quarter-inch bagasse boxing material weighs only a quarter of a pound to the square foot, its use results in a great saving in freight charges. For example, one company that formerly shipped 100-pound packages of merchandise in wooden containers weighing 20 pounds, now ships the same merchandise in bagasse weighing only 8½ pounds. For a distant shipment in carload lots, this company announces a saving of $1400 a car.

Because of its insulating quality, the new lumber in the form of boxes is said to hold merchandise at the packing-room temperature for three days when shipped in the ordinary freight cars. This quality often eliminates the need of refrigerator cars.

Experiments seem to indicate that bagasse lumber is stronger than wood for house construction. In one test, studding was covered with the bagasse lumber and ordinary wood sheathing, to imitate a section of the side of a frame house. The siding was nailed on in the usual way, and the lower sill of the frame was clamped to the base of a testing machine, while an upward pull was applied to the top place. In the bagasse lumber, there was a movement of only 0.01 inch at a pull of 1200 pounds, and 0.42 inch at 2600 pounds, while the wood sheathing of three-quarter-inch boards six inches wide was moved 2.14 inches at 1200 pounds.

Bagasse lumber is said to be fire resistant and to take paint, plaster, calcimine or stucco without treatment. One ton of bagasse will make 3000 board feet of lumber. The makers estimate that the waste from the Louisiana canefields alone could produce a billion and a half board feet of "lumber" annually. The best grades of this "woodless" ceiling and weatherboarding lumber recently sold at $88 a thousand square feet, as compared with a price of from $50 to $60 on ordinary ceiling.

HOW You Can SEE the EARTH MOVE

WHILE everyone knows that the earth moves, how many can prove it? Such a thing sounds impossible, but it can be done. Take a bowl at least a foot in diameter,

The Parting of the Line Proves That the Water in the Bowl Does Not Move, but That the Bowl Itself Is Taken Round by the Motions of the Earth.

and rather deep, and almost fill it with water. Then place it on the floor of a quiet room that is well away from the rumblings of heavy traffic, and where it can be left alone for several hours.

Sprinkle the surface of the water with any fine substance, such as finely-powdered resin, that will float and not be dissolved for a few hours. Then lay a trail of coal dust across the resin in a straight line from the middle of the bowl to the side; and carry the trail up over the rim of the bowl. The line of coal dust should be about an inch wide so that it can easily be seen.

Now leave it for several hours, and when you look at it again you will notice that a change has occurred. The black line on the surface of the water has altered its position and has moved away from the line that runs over the edge of the bowl.

What has actually happened is that the water in the bowl has not moved since you left it, but the bowl itself has been taken round by the motion of the earth.

"SILEX" as a SUBSTITUTE for GLASS

A TRANSPARENT substance which, while not indestructible, is hard to break by force or heat, has been discovered by Dr. Vaclav Horak, a Czech engineer. He calls it "Silex." It costs about three times as much as ordinary glass so it is not proposed to use it for the manufacture of such articles as have hitherto been made of glass, but rather to employ it as a substitute for earthenware, porcelain, enamel and aluminum. For the kitchen its use is obvious. It is cheaper than enamel or aluminum, is more easily cleaned and by its transparency enables the cook to see how the cooking is proceeding without lifting the lids, etc.

At a recent demonstration in Prague, Dr. Horak tested his invention by driving nails into wood with a hollow stick made of this glass. Thin tumblers dropped on the floor from a height of a couple of yards failed to break. A "Silex" vessel was placed on an open fire, filled with water and the water boiled without injuring the glass. The same vessel was not affected by a temperature of 400 deg. C., nor was it injured when plunged into cold water after heating.

How FREAK EGGS Are FORMED

THE accompanying illustration, which shows a number of freak eggs as compared with normal eggs, is made from a photograph submitted by C. T. Patterson of Springfield, Mo. In the upper left-hand corner is shown a normal egg weighing a little over two ounces. The one to the right shows a freak egg containing three yolks and weighing more than six ounces.

The three eggs in the upper right-hand corner are also freak eggs. Each contains a complete egg within itself, the extra egg bearing the same relation to the outside egg as the yolk does to the normal egg.

The small eggs at the lower part of the illustration are a collection of freak eggs of various sizes and shapes.

The explanation of these abnormal eggs, as given by a writer in The Pathfinder, is simple. An egg is really made by piece work. The yolk, white and shell are each made in different places in the reproductive organs. When two yolks leave the ovaduct together they combine to form the large or double-yolk eggs. If the yolk happens to break when it is ready to enter the ovaduct a small drop or particle may enter and cause the formation of a small egg. An egg returned through the ovaduct and picked up a second time causes another egg to form around it.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or the kidneys are not acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder troubles.

Jad Salts cannot injure anybody, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and the urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disorders.

And you will do more, you will settle it because you can do it, because the presence of America in Europe again will tell the Germans that they won't go farther than certain limits, and because everybody will understand that there is a moral and material power which is to take possession of the world, not for domination, but for freedom."

I could scarcely eat anything, outside of some light food, and even then I generally had pains after each meal. I tried many different medicines, but without any improvement, and had almost given up hope of ever being well. A neighbor recommended Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it a short time I felt much better, so I continued to use it until I was completely relieved. I can honestly say that B.B.B. has done wonders for me after all other medicines failed."

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham Ont., writes:—"I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me.

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

OLD BUILDINGS IN LONDON NEED CARE

Wood-Baring Grub Threatening to Destroy Many an Ancient Structure.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press)—A wood-boring grub is threatening to destroy many of the ancient architectural wonders of London. The grub first made its appearance in large numbers some ten years ago, and had done much damage to the wood sections of historic buildings before its presence was discovered.

The insects already had eaten into the roof support of old Westminster Hall, which dates from the time of King William Rufus, and royal architects and engineers were at once set to work to remove the decayed parts and substitute iron work. The work, however, was extremely tedious, and although it was carried on throughout the war, it has just been completed. It was necessary to remove all of the beams and many of the pillars of the famous buildings.

The grub was found to have made considerable progress in Westminster Abbey, but this structure is now being successfully repaired. The grub has also been at work in the Houses of Parliament, the Guildhall and Saint Paul's Cathedral, which also are undergoing repairs.

UNITED STATES BEHIND TIMES SAYS BRITISHER

America Mitigated Severe Penalties of Old English Criminal Code But Retained Loopholes.

PLAY OF THE GUN.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 25.—"America is still living on the remnants of the old British system of jurisprudence brought over before the American Revolution. That is one reason why many individual American states have more executions annually than all of England and Wales combined."

Sir Basil Thomson, K. C. B., former head of the criminal investigation bureau of Scotland Yard, Britain's world famous detective service, makes this declaration. Thomson is a lawyer of note, too, so he is qualified to discuss the legal phases. His ability as a detective was attested by his appointment as British director of intelligence during the war.

"The old British penal code was terribly severe," continued Sir Basil. "A man could be hanged for the theft of $10. Long prison terms could be imposed on persons who were in debt.

"As the injustice of such penalties became apparent, judges were wont to allow defendants to raise every possible legal quibble or technicality to save themselves. By the time the colonies brought over this court system, the procedure was filled with many of these legal steps for delaying sentence.

"Then came the reform of the British penal system early in the nineteenth century. The penalties were made more in keeping with the crimes.

Less Loopholes.

"With reduction of the penalties came also reduction of the number of loopholes which had been allowed to creep into the old system. The result is that a person convicted of a crime cannot use appeals, demurrers and other procedure to delay execution of sentence until public interest in the case is gone and freedom can be won on some quibble.

"After conviction, the penalty is made to fit the case. Political pressure cannot be brought to bear for a reduction of sentence. Even the Home Secretary cannot act, as the dead weights of his bureau's tradition is against him.

"England has for years stressed the sacredness of the sentence until even the high government officials would hesitate to seek any mitigation. The general feeling is that all the beneficial effects of the reformed criminal code would be lost if this were allowed.

"As a result of this system, it might be noted that in England and Wales, with 45,000,000 population, there are only seven executions a year.

"America mitigated the severe penalties of the old English code, but kept all of the old loopholes allowing delays. America adopted the indeterminate sentence, but England, after studyinng it, decided that it would be harmful to give to laymen the power of setting aside the judgment of the judge and jury who heard all of the details of the case."

Gun a Crime Factor.

"Do you think promiscuous owning of firearms is a factor in crime?" Sir Basil was asked.

"Decidedly so," was the reply. "The pistols act in England, which is drastically enforced, requires a license from police before a gun can be purchased. The license application must show some real reason for the issuance—not just the fact that the applicant is a reputable citizen.

"There are no displays of firearms in pawnshop windows. Gunsmiths show weapons—but they do not sell them without a license being produced. They would be heavily fined if they did.

"Remember, too, that the police do not carry pistols in England. The baton is their sole weapon. As resistance of arrest brings double or triple the punishment for the original crime, there is but little trouble in arresting prisoners. This would not be the case if firearms were freely owned."

Jupiter's year is nearly twelve times as long as our own.

SEES PHILOSOPHY IN THE ART OF DANCING

Woman Teacher Says It Should Be Subjected To Refining Influences.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—And now comes dancing with the mind!

Many funny things have happened with the passing of time, and once a young woman who dared to dance publicly with anything except her feet was subject to an immediate trip to the hoosegow. But times change—so has dancing.

Miss Irene d'Annelle arrived in Los Angeles to teach dancing.

"Dancing is merely an expression of primitive instinct unless subject ed to the refining influence of mental processes," says Miss d'Annelle. "There is a philosophy in the dance of peoples, just as there is philosophy in their religion, art or literature.

It is to teach this philosophy in the formation of a club that Miss d'Annelle says she has come to Los Angeles. This club, which will be for working girls, is to be more than a refuge for tired bodies and a rendezvous for gossip, she says.

In pointing out the possibilities of dance philosophy Miss d'Annelle said if the working girl is given appreciative understanding of the beauty of movement and the benefit of co-ordinate muscular action she will find a new joy in her work and capabilities which had lain dormant through poor blood circulation and an improper state of mind.

"There is the dance of the warrior, the peasant and the priest. Why not the dance of the stenographer, the clerk, the cook?" she asks "Through an appeal to the working girl's love of beauty of face, figure and expression more can be accomplished than by ineffective methods of precept and much-abused tenets of duty-to-self-and-employer cults."

Guard the Children From Autumn Colds

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day warm, the next day cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little one are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mother's best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POOR OUTLOOK IN HARD COAL MINERS LOAF

Workers and Operators Let Shortage Grow and Take 8 Holidays Out of 16.

PASSING THE BUCK.

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—The following article on the coal situation is printed by the Buffalo Evening News, and is based on information obtained during an investigation of conditions in the Scranton, Pa., anthracite field:

SCRANTON, Pa. Nov. 25.—While thousands of Buffalo families are striving to get their first ton of anthracite and are using all sorts of makeshifts to heat their homes, production in the hard coal region is below normal and is likely to decline rather than increase.

This is the conclusion that is forced by a survey of the anthracite field. It isn't a pleasant conclusion, especially for those who have no coal, but it must be drawn from the facts which can be obtained here and elswhere in the one section of the country which produces hard coal.

When it comes to passing the buck the coal mining industry holds the world's championship This in one title which cant' be disputed. It isn't likely even to be threatened seriously. But the miners and operators can't shift more than a small portion of the blame for the present great shortage of anthracite from their own shoulders.

Blame Rail Strike.

Just now the mining industry declares the railroad strike is solely responsible for the failure to speed up anthracite production. But underlying this surface cause many others are to be found. Here are five reasons why Buffalo householders have just been informed they shouldn't expect much hard coal before Dec. 15 and perhaps not much after that time either:

First, the anthracite miners, following five months of idleness, are showing no inclination to make up lost wages or production.

Secondly, the operators are apparently doing little to increase the output or guard against future strikes and resultant shortage.

Third, what is said to be the greatest car shortage in the history of American railroads, is working havoc with the present production.

Fourth, wretched condition of locomotives is causing railroad congestion and slow movement of mined coal.

Fifth, some of the largest mines in the anthracite district are closed. There is no reason to believe any one of the causes of shortage will be removed between now and next April, when the coal year ends. At least two of the causes are likely to become increasingly serious when severe winter arrives. This forces the conclusion that the present anthracite shortage of 30,000,00 tons, more than one-third of the nation's average yearly consumption is not going to be overcome.

Why Miners Won.

The present situation best can be discussed first in a general way, and then as it applies particularly to Buffalo and Western New York: How each of the causes affect the general situation readily can be seen.

When the Evening News on July 1, of this year declared the anthracite miners were suffering no hardship as the result of their strike and predicted that they could hold out indefinitely, it told the truth. The anthracite miners still would be on strike, and suffering little inconvenience, had not they been granted everything they really wanted.

The truth is the union in the anthracite fields have demonstrated that for many years to come they are masters of the situation. The operators recognize this fact and are willing to admit openly the truth of the statement.

Sept 11 was the date set for the miners to return to work. The few who did return on that day were in no great hurry to go about the business of producing coal. And so in many camps and communities Sept. 12 was declared a holiday on general principles. Many unions that day held monster clam bakes to celebrate the victory.

This was a forerunner of what was to come. Since returning to work the miners have taken advantage of very holiday in their calendar, and these are most numerous. In the 16-day period ending last Sunday there were exactly eight working days for the rank and file of the union.

The miners celebrated "Mitchell day," Oct. 28, in honor of the man who is credited with having done more than any other person for the cause of the United Mine Workers of America. The suspension of work on this day was almost 100 per cent complete. The following day was Sunday.

All Saints and All Souls day were observed as November began. Production on these two days was less than one-third of the normal, official figures of the U.S. Geological Survey show. After this the miners actually worked three days, with the exception of the Sunday included in the period before they took a whole or half holiday to vote. Then followed another three days of work and then a holiday to celebrate the signing of the Armistice.

Instead of speeding up production to help offset the huge shortage brought about by their long strike, the miner in the eight weeks from Sept. 11 to Nov. 4 produced but 13,470,000 tons of coal, as compared with a five-day average of 14,000,000 tons for the same period.

So much for the miners.

The operators are quite willing to pass the buck to the miners.

"How can we make the men work?" is their stock retort to the question why so much production has been lost since operation was resumed.

"We don't dare ask the men to work overtime or pay them a bonus for working on holidays," the operators assert.

"If we did we would establish a precedent which would have a permanent harmful effect upon the production of anthracite," they added.

The operators also point out that men can not be imported from other mines. State laws which make it necessary for a man to have worked in the anthracite mine two years before he can get a miner's certificate have the effect of preventing importation of labor in times of necessity such as the present.

KIWANIS MINSTRELS HITTING ON ALL SIX

Local Jokesmiths Are Putting Final Touches to the Big Show.

Gus Hill, the well known minstrel show producer with headquarters in New York, has wired the Peterboro Kiwanis Club to say that he will undertake to put the Peterboro Kiwanis Minstrels on the road providing they dispense with the services of Charlie Cummer.

It's a great thing to have a 72-carat nerve but when the Kiwanis Minstrels get through they are going to put it up in cans and sell it in opposition to Walter Kidd's specialties.

"The more civilized we become the more police it takes to keep us decent," said Frank Whitehouse to-day in an exclusive interview with the Examiner.

Man is the only animal that laughs; probably because he is the only animal that makes a fool of himself. See the Kiwanis Minstrels and prove this assertion.

Kiwanian Dr. Ed. Wood who in Kiwanis circles, announces himself as the safety valve of the Ontario Temperance Act is authority for the statement that wages, taxes and skirts are hard to put down.

A very good still containing ninety gallons, with a worm and tub and a book explaining the art of making homebrew that will make you look two ways at once, will be auctioned off at the conclusion of Thursday's performance of the Kiwanis Minstrels.

A BRIDE WAS RESCUED FROM RUNAWAY HORSE

Frank Couzens, Son of Detroit's Mayor, Has Very Thrilling Experience.

WINDSOR, Nov. 25.—The dramatic rescue of his bride from the back or a runaway saddle horse featured the honeymoon of Frank Couzens, son of Mayor James Couzens, of Detroit, it was revealed upon the return of the newlyweds from the Pacific coast.

The Couzens were married at Kitchener, Ont., the bride's home, on October 19, and left immediately for the coast. Mrs. Couzens, who was Miss Margaret Lang, is an accomplished horsewoman, having ridden since she was a child.

While honeymooning at Coronada Beach, Cal., she elected to test her skill as an equestrienne on a spirited mount. Frank Couzens also rode a fast animal. Mrs. Couzens' horse got the bit in his teeth, reared and ran away, with his clinging to the saddle. She was unable to control the horse and a crash appeared imminent.

Meanwile, Frank, who is no mean horseman, had spurred after the runaway. After a thrilling chase he pulled alongside and grabbed the bridle of his birde's mount, bringing the horse to a prancing stop.

DUCKY WOMEN SEND GIFT TO PRINCESS MARY

Queen Mothers of Ashanti and the Gold Coast Send Silver Stool as Wedding Present.

FOR KING'S CHILD

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press.)—A silver stool has been presented to Princess Mary, Viscountess Lascelles, as the wedding gift of the Queen Mothers of Ashanti and the Gold Coast. The gift was presented by Lady Guggisberg, wife of the governor of the Gold Coast, it having been given her by Queen Mother Gewa Akoto, of Ashanti. The stool is an exact replica of the Queen Mother's own stool.

Accompanying the gift was a letter from Queen Akoto, describing how the stool was made and consecrated. The letter reads as follows:

"I place this gift in your hands. It is a gift for the King's child on her wedding.

"Ashanti stool-makers have carved it. All queen mothers who dwell here have contributed toward it.

"It may be that the King's child has heard of the Golden Stool of Ashanti. That is the stool which contains the soul of the Ashanti nation. All we women of Ashanti thank the Governor exceedingly, because he has declared that the English will never again ask us to hand over that stool. This stool we give gladly. It does not contain our soul, as the Golden Stool does, but it contains all the love of us Queen Mothers and of our women.

"We in Ashanti have a law which declares that only the daughters of a Queen can transmit royal blood, and that the children of a King cannot be heirs of the stool. This law has given us women a power in this land, so that we have a saying which runs, 'It is the woman who bears the men.'

"We hear that your law is not so. Nevertheless, we have great joy in sending you our congratulations, and we pray the great God Nyankopen, on whom men lean and do not fall; whose day of worship is a Saturday, and whom the Ashentis serve just as you serve Him, that he may give the King's child and her husband long life and happiness."

SAYS CHILDERS QUITE SINCERE

But Like a Man Driven Mad by Quarrel Not His Own.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—The execution of Erskine Childers draws no editorial condemnation in London morning newspapers to-day. Neither surprise nor censure are indicated. Everywhere their is recognition of Childer's ability and courage, and editorials deplore that his life had such an ending.

The Chronicle says Childers was an enemy of Ireland and that he "merited the fate meted, not to the simple murderer but to a murderer on a large scale."

The Daily News pays tribute to Childer's sincerity and ability, but declares that the case for the Free State is overwhelmingly strong" and it is not for us to challenge its decisions."

The Westminster Gazette says, that to most people Childers "will remain a man who by some pitiable perversity had been driven mad by a quarrel which was not even his own."

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

In Alaska the bride never prepares a wedding trousseau. She has a complete new outfit, but it is the gift of her prospective husband, not her father.

The wedding feast is held at the home of the bridegroom and is provided by him. The parents of the bride, however, make an elaborate gift to the bridegroom's family.

RENEWAL OF SELLING.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.— For today's sudden renewal of the selling movement on the stock exchange, the fundamental explanation was that the liquidation which has been going intermittently, for over a month in response to the necessity of strengthening the Wall street position had again broken out.

The immediate occasion for exposing this weakness was the announcement of the Bethlehem-Midvale steel merger ,and the discovery that so far from being an argument in favor of the steel stocks, it could actually be used as a club against the entire market. The huge addition to the Bethlehem Steel capital was the thing most insisted upon. But besides this the thought was in people's mind that this latest merger had been put through in an effort to reduce to reduce costs to meet the sharp competition now going on in the steel trade. The volume of business is indeed very good, but it is a question for the so-called independent producers of the profit margin; and whether this is enough to make a satisfactory show in current earnings.

It was when the market received the merger news with indifference, and Bethlehem and Midvale shares commenced to fade away that traders were encouraged to renew their effort on the short side generally. These efforts were more successful than those of the previous days, especially when directed against stocks like Standard Oil of N. J., Studebaker and Baldwin Locomotive, in which last summers "bull" movement had been carried to the greatest extremes. The Standard Oil shares sold well below where they were before there was any talk of a stock dividend. Baldwin felt the effect of the disappointment aroused over the disclosure that with all that has been said about the exceptional business of the equipment companies during the last half year, earnings for the full twelve months of 1922 will be considerably under those of 1921.

Apart from these and a few of the high priced industrials, the declines were moderate. In the Rails, Coppers and Sugars the losses as a rule were less than a point. There is nothing in the outside news apart from the Bethlehem-Midvale merger that could have possibly had any bearing upon the stock exchange movement. Week end business reviews describe the general position as satisfactory.

Sterling exchange drew close to the $4.50 level or within two cents in the pound of the highest of the year, French francs were a little changed one way or the other, while Italian lire went higher.

TRADE SATISFACTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Sentiment was encouraged by overnight announcement of Bethlehem Steels acquisition of Midvale and week end reports of Mercantile agencies which spoke of satisfactory trade conditions throughout the country. Industrials were steady in early trading. Cons. Textile in which there was turn over of large number shares Friday continued to far out distance remainder of list from standpoint of volume on heavy sales stock advanced to new high on the move. Midvale was unchanged at 31 1-2.

DECLARE DIVIDENDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Swift and Co., declare regular dividends. Bethlehem Steel buys Midvale Steel giving 95-100 of share of Bethlehem common for two shares Midvale Corey to go with Bethlehem Board.

Federal trade commission refuses to comment on absorption of Midvale Steel by Bethlehem corporation.

ASK OPEN DOOR POLICY IN TURKEY

United States Government and Public Supports it Says Ambassador Childs.

LAUSANNE, November 25 (Canadian Press). — Richard Washburn Child, chief United Spokesman at the Near Eastern Conference, amazed the delegates at this morning's session by reiterating the insistence of the United States upon an open door policy in Turkey.

He read a note delivered on October 30th to Britain, France, and Italy, and said that the United States Government and the public supported this policy.

LAUSANNE, November 25 (Canadian Press). — The Conference adjourned its morning session immediately after the completion of Ambassador Child's statment, and will resume the discussion of the boundaries this afternoon.

After stating that he considered the time opportune for an expression of the position taken by the United States, Ambassador Child said:

"Representatives of the United States are unable to hear concluded the discussion of any territorial settlement which in its turn may affect other settlements, without drawing attention of the conference to certain traditional principles of he foreign policy of America."

Radio Rings Bell Seven Miles Away

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Radio as power!

The first step, spectacular in its import, has been taken.

Successful transmission of electromagnetic radio waves that lighted an ordinary globe at a distance of 1,000 feet.

Another test that rang a bell seven miles away.

Scientists who have witnessed tests or heard about them declare the possibilities of such vast scope that radio and power transmission alike may be revolutionized.

Wallace F. Hall ,president of the radio company, is making no forecasts. At this stage, he feels, the time is not ripe for prediction. He is enthusiastic, but cautious, discussing the tests conservatively.

Has Wonderful Field.

"It is still in the experimental stage," he states, "but when it is remembered that first experiments in radiophone transmission showed even slesser range than have our tests, the new discovery might be said to open up a wonderful field of possibilities."

Up to this time electro-magnetic waves of radio have been confined to transmission or vibrations—voice, music, or dots and dashes of wireless.

In the United States Radio Corporation experiments the transmission apparatus consisted of a common spark, familiar to amateurs who dabble in radio science, together with an undamped wave utilized to prohibit interference. About 10 amps was used in power.

The receiving set was placed at the end of the laboratory, about 1,000 feet distant. It was merely a condenser of a strong variable type. No audion tube or galena was used for detection. There was an aerial for both transmission and receiving.

Yet the operator illuminated and extinguished at will an electric light of 110 volts capacity. Two horsepower of energy, direct current, was used.

Navy Investigating.

Some years ago, radio scientists say, the wizard Tesla conducted experiments along the same line, but found no commercial value.

As a result of the demonstration government authorities at Washington have ordered immediate investigation by United States navy engineers with a view of further development and ultilization of the invention for government purposes.

That this new radio discovery could be utilized in time of war in keeping the enemy from bringing explosives within a specified range is one of the important phases interesting the government, it is known.

What may be done in the way of developing power, when special equipment is used, the scientists leave to the imagination.

Further investigations and experiments are to be at once carried on.

That is staggering in its possi-bilities even the conservatives admit.

Advice That Was Good:

FOR many months we strongly recommended investors to purchase Canadian National Railway Fully Registered Debentures.

Time after time we advised the purchase of securities that we considered would appreciate in value.

Foremost amongst our recommendations during the past year was Toronto Suburban Railway 4½% debentures maturing 1961, secured by a First Mortgage on the Radial Line from Toronto to Guelph, OWNED and OPERATED by the Canadian Government.

The price of these debentures has advanced as follows:

Dec,	1921	Price	62.25	Yield	7.50%
Jan.	1922	"	66.49	"	7.00%
		"	to 71.00	"	6.60%
Feb.	1922	"	74.54	"	6.25%
		"	to 76.81	"	6.05%
June	1922	"	77.49	"	6.00%
July	1922	"	81.00	"	5.75%

Those who acted upon our advice and purchased at the low price of 62.25 now have a profit of over 17 points, which is equal to 27% on their investment, in addition to the interest which they have received regularly.

These Fully Registered Debentures are now being offered at a price of 83, to yield the investor approximately 5.65%, at which price they are still a Bargain and a Safe Investment.

For those, however, who desire to purchase a good Security that has possibilities of increasing in value similar to those of the Toronto Suburban Debentures a year ago,

We recommend Canadian National Railway 4%
Fully Registered Perpetual Debentures

originally issued by the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway, secured by a First Mortgage on this line from Toronto to Ottawa, now OWNED and OPERATED by the CANADIAN GOVERNMENT.

PROVIDE NUTRITION FOR THE YOUNGSTERS

Fourteen Points in Taking Care of the Child's Food Problem.

1.—Fresh, clean, wholesome milk should be the basis of the daily diet of every child. Each child requires at least a pint and a quart if possible. A quart always for undernourished and younger children.

2.—Every child should have at least two vegetables a day. This means one or two beside potatoes. Leafy vegetables should be used at least three times a week.

3.—Fruit should be used as a part of one meal each day. If this cannot be afforded insist on a third vegetable. Dried fruits are valuable if fresh fruit cannot be afforded.

4.—Meat should be served only once a day.

5.—Cereals should be used daily. Served with milk for breakfast or supper they provide a good foundation for the child's meal.

6.—Allow at least three to four pounds of fat per week for every five persons and not over four pounds of sugar.

7.—Tea, coffee, alcoholic drinks and all fried foods except bacon are bad for children.

8.—Water is very important. Children and adults should drink plenty between meals and a moderate quantity at meals.

9.—A child should never go to school without his breakfast.

10.—Every child should have a good hot luncheon, with either soup, or cocoa, or a hot vegetable dish.

11.—Mid-morning and mid-afternoon lunches should be given only when the regular meals are five or six hours apart. Regularity is very important.

12.—Candy and other sweets are bad for children if eaten just before a meal.

13.—Give children plenty of bulky and vegetable food, such as whole wheat, fruits and fresh vegetables.

14.—Meal time should be both restful and cheerful.

A Thought

Yea He loved the people; all His saints are in Thy hand: and the sat down at Thy feet; everyone shall receive of Thy word.—Deuteronomy 33:3.

He's true to God who's true to man; wherever wrong is done
To the humblest and the weakest,
'neath the all-beholding sun,
That wrong is also done to us; and they are slaves most base,
Whose love of right is for themselves, and not for all their race.

Two Women Making a Profession of Mending

MRS. RAMSOM AND MISS ANDERSON

By Marian Hale.

Two clever women are taking every day the stitch in time that saves nine.

And in doing so they are lending aid and comfort to the tired business woman, taking the furrows from the brow of the worried bachelor, saving the temper of many a busy housewife and—perhaps, once in a while, actually saving a home from being wrecked.

Incidently, they're building up a prosperous business and the basis of a substantial fortune for themselves.

The woman are Mrs. Charles C. Ransom and Miss Lillian Anderson. They're partners in New York's newest business venture—a mending shop.

But let them tell you about it themselves—

"What time for mending has a woman who works in an office—or why should she be obliged to mend after a hard day's work? She's entitled to her evenings," says Miss Anderson.

"Oh who is there to look after the shirts and socks of the man who lives in a hotel or a boarding house? puts in Mrs. Ransom.

Housewives Aided, Too.

"We opened the shop," she continued, "expecting to cater largely to professional people, but a large part of our trade is coming in from housewives themselves.

'Only yesterday a woman frantically besought our aid. Her husband would need his evening suit on Friday night and would expect to find it as he had put it away.

'She begged us to look. We did. The suit had at least 50 moth holes in it.

"It's a new suit, and he'll never forgive me," the woman said.

"We mended it as carefully as we could, sent it to a tailor and had it nicely pressed, and the husband went to his social affair quite unconscious of the true state of his suit.

"One wife brings us all her mending to do, then proudly displays it to her husband as her own work. He thinks she's a wonder and admires her economy so much he always rewards her with a check."

Can't Get Help.

Miss Anderson says the greatest difficulty has not been to find mending to do but to find menders to do it. She employs a large staff of women, to whom she assigns the work. It is done under her supervision.

"Fine mending never has been an art in America," Miss Anderson says. "We frequently have to send to Holland or France for the needles and yarns we need.

"There's a human as well as a practical side to the business that makes it decidedly facinating.'

As a commercial proposition, too, she recommends it to women who feel the urge for a shop.

Fashion Hints

COAT HAS TRAIN.

One of the most gorgeous fur coats ever designed has just been completed for a motion picture actress. It is made of Russian ermine, lined with burnt orange velvet, appliqued with silver. A long, double train is attached at the waistline and a large diamond buckle fastens the garment at the low waistline.

COLORS FOR SPRING.

Brighter colors are the proper coverings for winter. For spring the following colors are to be the vogue: grey, fallow, sandalwood, rosewood, bittersweet, sunburst, almond green, navy, indo and mephisto.

EMPIRE EFFECTS.

Empire effects are noticed in the new modes. A stunning evening frock of yellow satin is cut with a straight, sheath skirt and a very short bodice. The pearl girdle begins at the end of the low V. A high Medici collar of real lace makes a frame for the face.

DYED LEATHER.

Leather, dyed in some mysterious manner that makes it resemble gold or silver, is the newest trimming used to enhance the beauty of large, black, velvet hats.

WATERPROOF HATS.

A French importer is sending over smart little hats of waterproofed satin for wet weather, sports, motoring and travelling. They come in smart colors and can be crushed into so small a space that they have no difficulty being accommodated in the pocket of the golf jacket or motor coat.

VELVET BRACELETS.

Bracelets of black velvet ribbon with buckles of rhinestones, pearls or diamonds or a combination of diamonds and sapphires are a new conceit for evening wear.

TIGHT SLEEVES

Long, tight sleeves are shown on many of the Paris models recently imported. They come far over the hand.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phase face about but modern methods of reducing fat have made the revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion: if you are likewise fond of the table, and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, 4613 Woodward ave., Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat steadily and easily. Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablets faithfully, and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED.

You know that a letter of introduction requires immediate recognition in one form or another.

Either a call or an invitation should be made within a week or less.

If any circumstances make this impossible, a note of explanation must be written to the author and bearer of the letter.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED—

Your dress appropriately for all occasions and you remember that a display of diamonds or jewels with street costumes is not good form though it has recently become the custom with many women to wear their jewels throughout the day.

Likewise the woman of taste does not neglect to make a careful toilette in the morning so that she may receive any unexpected callers without embarrassment.

HERE ARE SOME GOOD RULES THAT HELP CAKE MAKING

By Bartha E. Shapleigh.

Everyone likes good cake, and many are the inquiries as to method of making such cake. The method of putting together the ingredients is important but the baking is almost as much so if the result is to be perfect.

The remark was made to me not long ago that cake at the present time costs much less than in the days of our grandmothers even though the price of food materials is great increased.

But when a really fine cake is made today, the same good materials go into it—eggs, butter, sugar and flour. So many cooks make a cake which is quickly put together, and calls for less material, but they frost it and put it in layers with filling and the final cost is quite as much as a cake calling for more material in itself.

Much experimental work has been and is being done to prove the best method of putting together the ingredients in a cake. If it is to be eaten immediately a cake may be "stirred up" very quickly, but for keeping quality, fine texture and good flavour a more careful mixing is necessary.

Rules For Mixing.

A few rules to follow are important. Always have all the materials ready on the table before beginning work. Have the oven in good condition. Have pans carefully buttered or greased.

Butter should be melted over hot water and allowed to stand until the sediment has formed. Use oil for greasing pan. It is best applied to the pan with a soft piece of paper or brush.

If the cake is to be baked in a pan not over three inches deep it is well to flour it after greasing. Be careful every bit of flour which does not cling to the butter is shaken out. For a loaf cake, the best results are obtained when the pan is lined with paper.

Now Mix Your Cake.

Having pans ready and oven at your control proceed to mix the cake. If it is a butter cake, cream or work the butter and sugar together until creamy. If eggs are not separated beat well and add to butter and sugar.

If the yolks and whites are beaten separately add the well-beaten yolks to the creamed butter and sugar—reserving the whites to be beaten stiffly and added at the last, after flour is in.

The cake gets a more thorough beating if the milk and flour are added alternately. After all the ingredients are in give the cake a good beating.

It is possible to make a satisfactory cake by putting all the materials together in a bowl and then beating five or more minutes, but the grain of the cake is coarse.

In making a cake where only the yokes are uesd, or a sponge cake, the eggs need a very thorough beating.

Sponge Cake.

A "genuine" sponge cake has no leavening material except the eggs, but some of the best sponge cakes have baking powder or soda and cream of tartar in them.

There are still cooks who think baking powder not as good for cake as soda and cream of tartar. The tendency is to use too much baking powder and the cake dries very quickly.

The time for baking cake depends of course on the size and depth of the cake and the heat should increase as the size of the cake decreases. Layer cakes and small individual cakes require a "quick" oven to send them up, then a lower heat to finish baking.

One Baking Method.

A very satisfactory way of baking a cake is to divide the time for baking into quarters. In the first quarter of the time the cake should rise but not brown; if it begins to brown in that time reduce the heat at once.

During the second quarter of the time the cake continues to rise and take on colour.

During the third part of the time it bakes without any particular change. This is the critical time, as any sudden change of heat is likely to cause a slight falling in the center of the cake.

The last quarter of time is to finish the baking and the cake shrinks from the sides of the pan.

Don't Hurry.

Do not hurry a cake in removing from pan. Allow it to cool and settle and usually it will come out without breaking. If it is to be eaten as soon as cool, and if it is to be frosted, do not remove at all from pan. The frosting will not run over the sides, and it can be cut and served from the pan.

One good reliable recipe for a butter cake, and one equally reliable for a sponge cake, are all a housewife needs. She can then vary the butter cake by frosting, adding fruit, nuts and spices and by baking in small tins or in layers. Sponge cake is best not frosted.

IF YOU ARE WELLBRED

You do not refuse food passed to you at a dinner party, because to do so implies that you do not like what is being offered.

It is much kinder to take a small portion and leave it on your plate if you do not care to eat it.

If you are on a diet you should accept ony invitations with the stipulation that your refusal of food is not based on your own likes and dislikes.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

A queer marriage custom exists among the Circassians.

At the time of his daughter's betrothal the fathers pays only half her dowry to his son-in-law. The other half is not due until the birth of the first child.

Then the woman is given a long veil to signify that her dowry has been paid.

Conscious Auto Suggestion

If you have boils upon your neck
Or epileptic fits,
Insomnia or chicken pox,
Don't worry, folks, for it's
A cinch to cure your every ill
No doctor need you question;
Just do what Emile Coue says
And try autosuggestion.

NEW YORK Nov. 25—It's simply impossible to find any spare string around the house these days.

Mother, father, auntie, grandma, grandpa, and the girls have it all tied in twenty knots.

This is one of Emile Coue's firse essentials of "Self-Mastery Through Conscious Autosuggestion.'

First catch your string and then knot it. Sounds like a string game, but it really is not.

The knots are all in the string—20 of 'em—count 'em. That is just what you do too, count them every one, repeating a little wheeze at every knot.

Sort of like "He loves me, He loves me knot,' you know, only the Coue formula runs like this—"Day by day, in every way I am getting better and better.'

Then You're Cured.

When you have told yourself this 20 times, once for every knot, night and morning, with eyes shut and lips moving, you will either be cured of all your physical and mental ills or else you will be sent to the psychopathic ward.

Profesor Coue doesn't specify whether the knots in the string are to be sailor knots, bow knots or love knots, but possibly this is a mere detail.

According to this newest French exponent of autosuggestion, who has himself cured hundreds of seemingly hopeless cases we are absolutely run and ordered about and dominated by our unconscious self and ruled by our imagination.

You may think your conscious self has all the sayso, but you are wrong. According to Coue, in an argument between the will and the imagination the imagination wins out every time.

Therefore it is up to you to master this unconscious self and to put down this boss imagination.

If you just prove you are master they will take your suggestions very docilely and carry out your every command.

How It Works.

For instanec, since the unconscious has controll of all your organs if something goes wrong with a kidney or heart all you need do is to speak gently, but firmly, to your unconscious self somewhat in this manner, "Look here, old chap, that organ is quite all right, you know."

Just persist and reiterate this and the unconscious will finally accept the statemnt as a fact and the organ will at once begin functioning normally. Simple, isn't it?

Also the very next time you have a jumping toothache or an attack of acute indigestion just retire to a secluded spot, close the eyes, place the hand gently on the afflicted spot and repeat soothingly, but convincingly, "Going, going, going"—and see what happens.

Rear Children Same Way.

Professor Coue's method for raising perfect children is also succinct and simple. When little Percy cuts a hole out of one of your best sheets for a Hallowe'en costume don't wallop the child.

At night when he is sound asleep in his little bed approach softly to within a yard without waking him and murmur 15 or 20 times the things you wish to reform in him as to health and conduct.

Exit then softly as you have entered. Though the child is sleeping body, and conscious self, his unconscious self is wide awake and taking it all in.

Consequently it will accept what you say and little Percy will not only leave the sheets alone but will grow up a paragon.

There are many other illustrations of Professor Coue's autosuggestive methods, but "Day by day, in every way, it is getting better and better,' not to string stories out to long.

SAILING SHIP TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

But British Owners' Association Reports Very Serious Depression the Past Year.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press). The annual report of the British Sailing Ship Owners' Association, which has 916 ships of 113,046 net tons on its books, says that the depression of the shipping industry for the past year has been worse than at any period since the war. Despite the fact that freights are still unremunerative, however, conditions in the sailing ship industry are improving.

At the recent annual meeting of the Association the chairman said the index number of shipping freights was 46 in January, 1921; 33 in December, 1921, and in September, 1922, it was as low as 27. Although there had been a smaller decrease in the number of sailing ships since pre-war times, as compared with the previous decade, the result was due principally to the increase in the United States, which at present owned 41 per cent. of the world's sailing tonnage.

ELEVATOR CREEPS UP, TRIO IN TRAP ON TOP

Two Snatch Way to Safety, But Their Companion is Crushed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Two men snatched their way to safety from the top of a slowly rising elevator yesterday while a third was crushed against the top of the shaft in the rear of the Hotel Lorraine.

The three men were on the top of the cage, painting the shaft, when the control slipped and the machine started slowly to rise, despite the frantic efforts of the operator to stop it.

Realizing that in a few moments he would be crushed to death against the top of the shaft, one of the men, Sarapio Sandodal, threw back the door on the second floor and succeeded in rolling out to safety.

The machine was gathering speed, as it rose, and Robert Adams, the second of the painters, was unable to open the third door in time to get out. He succeeded, however, at the fourth and dove from the cage top just in time to escape being caught between the elevator and the door.

The third man, Andrew Kenny, grown frantic with fear as he saw the ceiling getting nearer and nearer, tore helplessly at the iron grills as they went by, shrieking as he saw death approaching. At the seventh floor he made a last desperate lunge and losing his balance became wedged between the top of the car and the door.

When his body was extricated by firemen, it was found that he had died instantly.

Will Your Boy Be Educated?

Of course he will, because you want to see him grow up to be a "real" man. When he gets out into the world and makes his mark, what pleasure and satisfaction it will bring to you!

But there is just one consideration—suppose you do not live until he is fitted for his life's work. This thought has escaped many a man. It is the chief reason ninety per cent. of children never complete their High School course.

The matter can easily be arranged—an education guaranteed to your children—through life insurance.

It is one of the great pleasures of life insurance representatives to be able to advise fathers and mothers how to provide for the education of their children, who will afterwards pay honor to their parents, holding them in high regard for this chance in life.

LIFE INSURANCE IS "THE LOVE THAT NEVER DIES," AND WHEN EXTENDED TO YOUR CHILDREN REACHES ONE OF ITS HIGHEST FORMS OF EXPRESSION.

Wireless Revealed That Self-Called Lord Rossmore Was Plain Richard Sanbury.

QUEBEC, Nov. 25.— When the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Britain" docked here from Hambourg, Cherbourg and Southampton,

"In the saloon there was a passenger travelling under the name of Lrd Rossmore, which turned out to be an act of impersonation. While on the passage from Liverpool the officers of the Empress of Britain, received a wireless that Lord Rossmore was in London and the man who had registered in the ship's book under that name was bogus. The purser of the ship interviewed the presumed Lord Rossmore, and showed him the wireless. He admitted that he was not Lord Rossmore but had registered under that name on a bet of one hundred pounds. He said his name was Richard Sanbury of London and that he was on his way to Honolulu. His impersonation however, has caused him to be held up here by the immigration authorities.

LADY STRATHCONA ARRIVES

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press). — Lady Strathcona, daughter of the late Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, was a passenger on the Mauretania which docked here yesterday. With Lady Strathcona came her son, the Honorable Arthur Howard, and his bride the daughter of Stanley Baldwin, present Chancellor of the Exchequer of Great Britain.

The party are enroute to Montreal for a short stay after which they will return to their home in London.

BY GEORGES CLEMENCEAU GATINEAU
Grandson of Georges Clemenceau, Ex-Premier of France

Not long ago, the acknowledged leader of the gayest group in Paris, Georges Clemenceau Gatineau, tossed a million francs to the winds in less than a year, while the haute monde stood aghast.

Then, disowned by his famous grandfather for his notorious escapades, ruined by wild extravagance, exiled from France by memories of a past that ever haunted him the youth came to America.

Here his famous name stood him in no great stead.

"Get a shovel, and go to work. That's the rule here," they told him.

And so he did. The grandson of the Tiger of France—the handsome debonair dandy of the boulevards went to work.

The arms that had embraced in the abandoned dances of Montmartre the lissom forms of Gaby Deslys and Delysia, heaved coal on a Boston Dock.

The Spender, he who tossed his last thousand francs away for one final revel, now in grimy overalls, but with ropust appetite, learned to enjoy his "ham an'" on a Boston lunch counter. And his wages, $4.00 a day

M. Catineau has consented to write a series of articles. He will deal with the gay life of Paris and the Riveria. He will tell anecdotes of his famous grandfather, of President Wilson's visit to France, o' King Edward, Rudyard Kipling, Roosevelt, as The Tiger saw them.

The series give intimate glimpses of Clemenceau that never before have been revealed—of the premier of politics of the father at home, of the Teacher-Tiger who found his bride in a little New England town.

It is a remarkable personal tale of reckless pursuit of happiness in wicked Paris, of the glamor of the night life in the City of Romance—and of the Tiger's fury.

Here is the second Article of the Series

Not Babylon in all it's most joyous wickedness could have compared with the brilliant Paris I knew and loved in the old days when Gaby Deslys, Alice Delysia and the other queens of the gay city made it's nights sparkle and it's days glorious.

The races in the day time, when all the gay world would be out for sport—splendid in raiment, scintillating in wit; the brains, the wealth, the powerful from all over the earth gathered in its Capital of Pleasure, to risk a moiety of the millions represented on one horse's chance of dashing in a few feet ahead of another

At night, the theatre, whether the sublime music of grand opera or the freer, less formal tones that appealed more to the real Paris—the song of the Apache' or the American rag-time.

After the theatre, the rout, often given at large expense, and including a vast number of people, simply that one person might—circumspectly and without causing comment—meet another—a meeting, perhaps, of but a moment.

And then to Montmartre:—

* * * *

In the preceding article of my memories I told you of the Bal de Deshabilles—of the wild orgy that never ended until, in broad daylight, the hazily clad dancers trouped through the streets astonishing the busy workmen and shop girls on their way to their morning tasks.

Let me now recall another party—which I have named the Affair of the Club des Cents—at the Cafe Pre-Catalan.

To begin, let me remind you that champagne in those days flowed like the water of the Seine. And also that money, in those days, was made to spend. At least we thought so—we of the younger gayer set. Our fathers, our guardians perhaps thought differently, now that it was we, and not they, who did the spending.

Often no one of us ever knew who paid for any particular feature of a gay evening. Usually one turned all his cash into a common fund and, while it lasted, the wine flowed and the music thrilled and the dancers moved Luck We were if wine, money and guests all lasted until the rising sun paled the night lights and the merry-makers, some protesting, parted to rest in preparation for another evening with a program varied only a little

I do not know how this particular "affair" started—I only know that it had much to do with shaping my fate. For it was at it's climax when word came to me that "The Tiger," my grandfather, Georges Clemenceau, Premier of France, was aware of my presence in the notorious resort and of the wild company I was keeping for the evening; of the money that was being thrown away as though it were so much sand of the desert.

Revels like Thorne of the Witches

But youth is reckless and joy's reign seemed to be everlasting—what with the rivers of champagne and the exotic abandon of the dance. So the warning went unheeded and I, I who blindly followed the will-o'-the-wisp of my fancy, took the first steps that led me to disaster poverty, solitude

However it started, Gaby Deslys was there—Gaby, whose charm had lured a king off his throne, whose worshippers included the greatest as well as the least; whose admirers vied with each other in respectful homage at her shrine

And, if Gaby were there, there was I Seldom were we apart in these revels, seldom did I stir without knowing where she would be.

A host of revellers had joined us two, somewhere, during that evening. Our crowd soon, growing in number and more and more hilarious in our spirits, found the ordinary cafes too small, too rigid for us. Some one shouted:

"Pre-Catalan"

"Let's go" came the answering shout of the gayer Americans in our party, and screaming, singing, we rushed pell-mell, to—

"The Maddest Place in Paris"

Truly it was mad that night

Wagner, Shakespeare, might have based their witches' revels on ours Each of us sought to outdo the others in some inspired devilry—some "stunt" that would win him or her undying fame —fame well to be envied, since who could point to a greater achievement than to thrill the Cafe Pre-Catalan?

But instead of witches, the world's most beautiful women danced here

The capital of gaiety and beauty—such was Paris of the time and it's inner-circle was Montmartre. From all over the world, was beauty gathered—the dark-eyed Mediterraens, Spanish damsels and Italians; roguish, fun-loving girls from Ireland; Scandanavian beauties with their peach-blown complexions; Americans—stars of the moving pictures and the stage, gorgeously beautiful, adorned like princesses of Sheba; stately blase English women, heartily enjoying the merriment, but leaving to the others the more boisterous demonstrations of enjoyment.

Our own crowd, more boisterous than the others, rushed on the famous restaurant as one might imagine the hungry Vandals burst through the walls of a Roman City. Most of our set were on terms of complete camaraderie with each other—every man was a welcome partner to most of the girls—all soon had surged through the halls and seized tables and points of vantage.

"Mam'selle Gaby Deslys—M. Gatineau with her"

Cheers and cries, shouts of recognition, urgent, vociferous commands to the harried, but pleased waiters—glasses pounding on tables, choruses of hearty masculine voices seconding shrill sopranoes, drowning the band—all contributed to a bedlam that left us doubt among the earlier guests that a new horde of invaders had conquered. The noise and bustle that hitherto had seemed to make the Cafe Pre-Catalan a scene of riotous pleasure was recalled by these earlier guests (one of them told me later), as relatively peaceful and quiet

The more sedate of the foreigners and sight-seers made way for the tumultuous host that we—Gaby and I—led in. Soon our friends were in complete possession, dancing on tables, singing in lusty opposition to the regularly constituted musicians and crashing tumblers and bottles to attract attention.

I chose a seat as nearly as possible in the centre of the tumult. There about a little table, stained with the wine glasses of countless customers, I seated first my charming Gaby, then the others of our immediate party. About us on every side were other like tables, occupied by persons we knew well, while here and there, among the motley multitude, were the mighty ones of the earth, finding surcease from the toils of operating the universe the whil: Bacchus and Bacchante reigned.

Every now and then, over the roar of the halls, could be heard the voice of some guide—either officially hired to show some English or American tourists the sights, or, merely officious, pointing out the persons of distinction.

I heared my nam yelled—not that I was a "person of distinction," particularly: but I was with one who most assuredly was.

"Mam'selle Gaby Deslys" the guide screamed. "M. Gatineau with her."

I looked at Gaoy. She neither resented this publicity nor did she glory in it. If the sight of her would amuse or give pleasure to anyone, she had no objection to being seen. A kinder-hearted woman never lived

I could not now name all the members of the party. Suffice it to say that among those at my table were Harry Pilcer, Gaby's dancing partner; the comedian Boucot, who resembles America's Fred Stone, and Rip, writer of most of the sensational "revues" on the Paris boards. That trio alone was enough to ensure a riotiously gay evening.

For an hour or so the tumult, went on all drinking, dancing, laughing and singing—growing wilder and wilder. One by one, even the best known among the renowned dancers and singers among the young women of our party clambered to the top of the table and took her turn at entertainment.

Presently it was Lou Lou Delorme's turn. She was hoisted up, sang a brief verse or two and did a few little steps. Her's was the last of the "stunts" performed unaided. Thereafter Boucot lent his assistance—not always welcome by the performer, but unfailingly entertaining to his audience.

Champagne bought by the Case

This audience was steadily growing in size. People left other tables to crowd about ours, where, it seemed, most of the merriment was centering. Gaby was the cynosure of all eyes in the interims while Boucot endeavored to obtain volunteers whose fate would be to act as foils for him.

Finally a dainty little comedienne, whom for very good personal reasons I shall not name, leaped from the floor upon the table and sang a lively song. Prompted, perhaps, by someone else, a hilarious actor crept up behind her, mounted a chair and, as she was making her final bow, poured a quart of champagne down the back of her neck

The place was in an uproar

The actor's brilliant bit of comedy was hailed as a most wonderful idea.

To Boucot it was a cue.

The comedian himself hopped to the table top. He snatched up an armful of bottles and held a brimming goblet of the sparkling wine high over his head.

"Hail all," he cried, and the orchestra ceased as he raised his hand. Turning to Gaby, he bowed with mock ceremony.

"Gaby," he said, "we are about to die —or to pass out unconscious—I salute you"

With those words he drenched her with champagne. Others flung the wine about—by glasses, by bottles. I caught the contents of a large goblet full in the face and, in self-defence, seized a supply of "ammunition" for myself. Champagne was brought in by the case—bottle after bottle was bought, and used to bathe a willing victim.

Gaby was soon utterly drenched—half drowned. Her clothes clung to her beautiful figure, her hair came tumbling down, and still she was happy, laughing, enjoying the fun as much as anyone

What a sight for Punch The gowns of the other girls, wet and clinging, the hair clouding their eyes. They laughed, they shrieked What a glorious, insane affair.

My clothes were plastered to me, my shirt front sagged pitiably. So, too, with all the other men.

At the height of it all—it's hard to picture such a riot, my cousin Rene came in.

"He knows you're here," he told me. "Come home, Georges. Don't anger him."

"He," meant my illustrious grandfather, "The Tiger." But—"I don't care" I shouted. "I'm here to stay"

At four in the morning we left, though the party didn't break at up once.

In the Bois de Boulogne we cut our capers, danced and frolicked. How shocked the sleepy little birds, must have been

I took Gaby home.

In the awakening streets the city's toilers drove their carts.

I shuddered. What a horrible life that must be—toiling, toiling, toiling—ever toiling. I didn't dream of the years to come.

"Get rid of that monkey" Mme. Caire begged, when she wrote to her daughter. The monkey had been a present from me. "He's bad luck, dear —bad luck"

Gaby laughed at her fears.

What sort of a woman was she, I wondered. Hard, very hard. Every cent she made she scrimped and saved. Not a penny needlessly. From those the world called her victims she extorted every sou she possible could.

No pity. And the poor—did she give at all? We'd never heard of it. A hard, worldly woman, we thought her—intent on pleasure, caring nothing for the tragedies of others.

And could I dream that in a few short months her beautiful body would lie cold in its casket—white violets above?—that her will would be read, and the poor of Marseilles would rejoice?—that the woman from whom the certain people turned with shudders, the worldly woman so easy for others to judge, would have left her all to those who most needed it —offering, timidly, as the widow her mite?

Oh, why was life so gay?

The Wounded Tiger

Not long after, my grandfather was shot by an assassin. I went to see him and met him as he returned from his walk.

"How do you feel, grandfather?" I asked.

"Oh, well enough," he grunted, "but I'm very angry with the Maharajah of Kapurthala . . ."

"Why?"

"Because he invited me to shoot tigers with him in India, but he did not tell me that I was the "Tiger" who was going to be shot"

Soon after that I took Johnny to see my grandfather. Now Johnny's—Gabys pet monkey,—favorite sport was investigating one's hair. He will do this if he likes you. He constituted himself responsible if it gets out of condition while under his care.

He sat on my grandfather's lap and for a while all went well. Then Johnny decided to be about his business. My grandfather's skull cap puzzled him at first, but Johnny is intelligent, and he concluded that it was removalbe.

He took it off, and peered at the Tiger's bald head in amazement. Then he gave my grandfather one look of awful disgust and jumped from his lap and came to me.

My grandfather laughed, though he stroked his head ruefully.

"Even a monkey thinks I'm ugly," he sighed.

A few days later I took Gably to the Grand Prix de Paris at Longchamps. We had decided to bet on the very first race, but we arrived late, and there was no chance to see the horses.

"What's on the card?" Gaby asked, and we looked.

We saw the name of Royal Spade. Judging our horse entirely from a bridge standpoint, we bet a thousand francs on him without even seeing him. He was a 25 to 1 shot. He won. We made 25,000 francs. However, we lost it all on the grand prix

As we strolled by the President's pavilion, I looked up to see the Tiger glaring at me and at the woman by my side.

That I was with a woman didn't bother him. But I was spending much money with women, and the Tiger knew it.

On the stand with him was Poincare, Ignace, minister of justice; Pichon, foreign minister; Leygues, minister of the marine, and Loucheur.

"What's the matter?" Gaby asked.

"Le vieux singe" I whispered, laughing. This can be translated, wither as "the old monkey," or "the boss."

The next day when I went to see him, he said.

"You must change your mode of life immediately." He did not mention Gaby's name.

Georges, as a Student, does "La Tournee des Grands Ducs."

It was then I entered the University of Paris, but I joined "The Crowd." Till then, as I was quite young, I had been kept from the night life.

But now I was a student—with a student's privileges.

"I'm going to see that life I've heard about," I told my cousin, Rene Jacquemaire, (then a medical student), one evening, "the wild woman of Montmartre and the mad gaiety and——"

"Then," suggested Rene, "you'd better let me show you. I know the ropes."

We started off together and did it all. It's called in Parisian slang, "La Tournee des Grand Ducs," which cannot be well translated. It means simply that you start at the foot of Montmartre hill and go everywhere possible and return some time or other to the foot of the hill again.

It was at the Monico—then the wildest, wickedest place in all Montmartre.

Inside the Monico, all red and white. White walls, red plush. A long room, filled with drunken and near-drunken men and mad, mad women.

The specialty of the Monico is the "Loie Fuller"—a drink made of seven different colored liquors, not mixed but poured one on top of another. It was named after the famous English dancer Loie Fuller, who used to do a spectacular dance—startling even to the blase—in which she wore nothing but seven thin veils, each of a different color.

On a table when we entered, a beautiful girl with raven hair and flashing eyes was dancing a furious Spanish dance.

"What a wonderful woman" I murmured. "What a beauty."

"It's Jeannette," explained my cousin drily. "She has consumption. She'll be dead in two months, and she known it."

Then, for the first time, I noticed her pallor. Ashen her face was, whitened with powder to stimulate health. I shuddered. Consumption

A woman like this destined so soon to go to the grave I felt profoundly sorry for her. And yet, I wonder,—was she even sorry for herself?

At a table not far away, where two men were seated, a magnificent blonde laughed and drank champagne.

In type she was diametrically opposite to Jeannette, who did her wild dance on the table. Jeannette was slim, lithe, as a Spanish dancer should be. Her body swayed easily, gracefully. She was cat-like in her movements.

The blonde was heavier. One thought of her mind as drowsy. She would do as she was asked, perhaps, but she would seldom take the initiative and suggest.

Yet to be sure, she laughed like the rest. She was vivacious—more, hilarious

"And she?" I asked Rene. "Surely there is nothing unpleasant about her She radiates health and strength."

Rene nodded.

"That's Madot," he said. "Oh, yes, I suppose she'll live quite a while yet, though the life here's bound to get her. Why does she stay? Because she has two children, and she has to earn money with which to support them"

A mother working in the Monico I had hardly expected Rene to say that. Anything else I was prepared for. But this girl—Madot—a mother of two children, laughing gaily with men who meant nothing whatever to her I wondered what her story had been, but Rene did not know. These girls, he said, spoke little of the past; and when they did speak it was only to lie.

Down the floor came a woman in a gown that an oriental princess might have worn—so luxurious, glorious, sumptuous that it seemed as if the roomful of richly dressed women were garbed in rags.

She was a queen—the drinkers her subjects. No man moved as she proceeded, but the whole room waited in silence. Finally she halted beside a table where one man sat alone. She had decided. He was to be favored with her company.

I felt a twinge of envy. I was very young; I had seen almost nothing of this life; to me this princess was a woman to be adored, worshipped. Lucky the man who was to sit with her

Rene broke the spell, rudely.

"It's Germaine," he said. "Tomorrow during the day, you'll find her in a different gown—a more honorable one, let me say—down on the Rue Pegalle. She scrubs floors in one of the buildings there."

What drama What jokers in the game played by life You will say to yourself that these stories have been made up by me.

I cannot blame you. If I did not respect my cousin Rene's love of truth, I should have respected him of romancing. But Rene does not lie.

The stories of these three women of the Monico are only too true. I give my word.

A Country Girl's Debut

We were about to leave—I was feeling depressed, when a loud murmur went up from the tables. On to the floor raced a half-clad girl, her golden hair loose, flowing. Slim, she appeared to be sweet youth itself gambolling innocently in the midst of sin. Feet and limbs bare, she dashed in a dance that made one dream of days on a spring countryside.

A howl went up. The girl was seized by three men and lifted to a table top. She shrieked her delight. To dance on the table top That was success at the Monico Only those who found great favor were lifted to the tables

"Who the deuce is she?" Rene murmured. "She's new. She must be. Oh, Edouard" And he called the maitre d'hotel.

"M'sieu."

"Who is she, Edouard?"

The old maitre d'hotel glanced at the girl on the table. His face did not change expression, but I thought that his eyes dulled a bit.

"A country girl," he said. "She just came yesterday, sir. Her hands are still red with toil. They seem to like her. And she is happy."

"But," Rene whispered to me, "she won't be for long—not when she really understands. She will be covered with jewels, but she will learn that the men who give, demand all she has in return. And then Montmartre will have broken her. I think perhaps Edouard has warned her. But she would not take warning. Of course not She will become a great star, a great singer-dancer, perhaps. She will have vogue and rule Paris. At least, that is her dream. Well, perhaps she will succeed. But I think you will find her in Montmartre a year from now—not the girl you see to-night."

That was the disillusionment I received on my first introduction to the mad dance of Montmartre. Afterwards Rene took me to the other places. But the evening was spoiled. I did not enjoy it. From the showiest of places the tinsel seemed to drop before my eyes, and nothing attracted me. Not that I returned home a moralist. Not at all. But I have always been fastidious.

"And what," the Tiger asked me when I saw him later, "did you think of Montmartre, Georges?"

"A shrivelled witch with the face of an angel," I replied.

"H-m-m. I'm glad you saw it. But that witch had ruined many who knew her ugliness well, Georges. Be on guard against her."

POLITICAL FIELD

at the gross extravagance and the grosser mismanagement which has marked the Government's efforts to repatriate soldiers, to find them homes and to place them on the land. There have been scandalous revelations of official inaptitude in the Repatriation Department and while the Ministry's critics can hardly point to any prouder record for themselves, they will make telling use of such material in their campaign against Mr. Hughes.

The weakness of the opposition to the Prime Minister lies in the fact that the Country party, which is foremost in the cry against Government competition with private enterprise, has always insisted upon Government aid in the marketing of the farmer's produce. The party stood firmly against a somewhat reluctant Ministry for the maintenance of the wheat pool after the close of the war, and was successful to a certain point. And it was insistent in its demand for help in the marketing of the fruit crop. Equally inconsistent was the Country party in the recent tariff session. Country party members were strong free traders when the abolition or reduction of duties meant cheaper agricultural machinery or farming requisites; they were high protectionists when they deemed it desirable to erect a tariff wall round primary products as a barrier to possible foreign competition. To put the matter plainly, their attitude in Federal, as well as in State politics, has been lamentably narrow and selfish. They demanded Government regulation of marketing and fixation of prices when these things redounded to their own advantage; they roundly denounced them when sought by Labor for the people of the cities. Their appeal in the coming fight, therefore, will lies only to the rural electors, but they have an excellent prospect of gaining sufficient seats to hold the balance of power in the new Parliament—and that is exactly what they want. They have consistently avoided the acceptance of office whenever it was possible to sit upon the cross benches and dictate their wishes to the Ministry as the price of support. The rise of the Country party has been meteoric. Before the last general election in December, 1919, it had but three seats. As the result of that election it increased its quota to nine. Today, thanks to its success in by-elections, it holds 13 seats. It has but to gain one or two more to make the position of the National Ministry untenable And this is why political wiseacres are predicting a Country party-Liberal coalition on the Treasury benches.

Revival of Liberalism.

The movement for the revival of Liberalism as a substitute for the present merger in the Nationalist party had its origin in South Australia, where the Premier (Sir Henry Barwell), threw wide influence into the scale against the maintenance of the pact made in war time and persuaded the Liberals to nominate their own candidates against Labor Nationalists in the forthcoming elections. This they have done. In Victoria, stirred by Mr. Hughes' avowed intention to honor the Federal compact and remove the Federal capital from Melbourne, its temporary seat since the creation of the Commonwealth in 1901, to Canberra, the chosen Federal Capital in New South Wales, the old Liberals also display a marked inclination to cry an end to the Coalition. Their leader is Mr. W. A. Watts, who was Mr. Hughes' right-hand man until he resigned two years ago, following a violent quarrel with the Prime Minister regarding Mr. Hughes' interference in a financial mission to London, which he, Mr. Watt, was then pursuing. The indications are that while Mr. Watt and his fellow Liberals are standing as nominal supporters of the Ministry, they will seek to remove Mr. Hughes after the elections, provided that, with the aid of the Country part, the Liberals have the numbers to command a majority of the House. Mr. Hughes has not strengthened his hold upon Victoria by deserting his constituency at Bendigo, in consequence of the Country party's decision to offer him opposition, and retreating to New South Wales, whence he was originally returned to Parliament in 1901 as a Radical Labor member.

An interesting problem of Imperial policy is being discussed on the hustings as a result of Mr. Lloyd George's S.O.S. call to the Dominions at the time of the Near Eastern crisis. Mr. Hughes, unlike Mr. Mackenzie King, rushed away an immediate promise o fhelp, without attempting to form a considered opinion of the necessity for the appeal. He has been strongly condemned, not only by Labor but also by Mr. Watt. Mr. Lloyd George, declared Mr. Watt, should not have the manner of its coming was unfair issued his appeal, and in any event, to the Dominions. They had been assured that there would be no war unless they had been previous y consulted. An Empire of self-governing Dominions could not be run in that way and the whole position demanded early and complete review.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL MEETS OPPOSITION.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Failure of the Ship Subsidy Bill in the United Staes Senate was foreshadowed yesterday by even Senate Administration leaders. They admit that although the House passed the Bill the intensity of the opposition is such there is little or no hope of forcing the Bill through the Senate.

"The House should not want that kind of legislation and the bill will fail," said one of the most prominent of the Administration leaders.

Football - Baseball - Hockey - And Other Sport News of Interest

GREYBIRDS TO LOSE SEVERAL PLAYERS

Oulette, Allen and the Cummins Brothers May Flit to Other Nests.

Lindsay Greybirds are having their troubles holding their team together for the 1923 season of the Central Ontario Baseball League. The way the situation looks at the present time is that the Scugog Village will have to depend on some of the old stand-bys. Neverthless Lindsay enthusiasts wish their followers not to overlook the fact that they will carry on and do their utmost to place a strong team in the C.O.B.L. next year. Lindsay's greatest loss, if reports are correct, will be the departure of Pitcher Jack Oulette who kept the Lindsay crew in the running for two seasons.

Of last season's nine, Bart Cummins (catcher) represented The Globe on the Sales, Department, in Eastern Ontario, and working in the vicinity of Tweed, Belleville and Kingston, Hughie Cummins (third base) his brother, a clever third sack man, a runner and a hitter who was a tower of strength to the Birds last season, has for some months past been working in Tweed, Charlie Allen, the "Babe Ruth" of the Birds last season,and second string pitcher, is back at Varsity, and although the Scugog fans would love to see him in a Lindsay uniform again next season, he is an uncertain quantity. He was probably one of the best all-round baseballers in the Central League last season.

The rest of the boys are still in town, but Dame Rumor has it that Pitcher Jack Oulette, who has been a tower of strength to the Birds for two season past, and was the sensation of the Central League two seasons ago, will locate in Belleville, where he has secured a good position. Jack does not deny the rumor, although he does not absolutely shake his head in the affirmative. Oulette would be greatly missed on the Lindsay line-up, but at the same time would be a bulwark of strength to Belleville. But it is hard to understand why Belleville should want Williams and Goyer (southpaws) and Oulette. Two is plenty, three too many.

Harold Brownscombe, the clever shortstop of the Birds, is still working in town, and having taken unto himself a partner for life, he has wishes to make Lindsay his home town. Brownscombe was the "find" of last season's Lindsay team, a good player, a worker, courteous and obliging. All the Northern fans want to see "Brownie" in a Greybird uniform next season, but that shiftless person, Dame Rumor states that he can better his position elsewhere, and that he may be found holding down a job in some other Central League town next summer.

Of the old standbys "Snorts" Coombs, "Moose" Carew, "Bub" Ashton, "Billy" McMahon and "Buster" McDonald, are still available. It look like a new team for Lindsay next season.

GUNNERS FELL TO ATTACK OF KNIGHT.

The K. of C. nine was at home to the Gunners last evening in a Soft Ball League game at the Armoury and were also the winners with a score of 13 to 3. The Caseys did not get in any of their heavy work until the last three innings, but when they started they kept right at it and piled up eight runs in the sixth and seventh frames. The Gunners were unable to do anything against Murphy's delivery and were held to four scattered hits. Murphy sent ten of the Artillery boys to the bench with strikes and in addition received excellent backing from his team mates:

The players were:

Gunners — Kendry, 3b.; Taylor, l.f.; Galvin, 1b.; Piercy, p.; Nichols, s.s.; Simmons, r.f.; Galvin, s.s.; Taylor, c.; Gilders, 2b.

K. of C.— Primeau, s.s.; Sheehy, 1b.; O'Hearn, c.; Rose, s.s.; Murphy, p. Sheehy, 3b.; Corkery, 2b.; Cronin, l.f.; Rutherford, r.f.

Score by innings:

Gunners.. .. ..002 000 001— 3
K. of C.. .. ..200 113 51x—13

CHAMP. AGAIN.

Hoppe defeated Jake Schaffer last Tuesday and captured again the championship which he had held for sixteen years till Shaffer relieved him of the honors last years. Hoppe underestimated his youthful opponent last year, but this year profited by his experiences and took nothing for granted.

BELLEVILLE BOYS TO HAVE A FAST TEAM.

Jack Marks, coach of the Belleville O.H.A. intermediates does not subscribe to the belief that Belleville is not going to have a great team this winter. In fact the chances are, he says, they will be as smooth a working crew as ever stepped on the ice and will win their group despite the strength that Cornwall and Queen's may show.

Mark has a lot of willing lads out training these nights, and the minute ice comes they will be in good shape to stand the route. The reports go around "on good authority" that Bill Green had gone to Milwaukee and the Belleville Ontario printed it. This was denied yesterday by Bill himself. Boland will not play, but there is Crooks, last year with Aura Lee. Bouncer Holway and his brother and Frank Goyer, when he gets into shape after his operation, and Bill Green. That is the making of a first-class defence. Then there are Weir and Swayne and Lake and a few others who will hold down the line positions. Whether Whelan will play is not known but probably when the ice comes he will be on the war path. Scott, formerly of Picton, will also make a tryout.

EJECTED FROM PARK ASKS $100,000 BALM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press)—An attempt to reduce to dollars and cents the mental and physical anguish resulting from being ejected from a baseball park was made by a jury in Justice Wasservogel's part of the Supreme Court Thursday.

According to Louis S. Hirsch, he was ejected from the park of the New York American League Club last May by special officers. He has asked $100,000 balm.

Babe Ruth figured in the case. It appeared, from the testimony, that the mighty batsman had smacked a ball right out of the park when Hirsch left his seat to see the horsehide sphere depart from view. About this time, he said, the special police decided that he should go outside the fence and continue his search.

The specials contended that Hirsch had changed his seat several times, violating park rules.

No Change in Percentage P.A.A.A. Reply to Ball Club

Executive Discussed Problem from Many Angles and Are Unanimous in Their Decision.

OTHER MATTERS

At a meeting of the Peterboro A.A.A. Executive held last night at the Chamber of Commerce, from from which only one member of the Executive was absent, the secretary was instructed to communicate with the Peterboro Baseball Club and say in reply to their application for terms for the use of Riverside Park next season, that the offer of the Association is the same as prevailed for the past season, and in addition the Association will use its best endeavor to provide dressing rooms and shower baths at the Park.

Some days ago the Baseball Club asked for a meeting with the P.A.A.A. Executive, and the meeting was held. The Baseball Club made a request for a larger percentage of the gate receipts for next season — namely 80 per cent — and four nights weekly for practices; their league dates were protected, and they received 75 per cent. of the fate receipts after deductions for amusement tax. The association received the remaining 25 per cent. The association was responsible to the city for $800, for the lease of the park, and a full time groundskeeper was provided by the association throughout the season.

At the meeting with the Baseball Club the Association found it impossible to give a definite reply, and at once, as was requested. Several members of the executive including the president, were not present, and the meeting terminated without results.

The Baseball Club then met the directors of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, as a result of which an announcement followed stating that the Ball Club had signed an agreement with the Fair Board to play at the Exhibition grounds.

At the meeting held last night instructions were given for the preparation of a financial statement giving the revenue and expenditures of the Association at the Riverside Park, and this statement will be published at an early date.

Ladies' Hockey Team.

A communication was received from the Toronto Hockey Association asking cooperation in the formation of a Ladies' Hockey Association for the Province. It is proposed to conduct the association along the lines adopted by the Ontario Hockey Association, and a team from this city would play in a local group similar to the O.H.A. teams. The move was endorsed and will receive the support of the association. The Hockey Committee will be asked to take action in the matter of organizing a Ladies' Hockey team to represent this city in the new Association. The young ladies had good success with their team last season and they are ready to give their enthusiastic support in the interest of a strong team for the coming season.

Soft Ball Trophy.

The Ladies' Soft Ball Association will be invited to send representatives to meet the P.A.A.A. Executive at its next meeting to discuss the awarding of the Bond trophy.

Recommendations from the Hockey Committee dealing with the hockey situation were received and approved. One recommendation in reference to Senior Hockey League, and the formation of a Junior Series will be sent to the City League for consideration.

Reports on the various activities of the Association were received and it was stated that a city basket ball league for girls was being organized and that from these teams, selections would be made for a team to play in the Ontario association.

Western Football Compares Well With Eastern Brand

By BILLY EVANS.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 25.—Western football suffers nothing in comparison with the east. The much-touted Harvard eleven was a distinct disappointment in its game with Princeton.

I am basing my comparison between the east and west on some of the game that I have seen between the leading teams of the two sections.

When Princeton played Chicago, I am frank to admit that the my sentiments leaned toward Prinecton. I have always been a great admirer of the Tigers because of their fighting spirit. Prnceton teams never quit.

Best Team Didn't Win.

Chicago had beaten Prinecton the previous year and I was pulling for for the Tigers to even up the score. Prinecton won the Chicago game, but no one could ever convince me that the Tigers were stronger than Stagg's eleven.

Despite my leaning toward Princeton, despite the Tiger's victory, I am of the firm opinion that the best team did not win the game. For three periods, the Chicago forwards tore the Princeton line to shreds and the Maroon backs galloped through huge holes as they pleased.

In the first few minutes of the game Princeton realized it could not gain through the Chicago line. Under such conditions there was only one thing to do, open up, and that it just what Princeton did.

The Tigers played risky, yet game football, and took advantage of every break offered. At the close of the first half I felt that Chicago would roll up about 30 points. Yet the game ended 21 to 18 in favor of Princeton.

Harvard always boasts a strong line. Against Chicago the Princeton line looked very weak. It seemed that if Harvard's line was up to snuff the Princeton game would be easy for the Crimson. Yet if anything the Harvard line was outplayed by the Tigers.

Tiger Line Much Improved.

In this connection one or two things is possible, either the Harvard line was greatly overrated, or else the foxy Bill Roper has worked wonders with the Tiger line in a few short weeks. Unquestionably the substitution of Howard for Snively plugged a big hole in the Princeton defense. Chicago gained at will through Snively.

On the form that Harvard showed against Princeton it is not up to the standard of Harvard teams. Perhaps the loss of Captain Buell snapped the co-ordination that must exist between the line and the backs. When he dropped out of the lineup, Harvard seemed to flounder about, not getting anywhere in particular.

I would say there is but little difference between the east and west in football and certainly the west suffers nothing by comparison. Michigan and Chicago strike me as having more power and possibilities than either Princeton or Harvard.

COBOURG BALL CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Cobourg baseball club was held in the town council chamber on Monday evening, there being a good attendance. The meeting was held earlier in the season this year in order to prepare plans for 1923, as the residence rule of all affiliated leagues with the O.B.A.A. is to be fixed for January 1. The following officers weer eletced:

The question of appointing a manager was left to the officers and executive committee.

INTERNATIONAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT IN ITALY

ROME, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press)—Invitations have been sent to the tennis federations of Germany, Austria, France, Great Britain, Belgium and Spain, to send teams to take part in the international hard court tournament to be held in Rome next May. The Italian Tennis Federation has thus taken the initiative in the attempt to get together in the same tournament players from the Allied countries and the former enemy nations. The matches will be played on the courts of the Parioli Tennis Club of Rome, under the auspices and approval of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

CARPENTIER STILL UNABLE TO TRAIN

Injury to His Hands Keeps Him From the Ring — May Meet Becket in England Later.

PARIS, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Georges Carpentier is still suffering from bad hands, and unable as yet to resume training, but there is much talk in sporting circles of a match between Georges and Joe Beckett, of England, as well as a deal of speculation as to whether Carpentier will enter the competition officially opened by the Boxing Federation for the light heavyweight title made vacant by the disqualification of "Battling" Siki, conqueror of Carpentier. Neither Carpentier nor his manager, Francois Descamps, will say what their plans for the future are. It is said that Georges is waiting to see what sporting opinion is likely to be regarding the ex-champion's entrance into the competition to regain his lost title, and also to get an idea as to the prospects of the tournament's success.

The sporting experts are agreed that no one worthy of meeting Carpentier for the title is in sight, and that any match arranged with the available material would be likely to prove ridiculous. At the same time they recognize the fact that Georges must box someone or retire.

A curious effect of the announcement of the competition is an apparent reaction in favor of Siki. Some of the sporting writers are beginning to express the view that the Federation went rather fast and some what far in punishing the colored fighter, for his unseemly behavior, these experts pointing out that if Siki lost his head he was helped to do so by the excessive attentions he received after his victory of Carpentier.

PRESTON'S TEAM.

Preston intermediates are planning for a fast team this season, among the players being "Gunner" Arnot of Belleville. For years Arnot has been one of the mainstays of the Quinte city team, and a hockey player with an establishe reputation. Preston also has a lad from Colborne to sub Arnot.

GREBB'S RIVAL IS OF A FIGHTING FAMILY

James J. Delaney is a Descendant of Former Ring Champions.

ST. PAUL, Minn. Nov. 25.—Jim Delaney, the fistic sensation of the west, who is shortly to meet Harry Greb, comes from fighting stock.

Delaney happens to be a second cousin of John C. Heenan, American heavyweight champion of years ago. It is on his mother's side that Jim descends from Heenan, she being a cousin of the former title holder. Jim appears to be capable of upholding the prominence of the Heenan line in ring history.

When doping out Delaney's championship possibilities think of the first half of his signature, James J. How outstanding it is in the history of the game, James J. Corbett and James J. Jeffries. Furthermore, the front name of every heavyweight champion in the past 100 years, with the exception of Bob Fitzsimmons, starts with the letter "J."

There is John L. Sullivan, Jack Dempsey, Jack Johnson and others. All of which might be taken as another forecast of the entrance of James J. Delaney into the list of pugilistic stardom.

Delaney, like Georges Carpentier, began his ring career as a bantam. He began fighting at 17 years of age, and has gradually outgrown each class until he is now a full-fledged middleweight and seems destined to shortly enter the heavyweight class.

Mike Gibbons, who has looked after the development of Delaney, says that he feels confident that the youngster will some day win the title now held by Jack Dempsey. What is more to the point, Mike says it won't take very many years either to turn the trick.

NEW CHAMPION IS GREAT BALL FAN.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 25.—Mickey Walker, the new welterweight champion, has two hobbies, music and baseball. Next to boxing, Mickey is strong for baseball. In the summer his training always includes a bit of the national pastime. He is a regular attendant at the big league games in New York and is a Giant rooter. His baseball hero is Frankie Frisch, showing that Mickey has excellent judgment as far as baseball is concerned. Mickey is strong for music but says his favorite instrument is the talking machine, as far as execution is concerned.

NEW PITCHER.

J. B. Glazier.

It was announced yesterday by President Solman, of the Toronto baseball club, that the release of J. B. Glazier, a right hand pitcher, had been purchased from the Port Huron club of the Mint league. Negotiations for the player have been in progress for some time, but only yesterday morning was the deal put through. Glazier, who was formerly the property of the Detroit club, pitched in 16 games for the Hurons, winning twelve and losing three. In the only game that he did not finish he alternated with three other pitchers, each pitching two innings. His average was superior to that of Judd, who was acquired by Rochester at the close of the season. Port Huron trailed the league most of the season despite the good work of the new Toronto acquisition.

GRAY, A TIGER STAR, IS SELDOM INJURED.

Right End Gray of the Princeton team, who played such a prominent role in the Tigers' victory over Chicago, is seemingly immune from injuries. In all the games he has played for Prinecton, Gray has never once asked for time to be taken out because of being injured.

While Gray isn't a big fellow, he is mighty husky, and seems able to take the sever bumps that are handed an end without slowing up his work in the least. It was Gray who scored a Princeton touchdown against Chicago by picking up a fumble and running 45 yards. It was also Gray who received a 45-yard forward pass and put the Tigers in position to score another touchdown.

FIREMEN GOT THE BEST OF ROTARIANS.

After the Rotarians had held the lead for six innings, the Firemen staged a big rally in the seventh frame and sent five runs in to win in the Soft Ball League game at the Armoury last evening. The final score was 11 to 8. Mathews, who did the mound work for the Rotary Club, failed to fan a single Fireman and issued two passes. The smoke eaters got right after him with the willow and collected eighteen hits. Dunkerly was on the mound for the winners and performed in good style. He issued five strike-outs, one walk and eleven hits. The last eight men to face him were retired in order.

The players were:

Firemen— Mason, r.f.; McBride, l.f.; Carr, 1b.; Gimblett, Sr., c; Rolo, s.s.; Gimblett, Jr., 2b.; Johnson, ss.; Mehan, 3b.; Dunkerly, p.

MILLER HUGGINS MAY RETIRE SOON

May Keep His Job If He Wants It, But Impression Is That He Will Withdraw.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Despite the fact that Miller Huggins has been reappointed as manager of the New York Yankees, the impression prevails that he will not be at the helm when the 1923 season opens.

Unquestionably the job is Huggins' if he desires to accept it, but those close to the mite manager say it wouldn't surprise them if he stepped down and out before the next campaign.

Had Huggins won the world series he would have probably retired.

Failure to win the series is one of the things that caused Huggins to again accept the management. The leader of the Yankees has plenty of money, but is in poor health, and managing a club like the Yankees is far from being a health tonic.

To his close friends Huggins had told that he would retire at the close of the 1922 season if his team won the series. The poor showing of the Yankees was a keen disappointment to Huggins, who really expected to win. That upset has changed his mind about retiring, temporarily at least.

Unless sweeping changes are made in the personnel of the Yankees that club is going to be harder than ever to manage next season. Huggins realizes this and it may result in a change of mind before the season opens as to again leading the club.

The trouble with the Yankees has been due to Babe Ruth being bigger than the manager of the club. Ruth practically did as he pleased, which made it next to impossible for Huggins to enforce discipline among the other members of the club.

Managing the New York Yankees under present conditions is worth a lot of money and it is doubtful if Huggins is getting what it is worth, oh has the health to stand it.

LOCAL SCOTS HONOR THEIR PATRON SAINT

this country, and also to love Canada with the same loyalty as they love their Home Land.

A Present tion.

An important feature of the evening the presentation of the photograph of ex-President John Moyes, by Robert French, who also delivered a short but effective address regretting the loss of such a valuable member and of pleasure in receiving such a beautiful gift from Mr. Moyes himself.

John Moyes, stated Mr. French, was the first member and president of the local Caledonian Club. He left last month for Chatham where he will reside in future. His absence will be greatly missed by the children at Christmas, as well as by the grown ups, as he was the main figure in all active work done by the club. He is a man of admirable outstanding qualities and always caring for the welfare of his friends and fellow countrymen rather than himself. It was under Mr. Moyes' leadership, stated Mr. French, that this local Club was placed on such a good foundation.

The speaker concluded by stating that the photograph which was hung on the wall was one of the club's most precious treasures.

Boost the Club.

Robert Hendry proposed the toast to the Club and explained that the activities of the organization were interrupted by the war, in which the club lost many members, for Scotsmen always answer promptly the call of King and Country. But this year the club is stronger than ever and the ladies have been a tower of strength. The club asks its members to be boosters and if they can't boost at least don't be knockers.

The Pipe Band.

The pipe band played "Lord Lovat's Lament" while the company stood with bowed heads, paying tribute to the boys who will not come back again.

The singing of that Scottish classic "Aul Lang Syne" brought a happy evening to a close.

PRESENTATION TO REEVE ROBT. SHAW

"Old Senator" of the County Council Given Case of Pipes.

The County Council honored and surprised Reeve Shaw, of Harvey Township, this morning with the presentation of an address and a fine set of pipes as a tribute to his personality and his service of thirty years as a member of the County Council, and also as an expression of affection and regret that he is retiring from public life.

The address was read by Reeve Nicholls, of Smith Township, and Warden Strickland made the presentation, amid cheers and the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The address was as follows:

Dear Mr. Shaw,—Your colleagues of the County Council have learned of your intention to drop from active leadership in the municipal work of your township. It is with regret that this news has come to our ears. Regret, from the fact that this Council will miss you and that kind personality which is so felt by all with whom you mingle.

The keen and sincere interest you took in all your work, the high ideals you set, and the integrity you displayed in ceaseless efforts for public benefit, is ever a worthy example and inspiration to those who have had the opportunity of working with you. Your leadership and advice will not only be a loss to the township you represent, but to every township in the county of Peterborough, for you are truly a recognized leader in this Council, and your advice means much to the members of this body.

The honor which has been yours to represent your township as Reeve for a continuous period of thirty years is a reward that speaks for itself. To be recognized as its leader for such a period of time is an acknowledgment of the confidence played in you by the citizens of the Township of Harvey. Though great has been the confidence placed in you by your township, no less has been that of the County Council. In 1894, three years after you came to the County Council, you were Warden, and again in 1914 you did assume that honor.

The service you have rendered to your township, to the county and to the public in general, will not be forgotten. If you stop active service this year, your loss will be much and keenly felt. Yet your record and the example you set will be a big help and an inspiration to those who will be actively engaged.

To-day we ask you to accept this small token of our appreciation of your services to this body. Let this be a symbol to you and Mrs. Shaw of the esteem in which you are held and the gratitude we owe to you.

May God bless you and Mrs. Shaw and may you both enjoy all the happiness that this world is capable of bestowing.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough County Council,

Geo. E. Nichols,
J. C. Strickland.

With all his experience, Mr. Shaw was figuratively swept off his feet by the Council's remembrance. After the first emotion passed he said that he couldn't find words to express his feelings of gratitude, not only for the Council's token of esteem and fellowship, but also for the warm sentiments of the address and Warden Strickland's remarks.

"I thank you very much for this present," said Mr. Shaw. "I don't think I shall be here again, but I may come down and introduce to you our new Reeve of Harvey."

In a brief recollection of his long associations with county councillors, Mr. Shaw said there were good Reeves twenty-five and thirty years ago, but in these latter years they seemed to be even better. This observation also included the Wardens and the work of the Council as a whole. The system of operations had changed considerably. In the old days a Reeve couldn't undertake the smallest improvement without the consent of the whole Council. This clumsy plan was discarded years ago, giving Reeves more latitude and responsibility.

Mr. Shaw said he would always cherish the friendship of his colleagues, and his thoughts would be with future Councils in their sessions.

SHE LOST IN WAR, BUT LEADS IN RAILROADS

Germany Maintains Her Pre-War Condition As Having Largest European System.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—Despite the loss of 7,400 kilometers (about 4,595 miles) of railroads as a result of the war, Germany still maintains her pre-war position as having the largest railway system in Europe, according to figures announced here. Her total distance is given as 57,545 kilometers, ranking fourth in the world, the United States having 426,522 kilometers, Canada and Newfoundland 64,012, and British East India 58,459.

The distance in kilometers of other nations' railways is reported as follows: European Russia, approximately 57,000; France 53,561, including approximately 2,000 in Alsace - Lorraine; Great Britain, 39,372; Australia, 38,071; Argentina, 37,266; Brazil, 28,128; Mexico, 25,492; Italy, 20,118; South African Union 18,468; Central Asiatic Russia and Siberia, 17,336; Poland, 15,829; Spain 15,350; Sweden 15,061; Japan, including Korea, 14,835; Czecho-Slovakia, 13,644; Roumania, 11,678; Belgium 11,093; China 11,004; Jugo-Slavia, 8,955; Chile, 8,531; Hungary 7,052; Egypt, 7,022; Austria, 6,326, and Switzerland, 5,345.

If all our cane sugar had to be raised in Maine it would cost about $1000 a pound, as the cane there grows only a few feet high and is not sweet.

The Paxton Twins Will Go to College

AMONG the applications recently received at our Head Office, were two on the same date, signed by a Mr. Joseph Paxton. They were for Child's Endowment Policies for two children of Mr. Paxton; and it was noted that the birthday was the same for each.

Feeling there might be an interesting story behind so unusual an application, we interviewed Mr. Paxton.

"Yes, they are twins," he said, "and although one is a girl, I feel she is just as much entitled to a university education as her brother Peter. I've seen so much of parents' plans miscarrying, that I determined to make sure my debt to my little ones would be paid. I figured that by little economies here and there, I could pay the annual premiums that would ensure a college education for Peter and Patsy."

It transpired that when Mr. Paxton looked into the matter he found the premium on Child's Endowment Insurance much less than he had imagined.

GREATEST HEALTH MEASURE KNOWN

Prohibition's Chief Function is to Retrieve Ravages of Alcoholism.

TORONTO, November 25 (Canadian Press). — It is doubtful whether the floor of Massey Hall, that scene of so many conventions, has ever witnessed more spontaneous and sustained demonstration than that accorded C. W. Saleeby, M.D., last night at the conclusion of his masterly argument for Prohibition of alcoholic liquor.

In a speech sparkling with epigram—rising at times to impassioned heights of oratory, and presented in the logical, analytical manner of the scientist—he described Prohibition as the "greatest health measure in history." And its great function, he said, lay in retrieving the ravages of alcoholism as manifested in racial decadence, infant mortality, venereal and pulmonary diseases.

The solution of the waning of the once-mighty nations to which historians volunteered no clue, was to be found, he said, in the curse of drink and physical as well as moral degeneration which it left in its wake.

Alcohol deserved to be classed as a "racial poison," one of those agencies possessed of the quality of destroying children through their parents.

TRY NATURE'S OWN INTERNAL BATHING FOR CONSTIPATION

Thousands of Canadians testify to the immediate relief from constipation through the J. B. Cascade which provides that wonderful Internal Bath.

For twenty-five years it has been recommended and endorsed by physicians. It has certainly worked miracles for men and women suffering from obstinate constipation, piles, biliousness, headaches, lack of energy and sleeplessness.

And why should it not? Ninety-five per cent. of all human ailments are attributed to the accumulated waste in the lower intestine. That is why physicians first see that the system is thoroughly cleansed before treating any specific disease. You must be clean inside as well as out before health can be restored.

Mr. Frank Stanton, of Port Stanton, Ont., writes: "I must say that the J. B. L. Cascade has been of great value to me, and I feel indebted to the inventor of this treatment. I feel twenty years younger and have not taken medicine of any sort since using J. B. L. Cascade."

The J. B. L. Cascade is shown and explained at the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., who will give you free on request an interesting and helpful booklet by Dr. C. A. Tyrrell, "The What, the Why, the Way of Internal Bathing." It contains a surprising amount of information that the average man and woman knows little about. Write or 'phone for it to-day, or send to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College St., Toronto.

Sister Visitors from Havelock Enjoy Happy Evening — A Presentation.

After the visitors from Havelock were welcomed by the Worthy Mistress, quite a number were initiated into membership, and also fourteen received the Second Degree.

A brief address was given by Mrs. W. H. Jones, W.M., of Havelock Lodge, who complimented the degree team on the efficient manner in which they put the degree work on, and also presented W.M. Sister Manley, of Peterborough Lodge, with a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty roses and narcissus on behalf of the Havelock Lodge. Sister Manley thanked the officers and members of the visiting Lodge for the presentation.

Other addresses were given by Sister Campney, Sister McColl, D.M., and also Bro. Morrison, all of Havelock; also Sister R. Sexsmith, M.W.G.D.S., of Ontario East, Bro. J. H. Spence, G. W. Morrow and Bro. G. Porter.

A Presentation.

After the closing of the Lodge the Sister of Peterborough L. O. B.A. presented Sister Ethel Fowler, retiring Chaplain, with a beautiful set of Old Colony knives and forks. The gift was presented by Sister Manley, W.M., and the following address was read by Sister Rose Sexsmith, D.M.

"Dear Sister,—It is with much pleasure we are assembled here tonight in our Lodge room for another very pleasant evening. As we learn of your approaching marriage, we, the officers and members of Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A., No. 244, ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of our regard, and we assure you of our best wishes for your future happiness.

"We wish to express to you our appreciation of your services as Chaplain of our Lodge, so cheerfully and faithfully given during the past year. Your regular attendance and ability have done much to be inspired by all. It is our earnest wish that you may continue to labor among us as zealously as ever in the glorious cause of our beloved association.

"Signed on behalf of the Lodge and its members,

"Joan Manley,
"Rose Saxsmith."

Miss Fowler replied in a very pleasing manner, after which all present joined in singing, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Vocal solos were rendered by Sisters Brown, Broadley and Rathbone.

Dainty refreshments were served, after which the Havelock ladies departed, wishing the Sisters of Peterborough Lodge every success.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I read in the Examiner that an application was made to the City Council to erect a toboggan slide at Riverside Park. I for one think it would be a very expensive structure, as timber, bolts and labor are still high, and it would be necessary to make it very strong to ensure the city against possible damage suits. My proposition for a slide at Armour's Hill is a better plan, a slide nearly all made by plough and grader, that would last for all time. Then it would bring together many things of interest: the Lift Lock, the handsome Clock Factory, Armour Park Memorial. On this site, second to none between here and Windsor, as it is in full view of all the highways, all railways, the proposed Central Ontario Electric R. R., and the Trent water rout that promises to become so popular in the near future with our southern neighbors, which would be a great stimulus to our boat industries. If Mr. Tooms can induce the Government to erect a tower, even a plain one on this Vimy Ridge, it will be second to the one at Queenston. If the city does not secure the hill it will be used for the disposal of rubbish, gravel pits, or shack town, as all cheap property is used. Our natriotic Mr. Dumble offered to pay for digging holes for trees (there were many trees on the hill 50 years ago).—Yours truly,

Ed, Courtney.

ENTIRE TOWN IS DESTROYED BY TERRIFIC HURRICANE

GANZEY, N.H.—A terrific windstorm which swept through the valley almost demolished the town yesterday and practically the only building not destroyed was the Old Homestead, on the farm belonging to Joshua Whitcomb. Seemingly, it was proof against the fury of the elements, and while its neighbors suffered great damage, it remained almost unharmed.

This was particularly noticeable and was ocmmented upon by all because it was simultaneous with the return of Reuben Whitcomb who had been arrested for the theft of $2,500 from the safe of Ephraim Holbrook's store, a year or more ago, and having escaped jail in company of a tramp named Happy Jack, had been lost to his family and the authorities ever since. With him came Rose Blaine, formerly of this place, whom he discovered in destitute circumstances in the city.

It has just developed that Reuben was guiltless of the crime for which he was arrested and the money which his father had been able to return to Holbrook, the latter will restore. It is rumored that Reuben Whitcomb will shortly marry Ann an adopted daughter of Joshua's and who was saved from death at Lover's Leap in the height of the great storm by her suitor.

Happiness has come to the old homestead and even Ganzey will soon be restored. But the more seriously inclined attach a spiritual significance to the fact that the home of the Whitcombs refused to surrender to the elements—seemingly standing as a symbol of the greatest institution of civilization—the Home.

"The Old Homestead" which contains the foregoing happenings in detail will be shown at the Capitol theatre this Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is a Paramount picture directed by James Cruze. Theodore Roberts, George Fawcett, T. Roy Barnes, Harrison Ford and Fritzi Ridgway head an excellent cast.

NO CONFIDENCE IN ANY WHEAT BOARD

Crerar Says It Would Not Solve Question of Marketing Western Crop.

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta Governments will be asked to organize workable wheat boards by the United Grain Growers', Limited, the shareholders decided at the concluding session of the annual convention. If these Governments find they need legislation from the Dominion Government, they will be requested to ask for it.

Hon. T. A. Crerar spoke at some length on the question when it was introduced, outlining the situation. He stated definitely that he had no confidence in a wheat board as a permanent solution of marketing the Western Canada wheat crop. He said, however, that he would not present his personal views to the meeting, but must confine himself to information. Mr. Crerar stated frankly that he thought some of the conventions had made a mistake in asking for a wheat board, providing it was conducted by some men who had been in charge of it in 1919.

Confidence in Mr. Crerar as president of the United Grain Growers, Limited, and in his position in Federal politics was passed.

MASONS OPPOSED TO KU KLUX KLAN

Justice Tompkins Denies That Many Are Members of the Klan.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.— (Canadian Press.)— Following the statement of Rev. Oscar Haywood, acknowledged leader of the Ku Klux Klan in New York, that seventy-five per cent. of the members of the Association throughout the United Staes are Masons, came denial by Justice Arthur Tompkins, Grand Maser of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the State of New York. Justice Tompkins not only characterized the statement of Dr. Haywood as absolutely false, but declared that the Masons of New York are opposed to the Klan.

"Masons are utterly opposed to the Ku Klux Klan as un-American and un-Masonic," he said. "We know of only a few Masons who are members of the Klan and they are not good Masons."

New York police to-day commenced their drive against the Klan and forced the removal of its headquarters from Hotel Hermitage. Rev. John Roach Straton, past of Calvary Baptist church, is calling a meeting of his congregation to ask the dismissal of Dr. Haywood.

Klans Threaten.

The Klan has threatened officials of Paterson, N.J., with political punishment if they permit restoration of the teaching of the German language to Paterson High school students. The threat was made in letters sent the Board of Education by Klan No. 12 Realm of New Jersey, Knights of Ku Klux Klan. In a letter the Klan was classed in the same category as Fascisti of Italy, the second hundred thousand, in Great Britain and the Nationalist organization of France. The letter in the main was an attack on the Steuben Society, an organization of people of German descent, which was characterized as an agency for German propaganda. Some excerpts from the letter follow:

"If leaders of this German organization have their way, political revenge will be visited upon any American who fought for his country agains tthe Germans. A third political party, if necessary, will be organized to do it. We protest against municipal authorities permitting any more public propaganda meetings in this city. We hereby warn International propagandists in this city that nothing here will be allowed to stand in the way of preservation of a healthy American National Patriotism."

THE MODERN LOCHINVAR COMEDY A BIG SUCCESS.

Unusual Talent Displayed by Participants in a Splendid Presentation.

It was a very pleased audience that wended their way home from Trinity Sunday School Hall last night after witnessing "The Modern Lochinvar Comedy" in three acts, which was presented by the "teen-age boys and girls of the School under the very capable directorship of Miss Ada Lane.

It is seldom that such a display of unusual talent could be produced from the on Sunday School. From the small girls who took part in the drill to the old and dignified colonel no improvement would seem possible in any of the cast of characters.

Many thanks are due to A. A. Comstock & Sons and others who so kindly loaned the furniture which transformed the stage to such a degree that the audience were swept from the northern latitude with its bleak cold evening to a stately Southern home in old Kentucky.

The proceeds of the entertainment go to the work of the C.G.I.T. group of Trinity Sunday School. This work in all large centres at the present time is considered one of the most important phases of church activity. In reviewing the hearty co-operation meted out to Miss Lane in this work it is needless to say that Trinity Church is not behind in the times.

ASK REFUND FROM THREE VALUATORS

County Council Seeks Refund of $84 From Each —Concluding Details.

By a resolution passed at the concluding session of the County Council this morning the three county valuators or assessors are asked to refund twelve days' wages at $7 a day. When the three officials were appointed they were at first limited to a period of fifty days at $5 a day, but when it was contended that the work could not be completed within that time and also that the remuneration was too small, the limitation was lifted and the stipend increased to $7.

The valuators were engaged 74 days, and on rendering their bills were paid accordingly by County Clerk Elliott. In the authorizing resolution no time limit was specified, but the Council this morning asserted that the valuators should not have so far exceeded the original period suggested without notifying them, and consequently they asked for a repayment of wages for the time they worked in excess of sixty days.

Appreciated Services.

Reeve Montgomery moved, seconded by Reeve Eason, that the Council convey its appreciation to Mr. Henderson Nesbitt for the service he gave the county as caretaker of the jail. His economies were known to every Council, and it was unanimously declared that he had been a faithful servant.

School Question.

Reeve Montgomery of Norwood, persuade the Council to agree to the reconsideration of the Norwood High school petition at the January session and not defer it until June as porposed earlier in the week.

Suburban Road Charge.

Although nothing definite was done with the plea of Reeves Scott, of Asphodel and Breckenridge of Belmont, that the remote townships be relieved of charges for suburban roads improvement, it was recognized that their appeal was fair and deserved attention. It is understood that the adjusting of this matter is left for the time being with Mr. C. McFarlane, the county road superintendent, but it is probable that a thorough understanding will be reached as a policy for next year.

The eastern reeves contended that according to the Biggs theory their municipalities should not be assessed for suburban roads because their ratepayers seldom used them. When they had paid the other charges under the county roads system they had comparatively little left for the improvement of their own roads under the system adopted in this county by which each municipality receives for local road work the taxes it pays.

WAYS AND MEANS TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION.

Subject Discussed at To-day's Session of the Temperance Convention.

TORONTO, November 27. Canadian Press. — Ways and means for the enforcement of the existing prohibitory laws in the United States and Canada was the subject for discussion as a "curtain raiser" at the sessions of the Convention of the World League against alcohol today.

The chair was taken at the special session for this purpose by Orville S. Poland, of New York. Discussion as to the methods of enforcement was vigorous and at times denuciatory of the work of the law enforcement officers along this line. Several speakers declared that there must be radical changes in prohibition territories to secure a required respect for the law.

The regular morning session of the convention was preseided over by Mrs. Sara Rowell Wright, President of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Canada.

In a spirited address intimating that prohibition was in America to stay. Rev. Edwin Dinwiddie, of the United States, declared there would be no going back on the present laws.

EXPECTS $8,000 FROM THIS CITY

Northern Ontario Relief Com. Wires the Mayor to This Effect.

Mayor W. H. Taylor received at noon to-day a telegram from headquarters in Toronto of the Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee, respectfully asking that Peterborough city raised an amount in relief of the unfortunate victims in the first swept area equally half a mill on the city's total assessment. The telegram suggests that this sum be raised either by levy or by voluntary contributions.

This means that Peterborough is requested to donate $8,000 toward the $1,000,000 urgently needed for emergency relief in Haileybury and other similarly stricken districts.

The wire message also adds that Peel County has succeeded in contributing a substantial amount on the plan suggested, and enquires: "Who will be the next to come to the aid of these stalwart people in Northern Ontario?"

DENMARK WILL CONTINUE THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 27.—(Associated Press). — The eight-hour day law in Denmark will be extended for the years 1924 and 1925 as the result of a report made recently by the Board of Social Welfare.

This law, which was enacted a year ago to remain in force until the end of 1923, has been attacked by many interests as being responsible for the increases in the cost of living but efforts to have it rescinded have failed.

The Board, in its report, stated it believed the law was responsible for much of this increase but that it contained many advantages for the work men which more than offset this disadvantage.

Three unusual methods of transportation are shown in these pictures from different parts of the earth. Shipping on Lakes Suffers From Heavy Storm—Steel Freighter Aground

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—The schooner Mary Daryaw, in charge of Capt. Frank Daryaw, and the schooner Horace Tabor, in charge of Henry Daryaw, brother of Frank Daryaw, which left Oswego at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, are both ashore at Four Mile Point, after having got caught in the severe snow storm last night while on their way to Kingston with coal. The Daryaw is not damaged, but the Taber is breaking up. Both crews escaped without mishap.

The vessels each carried about four hundred tons of coal. The Taber was bound for Kingston and the Daryaw for Colling Bay.

The Liman Davis and Katie Eccles, both schooners, left Oswego at the same time, the former bound for Belleville and the latter for Napanee, but nothing has been heard of them.

"BILLY" MATHESON HAD GOOD MEETING

Will Remain in the City During the Month of December—The Sunday Night Meeting.

A packed house heard Evangelist Billy Matheson at the Royal Theatre last evening. Mr. G. W. Mulligan led the singing. At the opening of the meeting, Mr. Matheson announced his intention of remaining in the city during the month of December and possibly January.

His meetings so far have been successful, and give promise of material results. For this reason he has been urged to remain and give Peterborough a real old-time revival. Mr. Matheson's meetings are interdenominational and seekers after truth and light in this form will find Billy Matheson's meetings a worth while effort.

Last night Mr. Matheson took his text from the story of the Prodigal Son, in which he compared the love of the prodigal son's father with the love of the Father in Heaven, and the two brothers as the people of the earth. "Religion is not being religious, but being in love with God," was one of Mr. Matheson's characteristic remarks. When the prodigal son was stripped of all his worldly possessions and had not even a crust of bread, he still had God's love. This was something he could not barter.

CHEAPER POWER FOR THE CITY INDUSTRIES

Peterborough Utilities Say Their Charges Lets Than Those of Old Electric Power Co.—Under Public Ownership No Discrimination Between Large and Small Users

Editor Examiner.

Sir,—We have seen several articles written by Mr. R. R. Hall published in the Examiner, and have thought that, while confined to Peterborough, they would not have much effect, because the people of this city should and no doubt have knowledge of the benefits that have been received from the public ownership of light and power. But one or more of these articles have been published in other papers in the district, and in Toronto, and they may have effect not only in regard to public ownership, but also upon this city by giving an impression that the cost of power here is excessive.

THE FACTS OF THE CASE.

The fact is that power is furnished to the industries cheaper than it was by the Peterborough Light and Power Company, the business of which the city purchased. Mr. Hall has pointed out that power is now charged for on a ten-minute peak. It was also sold by the Peterborough Light and Power Company on a ten-minute peak or on the capacity of the motors. In a letter written to a member of the Manufacturers' Committee on May 11th, 1911. The Electric Power Company said: "We are now asking for power in Peterborough, in quantities above 20 h.p., $20.00 per h.p. per year, for a 24-hour service, the basis of the amount charged for to be arrived at by measuring the power used and charging for the maximum amount consumed during any ten consecutive minutes." That is on a ten-minute peak, the same basis as that on which the Utilities Commission charges, but the company's rate was $20.00 per h.p. On the other hand, accounts actually charged to power consumers by this commission show that it was furnished for twenty-four services at rates varying from $15.07 to $18.48 per h.p. per year, and the average charge was $15.97 per h.p. per year. The variation in the accounts is owing to the fact that power is now charged for on a service rate of $1.00 per h.p. per month, plus meter rates, and the accounts show power furnished at the rates given. It should also be noticed that the Power Company only gave the $20.00 rate for quantities above 20 h.p., while this Commission sells power to the small users at the same rate as to the large users, and the small industry is not charged at a higher rate because it uses a smaller quantity of power. Under public ownership all users are charged on the same basis, and there is no discrimination.

Treated With Courtesy.

We wish to add that in our dealings with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario we have always been treated with every courtesy by the members of the Commission and their staff, particularly Sir Adam Beck, and that our experience is that that Commission deals fairly and equitably with us.—Yours truly, Peterborough Utilities Commission.

KIWANIS NEWS

Kiwanian Lloyd Hamilton has a perfectly good corkscrew that he will willingly exchange for a couple of tickets to the Kiwanis Minstrels.

"The more worthless a man is the easier it is for some woman to marry him," said Kiwanian Martin Roche in an exclusive interview with the Examiner to-day.

Just when we had begun to think that miracles never happen, along comes the Peterborough Kiwanis Club with a first class minstrel show that is said to be a humdinger.

The fact that three allegedmoonshiners were nabbed by the officers while asleep beside their still may account for a corresponding drop in the attendance at Friday night's Kiwanis minstrel practice.

There will be a full rehearsal of the Kiwanis Minstrels this evening at the Grand Opera House, commencing at eight o'clock.

TO ELIMINATE ALL DANGER OF WAR IN FUTURE

Righteousness and Justice Must Combine in Nations' League Says Dr. R. C. Blagrave.

PEOPLE ORGANIZE

Characterizing modern methods of war as positively barbarous, Dr. R. C. Blagrave at St. John's church, yesterday morning declared the present time opportune for the church to have its say in the institution of such steps as will eliminate all danger of armed conflicts, of which this world is tired. For, the more civilized people's become the less inclined they are to settle their disputes by resorting to war, he said. (

In course of a timely sermon on this subject, the reverend gentleman gathered that the attitude of the church toward the late great world war had been questioned many holding that she had not been just right in her position in view of the peaceful and non-)belligerent spirit of true Christianity. He found logical reasoning in such a view from the context of Christ's sermon on the Mount in which He clearly reveals that He is opposed to war and that the Spirit of the Master is not militant.

But, recalling those conditions which faced the church and civilization in the world-war, the speaker stressed the point that there had come an armed force out of Germany which had to be met by force; and surely he said, it was not the intention of God that those destroying hordes should overrun the Christian earth. Such force represented sin and to meet it with suppressing force was the only obvious course to pursue lest wickedness prevailed.

The League's Objective

Turning to the real subject of his discourse, "The League of Nations and its Aims," Dr. Blagrave pointed out that there cannot be justice were there is unrighteous, and(to assure the League's main objective—the elimination of war—righteous and justice must come together in unity. And he had every confidence in the deterring effect on a nation willing war of the mere expression of available force vested in a sufficient combination of powers standing together in cooperation against any threatened resort to arms. Yet, here the question arises can not only the delegates at a League of Nations, but the peoples they represent effectively cooperate to that end? That is an essential which entails an organization of practically the whole world against war, and involving a difficulty calling for the exercise of great genius. However, this problem the speaker asserted could be solved by nations adopting that ideal of true patriotism so fittingly expressed by the Archbishop of Canterbury when he told the conference at Geneva that he was only unreservedly patriotic to his country when it does the right thing, the honest thing the straight thing, in the world and for the world. That said Dr. Blagrave, is righteousness—serving not only ourselves but others; and that must be the attitude of the nations of the world toward all peoples to assure an effective League of Nations. Public opinion must be organized on a principle of righteousness and justice and without religion such an organization for peace acn- not be consummated.

The Near East

In brief reference to the Near East situation Dr. Blagrave conveyed the thought that the Greeks had been just in their demands, but two aggressive and he emphasizd the fact that they are a Christian people which the Turks are not.

The Christians' Attitude

At the evening service Dr. Blagrave, really continued his morning sermon and stressed what he considered to be correct attitude of the Christian peoples toward the League of Nations. The Spirit of Christ should be manifested in all our actions, he asserted, and as a Christian nation we will do the will of the Lord to bring about peace for the whole world. The attitude taken by Great Britain during the meeting of the League of Nations at Genoa averted what seemed to be very serious future for the whole world. Here he explained why Great Britain could take such a firm stand, and characterizing the United States as the next greatest Christian nation to Britain, he contended that a longhoped for cooperation between those two peoples might in itself assure permanent peace between all nations.

Turning to the disarmament phase of recent history; and to the British attitude in that regard, the speaker declared that so long as there remains sin in the world there must be a police force of some kind to preserve world-order. But righteousness and Christianity must be prevailing elements at all conferences of the League of Nations, otherwise, but little permanent good can result

In conclusion, the reverend gentleman asserted that peoples must first spread the doctrine of the Christian faith before they can expect to win that world-peace which all right-thinking nations desire.

Both these sermons yesterday were in indorsation by the church of the League of Nations Society in Canada, organized in Ottawa on May 31, 1921.

Prohibition For New Turk Holding

ADRIANOPLE, Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press.)— Establishment of absolute prohibition was first act of the Turks upon their entry into this city last Friday. The measure promulgated soon after the arrival of General Tahir Bey, new governor, impressed the population rather disagreeably.

Calves and goats decked with flowers were slaughtered under triumphal arches as sacrifices of thanks to Allah. Tahir Bey has asserted sovereignty of Turkey throughout Eastern Thrace. In the evening, contrary to all custom, women paraded until a late hour through brilliantly illuminated streets.

HOPE WARDEN WILL RETURN

County Council Regret Tenure of Office Only for One Year.

Replying to the report of the special committee appointed to deal with his address, Warden Strickland said he would like to return to the Council next year, but he realized that Lakefield had many energetic and capable citizens, any one of whom would make a first-class Reeve.

"If I don't come back the man who does will work with you as harmoniously as I have, and I feel certain he will uphold his part in the County Council."

Warden Strickland thanked the Council again for all their courtesies and their co-operation this year.

The report of the special committee, read by Reeve Eason, was as follows:

"We heartily concur with everything embodied in his address.

"We appreciate his explanation of the conditions at the House of Refuge and firmly believe that all efforts of the Board of Management were but characteristic of the Council as a whole.

"His reference to all matters of county legislation is well and truly spoken, and we, your committee, on behalf of the County Council, without further comment, will say that we are sorry that his tenure of office ceases with one year's service.

"Any support given by the Council was given in accordance with the confidence they had in their Warden; and in saying good-bye it is only good-bye until the fourth Tuesday in January next, when Mr. Strickland will appear again as Reeve of Lakefield.

AMBASSADOR CHILD'S STATEMENT APPROVED.

United States Cannot Wholly Disinterest Herself from the European Problems.

LONDON, November 27. Canadian Press. — The statement of Ambassador Child, at the Lausanne conference on Saturday, is the outstanding feature of the morning papers which discuss what some term "dramatic American intervention," and "American bombshell," although some regard the Ambassador's statement as intended to give notice of the United States determination to have a share in the Mosul oil fields. This view is universally adopted and several papers treat Mr. Child's declaration as timely and welcome. The Times says the statement is of wider importance than anything yet settled at Lausanne while the Westminster Gazette welcomes Mr. Child's speech "as at least the beginning of a recognition that the United States cannot wholly disinterest herself from European problems."

GERMAN TEACHERS REBEL AT WAGE OF FIVE CENTS

COLOGNE, Nov. 27.—(Associated Press).—Objecting to a wage of twenty-three marks an hour, the teachers in Cologne's continuation school have struck for more pay. Similar action already had been taken by the faculities of vocational institutions at Duisburg and Essen.

The Cologne staffs include teachers from the public grade schools, engineers and expert handworkers. Some time ago they were conceded sixty-three marks an hour, but their union alleges no actual payments were made at this rate.

At the prevailing rate of exchange, twenty-three marks hourly means a wage of less than five cents for an eight-hour day.

DEMONSTRATION BY OPERATORS FOR ROTARIANS

Learn How Switchboard Works and How Mistakes in Telephone Service Occur.

THE FIRE RELIEF FUND

The Peterborough Rotarians at their weekly luncheon to-day heard and saw considerable of the inner workings of the Bell Telephone Company system by reason of a clever switchboard demonstration put on by Miss V. Cuffe and Miss A. Campbell of the local staff, assisted by Mr. Chas. Thornton.

Miss Cuffe, who made the explanations in a clear and lucid manner that was particularly effective, showed the Rotarians how calls are dealt with, explained how mistakes are made, pointed out the most common errors usually made by subscribers in giving the wrong number or in not giving the right number distinctly and stated that the hearty co-operation of subscriber and operator were necessary to give the best possible service. She explained that the operators at the Peterborough office had to answer on an average of 22,000 calls a day and while mistakes were bound to happen, a very small percentage of mistakes out that very large number of calls could be charged to the operators.

The demonstration convinced the Rotarians of the necessity of making sure of knowing the number they wanted, of promptly answering their phones, of giving the number distinctly, of waiting on two party 'phones for the bell to stop ringing before taking off the receiver. And in general of co-operating with the operators.

Afterwards President John Crane and Rotarian Chris. Graham put on a demonstration over the switchboard to illustrate the right and wrong methods of using the telephone. Incidentally they took advantage of the opening given them to put over a lot of witty jokes at the expense of well known Rotarians, their performance creating much amusement.

The telephone feature was in charge of Rotarian J. M. McHardy, local manager of the Bell Telephone, who in a brief address explained that the local system had 3,800 subscribers in Peterborough as against 2,500 five years ago and had a staff of 64 people. He asked for the co-operation of the public in making the service as effective as possible.

The Fire Relief Fund.

His Worship Mayor Taylor was among the guests to-day and gave an interesting account of the visit of the party of which he was a [illegible] area. Mayor Taylor briefly described [illegible] north, telling of the destruction of Haileybury and other centres, and explaining the discussion that took place among members of the deputation as to the best method of furnishing the relief that was necessary. He informed the Rotarians of the Government decision not to provide [illegible] money but rather to have it raised voluntarily by the people [illegible] by means of subscriptions or by special assessment levied by the municipalities. Some $600,000 in addition to the amount already raised would be required and the Peterborough Council, His Worship remarked, would meet to-night to consider what action would be taken locally. He asked for the hearty cooperation of Rotary in whatever step was decided upon and was assured by President Crane that he would have it.

WHAT RELIEF! SKIRT LENGTH IS SOLVED

A fashion investigator with a scientific turn of mind has been studying the problem of the skirt length. He made a thorough canvass of 25 of the representative shops in New York, ranging from the most exclusive and expensive to the popular-priced stores.

Here is the result: Street dresses are shown with skirts from two to 10 inches from the sidewalk, with the average about seven inches.

Sports wear has skirts from six to 12 inches from the tennis court with the average about nine iches.

Evening gowns escape the ballroom floor by from one to seven inches and the average is only five.

And now that you have heard all about it you will please yourself as to the length of your own.

TO-DAY'S BLUNDER CORRECTED

The Postmaster

Do not wait until the last minute to mail Christmas letters and packages. Some people are thoughtful enough to mail their Christmas letters and packages in time for delivery before Christmas; many others, just as generous, but less thoughtful, wait until the last minute and then pour their Christmas mail into the post office in a perfect deluge, with the result that thousands of little folks, and grown-ups too, are disappointed and perhaps their Christmas spoiled because a letter or package is delayed and not delivered until after Christmas.

Please mail packages for out of town delivery early in the week beginning December 11th, and for city delivery during the week ending December 18th. Such letters and packages may be endorsed "Do Not Open until Christmas."

FOR A GOOD GROUND

To ground a wire, use a cold-water pipe, as it is the most direct connection to the ground. The radiator or a hot-water pipe will do almost as well, but these pipes will have a great many more joints in them before they reach the ground, and every joint added makes just that much more resistance for the current. The gaspipe is about the worst ground possible, and it is apt to have an insulated bushing that will not allow the current to pass through.

Crude diving suits are described in mechanical works as far back as 1664 and the diving bell was used still earlier.

Early Advertising Copy

Better service can be given advertisers who hand in their copy EARLY IN THE FORENOON or the evening before.

This is particularly true just now when Advertisers find it highly profitably to use the columns of The Daily Examiner, which goes into nearly every home in the city of Peterborough, and the outside villages and rural routes. Total circulation 7,500 copies.

"SHADOWS" STOP RADIO

What are termed "radio shadows" are proving hindrances to the reception of radio messages in various parts of the country. These shadows are practically dead spots in the atmosphere which radio has not been able to penetrate. Parts of the eastern coast of the United States, a spot in southern California and other points have been included among these shadows.

LENGTH OF AERIAL WIRES

A single aerial wire is sufficient, if one at least 75 feet long can be put up. If the aerial is shorter, use two wires, taking the leading-in wire from the far end. If the aerial is to be only 50 feet or less over all, make it a four-wire one, and again take the leading-in wires from the far end.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Colour, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn grey, streaked, and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked, or grey. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft, and luxuriant.

CHINAMAN IS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN NEW FOUNDLAND

Wo Fen Game, Shot Three Other Chinamen and Assaulted Warden With a Brick.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Wo Fen Game, local Chinese laundryman, was found guilty of murder Saturday by a special jury of the Supreme Court and was sentenced to death at a date to be set by the Executive Council. On May 25, last, Wo Fen Game ran amuck for some reason that has never been fully explained. He shot up three fellow-countrymen in the Murray Street laundry where he was himself employed, and then hustled across the city to Casey Street, where he shot a fourth Chinaman and seriously wounded himself. Three of the Chinamen died. Saturday morning before he was taken to court, Wo Fen Game in some manner got possession of a brick with which he violently assaulted Warden Rose of the Penitentiary. The warden was badly cut about the head, and was knocked insensible. He is now in hospital in a somewhat serious condition.

Lord Curzon gave a small dinner tonight to the members of the so-called Balkan Entente. Stamboulisky, Venizelos, Diamandi and Ninchitch attended.

TURK A MENACE MUST BE DEALT WITH LIKE THUG

Right Rev. Rennie MacInnes Brands Turkey as the Arch-Criminal Nation of the World.

FROM NEAR EAST

OTTAWA, Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press).)—"Without any doubt, Turkey in the mind of the Mohammedan world, is strong in power and prestige than at any time during the past three hundred years. The Turk is not the sick man of Europe; he does not belong to Europe and the Turkish problem does not belong to Europe. It is a world problem and the Turk is the arch-criminal of the world. The nations must realize that the Turk must be dealt with as police deal with a criminal."

In the above explicit language, addressing a large and thoroughly representative audience at Saturday's luncheon, of the Canadian Club, the Right Rev. Rennie McInnes, Bishop in Jerusalem, emphasized the menace to the peace of the world in the actions of a Turkey, flushed with victory and exulting in the apparent discord existing among the allied powers.

Commission Will Seek New Methods to Aid Ex-Soldier

The Royal Commission on Pensions and Re-establishment to Take Up Second Phase.

NEEDS OF VETERANS

OTTAWA, Nov. 27. — (Canadian Press).—In a statement handed out Saturday afternoon by Colonel Ralston, chairman of the Royal Commission on pensions and re-establishment, the scope of the second phase of the commission's inquiry is dealt with. The initial phase, an investigation into certain charges made by the Great War Veterans' Association against the Board of Pension Commissioners has been completed and the commissioners are now engaged in preparing their report on it.

The scope of the inquiry which will now be conducted by the Royal Commission is indicated under a number of headings in the statement handed Saturday. In the first place it will receive suggestions "as to any improvements in the method of procedure whereby Canadian ex-service men may apply for pension and treatment" and also as to "procedure whereby these ex-service men may submit an appeal from decisions as to pensions and treatment." Secondly the commissioners "will hear evidence as to the needs of discharging handicapped men of the C. E. F. and as to means of making suitable provisions for them, apart from any definite legislative provision which already exists." Indicating the meaning of the term "handicapped men," the statement suggests those whom real old age has rendered unfit for employment on the open labor market; those prematurely old from causes either arising out of or entirely unassociated with service; those handicapped by severe physical disabilities which are the result of deformity, amputaions, etc.; those with some chronic condition due to service but who are not tubercular in part due to service; the tuberculous; those who, owing to various other causes due at least in part to service, are unable to give any fixed occupation the same extent of efficiency as is expected from a man one hundred per cent fit.

Thirdly, the commission will hear evidence as to the extent and nature of existing re-establishment needs among Canadian ex-service men and their dependents. Fourthly, it will hear evidence and receive suggestions as to disposal of canteen funds.

The commissioners outline the method of procedure to be adopted in placing evidence before them as follows: Evidence and suggestions on behalf of Canadian ex-service men will be received only from those selected to represent returned soldier interests generally, rather than as individuals or officers of individual organizations, and, for this purpose, it is requested that these organizations and returned men generally will combine in selecting these joint representatives who will come to the hearings duly accredited. This does not in any case preclude the selection of officers of any organizations as joint representatives, nor the presentation by these joint representatives of evidence and suggestions on behalf of any particular class or classes of Canadian ex-service men.

The number of representatives to be limited as much as possible but not to exceed six on the hearing in any one place.

"A brief summary of the evidence proposed to be submitted to be forwarded to the Secretary of the Commission, Room 379, House of Commons, ten days before the hearing.

"Hearings to be held at Halifax, St. John, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Regina and Vancouver.

"Notice of the date and place of hearings to be given later, but the hearings will not commence before January 15, 1923, and the first will be held in Halifax.

"Where a selected representative does not reside in the place where the hearing is to be held, his expenses as a witness will be certified by the commission."

REFUSE LICENSES TO 5 PORT HOPE HOTELS

PORT HOPE, Nov. 27.—Two hotels here, the Ontario House and the British, have been refused standard hotel licenses. The proprietors have their choice now of conducting a boarding house or giving all their attention to the bar, but the combination will not be permitted. If they cater to boarders then they must not sell soft drinks or tobaccos and if they prefer the latter, they must haul down the boarding house sign. The shutting off of these licenses comes as a result of a visit of Provincial representatives here last summer. The fact of the proprietor of the Ontario House being fined twice for infractions under the Ontario Temperance Act, was responsible for the loss of the license there, while the British was not equipped to the satisfaction of the Inspector.

In Cobourg the King Edward and St. Lawrence were cut off and in Campbellford two more were refused a renewal of licenses.

NORTH MONAGHAN'S MOVE.

The decision of North Monaghan ratepayers to have a vote taken at the coming elections on the question of the application of the Suburban Development Act to sections of the township adjoining the city on the south and south-west is a progressive step that should be heartily approved by the people of the district affected.

The objection that such a move is in the direction of annexation is of course utterly erroneous.

Nothing in this plan suggests that the adoption of the Suburban Development Act means the swallowing up of the areas in question by the city.

It simply provides a simple and successful means by which the people of the suburbs can secure the extension of public utilities into their district if they want them.

The ratepayers themselves, and not the Board elected by them under the Act, alone have the right to petition for improvements.

The Board does not institute any development on its own account, but acts as agents for the people in securing the necessary agreements and in levying the special rates necessary to meet the cost of the services petitioned for.

There is no reason why the by-law should not be carried by a large majority when it comes before the ratepayers at the municipal elections.

BLOWING OFF STEAM.

Naturally among the Labor candidates who were successful in the British elections there are some who can truthfully be called extremists.

They are men of the soap box orator type, who have been accustomed to abusive language and class appeals.

They have all their lives been used to talking to audiences who loved to hear capital assailed in violent language, and who could not distinguish between honest criticism and the vituperation of the demagogue.

For a time at least the effect of this training will be noticeable in their conduct in the House. They are bringing the cheap abuse of the campaign platform into Parliament with them.

These bumptious individuals, however, are not likely to be as violent after they have been in the House for a while, for they will learn the real value of the traditions and ceromonies at which they sneer just now.

Mr. Newbold, the Communist M.P., is one of those who stand in need of such instruction.

His speech the other day showed how completely he has failed to grasp the significance of the impressive opening of Parliament.

The Montreal Star puts it neatly when it says that only those who have not understood the long struggle of the British people for liberty can mistake the dignified ritual of the British Parliament for a "Tom Fool Show."

Mr. Newbold will learn after a while. He will not be the first agitator who cooled down after entering Parliament.

LOOK OUT FOR THE GUMPS.

Cartoonist Sidney Smith's comic strip hero, Andy Gump, has become one of the most popular newspaper figures, and the adventures of this quaint looking individual are followed by hundreds of thousands daily.

Mr. Gump's campaign for a seat in Congress with his slogan, "100 per cent. for the people," is said to have attracted more attention in Canada than any other feature of the American election.

The reason is not hard to find.

Mr. Gump is popular because everybody knows him.

There have always been Andy Gumps in Canada in Dominion, Provincial and municipal politics, men who promise everything before they are elected and do nothing afterward.

The Gump type is particularly prominent in municipal campaigns. You'll find him calling himself "the people's candidate," promising "strict economy in public business," and all that sort of thing.

Look out for him in the coming campaign in Peterborough.

When you find a candidate who declares that he'll be the watch dog of the treasury, ask him just what plans he has for the exercise of the economy he declares to be imperative.

If he has no definite programme to offer, nothing but generalities, you can place him in the Gump class.

Platitudes about economy are the easiest things in the world to offer as an election platform.

They are usually the stock-in-trade of a type of candidate whose plans do not go further than election day.

Keep your eyes on the Gumps when the campaign opens—there undoubtedly will be a few of them in the field.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That Christmas shopping should not be put off any longer.

That map Reeve Eason referred to must be a very recent one if it shows Peterborough County in the good roads system.

About the only certain thing about that New Brunswick, N.J., murder is that the rector and the woman are dead.

The Hearst papers will find some way of blaming England for the execution of Childers.

Over in Ireland they put a man to death for carrying a revolver. In Ontario the sentence for carrying a loaded gun is likely to be a month, while a loaded flask is liable to draw a six months' sentence for its owner.

Montreal doctors are puzzled over a strange malady causing a swelling of the neck. Many Ontario people, however, come away from Montreal with a swelling over the hip.

ENJOY THIS GOOD MONTH

The Scottish bard sang in lament:

"When chill November's surly blast made fields and forests bare."

and in the minds of most persons, perhaps, this is a month of farewell to fair weather and of resignation to the onslaught of winter's cold.

And yet November's sullen disposition is more imaginary than real, says the Kingston Whig. A weather observer assures us that in the average this is a delightful month. His is a pleasant picture.

November is neither exceptionally cloudy, nor cold nor wet. Over a long period of years it has brought an average of only eleven cloudy days, against twelve each for December and January, and eight for June, the month of roses. Although November usually brings the first snow, sometimes it does not, and there are only three months of the year with lighter precipitation than this. Although, like other months in this interesting climate, it is likely to bring us extremes of temperature, November is generally equable and pleasant.

November's surly blast is not typical of November. Other months bring blasts more surly, and more of them. But because November is first to send us shivering indoors, her advent is looked upon with no kindly eye.

And yet for the first surly blast we should not, indeed, be unappreciative. It sends us to our homes and our firesides, our families and our books. We should be glad to have them, and thoughtful of those who have them not.

Flagrant Violation of Dry Law in Philadelphia Creates a Stir.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press.—Investigation of the complete breakdown in the enforcement of Prohibition in Philadelphia on Saturday, where 50,000 people assembled at the annual United States Military Academy vs United States Naval Academy game, may be expected this week by President Harding.

Violation of the law was so flagrant as to be apparent to the most casual observer. It existed at the game itself. Men and some women were drunk underneath the stadium between halfs, and at night some of the larger hotels were filled with drunks. The scenes in one hotel are described as quite beyond belief in these dry days. Bars in hotels sold mild one-half of one percent. drinks; but private rooms had flourishing bars in operation and men and women drank to their satisfaction.

Interesting Letter From Woman in South Africa

Johannesburg, South Africa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and because I felt run down. I tried a lot of medicines before I tried yours. One day I was standing on my stoop when a boy came up to me and handed me one of your little books. I read the book and the next day my husband went to the chemist's and bought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel quite strong and well now as I am on the sixth bottle. I have written to my sister and told her all about the wonders it has done for me, and I am quite willing for you to use my name as I can not thank you enough for what it has done for me."—Mrs. W. F. Rush, 128 6th Ave., Mayfair, Fordesburg, Johannesburg, South Africa.

It is this sort of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, given by letter or verbally, one woman to another, that ought to commend this splendid medicine to you.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women's ailments (in use nearly fifty years), and the fact that it has helped thousands of other women, should cause you to give it a trial now. It can be safely taken by any woman—young or old.

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Lunch was over and the house-party guests were away on the golf links. Quiet reigned in The Red House while

MARK ABLETT, the bachelor owner, and

MATT CAYLEY, his companion, awaited the arrival of Mark's brother,

ROBERT, who was returning from Australia after a 15 years' absence.

Startled by Robert's rough appearance,

AUDREY STEVENS, the maid, ushered him into Mark's office on his arrival. After an unsuccessful attempt to find Mark in the garden, Audrey returned to the house to find the other servants frightened by the sound of a revolver shot and to hear Cayley pounding on the office door demanding admittance.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

WHETHER Mark Ablett was a bore or not depended on the point of view, but it may be said at once that he never bored his company on the subject of his early life. However, stories get about. There is always somebody who knows. It was said that, as a boy, Mark had attracted the notice, and patronage, of some rich old spinster of the neighborhood, who had paid for his education, both at school and university. At about the time when he was coming down from Cambridge, his father had died.

Mark went to London, with an allowance from his patron, and made acquaintance with the money-lenders. He was supposed, by his patron and any others who inquired, to be "writing"; but what he wrote, other than letters asking for more time to pay, has never been discovered.

Fortunately (from Mark's point of view) his patron died during his third year in London, and left him all the money he wanted. He settled accounts with the money-lenders, abandoned his crop of wild oats to the harvesting of others, and became in his turn a patron. He patronized the Arts.

Editors were now offered free contributions as well as free lunches; promising young painters and poets dined with him; and he even took a theatrical company on tour, playing host and "lead" with equal lavishness.

His patronage included Matthew Cayley, a small cousin of thirteen. He sent the Cayley cousin to school and Cambridge.

Cayley at twenty-three, looked after his cousin's affairs. By this time Mark had bought The Red House. Cayley superintended the necessary staff. He was not quite secretary, not quite land-agent, not quite business-adviser, not quite companion, but something of all four.

Cayley was now twenty-eight, but had all the appearance of forty, which was his patron's age. Spasmodically they entertained a good deal at The Red House. Let us have a look at them as they came down to that breakfast, of which Stevens, the parlormaid, has already given us a glimpse

The first to appear was Major Rumbold, a tall, gray-haired, gray-mustached, silent man, who lived on his retired pay. He had got to work on a sausage by the time of the next arrival. This was Bill Beverley, a cheerful young man in white flannel trousers and a blazer

"Hallo, Major," he said as he came in, "how's the gout?"

"It isn't gout," said the Major gruffly.

"Well, whatever it is."

The Major grunted.

"I make a point of being polite at breakfast," said Bill, helping himself largely to porridge.

"Well, we've got a good day for our game. It's going to be dashed hot, but that's where Betty and I score. Hallo; good morning, Miss Norris. Do you want any assistance, or do you prefer choosing your own breakfast?"

"Please don't get up," said Miss Norris. "I'll help myself. Good morning, Major." She smiled pleasantly at him.

The Major nodded.

"As I was telling him," began Bill, "that's where—Hallo, here's Betty. Morning, Cayley."

Betty Calladine and Cayley had come in together. Betty was the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. John Calladine, widow of the painter, who was acting hostess on this occasion for Mark. Ruth Norris took herself seriously as an actress and, on her holidays, seriously as a golfer. She was quite competent as either.

"By the way, the car will be round at 10.30," said Cayley, looking up from his letters. "You're lunching there, and driving back directly afterward. Isn't that right?"

Mark came in. He was generally the last. He greeted them and sat down to toast and tea. Breakfast was not his meal. The others chat-

HE WAS NOW THIRTY

tered gently while he read his letters.

"Good God!" said Mark suddenly.

There was an instinctive turning of heads toward him.

"I say, Cay!" He was frowning. He held up a letter and shook it. "Who do you think this is from?"

Cayley shrugged his shoulders. How could he possibly guess?

"Robert," said Mark.

"I thought he was in Australia, or somewhere."

"Of course. So did I." He looked across at Rumbold. "Got any brothers, Major?"

"No."

"Well, take my advice, and don't have any."

"Not likely to now," said the Major.

Bill laughed. Miss Norris said politely: "But you haven't any brothers, Mr. Ablett?"

"One," said Mark grimly. "If you're back in time you'll see him this afternoon. He'll probably ask you to lend him five pounds. Don't."

Everybody felt a little uncomfortable.

"All the same," said Betty a little daringly, "it must be rather fun having a skeleton in the cupboard."

Mark looked up, frowning.

"If you think it's fun, I'll hand him over to you, Betty. If he's anything like he used to be, and like his few letters have been—well, Cay knows."

Cayley grunted.

"All I knew was that one didn't ask questions about him."

It may have been meant as a hint to any too curious guest not to ask more questions, or a reminder to his host not to talk too freely in front of strangers, although he gave it the sound of a mere statement of fact. But the subject dropped.

At about the time when Mark and his cousin were at their business at The Red House, an attractive gentleman of the name of Antony Gillingham was handing up his ticket at Woodham station and asking the way to the village. He is an important person to this story, so that it is as well we should know something about him at the top of the hill on some excuse, and have a good look at him.

The first thing we realize is that he is doing more of the looking than we are. Above a clean-cut, clean-shaven face, he carries a pair of gray eyes which seem to be absorbing every detail of our person. To strangers this look is almost alarming at first, until they discover that his mind is very often elsewhere; that he has, so to speak, left his eyes on guard, while he himself follows a train of thought in another direction.

He had seen a good deal of the world with those eyes. When at the age of twenty-one he came into his mother's money, £400 a year, old Gillingham looked up from the "Stockbreeders' Gazette" to ask him what he was going to do.

"See the world," said Antony.

"Well, send me a line from America, or wherever you get to."

"Right," said Antony.

Old Gillingham returned to his paper.

Antony, however, had no intention of going further away than London. His idea of seeing the world was to see, not countries, but people; and to see them from as many angles as possible. There are all sorts if you know how to look at them. So Antony looked at them—from various strange corners; from the viewpoint of the valet, the newspaper-reporter, the waiter, the shop-assistant. With the independence of £400 a year behind him, he enjoyed it immensely.

He was now thirty. He had come to Woodham for a holiday, because he liked the look of the station. His ticket entitled him to travel further, but Woodham attracted him. Why not get out?

The landlady of "The George" was only too glad to put him up.

While he was finishing his lunch, the landlord came in to ask him about the luggage. Antony ordered another pint of beer and soon had him talking.

"It must be rather fun to keep a country inn," he said, thinking that it was about time he started another profession. "You ought to take a holiday."

"Funny thing you're saying that," said the landlord, with a smile. "Another gentleman, over from The Red House, was saying that on'y yesterday. Offered to take my place an all." He laughed rumblingly.

"The Red House? Not The Red House, Stanton?"

"That's right, sir. Stanton's the next station to Woodham. The Red House is about a mile from here—Mr. Ablett's."

Antony took a letter from his pocket. It was addressed from "The Red House, Stanton," and signed "Bill."

"Good old Bill," he murmured to himself. "He's getting on."

Antony had met Bill Beverley two years before in a tabacconist's shop. Gillingham was on one side of the counter and Mr. Beverley on the other. Something about Bill, his youth and freshness, perhaps, attracted Antony; and when cigarettes had been ordered, and an address given to which they were to be sent, he remembered that he had come across an aunt of Beverley's once at a country-house. He and Antony quickly became intimate. But Bill generally addressed him as "Dear Madman" when he happened to write.

Antony decided to stroll over to The Red House after lunch and call upon his friend.

As he came down the drive and approached the old red-brick front of the house, there was a lazy murmur of bees in the flower-borders, a gentle cooing of pigeons in the tops of the elms, and from distant lawns the whir of a mowing-machine, that most restful of all country sounds. . . .

And in the hall a man was banging at a locked door, and shouting, "Open the door, I say; open the door!"

"Hallo!" said Antony in amazement.

Lawrence, trapper and hunter, who had a shack in the northern part of Hastings county, on a charge of hunting without a license. Mrs. S. J. Fox.

A host of Lindsay and Campbellford citizens were shocked on Wednesday morning to hear of the death of Rosella Free, beloved wife of the late S. J. Fox, who for years represented Victoria in the Toronto House. The deceased had been in failing health for the past two years but her closest friends did not realize that the end was so near. Mrs. Fox was in her sixty-eighth year and was born at Campbellford, Ont. For nearly forty years she resided with her late husband in Ops township, where Mr. Fox established and ran successfully for many years what became known as the Fox brick yards. After the death of her husband about eleven years ago, Mrs. Fox moved to Lindsay, where she has resided ever since. She was a woman highly respected by a large circle of friends and for a number of years took an active interest in church affairs as well as the Women's Institute and other organizations. She was a member of St. Paul's church. Left to mourn her loss is one son, Mr. Cleveland Fox, of Oshawa, one sister, Miss Sarah E. Free, of Los Angeles, Californa, one brother, Abraham Free, also of California.

ONTARIO APPLES ARE EQUAL TO B.C.

MILLBROOK, November 27. — In the list of awards at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, the name of D. A. Henry, of Millbrook, appears amongst the winners in winter wheat and Dr. T. H. Hassard of Markham, a former resident of Millbrook, won second prize with his "Marathon" in the Percheron class of horses. A notable fact in connection with the exhibit of apples at the Fair, which Percy Hodgetts of the Ontario Fruit Branch, declares to be the best yet shown in the Dominion, is that the largest number of entries was made by British Columbia, with Ontario a close second; and although the latter has something to learn from the Pacific Province re marketing, yet the largest number of prizes was won by our own "Banner" Province. Even in competing against the "Jonathan," the show apple of British Columbia in the classes open to 20, 10 and single box exhibits, Ontario carried off the premier awards, and also led in the McIntosh varieties, the Coldstream Ranch of Vernon, B.C., having a single win in the Spy Class. The judges have decided that although the B.C. apples which of late have been flooding the Ontario market are of a most attractive appearance, as far as color is concerned, yet they do not apparently keep well for though on exhibition only a few days the flesh is already becoming brown and mealy and beginning to show inward signs of wear, but the color remains as bright as when the fruit was first picked. That Ontario producers are determined to remove the slur upon their fruit is evidenced by the extreme care taken in selecting the varieties shown at the fair, one grower declaring that a single exhibit of one bushel was chosen from over 900 bushels of first class fruit.

Thus the educational and commercial results of the Fair are bound to be of a very high order.

ALL NORMAL CHILDREN COULD BE "PERFECT" NATURE BABIES IF PARENTS PAY THE PRICE

JAMES SYRACUSE, HIS WIFE AND THEIR "PERFECT NATURE" CHILD.

By DUDLEY SIDALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—All normal children could be "perfect nature babies" if their parents were willing to pay the price.

So says James Syracuse, father of New York's marvelous Tarzan child, Jimmy Syracuse Jr., who is now 25 months old.

The price is high. Not in money, but in self-denial, self-restraint, study and never-ceasing watchfulness.

Yet, after observing Jimmy at his morning play among the fallen trees and sharp-edged boulders of the precipitous heights plunging down to the Harlem river, it is evident that Jimmy's youthful father and mother feel themselves adequately rewarded.

Jimmy's naked little body is toned to a life-guard brown; high-lighted by a shock of tow-colored hair and brilliant black eyes. While his flesh is firm, it has all the softness and silky suppleness of babyhood.

Powerful muscles ripple under the skin of his arms, shoulders, back and legs.

Feet Are Fascinating.

His feet are positively fascinating. They're big feet, with long toes which grip like sturdy fingers as the youngster swarms up rocky cliffs or unconcernedly walks the trunks of dead trees overhanging chasms where a slip would mean instant death.

Where conditions of his travel through the wild fastness make it necessary he drops to all fours and continues on his way.

Jimmy has been compared to the agile ape. But as I gazed at his amazing antics I could think only of a roly-poly bear cub.

"The boy is being brought up under the 'natural methods' advocated by Dr. Elmer Lee, editor of Health Culture magazine," said the father.

Think of the word "nature" and you'll immediately perceive the fundamentals of Jimmy's training.

Food? Mother milk until he was 20 months old. Then five meals daily of vegetables, figs, dates and bananas. No milk, no cooked foods of any kind.

Twelve Hours' Sleep.

Sleep? From 6 at night to 6 in the morning, on a hard bed, with head lower than feet. No pillow. Wide open windows.

Toys? Rocks and sticks.

Clothes? None, summer or winter, except where the rigors of unsympathetic city ordinances make apparel necessary.

The father and mother are religious. Yet Jimmy will not go to church until he is 10.

"He must understand why he goes to church" said the father.

No school for Jimmy until he is 15.

"Then," said James Syracuse, Sr., "he will learn to read in six months, and be leading his classes in two years."

Father and mother were born in Italy. The father is 24. His wife is 21. They have been in America several years and were married in New York. The father is an American citizen and served in the army intelligence service during the war.

James Syracuse operates a large candy factory, but his family doesn't eat sweets. He has a fine home, but he and his wife and Jimmy live on the top floor of a six-story "walk up" where rent is $35 a month because this particular apartment affords more light and better air than the fine residence.

Morning the father accompanies the boy in his perilous journeys among the cliffs, while the mother devotes her afternoons to the job Truly, being the parents of a wonder child has its drawbacks. The two seemingly live entirely for the marvelous Jimmy.

"My wife is the most wonderful woman in the world," said Syracuse.

"The baby has never been sick. He never has a cold. He plays in poison ivey and is immune," he continued. "Every baby could be that way. But it means much sacrifice of the pleasant things provided by an over-civilized world."

Laughed at Movies.

Neither fame nor fortune can tempt Mr. and Mrs. Syracuse from their unswerving determination to make Jimmy a paragon.

"We laughed in the face of a great movie magnate who wanted our Jimmy to act" said Syracuse. "I don't make much money, but we don't need much to live as we do."

One thing more. If you're a parent and want to adopt the "nature life" for your child, DON'T write to James Syracuse. He's friendly and agreeable, and all that—but he received 15,000 requests for detailed information in the space of a week. The letters, necessarily, all are unanswered.

ONE MAN KILLED AND EIGHT OTHERS INJURED.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 27. Canadian Press. — One man was killed and eight persons injured—two of them perhaps fatally, when three large autos collided on the Hamilton Highway four miles east of Oakville on Saturday afternoon.

Tudhope, 51 Spadina road, Toronto, are both in the Toronto General Hospital, with internal injuries which may prove fatal. Their condition was regarded last night as extremely critical. The other six victims of the accident are Dr. Adam Hilker of Hamilton, Herbert E. Hawkins, a druggist, of Hamilton; James Richards, chauffeur for H. C. Cox, Oakville; Geo. HEARST NOW CLASSED WITH KLU KLUX KLAN.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Apart from the negro problem in the south and the Oriental question in the west, two great evils which must be fought in the United States to-day are the Hearst Press and the Ku Klux Klan, according to James Morton, of New York, who addressed the Reform Club here Saturday. His solution to the race problem was breakdown of language barriers by universal teaching of Esperanto.

New York has more illiterate women than any other State in the Union.

STUDENTS DISGRACED AT ARMY AND NAVY GAMES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Conduct of Annapolis midshipmen at the Army and Navy football game in Philadelphia Saturday aws arraigned in a public statement to-day by Secretary Denby of the Navy Department declaring that members of the corps had brought disgrace not only on themselves but on the Naval Academy.

"How many midshipmen drank heavily, I do not know," said the secretary's statement, but he added that despite good behaviour of the navy, enough midshipmen had "failed to do their duty to their uniform and to their country to bring shame upon all." He announced that an investigation would be ordered.

How prettier teeth came to millions

Have you noted the glistening teeth you see everywhere today? And the open smiles that show them?

You can see that some great change has come in teeth-protecting methods. If you don't know what that change is, we urge you to make this test.

They combat the film

These people—millions of them—are now combating film. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It absorbs stains, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

These troubles had been constantly increasing. Beautiful teeth were less often seen than today. And all because no old-time tooth paste could effectively fight film.

The problem solved

Then dental science, after long research, found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. Then these two great film combatants were embodied in it.

Five unique effects

Pepsodent brings five effects which old ways never brought. Modern research proves them all important.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's great tooth protecting agents. Pepsodent, with every use, gives them manifold effect.

Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film less easily adheres.

Nearly all the world over Pepsodent is bringing a new era in teeth cleaning. Careful people of some fifty nations now employ it, largely by dental advice. Every dainty person now should know the benefits it brings.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

The results will amaze and delight you. Even one week will convince you. Do this for your family's sake. Cut out the coupon now.

A FORWARD STEP IN IMMIGRATION

Enlarged Activities by Canadian Government Announced Today.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press). — A "pronounced forward step" in immigration activities of Canadian Government is announced to-day by Hon. Charles Stewart, acting Minister of Immigration and Colonization. Aggressive publicity in Britain and the United States, gradually extended into Scandinavian countries, Holland Belgium and France, supported by an effective agency follow-up is indicated. Special efforts will be made toward repatriation of ex-Canadians now in the United States the securing of female domestics and encouragement of the immigration of children from Britain.

After enumeratng some of the difficulties which Canada has had to face during recent years in immigration matters, chief among which have been the surpluses of certain kinds of labor in Canada, sudden deflation of land values in the United tates, and a discount on the capital of British settlers due to depression in sterling exchange the minister concludes that these conditions, too, are righting themselves and that the time is ripe for an active immigration propaganda. Free homesteads will no longer be the chief magnet, but efforts of the department will be directed toward settling up and making productive vacant lands convenient to railways. Efforts will be large ly centralized upon settlers in a position to buy land, but a new departure will be taken in creating machinery through the immigration department for bringing renters into direct contact with owners desiring to rent their lands In this way it is hoped to place the tenant farmer in a position eventually to become a land owner in Canada.

A vigorous advertising and publicity campaign will be immediately initiated Increased efforts will be made to secure a much larger number of household workers, but it is intimated that there will be no lessoning of restrictions as to the health and moral desirability of immigrants.

The Minister has not been able to consider favorably schemes for assisted land settlement, but hopes to work out a plan of close co-operation with organizations interested in immigration Child immigration is looked upon with much favor, and activities in this connection will be extended.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—A moderate amount of business in cash grain was done in the local market Saturday with a steady demand. There were no new developments in the local flour market. The millfeed market was unchanged, prices being firmly maintained, and the demand for rolled oats was steady.

Prices of strictly new-laid eggs have scored a further advance with sales at 75 cents a dozen. There was no important change in other grades. Total receipts for the season to date are 473,915 cases against 455,576 cases for the same period of 1921.

A fairly active business is obtaining in butter. Total receipts to date have been 167,996 packages in excess of the same period of last year.

An easier feeling has developed in cheese, but trade in the finest grades has been slow. Total receipts to date have been 371,046 boxes less than in the same period of 1921.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.— (Canadian Press).—Liquidation was on in the grain markets to some extent Saturday and with a lack of aggressive support prices declined readily to a new low for the week. Corn was off 1 3-8 to 1 5-8c; oats were 3-8c to 1 1-4c down, but provisions varied from unchanged figures to 15c higher.

The Coughs and Colds of Children

Only the mother knows how hard it is to keep the children from taking cold, they will get overheated and cool off too suddenly, get their feet wet, kick off the clothes at night, and do a dozen and one things the mother can't prevent.

A great many mothers are now giving their children

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

It is pleasant and nice for them to take and relieves the cough or cold in a very short time.

Mrs. J. Wilson, Portage La Prarie, Man., writes:—"I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my five children. My little girl, two years old, had a very bad cold last Winter, which I thought was croup, I had some "Dr. Wood's" in the house so gave it to her and she was fine the next day; also my baby, three months old, had a bad cold and I gave it to him. It cuts and brings up the phlegm, and is the best cough medicine I ever used."

NEW GREEK GOVT. N

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press)—Premier Gonatis, leader of the revolutionary movement in which King Constantine was overthrown, has formed a new cabinet to take the place of that headed by Premier Zaimis, which resigned Friday, according to a despatch from Athens.

Colonel Plastiras, the despatches assert, is not included in the cabinet, but will become leader of the revolutionary committee.

A MOB LICKED POLICE OF N.Y. TO A FRAZZLE

Overflow Meeting of Irish Republican Sympathizers Developed Into the Liveliest Riot in Years

WOMEN FOUGHT TOO

NEW YORK, November 27 (Canadian Press). — An overflow meeting from Earl Carroll Theatre, Fiftieth Street and Seventh Avenue, where Irish Republican sympathisers gathered last night to denounce the execution of Erskine Childers and the "murder" of Mary McSwiney, turned into a riot.

After half an hour's strenuous battle, the police, their uniforms torn and their faces scratched by furious women, gave up their attempt to disperse the crowd, and became spectators.

The mob's fight for "Self-Determination,' 'as they called it, was one of the liveliest that has been seen in New Yorks streets in many a year.

Banners were smashed over policemen's heads, clubs were snatched from their hands and used against them, women screamed and clawed at them, an effigy of King George was burned, and somebody turned in a fire alarm, and when the firemen arrived the crowd turned on them.

Reserves from West Forty-seventh Street Station were literally licked to a frazzle, and when they got through were a sorry-looking body of men.

Gains 35 Pounds Rheumatism is Gone

The wonderful reconstructive powers of Tanlac are again very forcefully demonstrated. In this instance the grateful beneficiary is John H. King, locksmith, living at 229 14th Ave., West, Calagry, Alberta, who declares:

"Tanlac built me up to good health with a gain of thirty-five pounds in weight, over a year ago and I have been feeling fine ever since. Just after coming back from overseas, about two years ago, I was taken down with an attack of rheumatism that crippled me up so I couldn't work and sent me to a hospital for about ten months.

"During this long siege of rheumatism I lost fifty-five pounds in weight, going down from one hundred and sixty five to only one hundred and ten. I was just a shadow of my old self and had no strength or energy left.) I was terribly run down and felt tired out and exhausted all the time.

"Finally I resorted to Tanlac and got back on my feet so quick that it surprised me. It proved to be so well suited to my needs that by the time I finished the fourth bottle I was feeling a hundred percent well As a medicine and tonic to build a person up and make them feel right I don't believe Tanlac has an equal."

Queen's Defeated Argos-P.C.I. Lost to Oakwood-Other Sports

Argos Defeated in Last Minutes of Epic Struggle

SCORE WAS 12 TO 11

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—(Special to the Examiner by Staff Correspondence)—The mighty Argonauts were humbled Saturday in one of the greatest gridiron battles in the history of Canadian rugby. Leadley booted a drop in the dying minutes of the game which gave the tri-colour the much needed three points for a 12 to 11 victory over last year's champions.

Queens by virtue of Saturday's epic victory earned the right to meet the Edmonton Eskimos next Saturday in the game for the Canadian Rugby Championship series.

The Argos mighty in their record of no defeats this season were the favored team when they took the field, and the victory for the Kingstonians came as the result of a terrific struggle which stamped them as one of the gamest teams in Canada. The victory for Queen's was well-earned and to Leadley, Batstone and Thomas must go the greatest credit for the win. Leadley in particular, took a prominent part, swinging a husky and an accurate toe which booted the tri-colour to victory.

His great run for forty-five yards in the final period was the best of the game and placed his team in position for the field goal which won the game and which he kicked himself.

The mighty Connacher, the mainstay of the Argos was unsteady during the initial half of the game but showed his old form in the third period when his work was mainly responsible for the eight points which gave the Argonauts a two-point edge at the end of that session.

First Quarter.

Leadley kicked to Stirrett who returned. Queens made their yards to kick on the second and when Connacher fumbled the ball, Bob Muirhead broke through to recover it on Argo's thirty-five yard line. From here Leadley kicked to Sullivan who was held for a point. Queen's 1; Argos 0.

In a kicking exchange which followed Connacher kicked over the Queens line, but Leadley ran it out to the fifteen yard line. Argos got the ball on a bad pass and carried it to Queen's fifteen-yard line and Connacher kicked a dandy field goal from a bad angle. Argos 3; Queen's 1.

Queen's retaliated almost immediately, Leadley making a great forty yard run and kicking for a rouge from the thirty-yard line. Queen's, 2; Argos 3.

In the exchange which followed, Queen's showed a decided superiority and made their yards with ease. The line was holding well and the backs running at will. They worked the ball up to Argos' twenty-five yard line from where Leadley booted the ball over the line to Connacher who was forced to rouge. Queen's 3; Argos 3.

Quarter time was called with Queen's in possession of the ball on Argos' fifty-yard line. Queen's had held possession for the greater part of this period, giving Argos but litte chance to show their ability.

Second Period.

Queen's got through for a touch in this session. Argos started off by making yards for the first time and Connacher led the attack which carried the ball into Queen's territory. Two fifteen yard penalties, however, proved expensive and Queen's got possession of the pig skin. McKelvey tore through for a forty yard gain. Queen's made their yards and were then forced to kick to Connacher who was grassed on his own twenty yard line. Connacher kicked to Leadley who immediateiy returned. Connacher misjudged the ball right between his own goal posts and lost it when Walker tackled him. In the scramble which followed, Thomas fell on the ball for a touch. Queen's 8; Argos 3.

Leadley converted nicely. Queen's 9; Argos; 3.

Argos showed a decided strength for the remainder of the period, but could not get within striking distance and the half ended with Queen's in possession on their own forty-five yard line.

Fumbles and penalties for off side had been costly to Argos in this period though they played a great game after Queen's had scored.

Third Period.

Connacher kicked off to Batstone who was downed on his twenty-five yard line. Another penalty and Leadley's kick sent them back but brought the ball back thirty-five yards for Argos' greatest gain of the day. Connacher then kicked to Batstone who was held for a rouge. Queen's 9; Argos 4.

Ladley's toe sent the ball to Argos forty yard line but the Argo strength was again apparent and Connacher played a big part in carrying the ball back deep in the Queen's territory. Here Connacher tried an outside whick which Batstone recovered but was held for a rouge. Queen's 9; Argos 5.

Queen's kicked to Connacher on the third down and he returned to Batstone who was held on the twenty-five yard line. Fear broke through and beat Batstone to it in recovering Leadley's blocked kick, the ball being held on Queen's ten yard line. Connacher went through for eight and Dinsmore took it two more for a touch. Argos 10; Queen's 9.

Queen's got the worst of it in the kicking which followed forcing them to defensive play. Leadley finally kicked out of the trouble area and the period ended with Queen's in possession on Argos thirty-five yard line.

Fourth Period.

Batstone was forced to kick to Connacher who went through for twenty yards and followed this with a thirty yard run. He had but one man to pass when he was downed. Another penalty gave Queen's the ball and a life. The first down netted five yards for Queen's, but on the second Leadley broke through all opposition for forty-five yards, the greatest gain of the day. Connacher felled him on the twenty yard line in a good position for a kick. The ball went back to Leadley on the thiry yard line from where he booted a neat drop which won the game. Queen's 12; Argos 11

Dinsmore and Connacher forced the play into Queen's territory till Connacher kicked to Batstone, who was grassed on his fifteen yard line. Queen's made their yards twice and the game ended with the tri-colour in possession on their thirty-five yard line.

Detroit Won

DETROIT, Mich., Nov 27.—(Canadian Press)—University of Detroit's aggressive football team outplayed Washington and Jefferson, classed as one of the strong teams of the east here Saturday, and won 20 to0. The result was a surprise as W. & J. had ruled a top-heavy favorite.

Detroit secured two touchdowns and two field goals, against one touchdown and a safety by the visitors.

The play was in W. & J. territory during the major portion of the game.

RAYBESTOS WON BY LAST INNING RALLY

Two Runs in the Final Frame Gave Them an Edge on the Quaker Oats Nine.

Two runs in the final frame gave the Raybestos nine a 10 to 8 victory over the Quakers in the Soft Ball League game at the Armoury Saturday afternoon. The winners started off like wild fire and tacked up five tallies in the second inning following this exhibition with one in the fourth and two in the sixth. Quakers came back strong in the fourth with four runs and one in the sixth. They went to bat in the eighth three runs to the bad but managed to score the three to tie it up. In the last session the brakemakers staged a rally which sent two runs across the pan and the Quakers were retired in order.

Gilchrist did the pitching for the Quakers and put over ten strikeouts but was extremely wild at time and issued no less than fourteen walks. McLeod for the Raybestos fanned twelve without issuing a pass.

WOOLLENS STREAK OF WINS ALL SHOT

Engineers Hit Freely and Piled Up a Big Score on Saturday Afternoon.

The Engineers stepped in and blew an awful hole in the winning streak, which the Woollens' softball team had been celebrating for the past six or seven games, when they walloped McLean all over the lot and trotted off with a victory and a 21 to 3 score. It is the first bad break the Woollens have made. Up to Saturday they had been sweeping everything before them, but in this game everything went wrong and the Engineers had an easy time of it. McLean was not only hit freely, but he got poor support in the field and his team failed miserably at the bat. In five of the nine innings played they were retired in order.

Langley did the mound work for the winners and in addition to pitching a first class game received first class support, both in the field and with the willow. The Engineers started off by scoring eleven runs in the first three innings, but took it fairly easy from then on. The only inning in which the Woolens showed any signs of strength was in the fourth when they sent all three of their runs home but they failed to do anything at any other stage of the contest.

The players were:

Engineers—McCarney rf, Metheral 2b, Helson c, Batten ss, Caruthers lf, Frost ss, Langley p, Jackson 3b, Munro 1b.

Woolens—Hopkins c, Hillier rf, Clarke 2b, McLean p, Legros 1b, Kennedy 3b, Lang lf, Gregory ss, Sims ss, Stiles ss.

Score by innings:

Michigan Again Won Championship

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press)—Michigan's undefeated football team reclaimed its claim with Iowa to the "Big Ten" championship by defeating Minnesota, 16 to 7, here Saturday afternoon.

The game, viewed by 23,000 spectators, was replete with thrills and it appeared in the first quarter that the Gophers were going to down their old rivals. Michigan, however, found itself in the second period scoring two touchdowns for a 14 to 7 lead. In the final period, the Wolverines added to their total by a place kick by Blott.

The seven points scored by the Gophers was the largest score against the Yotsmen this season.

P. C. I. Put Up Great Battle Against Oakwood But Lost

Fumble Paved the Way for a Rouge in the Last Period to Give the Visitors a One Point Lead.

SCORE WAS 8 TO 7

By the smallest possible margin the Peterborough Collegiate team was eliminated from the Interscholastic O.R.F.U. series at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, when they went down before the Oakwood High School team, winners of the Toronto High School group, by a score of 8 points to 7.

The final score is a true criterion of the play, for it was a stubborn, tensely fought battle between two teams so evenly matched that scoring opportunities were few and far between, and the buck of the play took place in mid-field. Oakwood got away to a good start by scoring six points to one in the first period, but from then on P.C.I. had the edge, outscoring the visitors 7 to 2 in the last three quarters, and coming from behind to tie the Toronto crew at the end of the third period, only to have a double break of a fumble and a bad decision by Referee Davis snatch victory from their grasp by making it possible for the Oakwood twelve to score the winning point at the beginning of the last quarter.

The twist of luck gave the visitors the lead again just when the desperate rush of the P.C.I. team threatened to sweep them through to triumph, and Oakwood deserve congratulations upon their strong defence and good judgment in protecting that slender margin to the finish. Once they flashed in front in the last quarter they took no chances, holding the ball as long as possible and refusing to risk losing possession on spectacular plays. Their halves rose to the occasion, handling punts cleanly and making good gains in running back kicks, and the result was that P.C.I. were held outside of scoring range all through the period, never being able to get close enough to boot over for the point that would have tied the score.

The Peterborough crew made a grand showing against the champion Toronto Collegiate and held their own all along the line. It was the toughest kind of luck for them to come from behind after a heroic effort and then to have victory slip away from them as it did. They play that beat them came right at the beginning of the last quarter. Oakwood kicked off to Mulholland, who passed to Fanning. The latter let the ball get away from him as he was tackled and it rolled into touch at Peterborough's quarter, touching an Oakwood player on the way. Peterborough should have had possession of the ball, but Referee Davis apparently missed the play, for he gave the oval to the visitors, who tried two line plays without success and then kicked over for a single. As it turned out the point meant a win for them.

The best man on the field, the most spectacular as well as the most useful, was Legon, the P.C.I.'s flying wing, whose dodging runs through broken fields had the crowd cheering time after time. It was Legon's spectacular work in the third period that put Oakwood on the defensive, and the try which tied up the game was the direct result of a sensational 40-yard run by this same grand little player, who carried the ball to Oakwood's 5-yard line after the most brilliant play of the day. Next to Legon, Bookhout was the most effective P.C.I. player, the sturdy half-back ripping through Oakwood's line time after time for good gains, while he did excellent work on secondary defence. Young at quarter was steady and reliable all through and Mulholland at centre half was of great assistance. The wing line showed good advantage against Oakwood's well trained and sturdy advance guard, although their tackling in the open was not always as accurate as it has been in other games this season.

P.C.I. were greatly handicapped by the fact that Fanning's bad knee spoiled his effectiveness. He has been one of the mainstays of the team, sharing with Legon the honours in running plays, while he has also been of great service in plunging. He could not get started at all on Saturday, and as Oakwood almost invariably directed their kicks at him his crippled condition had a big effect.

For the visitors Taylor and Billings, on the back division, and the two line plungers, Crowe and Dundas, showed to greatest advantage. Taylor not only ran well, but kicked splendidly, while Bilings was steady and effective. Crowe and Dundas hit the line hard, and although they did not always get through, they were responsible for the gaining of much ground by their team, doing especially good work when Oakwood had the ball in their own territory and it was not advisable to open up the play. The tackling of Hanlay and Maxwell, the outside wings, was consistently good. Standish, the Ontario junior 100-yard and 220-yard champion, was used as a sub. He got away once for twenty yards, but after that P. C. I. smothered him completely.

The field was hard and dry and the conditions good for fast rugby, although the spectators found it hard work to keep warm. The wind was nearly cross-field, with a little advantage to the team kicking south. A good sized crowd saw the battle.

By periods the score was:

	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
P.C.I.	0	2	5	0	—7
Oakwood	6	1	0	1	—8

The teams:

Oakwood Collegiate.

Flying wing—Bryant.
Halves—Hancock, Taylor, Billings.
Quarter—Scarlett.
Snap—Smith.
Inside wings—Currie, Crowe.
Middle wings—Morgan, Dundas.
Outside wings—Hannay, Maxwell.
Subs.—Standish, Pugh, Gibson, Dodds, Conboy, Roberts.

Peterborough.

Flying wing—Legon.
Halves — Fanning, Mulholland, Bookhout.
Quarter—Young.
Snap—Cowan.
Inside wings — Fleming, Eastwood.
Middle wings—Broune, Stacey.
Outside wings—Johnston, Hay.
Subs.—Parrington, Maniece, E. Rye, W. Rye, McColl, Menzies.
Referee—Sweeney Davis, Toronto.
Umpire—Dick Sheehy, Peterborough.

Oakwood won the toss and elected to kick south, favoured to some extent by the wind. Mulholland kicked off for Peterborough, and without gaining yards, were forced to kick. Getting possession at cen- Oakwood, after trying two line plays tre, P.C.I. plunged for yards on nice plays by Young and Bookhout. The second attempt, however, failed to gain the necessary distance and Oakwood got the ball. On their second line play they were penalized fifteen yards and Taylor punted on the next line-up. P.C.I. bucked for eight yards on two downs, and then Mulholland punted to Billings at Oakwood's forty-yard line. An extension run sent Taylor around Peterborough's right end for a twenty-yard gain, and after a five-yard plunge by Crowe Oakwood repeated the end run play. Smooth working interference boxed off the Peterborough line and Taylor had no trouble in shooting round the end, and with a clear field galloped thirty-five yards for a try. He was at the line before Fanning reached him and tore through the tackle without trouble. The Oakwood half failed to convert his own try, but the visitors were in front 5 to 0.

Play was in mid-field for some time after the kick-off. A fumble by Taylor gave P.C.I. the ball at centre, Hay dropping on the oval, but after failing to gain they were forced to kick and a nice run by Hannay brought the play into Peterborough territory. Oakwood could not smash through again, however, and Billings, on the third down, kicked into touch in goal to Fanning for a point. Oakwood 6, Peterborough 0.

From the scrimmage at Peterborough's quarter Johnston got away for a nice gain and Fanning plunged for yards. P.C.I. lost the ball on downs, but an Oakwood offside helped, and when Billings kicked to Legon the flying wing made a nice run for a good gain. Twice in succession the Petes bucked for yards, Bookhout and Stacey carrying the ball.

When the teams changed ends at the beginning of the second quarter, and extension run with Legon on the end sent the Petes' flying wing away for a brilliant 40-yard dash, Mulholland giving him a great chance by a fine pass. Good bucking by Stacey and Young gained yards, and P.C.I. were in striking distance. The Oakwood defence tightened, however, forcing Peterborough to kick, and Mulholland booted over the line to Billings, who was drowned for a rouge. Oakwood 6, P.C.I. 1.

Good plunging by Dundas and Crowe gained yards for Oakwood, and Standish went round P.C.I.'s left end for twenty yards, carrying the play to centre. It remained there for some time until finally a long punt by Taylor resulted in a rouge for Oakwood, Fanning being literally "lassoed" behind his line. Oakwood 7, P.C.I. 1.

A pretty run by Legon after the ball was put into play at Peterborough's quarter, followed by successful plunges by Bookhout, Stacey and Broune, brought the ball back to mid-field. Oakwood recovered a P. C. I. onside kick, but Standise was nailed for a big loss and a fumble gave P.C.I. possession. They plunged for yards, and then Oakwood held. On the third down Young tried to drop a goal from the field from the thirty-yard line. His kick was accurate, but low, going under the crossbars. P.C.I. came near scoring a try on the play, for Billings fumbled and Taylor was lucky to save, with Mulholland on top of him, the Petes' centre half forcing a rouge. Oakwood 7, P.C.I. 2. Half time was called a moment after.

Brilliant work by Legon featured the third quarter. A fumble of a long kick put Oakwood on the offensive early in the quarter, but the P.C.I. line held tight, and the visitors on the third down tried an onside kick. Legon grabbed the ball, however, and carried it out twenty yards through a broken field, shaking off half a dozen tackles. A moment later the fiery-headed flying wing was again in the limelight when he grabbed a nicely placed onside kick from Mulholland and tore down the side of the field for thirty yards. Play remained in mid-field for some time, the ball frequently changing hands. The quarter was nearly over when Legon came through with a sensational play that enabled P.C.I. to sew up the game.

With the Petes in possession at Oakwood's 45-yard line, Legon on a fake buck, engineered by Bookhout, took a pass from Young and sifted through the right side of Oakwood's line, and twisting and dodging through the visitors' secondary defence carried the ball to Oakwood's five-yard line before he was finally downed. Bookhout gained two yards on the first down, but Oakwood held like a rock on the second attempt. On the third down, however, Young, after fumbling the ball when it was snapped to him, recovered quickly and wiggled through for the necessary distance, barely getting the ball over the line for the try that evened up the score. Mulholland failed to convert. Oakwood 7, P.C.I. 7.

Before the ball could be put into play again three-quarter time was called, so that Oakwood's kick-off was the first play in the last period. It was a costly one for P.C.I. Mulholland took the kick-off and passed to Fanning, who lost the ball as he went down, and it rolled into touch at Peterborough's quarter. Two line plays failed, but on the third down Taylor kicked over the P.C.I. line for a single. It was the winning point, for the P.C.I. could not get within scoring distance for the rest of the game, play being in mid-field for most of the period. P.C.I. got one chance when an Oakwood kick was blocked and Broune recovered the ball. P.C.I. could not gain, however, and had to kick, Young tackling Taylor at Oakwood's twenty-five-yard line. The visitors worked the ball away from the danger zone, however, and P.C.I. did not get another opportunity, the final whistle sounding just as Fanning took a punt from Taylor at Peterborough's thirty-five-yard line. The visitors got away with several instances of running interference in the period. Had they been detected the result might have been different.

Harvard is Outgeneraled By Her Old Rival, Yale

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Three startling reversals in form stood out yesterday in an analysis of Saturday's gridiron events, as the climax to a season already conspicuous for its upsets in the dope.

Harvard, coming back brilliantly, after reverses at the hands of Brown and Princeton, out-generaled its traditional rival, Yale, to win to to 3, after the Blue had been established generally as a favorite.

Less prominent but equally as sensational were the victories of Detroit University over Washington and Jefferson, 20 to 9, and Dartmouth over Brown, 7 to 0, at Boston. W. and J. regarded as one of the strongest elevens in the east, outplayed Detroit in nearly every department of the game, only to lose as the alert westerners profited by intercepted forward passes and fumbles. Dartmouth, fighting to atone for setbacks from Vermont, Cornell and Harvard, also was aided by a fumble in scoring a touchdown after battling to a standstill the conquerors of the Crimson.

Two other outstanding games in the east came close to increasing the list of upsets. Army, the favorites, struggled desperately in the last quarter to snatch victory from the Navy, 17 to 14, on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, while Lafayette, beaten but once since late in the Fall of 1920, met unexpected opposition from its traditional rival, Lehigh, and won by the slim margin of a field goal, kicked by "Boots" Brunner in the last few minutes of play.

Willard Ready to Stage a Come-back

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press)—In a telegram received Saturday by Charles J. Murray, matchmaker for the Queensbury Athletic Club of this city, Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world, intimates that he may consider other opponents if Jack Dempsey refuses him a return bout.

Replying to offer for a match here with Floyd Johnson, Willard wired: "Can's give definite answer until I consult with Jack Kearns within next two weeks regarding return match with Dempsey. If Dempsey refuses to give me return match will immediately get in touch with you regarding details for Johnson match. Am in great shape and will surprise a lot of wise guys when I start."

It is estimated that the earth can support a population of 6,000,000,000 a total which, it is further estimated will be reached about 2100 at the present rate of increase.

DEMPSEY IS READY TO MEET ED. LEWIS

Champ is Understood to Have Signed a Million Dollar Contract in Chicago.

CHICAGO, November 27. Canadian Press. — Jack Dempsey announced here yesterday that he had accepted the offer of A. H. Woods, the theatrical producer, for a mixed bout with Ed. ("Strangler") Lewis, the wrestler, and for fights with two boxers yet to be named. The terms for the three matches are understood to approximate one million dollars.

The place for the matches has not yet been made, Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, said, but indicated that Jersey City and New York were being considered. The first match will be held in about three months, Kearns indicated. Harry Wills, the negro fighter, and Joe Beckett, are being considered as Dempsey's opponents for the second and third matches, he said. Dempsey and Kearns passed through Chicago yesterday en route to Salt Lake City. Kearns said that they would return east in about three weeks, when plans for the fight are to be completed.

FINE SHOWING BY THE COLLEGIATE

The Peterboro Collegiate Rugby Team and their coach Mr. Browne, deserve the greatest credit for the fine showing made this season in the Inter-Scholastic O.R.F.U. Series. On Saturday against the best Collegiate team in Toronto picked from 1250 students, the P.C.I. were outlucked rather than out-played to lose by one point after a memorable battle. Undoubtedly if Fanning had not been handicapped by a crippled leg, the local students would have earned the decision and entered the finals of the series. Their stand against Oakwood reflects great credit upon the coaching they have received for the advantage in such games usually goes to the Toronto teams, who not only have more students to pick from but an opportunity to see football played by senior teams, and thus to pick up the fine points of the game, a privilege that is as a rule denied the boys of the smaller towns.

The P.C.I. team has won four games out of five, and run up a score of 97 to 25 in the five contests. Only two touch downs have been scored against them this year and material has been disclosed that should give a good account of itself in future years. Should some of the P. C. I. stars decide to enter one of the universities after leaving the Collegiate, they should have a good chance to qualify for the Inter-Collegiate series, Legon, especially, although light is so fast on his feet and so clever in broken field running that he could make a good bid for a berth in the faster company.

It is from the Collegiates of the country that the bulk of the Rugby material is coming and Peterboro promises to supply its share.

The Daily News

Scene: Typewriters, scattered newspapers, confusion, noise, etc., etc., —an ordinary newspaper editorial one.)

Time: Any old time at all.

Act 1.—(The first and last and only one.)

The Reporter, of the generally accepted type, slouch, baggy trousers, pencil behind ear, piercing eyes and a "nose for news": Fine day today, no murders, no thefts, no politician's meeting, no nothing. "H'm," stroking his "nose for news", "a lot of good you are today; guess I'll have to use my head instead, eh? A bit of imagination, say 'reporter gets a testimonial of good-will from fellow-citizens' great stuff, if it were true. Gosh, it wouldn't be the first time I have had to use my imagination in a pinch, either," giving his nose a vindictive slap, and looking around the room, to find it empty.

A loud confusion is suddenly heard and a crowd rushing in, shout all together: "That's HIM!" "Let me get at HIM!" "Here HE is!" They darken the editorial room, and surround the reporter, gesticulating and throwing their hands wildly about.

The crowd is a motley one,—musicians, politicians, policemen, fat women, short women, teachers, actresses, business men, flappers, and even an author. They all produce a large bundle of newspaper clippings, and the reporter, peeping behind the typewriter, recognizes with a feeling of utter dismay, the literary efforts by which he earns his daily bread.

A politician, holding up a fat, pudgy hand and asserting his authority: "Silence there! Each one in turn, Silence there, I say! Silence, don't you know who I am?" Looking at one of the newspaper clippings he also holds in his hands and reading:

"'One of our brilliant young politicians, organizer of The Keep Your Both Sides Buttered Club, president of If You Ain't Got Nothing To Do, Get Into Politics Organization, addressed . . . . Yes, that's it," forgetting the crowd and turning vehemently to the reporter, "What did you mean by reporting what I meant instead of what I said? Do you think that I think for your benefit? And if I ever think, I can assure you I never think out aloud."

An Actress, breaking into his harangue, in a high falsetto:

"Yes, and I, who do all my thinking out aloud, because I do so little of it, am called 'A pretty, fluffy thing! Didn't I spend hours and hours at night learning off by heart what to say to impress yours truly? Didn't I tell you to write down that Melle. the brilliant young actress, overwhelmed the reporter with the brilliancy of her conversation and the sparkle of her wit? Didn't I? What d'ye think I wasted my beauty sleep for? Just to entertain you?"

The Reporter: "I, I, I . . . oh, I," lets his hands fall helplessly, but quickly throws them up again, using the typewriter as a shield.

The Actress: "Oh, the ingratitude of mere reporters!" She takes out a big powder puff to wipe the tears of anger—from her cheeks.

A Society Bud (with slight scorn at one who would let such a little thing worry her): "Bah, that's nothing! What does a reporter's opinion matter anyway? But what is unbearable is that he should misspell my name! Imagine, can you, he spelt it with two 'e's! And if he had had a bit of sense, he might have known that my dress at the M. T. Head's ultra-fashionable reception was pure periwinkle, and not blue."

A Dapper Old Man in Spats: "My dear young lady. THAT was terrible! But imagine calling me a day over twenty-five, when I can positively assure you I am really, h'm, not much over twenty-four."

Others: "And I didn't give him a perfectly good ten-cent cigar just for nothing?" "Nor did I let him have four passes for 'The High-Stepper' just to tell me the truth about it!" "Villain!" "Imbecile!" "Senseless One!"

Epithets are now flying from all directions, and the poor reporter, shrunk until he is nearly completely hidden by the typewriter, awaits the end at any moment. A momentary hush follows as The Crafty One holds up his hand.

The Crafty One: "Sh! Sh! I beg you, my poor fellow-sufferers! Sh! Sh! I beg you, Sh! Let us give him a dose of his own medicine!"

Assuming a wheedling expression and looking with a malevolent stare at the thoroughly sacred reporter, The Crafty One bows with elaborate politeness to the huddled figure, and says: "I beg your pardon, kind sir, but I am from The X. No time? But this is important, I assure you—for me. Nothing to say? Oh, never . . . ."

The reporter half-guessed what was coming, and his ears had begun to turn all sorts of colors. The Crowd seemed to be enjoying themselves and The Crafty One was feeling in his element, when aid came from unexpected quarters.

The Solitary Author, catching hold of the arm of The Crafty One, and turning towards the crowd:

"Oh, I say, you're not quite fair, you know. What about you," turning to the Politician, "have you never made mistakes? And you? How would you like a bombardment like this? And you? If all your audiences knew what was behind the powder, the paint and the make-up? Each trade has its own craftsmanship, and who are we to judge?"

The Crowd, all together: "Who is the shabby gent, anyway? What is he doing here? Let's rush them both!"

They make a rush at the Reporter. The latter grabs the Solitary Author, hurls the typewriter into the midst of the surging crowd and with a yell of "Blame the typewriter!" he makes a dash through the sky-window.

The Strong Arm of the Law stretches out to grab him! Someone is shaking him by the shoulder and he wakes up, —to find an office boy holding out the last edition with "Did you get yours?"

The Reporter looks at him with a dazed expression. Then, realizing all, he gasps out, before he collapses, "Did I? YOU BET I did!"—A. S. L., in Montreal Daily Star.

"Oh, I do hope I haven't broken them" said the old lady who had fallen into a box of eggs outside the grocer's.

"Not at all, ma'am" said the polite tradesman. "One or two are just bent."

"That fellow makes a living writing light fiction," said Smith.

"Really?" replied his friend. "He doesn't look like a literary chap."

"He's not," answered Smith. "He makes out the accounts for the electric light company."

An Irishman had squeezed himself into a seat in the car between two fat women, and presently began wriggling about.

"I'm afraid that you are not very comfortable" commented one of the ladies.

"Well," responded the man, "I haven't much room to grumble"

"This clock will last a lifetime," said the jeweller, as he handed the timepiece to the customer.

"Nonsence," retorted the other. "Can't I see for myself that its hours are numbered?"

Visitor (in public gardens, interested in botany): "Do you happen to know to what family that plant belongs?"

Park-keeper: "I happen to know it don't belong to no family. That plant belongs to the municipal council."

"THE CRUSADER" WITH WM. RUSSELL HERE AT THE ROYAL

In "The Crusader," a William Fox photoplay which will begin a run at the Royal Theatre to-night, William Russell is starred in the role of a young prospector. Many of the scenes were taken in the famed Cobalt mining district.

The story is by Alan Sullivan. It was directed by Howard M. Mitchell, who is one of the leading directors of the Fox forces. The popular Fox star is supported by Helen Ferguson, Fritzi Brunette, George Webb, Carl Gantvoort, Gertrude Claire, Fred Kohler and Ralph Cloinger.

The young miner lives on a farm, but his heart is in the city. His sweetheart tells him she is leaving for the big town. Noting his disappointment, his mother advises him to try his luck in the city, realizing that there is no chance for him on the farm. He goes to the Cobalt mining district and becomes successful. An interesting love story is woven in the picture.

"The Crusader" is declared to be one of the best vehicles Russell has had.

ALL STAR CAST IN "OLD HOMESTEAD."

The phrase "all star" has been much abused but the cast of 'The Homestead" which comes to the Capitol Theatre, to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday, may truthfully be said to be of that calibre. Theodore Roberts, George Fawcett, T. Roy Barnes, Fritzi Ridgway, Harrison Ford, Kathleen O'Connor, James Mason, Ethel Wales and others make up a list that is hard to surpass.

This Paramount picture is based on Denman Thompson's famous play in which that celebrated actor appeared for 32 years, but is far more extensive in character and presents a great drama with plenty of comedy and a smashing climax.

The story is familiar—how the son of Uncle Josh is falsely accused of theft and goes away to meet with stirring adventure and finally to be restored to his home and sweetheart. But there is far more than that to the story. There is adventure, love, human character in abundance, humor that is rich and spontaneous and pathos that is deep and convincing. Tears and laughter abound.

James Cruze directed with discretion and sympathy this great story, which was adapted by Perley Poore Sheehan and Frank E. Woods, scenarized by Julien Josephson and supervised by Walter Woods.

President of Society (opening meeting) "Order, order"

Comic Member: "A cup of coffee and a doughnut, please"

Waiter: "I beg your pardon, sir, but the money you have just given me to pay your bill does not include anything for the waiter."

Diner: "Well, why should it? I didn't eat one, did I?"

Bride: "I don't think I'll make a cake by the recipe given in this paper. It will cost too much. The eggs alone will cost two dollars."

Husband: "How many eggs does the recipe call for?"

"Eighteen—the yolks of eight and the whites of ten."

A Cockney while crossing the Strand, accidentally trod on a Scotsman's foot.

"Oot, mon" replied Sandy.

"Oot yourself" replied the Cockney. "I'm not a blooming motor car."

Mrs. Talke: "How does Mrs. Gush manage to cross the social chasm?"

Mrs. Small: "I think she does it with her bridge parties."

Counsel: "What is your age, madam?" Witness, (hesitatingly): "I have seen twenty-three summers."

Counsel: "How many years were you blind?"

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: Some of us boys were sitting in for a smoke Saturday night, and we all said Peterborough is on the bum, and that unless some good man like Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., with his great plan for getting us out of the hole, was elected Mayor, it would be all over with us. What the Board of Trade means by undertaking to train young men for public service we couldn't guess. What has that board brought us to, and the other bodies. Sure no one ought to be trained here unless it is to pay taxes.

RUSS. BANDIT GANG RESPECT SUPPLIES

In Norway Attempt to Interfere With the American Relief Workers.

SAMARA, November 27 (Associated Press). — One of the largest bandit gangs in Russia—1,700 strong—which neither the Red Army nor famine has as yet stamped out, continues to operate in the Pugachof district, but in no way have the robbers ever attempted to interfere with American relief workers.

It has been estimated that about 1,200 of the men have horses. The band is made up chiefly of army deserters who operate in units of 15 to 20 men.

According to relief workers, the bandits always make it a point to avoid anything belonging to the American Relief Administration.

In Balakova the government warehouse was robbed, while the A.R.A. storage house, next door, bulging with cocoa, sugar, canned milk, and other good things to eat, was not even touched.

As an illustration of further consideration by the bandits of the famine sufferers, it is related that some of the gangs last summer rode up to one of the A.R.A. village kitchens, merely tasted the food being prepared for the children, pronounced it very good, chucked a few youngsters under the chins, wishing them good appetites, and then went their way—to the home of the village treasurer, which they looted.

SENATOR PROUDFOOT IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Questioned this afternoon regarding the condition of Senator Proudfoot, who underwent an operation in Wellesley Hospital here yesterday, officials of the institution said tersely, "He's as well as can be expected. His condition is very critical."

GOD IS LIGHT AND GOD IS LOVE.

1st John, 1:5, 6, 7; 1 John 4:8-20. This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.

If we say we have fellowship with him and walk in darkness, we lie and do not tell the truth.

But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship, one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth us from all sin.

He that loveth not knoweth not God, for God is love.

If a man says I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

THE LEAST THAT'S SAID THE SOONER MENDED

"Take this ——— telephone out, if you can't put a different partner on my line!"

The foregoing is a quotation from a letter received recently by a telephone manager, and "thereby hangs a tale," which illustrates the fact that most party line troubles are largely a "state of mind."

The Manager mislaid the letter and no action was taken.

The letter being discovered unattended two weeks later an apology was in order and Mr. Telephone Man called the complainant with this view.

Announcing that his call had reference to a letter received regarding the service, he was informed: "My daughter wrote that; I'll have her speak to you." The outlook seemed darkened until daughter arrived on the line and proceeded with gusto to thank him for what he had done. "The service has been fine ever since."

As gracefully as possible Mr. Telephone Man accepted the thanks and wondered if after all he hadn't done the right thing—merely to "wait and see."

Although in a few cases national anthems date back several centuries, none assumed its representative character until comparatively recently.

SWEDEN PREPARING CONSTRUCTIVE LAWS

Riksdag in 1923 Will Deal With New Bills of National Importances.

STOCHOLM, Nov. 27.—(Associated Press). The Swedish Riksdag in 1923 will deal with a number of new bills of national importance, according to a public announcement by a member of the present cabinet K. J. Schlyter, minister without portfolio.

Among the significant proposals to be submitted is a bill calling for extensive agrarian grants and reforms This bill deals with ways and means of apportioning arable crown lands as homesteads to individuals with safeguards property rights, for an unlimited period of time. It provides also for more extensive colonization of public domains by small farmers, and for the expropriation of privately owned land, especially parts of the holdings of large companies and mismanaged agricultural estates.

Among the other issues to be considered next year is the eight-hour law which will be disposed of in one of three ways eithers abolished, continued as a provisional measure, or enacted into a statutory law; a bill proposing that the police force in the cities and the provinces be reorganized; a new forestry conservation law designed to give the small timber owner greater privileges of cutting for personal use as well as for the market, and a new bill providing for the important reforms in the rent regulation law aimed especially at abolishing rent profiteering.

Laws giving women greater opportunities for holding public offices also are expected.

BRITISH FISHMONGER DIED A MILLIONAIRE

Sir George Frederick Slight (Bart.) Made His Millions Out of Fish.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Associated Press.)—America furnishes many instances of millionaires who rose from the ranks, but it is doubtful if even in America a millionaire ever made such a humble start in life as did Sir George Frederick Sleight, first baronet of Wetherby Hall, Great Grimsby, who has just died, leaving a fortune of nearly $5,000,000.

Sir Georges began earning his living as a boy by gathering cockles on Clethorpes Beach and hawking them through the town. He rose finally to be the largest individual owner of steam trawlers in the country. The greater part of his fleet was used during the war for mine-sweeping and submarine patrolling. For the services he rendered the country in this way he was made a baronet, and the conferring of the title provoked no such scandal as has grown out of the ward of many honors in recent years.

EASTERN CATTLE RAISERS REPORT HEAVY LOSSES.

ORSK, Russia, November 27. — Associated Press. — Efforts are being made here to revive the Western Asia cattle trade of the days before the war. Then there were cattle kings among the nomadic tribes who possessed as high as 30,000 head of stock, cows, steers, horses and sheep, and the entire country was given over to cattle raising and the production of grain.

But to-day these herds have been so reduced that the owner who has even a hundred head considers himself fortunate. The Orsk tanneries in the old days used to turn out hundreds of thousands of hides annually but this industry to-day is at a standstill because of the slump in cattle raising. As a result there is much unemployment in the district and hardly enough grain on hand to last the people through the winter.

MARKET OPINIONS.

A. A. Housman & Co.—Dullness on decline inspires hope that forced selling has about run its course. To us that seems a reasonable interpretation.

J. S. Bache & Co. — We are still some time away from the beginning of the next upward swing, and we see no indication that the period of wholesale collection has been definitely completed.

Joseph Thal & Co.—Until financial interests show some inclination to aggressively support the market, would confine purchases to scale buying.

TOWN PLANNING ACT OPPOSED IN COUNCIL

Measure Considered as Trespassing on City Government's Domain —Proposed Amendments Will Probably Be Opposed Before Legislative Committee.

MOTION TO COUNCIL

Because it trenched upon the preserves of municipal councils and tended to curtail and interfere with their rights, the Town Planning and Development Act will be opposed by Peterborough delegates when it comes up for deliberation before the Legislative Committee of the Legislature.

This was the decision last night of the Legal Committee, which appointed Mayor Taylor and Ald. Turner to carry out its wishes providing the Council gives its approval.

According the proposed amendments to the Act, the "Bureau of Town Planning" shall be established and placed under the administration of one of the Provincial Government's departments as designated by the Lieutenant-Governor, who shall also appoint a director of the bureau with officers, clerks and other servants as deemed advisable.

Various Duties.

The duties of the proposed bureau are numerous and various. It may, for example, upon request of a Council, provide the services of a town planning adviser with such assisting staff as may be arranged for at a wage to be fixed by the director.

It may require from a Council such returns and statements as to the bureau may seem proper, and may embody such information in the bureau's annual report. Refusal or neglect to comply with this provision shall incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars for every week in default.

Must File Plan.

Within twelve months of the passing of this Act the Council of each city, town and village, unless exempted by the board (the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board) shall file with the board for approval a plan showing the area which it is desirable shall be considered the town planning district of such municipality, and this district shall not exclude any portion of the land lying within the municipality making the application, and may include portions of lands in adjoining municipalities.

If any municipality fails to file such plan the board—that is, the Ontario Railway and Municipal

RELIEF APPEAL IS INDEFINITE

Committee of Whole Defers Action for Week on Aid to Northern Ontario

Between their desire to assist the northern Ontario fire victims and their opinion that the whole responsibility of relief should be assumed by the Provincial Government, the Committee of the Whole Council last night deferred for a week definite action on the Relief Committee's request that Peterboro contribute a sum equal to one-half a mill on the assessment, or approximately $8,000. It was understood in the lack of detailed information that this grant would be in excess of the voluntary subscriptions that have been collected here and forwarded to the Relief Committee.

"If the province handled it, the expense would be more evenly distributed" said Ald Holloway.

Mayor Taylor— Premier Drury told us the Government would not assume. He told us that it would create a precedent, and would dig up the spirit of public generosity.

Ald Turner—"It seems to me it would be a good precedent."

Ald Holloway—"I don't think fifty percent of the municipalities will obey the telegram the Mayor received."

Ald. Turner said that unemployment relief would put a burden on the cities again this winter. "Any way we can try to bring pressure to bear on Premier Drury to have the Government take it over." he suggested.

Mayor Taylor narrated the chief incidents of the recent visit of about one hundred mayors of the province to the fire swept district, indicated the extent of the loss and described the operations and results of relief work. The people were being cared for and most of the farmers would have to be assisted until the next harvest.

Ald. Holloway—"I have every sympathy with those people, but the way proposed to raise money doesn't appeal to me.

Ald. Phelan remarked that the communication from the Relief Council might be left in abeyance until the Council meeting next Mon-

THE TIERNANS WILL FORGIVE NEW ESCAPADE

Second Marriage is Result of "Mental Intoxication" Professor Explains to the Press,

FORGIVE, FORGET

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 28.—Another sensational angle in the marital relations of Prof. John P. Tiernan and Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, principals in the Poulin paternity case presented itself here with a reconciliation between the professor, whose decree of divorce from Mrs. Tiernan was invalidated Saturday by the local Superior Court, following his marriage to Mrs. Blanche Brimmer, and the first Mrs. Tiernan.

Prof. Tiernan, in a statement, said he and Mrs. Tiernan had agreed to "patch up their differences." He also said he had agreed to recognize "Baby Billy," over whose paternity the recent Poulin-Tiernan case arose, as his son.

Mr. Tiernan said his Crown Point, Indiana, marriage Saturday was the result of mental "intoxication." He said he and Mrs. Tiernan would drop all action looking to re-opening the paternity case against Poulin.

Prof. Tiernan came to South Bend yesterday at 10 a.m. He went immediately to the Tiernan home and, after a conference with his first wife, issued a formal statement that the family had been re-united and that the paternity charge against Poulin would be dropped.

Tiernan's cross bill for a divorce will be dismissed to-day, the former professor said. By an Indiana statute, he added, the second marriage is automatically invalidated. The vacating of the divorce decree restored the domestic relationship that existed prior to its granting.

Blames Mental State.

"My mental state is entirely responsible for the Crown Point marriage," said Prof. Tiernan at his home. "It is impossible to conceive of the state of mind I was in. The long trial, the divorce, and all sent me off a mental tangent, an intellectual intoxication, and the Crown Point affair was the result."

At the Tiernan household, both Prof. Tiernan and Mrs. Augusta Tiernan declared that this reconciliation was the last chapter in their domestic relations. Mrs. Tiernan said the score had been evened between her the professor, her self-confessed escapade with Harry Poulin, and his second marriage to the Iowa widow, whom Tiernan said was wealthy, putting them both on the same normal plane.

"It's a victory for us all, but a greater victory for Baby Billy," Tiernan said.

Mrs. Augusta Tiernan did not receive the professor with open arms when he came home in the morning. Her attitude, she said, was of a long lost love, and she said if her husband entertained any love for Mrs. Blanche Brimmer Tiernan of Hansell, Iowa, he could go to her.

"Far be it from me to stop them if they love each other," she declared.

"Blanche Understands."

Prof. Tiernan said he and Mrs. Brimmer had come to an amicable understanding regarding the affair. "Before I left Chicago Blanche understood that all was over between us," he said.

Tiernan laughingly told how he had provided Mrs. Tiernan No. 2 with an entire change of costume at one of Chicago's leading stores in order to throw Chicago newspaper men off the scene. He had previously read news accounts of her orange trimmed hat, and the new wardrobe, with which he provided her, he said, was complete even to shoes and stockings.

Their acquaintance was formed, he said, through correspondence during the trial in South Bend. As many as three letters daily were written to him by the then Mrs. Brimmer, he said ,and they were a mental stimulus to him. They met in Chicago by pre-arrangement the following night after he received his divorce and recognized each other from descriptions each had given in letters.

The Tiernans plan to leave South Bend this week. The professor said he expected to go to Chicago, place the three children in a private home there for several weeks while they were getting settled again, and then begin the practice of law.

"This is absolutely the final chapter," he emphatically concluded.

Replies to Yesterday's Letter from the Utilities Commissioners—Declare Peterborough is Being "Peak-Loaded" With a Vengeance

In yesterday's Examiner the members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission have come to the rescue of Sir Adam Beck, because so long as my articles were confined to the city of Peterborough "they would not have much effect."

They evidently consider that the power and light users of the city of Peterborough are so blind to their own interests and so self-satisfied with themselves that they not only refuse to learn but refuse to investigate on their own account.

Then the members proceed to say: "But one or more of these articles have been published in other papers in the district and in Toronto, and they may have effect not only in regard to public ownership, but also upon this city by giving an impression that the cost of power here is excessive."

It is quite evident that the members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission have found out that those living in other districts and in Toronto are "laughing up their sleeves" at the short-sightedness of this city in not developing its own water powers on its own account so as to obtain power at one-half the cost. It is only when the self-satisfied is laughed at and made fun of that he thinks it necessary to learn and investigate.

The boast, however, is made in the article that for the year ending the 31st of October, 1921, the average cost per horse power per annum for 24-hour service is $15.97 to the power users of Peterborough. These figures jibe exactly with the 14th annual report of the Hydro-electric Power Commission, appearing on page 453, and I have no doubt that the power users of Peterborough will check up their accounts and see the wide difference that exists between what the members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission boast they are paying and what such power users are in fact paying.

Let us examine these statements. Last year for this same period the local Utilities Commission purchased 4,613 horse-power at $22.50 per horse power. That is all the power that the local commission purchased and that is all the power that the local commission had to sell.

But it cost the power and light users of Peterborough to obtain delivery of this 4,613 horse power from the Peterborough Utilities Commission for the same period the additional sum of $71,001.37. This means, in plain language, that in addition to paying $22.50 per horse power to the Hydro it cost the power and light users of Peterborough $15.30 per horse power extra to obtain delivery of such power, making in all the total average cost per horse power the tidy sum of $37.80 per annum.

These are facts taken from the 14th annual report of the Hydro-electric Power Commission and every figure can be proved, but our local Utilities Commission say that the average cost to power users is only an average cost of $15.97 per horse power. It is perfectly clear that the power and light users of Peterborough are paying a whole lot of money for power that they do not use and that they are being "peak loaded" with a vengeance.

The domestic and commercial light users during the same period consumed 3,992,488 K.W. hours, which, in plain language, means that it would take about 3,000 horse power to supply electric energy for that number of K.W. hours on an average consumption of 4½ hours per day, and this annual report shows that in the same period our power users in Peterborough are charged with consuming 4,772 horse power, making a total consumption of power about 7,771 horse power.

What an enterprising commission we have that can buy 4,613 horse power and deliver about 7,772 horse power in the same period—that is to say, our local commission, according to the Hydro report, has been "peak loading" the citizens of Peterborough to the extent of 3,159 horse power in one single year.

Is it not about time that our City Council and Peterborough Utilities Commission should either waken up and investigate on their own account or else resign in a body and submit these whole issues to the ratepayers. The reasonable chance of saving $50,000 per annum to the ratepayers of Peterborough is worth investigating.

TWO MEN ARE DEAD IN A RUNNING FIGHT.

KIWANIS CLUB SEE TELEPHONE BEHIND SCENES

An Interesting Demonstration by Employees of Local Exchange — Banquet for the Ladies.

KIWANIS NEWS

To-day's Kiwanis Club luncheon was featured by a demonstration by employees of the Bell Telephone Company in which Kiwanians had an opportunity of witnessing the operation of a switchboard from the inside and incidentally learn why co-operation is necessary between the subscriber and the telephone employees. The demonstration was in charge of Rotarian J. M. McHardy, and the operators were Miss V. Cuffe and Miss A. Campbell, with Mr. Charles Thornton behind the switchboard manipulating the mechanism.

Two new members, Carl McLean and Robert Mackey, were initiated into the club to-day, and to the former went the credit of bringing victory to the Kiwanis soft ball team last evening. Kiwanian McLean denied the accusation. Telegrams of congratulations from as far as Indian River, were read by President Frank Whitehouse, in which special mention was made of the fact that this was the first win for the Kiwanians.

Those who so far have failed to attend a Kiwanis Minstrel practice were obliged to get up and sing a number from the Kiwanian song sheet. The victims were Kiwanians Ed. Wood, Joe Middleton and J. W. Meyers. When they got through, Kiwanian Joe Wearing got up and said that having heard the culprits sing, the Kiwanians ought to feel thankful they were not in the Minstrel Show. To-night will see the final full dress rehearsal for the Minstrel Show. In this connection, President Frank Whitehouse informed the members that less than two hundred tickets remained for the two nights.

The Demonstration.

Bell Telephone subscribers in Peterborough now number close to four thousand, and the local Bell Telephone staff numbers sixty-five employees. In introducing the demonstration to the Kiwanians, Rotarian McHardy pointed out that the telephone was one of the greatest bulwarks of civilization, and its successful operation was divided between the subscriber and the employee. This was demonstrated later on the board by Miss Cuffe and Miss Campbell, who put through a number of calls and explained how mistakes were made. In the Peterborough branch the average number of calls put through each day amounts to twenty-two thousand. Mistakes are sometimes made by the operator, explained Miss Cuffe, but in a large number of cases the mistakes could be credited to the subscriber.

At the conclusion of the demonstration, Kiwanians Joe Wearing and Jack Jarry got on each end of the line and revealed a lot of scandal involving members of the Kiwanis Club.

Miss Cuffe and Miss Campbell each received a bouquet of flowers, and the feminine charm and grace of the ladies was extolled in song and story in true Kiwanis fashion. In fact it is painful to record that some of the members were more interested in this part of the programme than they were in the President's orders to attend the final Minstrel Show rehearsal to-night.

Nominations By Cork Corporation To Irish Senate

CORK, Nov. 28.—(Canadian Press).—By a vote of twenty to ten the Corporation to-day decided to make pominations to the Irish Senate created by the Free State.

Previous to the ballot a letter was read from the Commander of the Cork Irregulars, in which it was threatened that any member of the Corporation participating in such nominations would "be held as acquiescing in the murderous executions" of four young men at Kilmanhauf recently," and that "those responsible will be dealt with accordingly."

BOWLING ALLEY FEE REDUCED

Jake Solomon's Reques Acceded to By Committee of Whole Council

A reduction of $10 in the license fee on each of his four bowling alleys was recommended by the Committee of the Whole Council last evening after hearing Mr. Jake Solomon's request for the lightening of his overhead.

"I have been paying $25 to the city for each alley and the Government has added $15" said Mr. Solomon. "The alleys are closed for four months in the year during the hot weather, and under the present conditions it is impossible to pull through. I understand the Council reduced the fee on pool tables which are used the whole year round. Bowling is recognized as a healthful recreation and has no objectionable features. I had alleys in Nort Bay and New Liskeard and the most I ever paid was $10 an alley. I believe the fees I am charged here are the highest in Canada and the United States."

A Coal Problem.

Ald Holloway, chairman of the special fuel committee reported that three "mushroom" coal dealers had recently sprung up in Peterboro and were importing independent coal.

"Several of the agents of the old line companies have asked me" he said, "whether they should continue to wait for their regular supplies or go into the market and bring in independent coal also. They asked me whether we wanted them to wait or to get coal and sell it at as reasonable a price as possible. They say they won't place orders for five or ten cars unless we are behind them and will let them sell on that basis."

Some of the new dealers are quoting $18.50 a ton, Ald Holloway said. At this rate independent coal was coming into the city and the people's needs were being fairly well looked after although the price was higher than $16 because of the extra cost of independent coal.

The committee left the adjustment of this coal matter to Ald. Holloway's discretion.

Lights Out.

Ald. McIntyre was instructed to call the attention of the Utilities Commission to recent husbandry in the lighting of the streets for which the city was paying the regular charges. Ald. Phelan said that on two nights the streets were "pitch black," a condition which was scarcely the boast of "The Electric City."

DE VALERA DEFIES IRISH FREE STATERS

And Names a New Republican Government of His Own—Expect Rebel Offensive.

THE REBEL CABINET

DUBLIN, Nov. 28.—(Special).—Eamonn De Valera, to-day from his hiding place, defied the Free State by naming a new Irish Republican Government of his own.

The "Rebel" Cabinet, most of whose members are in jail, includes: President and Minister of Foreign Affairs, De Valera; Minister of Finance, Stack; Home Secretary, J. P. Rutledge; Minister of Defence, Liam Mellows; Minister of Local Government, Sean O'Kelly, and Minister of Economics, Robt. Barton.

With the announcement of the Cabinet, presaging, in the opinion from some quarters, a rebel offensive, the Free State troops renewed their drastic efforts to "get De Valera."

The Irish Republican "President" may be executed if captured. This was indicated in an interview by President Cosgrave of the Dail.

"Executions will not cease until the rebels have surrendered their arms," was Cosgrave's ultimatum.

"There can be no exceptions made in inflicting the death penalty for carrying arms," he said.

TO-DAY'S BLUNDER CORRECTED

The Postmaster says the word "City" should not be used as a part of the address on a letter or package. It does not take much longer to write out the name of the city, with the State or Province, and it may save annoying delay. Letters which are sealed with a sponge and those upon which the stamps are dampened with a sponge frequently stick together, and if a letter addressed "City" sticks to a letter addressed to another city and should be misthrown to that other city, it is a matter of chance whether or not it will be delivered; and if it is delivered there is sure to be a delay.

Travelling men sometimes fall into the habit of using the word "City" as a part of the address, forgetful of the fact that when the letter is mailed it will not be in the city in which they reside, and therefore delay, and perhaps non-delivery, is the result. The desingnation North, South, East or West before the name of the street should always be used, to avoid delay, when it is required as a part of the address.

GOVERNMENT IS NOT BOUND BY BALFOUR NOTE

If Question of Inter-Allied Debts Come Up at Lausanne Government Is Free to Reconsider.

NOT RAISED YET.

LONDON, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Replying in a guarded manner to questions in the House of Commons concerning the Inter-Allied debts and whether the Government maintained the attitude of the Balfour note, the Prime Minister said that the question had not been raised at Lausanne by France and Italy, but that if it should be raised the Government considered itself perfectly free to reconsider the question in all its aspects.

Mr. Bonar Law avoided direct reference to the Balfour note, but ference to the Balfour note,ku o)(fg clearly indicated that the present Government did not feel itself bound by it.

The Balfour note, issued in August by the Earl of Balfour, then Acting Foreign Minister, outlined Great Britain's position as desiring an adjustment of the Inter-Allied debts by an all-round cancellation, and suggested a surrender of her part of her share of reparations to be paid by Germany. It declared that Great Britain was prepared as a part of an international settlement to remit all debts due her by the Allies in respete to loans or due her by Germany in respect to reparations.

YOUNG LADY WORE CAVALRY BREECHES

Many Persons Are Wearing Uniforms Who Should Not, Cavalry Officers State.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—That in Ottawa three days after the issue of breeches bearing a blue cord to the Canadian militia, he had seen the identical article of wearing apparel on the person of a "buxom lass" sallying forth for a day's run on skiis was the statement of a commanding officer during a discussion on uniform shortages carried on here at yesterday afternoon's session at the annual meeting of the Canadian Cavalry Association. It was stated that such losses have seriously affected all mounted units and another commanding officer asserted he had more than once seen drivers of even coal carts wearing service uniforms. A resolution was adopted calling upon militia headquarters to enforce the law on the subject. This forbids the use of uniforms except upon specified occasions.

Officers of the association were elected yesterday as follows:

President—Col. J. R. Munro, Ottawa.

Secretary—Major F. B. Inkster, Ottawa.

Treasurer—Lt.-Col. R. M. Courtney, Ottawa.

Vice-Presidents will be selected from military districts Numbers 4 and 12.

Soak coloured things half an hour (white things one hour, two hours, over night or whatever time is convenient) in Rinso suds.

Soak the Dirt out.

THERE is such a simple easy way of washing rompers, school ginghams, play clothes etc., that you won't mind how many there are—thanks to Rinso.

First, make the wonderful Rinso liquid. Take half a packet of Rinso, thoroughly dissolve it in cool water, and add two quarts of boiling water. Then lay your clothes to soak in the tub of cool or lukewarm water. After one, two or three hours or in the morning give them a thorough rinsing and the dirt just runs away. No need to rub on the wash board so that holes come and colour goes.

Rinso is a wonderful product, scientifically made to wash clothes by soaking — different from soaps, chips and washing powders, and used differently.

Do not put Rinso into the tub from the package, but make the Rinso liquid first.

IF YOU USE A WASHING MACHINE

Follow directions as above. After soaking the clothes wring them into machine, add enough fresh Rinso liquid, operate and rinse, and you will have the sweetest, cleanest clothes you ever saw.

EX. ENDING SCOPE OF COMMISSION IN THE GARNEAU CASE

Royal Commission Will Try and Discover the Guilty Party or Parties.

CALL WITNESSES.

QUEBEC, November 28. Canadian Press.— — The order in council appointing the Royal Commission which was instructed to investigate the conduct of the Attorney-General's Department in connection with the murder of Blanche Garneau, a young Quebec girl who was foully put to death about two years ago, will be amended.

The commissioners will also make all possible enquiries and hear all available witnesses who may be able to supply information which might lead to the discovery of the guilty parties.

Aime Geofrino K. C., one of the lawyers for the Attorney General's Department, announced yesterday afternoon when the commission resumed operations ,that the government would so amend the order-in-council as to make it possible for the commission to attempt to discover the murderers.

This will mean not only extending the scope of the investigation, but will also require the production of many more witnesses and as a consequence the commission may be forced to sit for several weeks.

At yesterday's sessions there was little in the way of a surprise or sensation. The sordid details of the crime were again rehearsed by a number of witnesses. How the various clues had been followed by the police was explained and only incidents of a minor nature which occurred immediately after the murder and during the trial of Binet and Palmer, were brought to light in the course of the evidence.

ANGORA GOVERNMENT REPLIES TO ALLIES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 28 (Canadian Press-. — Responding to an Allied note alleging infringement on foreign commercial interests, the Angora Government says it does not recognise capitulations; that they are an anachronism; that all agreements without a time limit are susceptible of being denounced; and that the Angora Government is simply applying its own regulations, which do not admit of exceptions.

TRAIN DERAILED.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., November 28. — Canadian Press. — Passengers on Pennsylvania Train No. 30 known as the Flyer, were severely shaken up and the engineer slightly injured, when the engine and four coaches of the train left the rails near Cumberland, Ind., ten miles east of here last night, according to word received at the offices of the road here.

Horse Became Tired of Bright Lights of City.

While in the city yesterday, Mr. John Casey of Indian River lost his horse and buggy for a brief space of time. The animal was parked in a shed adjoining Bathgate's blacksmith shop on Hunter street. In some manner it broke a tie line and decided to beat it for home. It was captured on the Hunter street bridge by Mr. S. H. Mitchell and returned to its owner.

Irish Bill Passes Second Reading Without Trouble

The Only Opposition Came From Lone Communist and One Labor Member and Was Not Considered Seriously.

SOME CRITICISMS.

LONDON, Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press.)— The House of Commons last night without division passed the second reading of the Irish Constitution Bill, after a debate in a single sitting without striking incidents.

That it has fallen to the lot of a Conservative Government to pilot through Parliament final legislative sanction to measures granting Ireland such complete autonomy is one o fthe ironies of political fate. The Conservatnve Party for two generations has stoutly resisted the granting of self-governinent to Ireland in even the mildest form and no political question during that long period has provoked anything like the bitter animosities and conflicts in Parliament, on platform and in the press, which accompanied the fight around Irish home rule.

Now the fight apparently is ended, and Parliament, with a large Conservative majority, quietly accepts the principle of the new Irish Constitution without even challenging division. This is all the more remarkable as it was mainly the revolt of the "Die-Hard" section of the Conservatives against the Coalition Government for setting up a treaty with the Sinn Fein which led to the rebellion of the Conservatives against the Lloyd George leadership, and so, overthrew the Coalition Government.

Antagonism to the Constiution Bill hardly took a serious form. Its rejection was moved by a newcomer in Parliament, the Laborite, S. Saklatvale, who represents Battersea. He opposed the Bill on the ground that the Irish Treaty was signed under duress and was therefore a greater mockery than was the Act of Union.

Trouble Predicted.

The Communist, J. T. W. Newbold, seconded the motion, which was negatived without division after receiving no support whatever from any quarter of the House. M. Saklatvala, in the course of his speech, predicted that within five years Parliament would find itself under the necessity of undoing this act.

Colonel Wedgwood, one of the Laborite leaders, appealed to Mr. Saklatavala, not to press his motion to a division, arguing that whatever the circumstances of the signature of the treaty, Parliament could not go back on it.

Premier Bonar Law, in his speech, dealt in an interesting way with the question of the relations between the Mother Country and the Dominions. He moved the second reading of the Bill and set the pace for the House by the frank adoption of the statement that no matter what opinions were held, Parliament could not go back on the treaty.

All Parties Concur.

J. Ramsay MacDonald, for the Laborites, and Sir John Simon, for the Independent Liberals, expressed complete concurrence in the Prime Miniser's attitude. Thus, all the great parties in the House found themselves on common ground in favour of ratifynig the Constitution.

Mr. MacDonald said he thought the less said about the Bill the better, because to criticize it was useless, and to sympathize was dangerous. He hoped the time would never come when any attempt would be made to define in rigid legal formulae the relations between the different parts of the Empire. The safety of the Empire depended upon those relationships remaining organic rather than legal.

Colonel Gretton voiced the "Die-Hard" dislike for the treaty, but admitted it was too late to challenge its terms. He criticized some points in which he believed the Constitution did not comply with the treaty.

Sir John Simon expressed the opinion that the Constitution was finally within the terms of the Treaty. Ronald McGill, another "Die-Hard" took the same position as Colonel Gretton that while he regarded the treaty policy as disastrous he had to recognize that the mischief was done beyond repair and that Parliament had no choice but to carry it to a conclusion, and the Treaty could not be abrogated. Parliament's duty now was a pure formality. The present Parliament and Government had no option, and therfore no responsibility.

Legal Aspects.

The new Attorney-General, Douglas Hogg, in a speech dealing with the legal aspects, stated that the ultimate authority for deciding any question as between the Constitution and the Treaty would be the Privy Council. He eloquently described the bill as a message of good-will to the people of Ireland. The bill then passed its second reading.

If the Irish Bills continue the smooth progress of yesterday, they may be passed in all stages by Thursday, for there appears to be practically no disposition to amend them.

Sir William Ormsby-Gore, Under-Secretary of the Colonial Office, moved the second reading of the Irish Free State consequential provisions bill, and explainde that it dealt with the obligations of the 1920 Act in the event of the North exercising its option to remain outside the Free State, and provided machinery for continuance of the Northern Government under the 1920 Act. The Bill contains a number of detailed financial and other provisions.

Sir William said that as regarded compensation, the question had already been taken up with the Free State Ministers, and if the Ministers brought forward fair proposals respecting land purchase and compensation it was the intention of the British Government to assist in supporting the credit of the Irish State, so that claims might be set in cash. The Free State Government proposed to pass an act of indemnity, and British law officers would examine whether anything further in that connection was necessary here. The Government was anxious to deal with all these questions with the greatest expedition.

Colonel Wedgwood complained that the Government had given no estimate of the financial liabilities involved by the Bill for Great Britain, but said the Labor Party would not oppose the second reading.

The consequential provisions bill passed the second reading unanimously last night after a discussion in which the provisions of £8,000 for the salary of Governor of Ulster was much criticized. Sir William Ormsby-Gore explained that the sum would be greatly reduced by the super-tax and that the Governor would also have to pay his staff from it.

Canada Warned of Coal Situation

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—(Canadian Press.)—In a statement issued last evening the Federal Advisory Fuel Committee once more warns householders that there is little anthracite coming into Canada from the United States, and that it is important to lay in a supply of substitutes Dealers as well as consumers, it is said, are facing a situation which may lead to difficulty and possible hardship "unless the attitude of the public towards substitutes greatly alters."

The shortage of anthracite, according to the statement, is likely to continue throughout the winter and in the United States the public has been warned to lay in a thirty per cent emergency supply of either bituminous coal, coke, or the smaller sizes of anthracite, such as pea and buckwheat. It will be middle of February before the shortage of anthracite can possibly be caught up with, it is said, by which time winter transportation difficulties are generally at their worst.

PLEADED "NOT GUILTY."

CALGARY, November 28. Canadian Press. — Emili Piccarillo and Florence Lasandro pleaded "Not Guilty" to the charge of murdering Stephen O. Lawson, a provincial police constable, at Coleman, on the night of September 21st, when the charge was read to them at the special session of the criminal court with Mr. Justice Walsh presiding, when the trial opened yesterday morning.

The entire morning was occupied with selecting the jury of six men and no fewer than 48 were called before this was completed.

ALLEGE PLOT TO RAISE REBELLION OF UNEMPLOYED

Lt.-Col. Kenworthy Questioned House on Story Alleged to Have Come From Premier's Secretary.

TO PREVENT RIOT.

LONDON ,November 28. Canadian Press. — Lieut.-Colonel J. M. Kenworthy, Labor member for Hull Centre, questioned the government in House of Commomns yesterday regarding the scare story given to the newspapers a week ago forecasting riots by the unemployed.

Lieut.-Colonel Kenworthy alleged that the Premier's secretary had on November 21 summoned representatives of certain selected newspapers to Downing street and had given them particulars of an alleged plot among the unemployed to raise a rebellion. The newspapers representatives were told, according to the member, not to disclose the source of their information.

Colonel Kenworthy wanted to know on what evidence this charge of treason was based and whether any plotters had been apprehended; also why the official communique had not been issued to all the newspapers.

Premier Bonar Law replied that the Daily Herald (Labor organ) had not been invited. (Loud and ironical labor cheers.) This had not surprised him as his secretary could hardly have expected the Herald to assist in the object the government had in view. At the same time had he (the Premier) been consulted he would have sent the Herald an invitation.

Replying to a Lab member the premier admitted he was responsible for the instructions. A Labor member asked whether the Premier accepted responsibility for the statement that the leaders of the unemployed were criminals, but the Speaker intervened and said that question did not arise.

Premier Bonar Law maintained that the government was justified in the course that had been taken to prevent a riot.

A motion by Colonel Kenworthy for the adjournment of the House "to call attention to the action of the government in attempting to interfere with the freedom of the press by issuing statements to selected newspapers as official information and at the same time requiring that the source of the information be kept secret" was supported by the Laborites.

ORDERED OWN FUNERAL

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press)—It has just been revealed that Isaac Sammons, the aged negro who was suffocated from the smoke of chips to which he had set fire in a pan, bought his casket two months ago on the occasion of the death of his wife. He went to the undertakers to make all arrangements for her burial. He picked out her casket, arranged for the plot etc. and then after that was done he ordered the very same things for himself and paid for them at that time.

CITY OF VICTORIA IN NEED OF MONEY

City Council May Ask For a Receiver to Take Charge of the Affairs of the City.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 28. —(Canadian Press.) — Unless Victoria is granted substantial taxation relief in the form of new revenue sources, or a share of the provincial revenue, members of the City Council will ask that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the city's affairs, Alderman A. Todd, chairman of the council taxation committee, told the Private Bills committee of the legislature to-day.

Chairman M. B. Jackson replied that if there was no chance of a receiver being appointed by the council, representatives declared that they would apply for a receivership anyway. The city could not go on with the present revenue and must have more, they asserted .

Used Ambulance For Contagious Disease

Belleville Resident Summoned to Court For Breach of Health Act.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 28.— Nov 28. — Warning to the citizens of Belleville not to use the city ambulance for contagious disease cases was impressed upon them in police court yesterday when William McCrimmon, 5 Starling street, who had ordered the ambulance for a contagious disease case and was in consequence summoned to appear in court ofr breach of the Public Health Act.

McCrimmon was allowed to go with a warning.

VIENNA STUDENTS OBJECT TO JEWS.

VIENNA, November 28. Canadian Press. — An Anti-Semitic demonstration by students yesterday caused the suspension of classes in all the universities. Jewish students were beaten and driven from the buildings. The Christian students presented a memorial demanding that neither Jewish teachers nor students shall exceed ten per cent. of the number in the universities; and also requiring that all foreign students shall pledge themselves never to seek or accept employment in Austria.

The outbreak occurred simultaneously in all of the many colleges and academies in Vienna.

TO OPPOSE RUSSIA.

LAUSANNE, November 28 (Canadian Press). — In conference circles last night the impression prevailed that Bitain and France would oppose Russia's demand for participation in the conference on an equal footing with the other Powers. It was also reported that Britain and Fance were trying to induct Italy to adopt the same attitude.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

ROME, November 28 (Canadian Press). — The Senate last evening gave a unanimous vote of confidence to the Cabinet of Benito Mussolini, after Mussolini had delivered an effective speech in which he said he would be pleased if the Senate accorded him a unanimous vote, but that he would not be excessively flattered, by it.

STORM CAUSED HAVOC AMONG LAKE SHIPPING

Three Schooners Were Blown Ashore Near Kingston—One Will Be a Complete Wreck.

TO SAVE CARGO.

KINGSTON, November 28 (Canadian Press). — In addition to the schooner Mary Daryaw and the schooner Horace Taber, which were reported ashore yesterday morning on Four-Mile Point, it was learned later in the day that the schooner Lyman Davis, owned by J. McCullough, Napanee, and bound from Oswego to Belleville with a cargo of coal, had gone ashore during the storm on Sunday night on Waupoos Island.

The Davis seems to be in a very good position, and it is thought that the Donnelly Salvage and Wrecking Company, which has gone to her assistance, will not have much trouble in releasing her.

Considerable anxiety has been felt here regarding the Katie Eccles, another coal-carrying schooner owned by Captain Mitchell, of Portsmouth, which left Oswego the same time as the other boats with a cargo for Napanee.

The crew of the Lyman Davis say that the Katie Eccles followed them into South Bay, and it is hoped here that she is safe.

The Mary Daryaw seems to have escaped serious damage, but the Horace Taber is said to be a total wreck. Her cargo of coal, however, can be salvaged.

HUNGER MARCHERS CREATE TROUBLE.

Dumped on Poor Guardians of London, Who Repudiate the Charge.

LONDON, November 28 (Canadian Press). — The conflict between the Government and the unemployed may be carried a stage farther today, owing to the arrest in the Strand yesterday of the Rev. T. E. Pickering, of Sheffield, describing himself as a Christian Communist, who will be arraigned in Bow Street to-day on a charge of obstructing the police.

Pickering accompanied the march of the unemployed in London recently, and has been making himself prominent by speaking at unemployed demonstrations.

The delegation, representing the unemployed, is persisting in its demand to see the Prime Minister, but Mr. Bonar Law in the House of Commons yesterday reiterated his refusal to receive a deputation.

Further trouble arises from the fact that a large number of these "hunger marchers," as they call themselves, have been dumped during their sojourn in London on the Poor Guardians, who are disposed to repudiate the heavy charges thus thrust upon them.

According to the London County Council's Unemployment Committee, the number of persons receiving the Poor Law's relief has increased by 20,000 in the Metropolis during the past six weeks.

IT WILL NOT LAST.

Reports from the Old Country are to the effect that some of the new and high spirited Labor members of the House of Commons have been causing a commotion by poking audible fun at parts of the ritual and procedure of that venerable chamber, says the Winnipeg Free Press. One despatch states that a few of the members from the Clydeside have been drawing dark looks from all parts of the House for some of their actions and remarks. A Communist member, or rather, the Communist member, has caused a bit of a sensation by wearing a soft black cap within the chamber. The Speaker was not in his place at the time or it is possible that the gentleman would have been called to order.

All this is rather old stuff. Twenty-five years ago Keir Hardie, the Labor member at that time, scandalized the gentlemen of the Commons by appearing with a cap that had earflaps. He wanted to show them that he wasn't to be bowled over by tradition. But in later years Mr. Hardie became one of the most orthodox and orderly men in the Commons.

No doubt the new members who are indulging in some mild horse play will go the same route. They will find that the dignity of the Mother of Parliaments is not to be set aside lightly. A year from now it will be sitting just as solidly as ever.

NO ROOM HERE FOR THE KLAN.

The announcement made in New York by Rev. Oscar Haywood, National Lecturer of the Ku Klux Klan, that the Klan is to be made international by organizing branches in Canada should be taken with the proverbial grain of salt.

There will be no welcome anywhere in Canada for this fantastic organization with its trappery of white gowns and masks and its schemes to direct the affairs of the country by intimidation and terror.

Canada is getting along very nicely in her own way. She is satisfied with her system of government and satisfied with her laws and their administration.

Consequently she has no desire to hand over the direction of her government or the administration of justice to a mob clad, as a Canadian paper put it the other day, "in their spare night shirts."

The Ku Klux Klan as the centre figures in a thrilling motion picture ride are one thing and the same organization operating as a secret society and endeavouring to regulate Canadian affairs quite another.

Rev. Mr. Hayward declares that he has had hundreds of applications for membership from Canada and the British Isles.

No doubt he has had some, for there are fools both here and in the Motherland.

But there is no reason to fear there are enough to make it worth while attempting to float the organization of the Klan in this country.

The Kleagles had better pay attention to mending their fences on their own side of the line before they begin to branch out in a country that has no desire to witness any of their activities.

A CHANCE FOR THE YOUNGSTERS.

With the coming of the first snow comes the natural desire of the small boy to drag the beloved old sleigh from the woodshed and enjoy himself on the nearest hill.

Unfortunately, it is a pastime that is not only frowned upon by the law's representatives, but under modern traffic conditions is fraught with peril.

In the old days before the automobile arrived the danger was not so acute, but, as it has done in the case of many other things, the motor car has revolutionized the sport of coasting.

It is a risky feat on city streets nowadays to go rushing down a hillside on a sleigh when at the first street intersection a motor car may bring death to the coaster.

Already one small life has been claimed in Toronto in this manner, a young boy coasting into an automobile with the result that his neck was broken.

City regulations prohibit the use of the streets for sleigh-riding, and they must be rigidly enforced if accidents are to be avoided.

But can nothing be done to give the youngsters the benefit of the enjoyable and healthful pastime and, at the same time, ensure their safety?

The suggestion has been brought forward on several occasions that certain streets be set apart at certain hours of the day for the youngsters who want to coast.

The plan has been adopted satisfactorily, it is said, in several cities, and it offers a solution of the problem set forth by the Examiner.

Its advantages and defects might well be considered by the authorities. Certainly we are not capitalizing the recreation and health that our sparkling winters should give us if we fail to provide facilities for an amusement that is alike cheap and invigoratng.

THRIFT.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller, junior, has just been telling his Sunday school class that the basis of prosperity and happiness is thrift, says the Hamilton Spectator in an editorial to young people. Mr. Henry Ford, the millionaire motor car manufacturer, whose fortune rivals that of the Rockefeller family, gives the opposite opinion, advising people to spend their money, but to spend it judiciously, on things which will enrich them, physically and mentally. There is much to be said for both policies, though obviously both cannot be practiced at one and the same time. For the young, at any rate, the counsel of Mr. Rockefeller would seem to be the more acceptable. It would never do to cultivate spendthrift habits early in life; for it requires experience to spend judiciously, and there can be no spending without first accumulating a reserve. Mr. Rockefeller was addressing a youthful audience, and Mr. Ford was speaking to the grown-ups—people out in the world, whose habits were already formed and who were trying to get the most out of life. For such, perhaps, an over-cautious attitude is not to be too strongly urged. The man with the one talent, who got no profit from it, did not receive the commendation of his master. But it is a different thing with young people.

The importance of thrift in the young lies more in the effect it has upon the character than in the actual accumulation of savings. Under the best of conditions, the amount which can be saved in this way will not be very considerable; but the man or woman who has acquired the saving habit early is sure to reap the reward in after-years. No one admires the miser; he is of all persons the least to be envied, and the poorest in real possessions and in spirit. But no one respects, either, the improvident man, who fails to make provision for future needs. Youth is a time of accumulating, of storing up; it is a time of preparation for the days to come. There should be thrift of time, by which knowledge is acquired, as well as thrift of money. Such thrift will lay the foundation of certain good fortune in the years to come. For the instructed and the foresighted will never find themselves really poor.

A SENSIBLE PROCEDURE.

In pursuing its further investigations into problems arising out of the re-establishment of Canada's soldiers, the Royal Commission on Pensions and Re-establishment has adopted a method of procedure that will strike the average observer as fair and business-like.

Evidence and suggestions are to be received only from those selected to represent returned soldiers generally, rather than as individuals or officers of individual organizations.

This step is a recognition of the fact sometimes lost sight of, that no organization of returned soldiers can truthfully claim to represent the whole body of returned men.

In the first place, there are three or four veteran organizations, and secondly, thousands of ex-service men have not seen fit to ally themselves with any of the existing returned soldier societies or have allowed their membership to lapse.

It is this condition of affars that makes it difficult to arrive at the real opinion of the mass of veterans upon an particular subject.

The commission has decided that they will only hear joint representatives selected both by the veteran organizations and by the other unorganized returned soldiers.

If the veterans of Peterborough wish to be represented at one of the sittings of the commission it will be necessary for a mass meeting of the ex-service men to be called at which a representative can be selected.

There are no sittings of the commission here, but it has been arranged that where a selected representative does not reside in the place where the hearing is to be held his expenses as a witness will be certified by the commission, so that the way is open for the voice of Peterborough to be heard.

SUPPRESSING THE BOOTLEGGERS.

The province of British Columbia is facing a serious problem in the bootlegging activities of liquor agents, especially the operations of so-called "export" houses. Conditions in British Columbia are a standing answer to the wet argument in favor of government control. Far from having discouraged bootlegging and rum-running, the policy of selling intoxicants through provincial government stores has been accompanied by a scandalous increase in illict liquor trading. According to the Vancouver World, the provincial attorney general's own law partner is among the successful counsel to appear for the defence of bootleggers and firms charged with supplying bootleggers.

British Columbia may think it can afford to go on dealing leniently with law breakers who seek to profit by abusing the laws of neighboring provinces and states, but the cumulative effect of the lax enforcement of the law is eventually to undermine provincial credit and possibly national credit.

The result of the prohibition referendum in California last week is an indication of the strong feeling against rum-running and bootlegging among law abiding citizens of the United States. California has been regarded as one of the last ditches of the liquor trade, but the referendum on the Wright Act, a drastic enforcement measure, resulted in a majority of nearly 40,000 in the state. The new act gives power to every officer and court of California to deal with bootleggers. At present only federal officials and federal courts can do so. Two years ago in the same state a referendum on an enforcement measure failed to carry by 65,000 votes. The tremendous change over in favor of drastic prohibition in the last two years is significant evidence of the decline and fall of the liquor trade.

One effective method of suppressing the bootleggers is known as the abatement. This means that under California law any property used in violation of the law can be padlocked for one year by order of the courts. It is being applied by the federal officers in the state now. In one instance it has been used to close a hotel in San Jose, a large establishment on Market street. Over the hotel is a big canvas sign, 24 feet long by 9 feet broad, bearing large letters that can be read two blocks away stating, "This property is closed for one year for violation of the prohibition law by order of the United States District Court."

The state of Ohio has similarly shattered the hopes of liquor-trading interests. In a state referendum last week, inspired by the brewery and distilling interests to legalize the sale of wine and beer, the people rejected the proposal by a majority of 187,000. It is quite possible that money will be expended between now and the presidential election in 1924 to stir up another liquor campaign, but in the meanwhile the voting power of the women of the United States is being mobilized behind the prohibition movement. Law enforcement is becoming increasingly drastic. Neighboring provinces on this side of the line should realize that it is in their own interest to supress the exporting business and to co-operate in maintaining law an dorder.—Ottawa Citizen.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE IN MEXICO MOVES SLOW

Makes Some Progress, But Believed Time Not Yet Ripe For Franchise.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—(Associated Press)—The woman's suffrage movement is making some progress in Mexico, but high government officials are inclined to believe that the time is not yet ripe to grant the franchise to women. For several years a desultory propaganda to this end has been conducted here, but the movement received its greatest impetus recently when Rafael Nicto, governor of the state of San Luis Potosi and former secretary of the [illegible] started a project to [illegible] state providing for woman suffrage. [illegible] action provoked much discussion in the press, which believes that it will fail of passage.

Secretary of Interior Galles stated recently to newspapermen that, although he strongly favors woman's suffrage, he is of the opinion that a great deal of educational work must be done before it can be accomplished.

The state of Yucatan extended the vote to women several years ago but reports from that state say it has not been generally used.

MURINE For Your EYES

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The prospective visit of a ne'er-do-well brother, who had been absent for fifteen years in Australia, was a far from pleasing prospect to MARK ABLETT, bachelor proprietor of The Red House. Mark and his constant companion,

MATT CAYLEY, remained in The Red House awaiting the arrival of the brother.

ROBERT, while the house-party guests were away playing golf.

When Robert appeared, the parlor-maid, startled by his rough appearance, ushered him into Mark's office and went to inform her master. Mark was not in the garden and when the maid returned to the house she heard the report of a revolver and then the sound of Cayley pounding on the locked office door and demanding admittance. This was the state of affairs when ANTONY GILLINGHAM, a youthful gentleman adventurer, arrived.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

CAYLEY looked round suddenly at the voice.

"Can I help?" said Antony politely.

"Something's happened," said Cayley. He was breathing quickly. "I heard a shot. I was in the library. A loud bang. And the door's locked." He rattled the handle again, and shook it. "Open the door!" he cried. "I say, Mark, what is it? Open the door!"

"But he must have locked the door on purpose" said Antony. "So why should he open it just because you ask him to?"

Cayley turned to the door again. "We must break it in," he said, putting his shoulder to it.

"Isn't there a window?"

"Window? Window?"

"So much easier to break in a window," said Antony with a smile. He looked very cool and collected, as he stood just inside the hall, leaning on his stick.

"Window—of course! What an idiot I am."

He pushed past Antony, and began running out into the drive. Antony followed him. They ran along the front of the house, down a path to the left, and then to the left again over the grass, Cayley in front, the other close behind him. Suddenly Cayley looked over his shoulder and pulled up short.

"Here," he said.

They had come to the windows of the locked room. French windows which opened on to the lawns at the back of the house. But now they were closed. Antony couldn't help feeling a thrill of excitement as he followed Cayley's example, and put his face close up to the glass. But if there had been one shot, why should there not be two more?—at the careless fools who were pressing their noses against the panes, and asking for it.

"My God, can you see it?" said Cayley in a shaking voice.

The next moment Antony saw it. A man was lying on the floor at the far end of the room, his back toward them.

"Who is it?" said Antony.

"I don't know," the other whispered.

"Well, we'd better go and see." He considered the windows for a moment. "I should think, if you put your weight into it, just where they join, they'll give all right."

Cayley put his weight into it. The window gave, and they went into the room. Cayley walked quickly to the body, and dropped on his knees by it. With an effort he put a hand on to its shoulder and pulled it over.

"Thank God!" he murmured, and let the body go again.

"Who is it?" said Antony.

"Robert Ablett."

"Oh!" said Antony. "I thought his name was Mark."

"Yes, Mark Ablett lives here. Robert is his brother." He shuddered, and said, "I was afraid it was Mark."

"Was Mark in the room too?"

"Yes," said Cayley absently. Antony had gone to the locked door, and was turning the handle. "I suppose he put the key in his pocket," he said, as he came back to the body again.

"Who?"

Antony shrugged his shoulders.

"Whoever did this," he said, pointing to the man on the floor. "Is he dead?"

"Help me," said Cayley simply.

They turned the body on to its back, nerving themselves to look at it. Robert Ablett had been shot between the eyes.

"Did you know him well?" said Antony quietly. He meant, "Were you fond of him?"

"Hardly at all. Mark is the brother I know best. He hesitated, and then said, "Perhaps I'd better get some water."

There was another door opposite to the locked one, which led, as Antony was to discover for himself directly, into a passage from which opened two more rooms. Cayley stepped into the passage, and opened the door on the right. The door from the office, through which he had gone, remained open. The door at the end of the short passage was shut. Antony, kneeling by the body, followed Cayley with his eyes, and, after he had disappeared, kept his eyes on the blank wall of the passage, but he was not conscious of that at which he was looking, for his mind was with the other man, sympathizing with him.

"THANK GOD!" HE MURMURED, AND LET THE BODY GO AGAIN.

Cayley came into the room again, murmured something, and knelt down to bathe the dead man's face. Then he placed the handkerchief over it.

They stood up and looked at each other.

"If I can be of any help to you," said Antony, "please let me."

"That's very kind of you. There will be things to do. But you mustn't let me trespass on your kindness."

"I came to see Beverley. He is an old friend of mine."

"He's out playing golf. He will be back directly."

"I will stay if I can be of any help."

"Please do. You see, there are women." He hesitated, and gave Antony a timid little smile, pathetic in so big and self-reliant a man. "Just your moral support, you know."

"Of course." Antony smiled back at him, and said cheerfully, "Well, then, I'll begin by suggesting that you should ring up the police."

"The police? Y—yes." He looked doubtfully at the other. "I suppose—"

Antony spoke frankly.

"Now, look here, Mr—er—"

"Cayley. I'm Mark Ablett's cousin. I live with him."

"My name's Gillingham. I'm sorry, I ought to have told you before. Well now, Mr. Cayley, we shan't do any good by pretending. Here's a man been shot—well, somebody shot him"

Cayley shrugged his shoulders and went to the telephone.

"May I—er—look round a bit?" Antony nodded toward the open door.

"Oh, do. Yes." He sat down and drew the telephone toward him. "You must make allowances for me, Mr. Gillingham. Of course, you're quite right, and I'm merely being stupid." He took off the receiver.

Let us suppose that, for the purpose of making a first acquaintance with this "office," we are coming into it from the hall, through the door which is now locked. As we stand just inside the door, the length of the room runs right and left. Across the breadth of the room (some fifteen feet), is that other door, by which Cayley went out and returned a few minutes ago. In the right-hand wall, thirty feet away from us, are the French windows. Crossing the room and going out by the opposite door, we come into a passage, from which two rooms lead.

The one on the right, into which Cayley went, is less than half the length of the office, a small, square room, which has evidently been used some time or other as a bedroom. The window faces the same way as the French windows in the next room.

The room on the other side of the bedroom is a bathroom. The three rooms together, in fact, form a sort of private suite.

Antony wandered into the bedroom. The window was open, and he looked out at the peaceful stretch of park.

"Cayley thinks he did it," said Antony to himself. "That's obvious. It explains why he wasted so much time banging on the door. Why should he try to break a lock when it's so much easier to break a window? Of course, he might just have lost his head; on the other hand, he might have wanted to give his cousin a chance of getting away. Why did we run all the way round the house in order to get to the windows?"

There was a step in the passage outside, and he turned round, to see Cayley in the doorway. He remained looking at him for a moment, asking himself a question. It was rather a curious question. He was asking himself why the door was open.

Well, not exactly why the door was open; that could be explained easily enough. But why had he expected the door to be shut. He did not remember shutting it, but somehow he was surprised to see it open now, to see Cayley through the doorway, just coming into the room. Something working sub-consciously in his brain had told him that it was surprising. Why?

Cayley joined him at the window.

"I've telephoned," he said. "They're sending an inspector or some one from Middleston, and the local police and doctor from Blagton."

Antony felt quite sure, from what Cayley had said and had hesitated to say, that Mark had been the last to see his brother alive. It didn't follow that Mark Ablett was a murderer. Revolvers go off accidentally; and when they have gone off, people lose their heads and run away, fearing that their story will not be believed. Nevertheless, when people run away, whether innocently or guiltily, one can't help wondering which way they went.

"I suppose this way," said Antony aloud, looking out of the window.

"I wonder."

"Well, he didn't go by the windows in the next room, because they were shut."

"Isn't that rather odd?"

"Well, I thought so at first, but—" He pointed to the wall jutting out on the right. "You see, you're protected from the rest of the house if you get out here. If you go out at the French windows, I imagine you're much more visible."

Cayley looked at him thoughtfully.

"It seems to me, Mr. Gillingham, that you know the house pretty well, considering that this is the first time you've been to it."

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, coal-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 23 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. Ellen Laira of Pictou, N. S. who is 87, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Chas. N. Nicholas of Winnipeg, Man., finds it both helpful and beneficial, and everything that can be desired from a laxative standpoint.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps.

Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

The Grassy Creek hunt club returned early last week with several deer and reports of a splendid time.

St. Andrew's Night.

Thursday will be Saint Andrew's Day—the day when good Scotchmen get together for a "bit crack for the sake of auld lang syne." There are a goodly number of sons and daughters of bonnie Scotland living in Lakefield and community and it would be a fine thing if each year on St. Andrew's night they would gather together. A Saint Andrew's night dinner or social would bring together those who claim the land of the heather as their own and unite them with a bond which would make for better citizenship.

CAMPAIGN FOR SOCIAL SERVICE

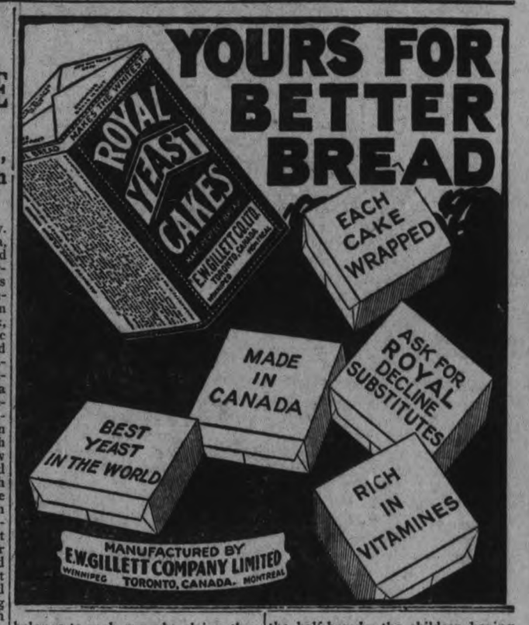
Rev. G. I. Campbell, B.D., Preaches at Millbrook on Evangelism.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 28.—Rev. George I. Campbell, B.D., of Ottawa, Field Secretary of Evangelism and Social Service, who is holding services in the Peterboro district this week, began the campaign on Sunday, November 26th, preaching in the Methodist church, Millbrook, both morning and evening. At the first service, Mr. Campbell confined his remarks wholly to the evangelistic side of the work, basing his remarks upon Rev. 21: 1-5: "I saw a new heaven and a new earth." "Behold, I make all things new" and began that the Golden Age, as John saw it, is in the future when, through the forces set at work by the new Light revealed in Jesus Christ, God will ultimately re-create a new earth and a new heaven; of the latter we speak little, and our ministers preach but seldom upon it, probably because we know so little; we are not so sure as our fathers were in our conclusion, but as God's Word makes revelation it is apparent that to us are the tears, while our loved ones gone before are experiencing only an abiding joy. A new earth means new problems, and the speaker emphatically declared his conviction that the earth is being re-made, that the Kingdom of Heaven is making progress, and the church and Jesus Christ are not failing as the pessimists assert. Satan truly has a grip upon this age, but he has not mastered his Divine Opponent, nor will he; the forces of evil are organized apparently as never before, but righteousness is still making progress toward its goal, and the church is coming into a closer struggle with the strongholds of unrighteousness than in any other period of its history. There is little hope that the old-time evangelistic meetings, which accomplished such a splendid amount of good, will ever be repeated; the church must advance with the times, and evangelism today means organization, definite plans, men working along our line, women along another, but the progress of the Kingdom is being hindered by the cowardice of the men and women who are professing Christians and are yet afraid, or ashamed, to do personal work in winning souls for Christ. Consecration is an act by which we give ourselves to God for one definite thing, and it is a poor Christian who cannot take a brother by the hand and hold on until he has placed it in the pierced hand of the Saviour.

The Presbyterian church has about eighteen evangelists who are paid a salary, but the Methoidst church has only five or six, and none are salaried; our policy is that the local church members and officials shall build a wall round their pastor, holding up his hands by prayer and service, believing that the task of winning souls for the Kingdom belongs to each one who claims they are His; it is the miserable hesitation of God's children which makes His work stand still. One can secure all the volunteers necessary, and more, for the foreign field, but can't get them for Canada; people like to do the spectacular thing which, possibly, will bring their names into the headlines of the papers, but are not willing to do the little task right at their door which has no public glory attached to it. Here at home we have as big a problem as is facing the world, thousands of foreigners who are absolutely ignorant of the gospel, but workers are slow to offer themselves for service in the domestic field.

"The Spirit of God wants to use you as a channel by which some soul will look Him in the face," therefore every Christian should have a prayer list and concentrate upon two or three until they are won into the Kingdom; we like to pray, "O, Lord, save the whole human family" ,yet one definite request for one soul is a far better way. Revival starts the moment the church begins to pray for it; never mind any paid outside help, you may have the finest kind of evangelism because there is no better course than for God's children in any local centre to band themselves together praying, planning, and personally working to win souls into the Kingdom .

A solo, "Saved", by Miss Roma Roberts while the special offering was being taken up, and the benediction by Rev. J. Wilks, brought the service to a close. In the evening, Mr. Campbell, by an illustrated talk, presented the Social Service work, showing the problem of the "New Canadians" upon arrival here, the half-breeds, the children having Chinese fathers and white mothers, the pagan Indians, of whom there are 70,000 in Canada, and the 200,000 Ruthenians, etc. The emphasis laid upon a sound physical body to prevent moral shipwreck, the Homes for girls, the Welfare workers, the drug evil, and some of the splendid natural resources and beauty spots of our own country, from St. John, N.B. to Juno, Alaska, were also referred to. The speaker closed his address with an earnest appeal to the young men and women present to surrender their lives to Christ ,giving themselves unreservedly to His control, that His cause may never lack consecrated workers.



Approximately 100,000,000 pounds of copper will be utilized this year in the manufacture of automobiles in this country.

THE QUALITY CIGARETTE

IMPERIAL TOBACCO COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED.

Personal and Confidential by Jack Lait

WALTER CLIPSON, G. B. C. (graduate of business college), was off to a flying start on a life of commerce and industrial careering. Aged twenty-two, typically "clean cut" (which means that he was neither a dude nor a slob, neither a chump nor a wise-cracking pest), equipped with a mechanical education on typewriter, adding machine, biller, automatic postage and envelope slicing instrument, he was just such a youth as might take a lot of worries off the mind of a busy man.

He knew how to call a 'phone number, how to give and take stalling messages over the wire, how to tell a caller Mr. Brownson was out of town when he wasn't even out of hearing, how to make an important prospect feel even more important, how to turn down an undesirable so he wouldn't ever peep again, what to say to Mrs. Brownson when Mr. Brownson spent an afternoon out and the wife wanted to know where she could reach him—in all, a very handy young party to have about for $25 a week.

Brownson was the senior partner of a railroad supply concern that dealt in big contracts. It wasn't a business with a continual turnover, like a delicatessen store or a newspaper. Sometimes Brownson & Elliton didn't land a sale for a month, but when anything clicked it was big.

There was a great deal of entertaining to do. That seemed to be the soul of the business. The railroads, after all, got their rails and their wheels and their oilcans and their brass buttons—or whatever it is that railroads buy through railroad supply middlemen—from the same original sources, no matter through which agents they shopped. So it was a contest between the rivals to ingratiate themselves personally with the purchasing officials, often the presidents themselves, to induce them to derail business their way; the factories paid the commissions, so the transportation chiefs were not betraying their trust, and they naturally dealt with those they liked best; and they naturally liked best those who treated them best.

And Harlow Brownson was a de luxe, big-league, shoot-the-roll treater.

Blowing a thousand in one night toward hooking a sale that would net ten times that was no novelty to him. Sometimes the disbursement went into overhead and never came back to roost in the deposits at all, but as a rule Brownson was a far-sighted sniper who rarely misjudged range or wind, and wasted few shots though he kept pumping away.

Elliton was the other end of the combination. He bargained and crabbed with the producers, and almost never even met the consumers. Brownson got the orders and Elliton executed them. So everybody was pleased and B & E. became the standard leader in the field and the principals therein became rich. Brownson grew fat and amiable from much over-training, while Elliton grew lean and grouchy from much merchandising.

Walter Clipson was assistant to Brownson. Not that he assisted him in his "field" work, which was operated largely in the rococo cafes, the raucous cabarets and a giddy apartment maintained by the house in a select downtown building for "promotion" purposes, but he attended to the office affairs of the jovial missionary of ties and monkey-wrenches. Brownson had his own offices, in a wing of the suite, with a sideboard camouflaged as a letter-file, choice rugs and easier chairs than customarily go with the exacting business of extracting dollars from hot air.

In the outer room of this layout sat Doris Horner, secretary to Brownson.

Doris was blonde and petite, slender and alluring. She dressed with the simplicity regarded as desirable in the financial zone, yet she added touches of personal individuality that couldn't be objectionable, and yet were not to be overlooked. For one thing, she affected ear-rings. With the fetching little frock of black satin, topped by a maidenly little collar of laundered linen, those ear-rings couldn't be ruled out as vamping stuff or stretching office conventions too broadly. She wore sleeveless sleeves, but they were in fashion and her virginal white arms, as they flew over the keyboard, were very attractive and not too extravagant.

Brownson, in truth, was no stickler for the last squawk in disciplinary conservatism; but—Walter Clipson was.

Moreover, of course, Clipson was feverishly and furiously in love with Doris, as any youth who was sentenced to spend eight hours a day in her presence would have been.

Doris was not the slangy, gum-chewing steno of the movies; neither was she the upstage lady in reduced circumstances of other movies; nor was she a frivolous flapper, and yet she was no phlegmatic automaton. She was vibrantly human and intriguingly feminine. She was no dynamo as a secretary, but neither was she an inefficient miscast leading lady. She could and would take dictation and turn out reasonably clean copy; she could spell the entire language of the trade and the uncommercial words that naturally crept into some of the letters keyed H. B.; D. H. For Brownson kept up intimate correspondence with chairmen of boards and receivers and first vice-presidents and traffic managers and purchasing directors the world around.

Brownson always greeted Doris cheerfully, now and then gave her a flower, often sent her to a show with her mother and had her charge the tickets to his account at a broker's—and in other ways treated her generously. But he never took or attempted any familiarities with her; he never pinched her cheek or looked insidiously into her blue eyes or made any comment more penetrating than to compliment her when she looked more than usually rosy.

Brownson wasn't the melodrama sort of boss in the gilded den of the portly spider at all. Though he was of the "rake" disposition, he was no roue—a rounder, but square. Doris liked her boss very much, and wasn't in the least afraid of him stepping out of his character.

But Walter Clipson watched with jealous eye what seemed to him quite unnecessary for the routine of a practical office. He was displeased with Doris's display of arms—that is, the arms and the display not only pleased him but dizzied him; but he was against anyone else being in the picture. The ear-rings he thought most becoming but most malapropos. He advised her against the two plain gold bracelets on her right wrist, which now and then clinked as she operated, and which he regarded as out of order.

He Cautioned Doris That Just Such Transgressions of the Line Encouraged Men Who Weren't Naturally "Fresh" to Forget.

And most of all, he didn't see why Doris couldn't drop her head and bow stiffly when Brownson entered, in place of giving him a sunny smile and even a little wave of her hand. He regarded Brownson as honorable enough, but he cautioned Doris that just such trangression of the line of relations between employer and employee encouraged men who weren't naturally "fresh" to forget—to misunderstand—to presume.

Doris gave him the merry and red-lipped ha-ha and twitted him because he, the apostle of strictly business during business hours had proposed to her eight hundred times, implored her to marry him and quit her $30 a week to marry into his $25. Doris had declined his offer as many times as he had propounded it, and a few times extra for good measure. She made him know that she regarded him as a stripling, a precocious office boy, and she tossed it at him that if he had a few more of Brownson's traits of liberality, freehandedness, geniality and good-fellowship, he would step along faster in life.

To this Walter replied that it was Brownson's privilege to be a "sport" if he wanted to, but it was his own obligation to be the best sort of an office man that he knew how to be. Doris told him she didn't think he'd ever get anywhere or amount to much, and he sighed to see that she admired the free-and-easy Brownson, good sort though he was, and sneered at the homely, wholesome, faithful sort—like himself.

"Brownson got it over, yes—but that was due to an extraordinary combination of circumstances," he told her. "It wouldn't do for a young man to follow in his footsteps. The straight road is the best, the shortest, the surest."

"All right, rain-on-the-parade," she replied. "Then put on your earmuffs and your galoshes and slop along by yourself. Me for some man who has life—spirit—pep."

And Walter shook his blond, wavy head and worried over this flippant and oblique angle on the future in the mind of the girl he idolized. He felt it would bring her to no good end and would most likely plunge her into ruin and a wrecked thereafter of remorse. She said she'd look after her own thereafter, and would he please go on pasting his postage stamps by machinery he knew something about, and not worry about such intricate mechanics as a girl's heart, a man's character, psychology and ethics.

Then came a day when word was conveyed to Walter that Jere Santerson, second vice-president and head purchasing mogul of the P. D. & Q., would arrive shortly after noon, would ask for Mr. Brownson, and was to be met as befit.

Brownson didn't propose to be there when Santerson arrived. He had his modus operandi worked out to the thirty-third degree; Santerson, who was following many a good man in the same procedure, was to be shown into the inner room, where he could cool his fevered heels for a few minutes while he studied the framed photographs showing discreetly selected close-up views illustrating some bonanza contracts that B. & E. had handled. He was to have the atmosphere of business stability planted, he was to be impressed with what a truly big and reliable institution Brownson & Elliton was. Then Brownson was to burst in whack him on the back, protest against having his guest cooped up in a musty commercial hole (it had cost $10,000 to fit up the chamber), wink and close the door and produce cocktail ingredients as an advance angel to the choicest luncheon the town could set up, all prearranged.

Then by the time he had Santerson properly inundated with the blood of the wild bull or the juice of the Brittany grape, he could spring a little business on him. By that time Santerson would be ready to do a little business. And then he would remember that he was not merely dealing with a great bartender and most engaging host, but with a solid, responsible company which would not put over any seconds and would bring him no regretful kickbacks between the hangover and the next meeting of the board.

It was so ordered—and so arranged. Santerson, an aggressive little middle-aged Westerner who had started as a car inspector and had hammered his way up into what goes for a big job with a railroad, arrived, asked for Brownson, was led in through well-oiled doors by Walter, seated and given the set speech. Mr. Brownson would be in directly—he had been called out for a minute to Brownson realized Santerson was a bit preoccupied, and glanced through, too. He saw what Santerson saw. But he didn't get the significance for a moment—not until Santerson whistled and said, "Gee—what a pippin."

Brownson thought a second. Then he closed the door.

"She's a nice girl, Santerson," he said.

"Yeh—I've heard of some of the darbs that you introduce the high muck-a-mucks to," said Santerson.

"Oh, behave. Of course, I do know a few show girls around town, and now and then I do meet up with a couple of cuties when one of the gang happens to be along. But don't get Miss Horner confused with that set—she's my secretary; she's a mighty nice girl—lives with her mother, you know."

"Sure. I don't want to knock her in the head and drag her to my cave, or anything. But I think she's the best looking thing my eyes have treated me to in many a year. Would she—h'm—go out?"

Brownson was posed. It had never occurred to him this had never occurred to him.

"Why, I—I've never asked her. You see, my office——"

"Well, I don't mean anything wrong. How about lunch? Could she make it three—with you along, do you s'pose?'

"She could, I guess—if she would. I'll ask her."

Brownson went out and closed the door behind him.

"Miss Horner," he said, "this is unusual. I am not going to urge anything on you. I will only tell you what happened. That gentleman is Jere Santerson, and he might give us a half-million-dollar order if we make him feel good. But I never carried my special function of making buyers feel good into this department. He has taken a great fancy to you—on sight—and he—he wants you to lunch with us—with him and me—do you want to?"

"Certainly," answered Doris. "Delighted."

"Come in," invited Brownson. "Thanks. Remember though, if you decline it's all right and no hard feelings."

Brownson introduced Santerson to Miss Horner, who entered a moment later with her hat on and her gloves in hand. He was mixing a little drink. He gave one to Santerson, who reached it to Doris.

"No, Santerson," interposed Brownson, "I couldn't have that."

Santerson gave him a little look and drank it himself. Brownson usually pushed six or so cocktails on his luncheon guests, but this time he cut it to the one and, reaching for his hat, said "Shall we go?" Santerson had to, after that.

Doris was floating on air as she wafted to the elevator with her employer and the out-of-towner. It was an adventure—to lunch with Brownson; to have a man "fall" so hard that he would ask that she be invited, and on such short sight; to have luncheon at last, in one of the miracle cafes about which she had read and heard, the monthly bills of which had made her head swim as she had forwarded Brownson's checks to cover theirs.

But uppermost, Walter had seen the whole triangled transaction. And she had a fair idea of what was buzzing around in his breast just about then. Whew! It was against every rule that he had laid down for her, it was against all office discipline and even beyond discretion, and it seemed surely to bear out his prophecies of disaster and destruction: the unemotional and lovesick youth would be tearing his permanent wave by now, she figured. And she smiled—smiled just as Santerson said something to her about the advanced fashions in sleeveless dresses and what a shame it was to cover up natural beauty with an ulster—and Santerson thought she smiled on him, and he pressed her arm through the unwelcome sleeve as Brownson walked ahead of them into the elevator.

The luncheon was all that it could have been in cuisine and surroundings. Doris had never been in anything like the chic, quiet little resort of elegance and grand larceny that Brownson had chosen. She felt a little shabby and out of place when they first entered, but when she surrendered the $20 coat to a uniformed maid, touched up a bit, and Brownson and Santerson both rose at the table as she tripped along in her sleeveless frock, she felt more as though she belonged.

Santerson pushed the conversation forward with Western breeziness, his naturally pressing way. Brownson's tactful resistance notwithstanding, Santerson turned the whole luncheon into topics closely touching Doris. He wasn't interested in theatricals, sports, funny yarns. Railroads, of course, were completely tabooed. But he was all churned up about Doris, and he asked her an unbroken stream of questions about herself, some of them rather searchingly intimate, though none of them specifically offensive.

Brownson, who couldn't remember when he had last been made gooseflesh at his own luncheon, when he had been shoved into a silent third while steering a come-on, had very little to say. His heart wasn't in the job, and he heartily didn't care whether B. & E. got a million dollar order or not. He was mightly sorry that he had so weakly followed Santerson's suggestion and asked Doris at all—he could have ended the whole matter then by refusing, but he had become a particeps criminis, and now he had to see it out.

He was fully determined, if Santerson said one out-of-the-way word to the girl, to rise in a frank anger and send her back to the office, and then to give Santerson a piece of his heart. But Santerson, for a blunt commoner, had enough natural or acquired diplomacy to skate around on the thin ice of Brownson's patience. And Brownson, with a sigh of relief, scratched his name on the bad news and tossed the waiter a bill.

Santerson was for seeing a matinee—vaudeville, he preferred. And he made no bones about asking whether Doris could accompany him. The girl looked inquiringly—perhaps eagerly—into Brownson's face, but he very simply and quite crisply said "No—Miss Horner has a great deal of important work to do this afternoon. You will excuse her?" Santerson shrugged his shoulders; he would, of course—but!

Brownson led them out, put Miss Horner in a taxi and sent her along. Then he asked Santerson what vaudeville theatre he preferred. Santerson said he guessed he didn't want any show—he'd just stroll over to the P. D. & Q. office and see if there were any wires—he'd see Brownson later—maybe next day. Brownson bid him good day as decently as he could, and left him there. He walked to the office, feeling somehow like a horsethief. The first face he saw when he entered was Walter's.

"Any messages?" asked Brownson.

"Yes—one; from me. . . . Before I resign, I want to tell you that I didn't think you'd do a thing like that, Mr. Brownson. . . . It isn't gentlemanly, and it isn't good business."

"What the devil are you raving about?" asked Brownson, though he knew—that is, he knew what Walter had in mind, but not why Walter felt called on to interfere.

"About Doris—Miss Horner. Because she is silly enough to do a thing like—like that, is no reason for you, a man of the world, to ask her—even to let her."

"Perhaps you're right. But I don't entirely see where it's any of your business."

"It's this much my business, Mr. Brownson. Mr. Santerson 'phoned while you were on the way. He invited Miss Horner out to meet him—promised her a better job out West than you'd give her here—told her you were the worst shine as a salesman he'd ever met, and you'd get enough business from the P. D. & Q. to stick in your eye."

"He did, eh? Where is Miss Horner?

"She's gone home."

"Home? You think she's really gone home, you young fool? I'm going out to find that fresh Santerson and Miss Horner. You stick here—I might need you by 'phone, I'm——"

"Don't worry about it," sneered Walter. "She's gone home, all right—for her mother. That awful Santerson proposed to her on the wire—and she's accepted him. Good bye."

"Well, I'll be dashed," puffed Brownson. "Why didn't I help it along and hook the P. D. & Q. for life? Here I am, the world's greatest little entertainer, saving girls! Serves me right . . . . mixing business with pleasure is my business, not mixing purity with pig-iron."

TALENT TEA BY THE WELCOME BIBLE CLASS

Presentation to Rev. and Mrs. Crookshanks the Feature of Happy Evening.

A talent tea was served at the home of Mrs. Elsom, 114 Dufferin Street, recently, by the Welcome Bible Class of George Street Church in aid of the building fund.

The first part of the evening was spent in a programme consisting of solos, readings, duets, etc. The prizes for the flower contest were awarded to Miss Josephine McGill and Mrs. Morrow.

Rev. Crookshanks, teacher of the class, and his wife were presented with an illuminated address and an autograph quilt. Mr. Crookshanks replied in a few fitting words, expressing the appreciation of himself and wife.

Refreshments were served and a vote of thanks extended to the host and hostess for so kindly throwing open their home for the evening. The enjoyable party left for their homes after singing "Blest be the tie that binds."

Those assisting in the programme were: Miss Edith Marshall, Miss McGill, Florence Bush, Mrs. Routly, Mrs. Micks, Mrs. Stinson, Mrs. Hagerman, Rev. Crookshanks, Mr. Stewart.

The Address.

The address to Mr. and Mrs. Crookshanks read as follows:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Crookshanks,—Once more the members of the Welcome Bible Class have gathered for a social evening, and before we part we wish to express to our teacher and his wife some of the affection which we feel for them.

"Our relations have always been so congenial, and the hours spent in study together so pleasant, that we all feel a deep and true friendship for you both. We know that for Mr. Crookshanks to give the service which he has for so many years has not always been easy. Many times because of physical weakness or mental depression, it must have mean self-denial. But the lessons which have been brought home to us each Sunday will never be forgotten, and perhaps more than these will we always remember the beautiful Christian example of our teacher.

"As a co-worker in the class we all love Mrs. Crookshanks and her sweet, motherly face and kind ways will always be an inspiration to us.

"As the Christmas season draws near, when so many messages of love and cheer come from north, south, east and west, we desire to add our wish that your Christmas may be a happy and a peaceful one.

"In token of our love we ask you to accept this quilt, in the hope that the names written on it may never cause any but pleasant memories, and that they may every one be also inscribed in the Lamb's Book of Life.

"Signed on behalf of the Class,
"Mrs. P. Hagerman, Pres.
"Emily Bush, Sec."

MILLBROOK PRESBYTERIANS HELD SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

Booths Prettily Decorated For the Occasion—Affair Was Held in the Armouries — Millbrook News of Interest.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 28. — The Armouries looked very bright and attractive on Saturday afternoon, in pleasing contrast to the wintry weather outside, on the occasion of the annual bazaar under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian Church. The different booths were gaily and appropriately decorated with streamers of a variety of colors, Santa Claus and Christmas bells being in evidence at the toy counter, which naturally proved the centre of attraction to the kiddies throughout the afternoon. There was no lack of customers for the abundance of dainty and useful articles tastefully displayed on all sides, and the "Country Store," a novel feature, tried for the first time here, was quite evidently a very successful venture as well. Those in charge of the "Store" were Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. E. Armstrong, Miss May Hales, Miss L. Syer and Miss Ethel McKnight; at the toy booth, Mrs. H. R. Armstrong, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. E. Whyte and Miss E. Hunter had a busy time supplying the wants of the excited small customers, whose mothers must listen to repeated requests for dolls, games, picture books, whistles, etc., while the tables of home-made candy, in dainty baskets and other receptacles, which were being looked after by Misses Anna Hawthorne, Thelma Ball, Marguerite Russell and Florence Larmer, were equally well patronized. Mrs. G. S. Gervan, Mrs. W. E. Russell, Mrs. W. S. Given, Mrs. Milton Fallis, Misses Myrtle Russell and Dorothy Armstrong were overseeing the sale of a beautiful display of fancy articles of all kinds, those who patronized this booth, with its pretty decorations of pink and green, finding no lack of gifts from which to choose if Christmas remembrances were in mind, and if one turned to the table of children's wear, whether something for babies, or for tots a little older in years, was required, Mrs. Henry Hubbeard, Mrs. H. Ball and Miss Alberta Russell were the most attentive of salesladies. Aprons of every possible variety, from those for kitchen use to the dainty affair suitable for a chafing - dish party, were disposed of by Mrs. T. Ingram, Mrs. R. McMahon and Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and the afternoon tea-tables attracted many who fancied a hot cup of tea with sandwiches, cake or pie, as one's appetite dictated, while many of the business men came in for the regular full course meal which was served at the tea-hour. Mrs. W. Devell, Mrs. Jas. Paul, Mrs. R. J. Doak, Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Mrs. J. N. McGill, Misses M. Eagleson, Jean Syer, L. Hunter and some of the girls who had been assisting at the booths during the afternoon, looked after this part of the sale in their usual efficient manner. The total receipts were nearly $300.

A Good Showing.

Cavan township continues to make a good showing at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, Paterson Brothers winning first prize with their Clydesdale, "Marathon's Best," and W. W. Kennedy third on his field beans in the grain and seed classes, and second on his white oats, 20 bushels being the quantity shown. Roy Ferguson, of Blackstock, Durham County, was one of the youthful competitors in the inter-county live stock judging contest, in which thirty-five counties and 200 contestants took part. Rutherford, of Peel County, led in the competition, having 814 points, but Ferguson was listed among the first fifteen men with 606 points to his credit; Durham County stood eighth amongst the thirty-five, with a total of 3,241 points; Peel County, which stood first, had a total score of 3,430 points. It was the largest judging contest ever held on this continent.

Following their usual custom the Methodist church will withdraw its evening service next Sunday, December 3rd, on account of the anniversary services in Grace Presbyterian church, but the morning worship at 10.30 will be held, the pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, being in charge.

Mr. Joseph Evans, of Toronto, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ewe, Charles Mathers, motored from the city last week and were guests of Mrs. H. Hall, Mr. Wilbert Walsh, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fallis, of Fallis Line. Messrs. Melville Ball, S. Evans, C. Mathers and Misses Florence Fallis and Jean Evans motored to Peterborough on Saturday and attended the rugby match between the Oakwood and local Collegiates. Mr. Evans, who knew Rev. S. T. Tucker in his students days, was a visitor at the parsonage while in this neighborhood.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. W. Bateson, and two children, Margaret and William, were guests of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Fallis, last week.

Mr. Lloyd Byam, who has been spending the last three months in Saskatchewan, returned home on Friday. The thermometer had registered twenty below zero at Saskatoon before Lloyd left, and two feet of snow had fallen east of that point.

Mrs. D. Pogue and her little son, Archie, of Omemee, are guests of Mrs. E. Pogue, Sr., Marshal street.

System Run Down Blood Out of Order

Many people become run down, but don't know just exactly what their trouble is, when, as a rule, it is improper circulation of the blood.

All they need is a good tonic to build up the system and put the blood into proper shape.

For this purpose there is nothing on the market to-day to equal.

Burdock Blood Bitters

It regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system.

Mrs. H. Poole, Port Dover, Ont., writes:—"My system was run down and my blood out of order, and I suffered a great deal from pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. A friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got a bottle and before it was used I found it was doing me good. I kept on until I had taken three, and now I feel like a different woman.

My husband also took it and it has built him up."

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

St. Mary's Parish Held an "At Home"—Snow Stimulates Business—Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 28.—The At Home held last evening under the auspices of St. Mary's Parish was from every standpoint an unqualified success, and was conceded by all to be the best yet. Guests were present from Hastings, Norwood, Warkworth, Castleton, Colborne, Brighton, Owen Sound and from all the surrounding district, as well as a very large number from town. The committee in charge left no stone unturned to make this At Home the best yet. The hall was prettily decorated in white and blue Here every available space was occupied with tables, where those who did not wish to tip the light fantastic, engaged in social games of euchre. The floors were in excellent condition, and Leonard's orchestra furnished charming music for a lengthy and varied programme of Fox trots, waltzs, two steps, one steps and quadrilles. There was not a dull moment during the whole evening and all present averred that this event was on of the most sociable and jolliest of the season. During the evening, the ladies of the Parish served in abundance, a very dainty lunch, which contributed very materially to the evening's grand success. The proceeds of the evening exceeded the hopes of the most sanguine, being largely in excess of the proceeds of any former "At Home" given by St. Mary's.

Father Phelan, the committee in charge and the member of the parish are to be congratulated upon the success of last evening's social event.

Snow Improves Business

The first fall of snow had a decided effect on business—the demand for rubbers being exceptionally good The garages also did a thriving trade in tire chains—even the small boy made many an honest dime with his snow shovel.

Cattle Shipments

Up to Tuesday 2 cars of choice hogs and 3 cars of cattle have been shipped from the stock yards at Campbellford, consigned to Peterborough, Toronto and Montreal.

General News

That Herb. Leonard's orchestra, composed of five Campbellford boys is becoming more popular, is evidenced by the fact that they have three engagements for this week. St. Mary's dance in town on Monday night; on Thursday they go to Brighton and on Friday to Cobourg which speaks fairly well for local talent.

Mr. John Rellis has moved to his new quarters next to Charles Ackerman's Barber Shop.

The Minstrel Show which met with so much success last season will be remodelled and rehearsals begin shortly. Mr. Gledhill has some real new material for his all star cast.

Miss Dorothy Milne, who has been in Whitby, for the past few months has returned home.

Mrs. Earl Williams, Mrs. Thos. Free, Mrs. William J. Abernethy motored to Toronto on Friday, returning home to-day accompanied by Mrs. James Owens, Sebastapol.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Dickson, Booth street, are removing this week to the Kerr Block.

Dr. Kelly of Owen ound, who is visiting at the home of his brother Mr. P. J. Kelly, attended the "At Home", given last evening by St. Mary's Parish.

Another Dance.

The Bemersyde Chapter of the I. O.D.E. are making preparations for a dance which will be held at the Music Hall on Dec. 26th.

First Fall of Snow.

The white mantle of snow on Monday morning brought joy to the hearts of the small boy and snowballing was the order of the day. The old hand sleigh was resurrected and when the dinner bell rang there were quite a number of absentees.

Mr. William Abernethy is spending a couple of days in Toronto on business this week.

Mr. Harry Willoughby motored to Peterborough and visited friends over Sunday.

Mr. J. D. Cameron of Peterborough, was in town on official business on Monday.

DRY LAWS ARE HERE TO STAY

Premier Drury Nails His Colors to the Mast at Prohibition Meeting.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—In so far as continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act, Government control of sale of liquor, legalized sale of beer and light wines, or similar allied questions are factors in the present political situation in Ontario, Premier Drury has nailed his colors to the mast.

Speaking before a mass meeting held in the Massey Hall last night by the world league against alcohol, Mr. Drury gave his carefully considered conviction that prohibition had come to Ontario to stay. That there was no danger of reversion to the legalized sale of liquor in any way, shape or form; that neither government control nor the selling of beer and wine would ever receive the sanction of the Ontario electorate, and that before many years had passed prohibition enforcement officers in the United States would not be harrassed by the presence of a partially "wet" Canada on their northern boundary.

Backing up his assertion with a barrage of statistics relative to the history of the prohibition movement in this province, and the results of its enforcement, the Premier declared that prohibition in Ontario had been a success and would continue to be a success. It had come only after a long course of trial and struggle and neither would the league nor anyone else need have any fear that the people of this province would nullify its beneficial results by sanctioning a change in the existing prohibitory laws

The speaker left it to the imagination of his hearers to discover what he thought of the illusive "temperance" proposals of sundry Conservatives. But his words left no doubt as to what he thought would happen to any party which built into its platform a plank pledging a loosening up of the present liquor laws.

$75,000,000 FRAUD IN WAR CAMPS CHARGED.

U.S. to Enter Suits For Recovery of Overcharges.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. — A series of suits for recovery of money expended for construction of war cantonments has been decided on as the next step in the Government's campaign against alleged frauds under war contracts.

The initial cases are expected to involve construction of Camp Upton, Yaphank, N.Y.; Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C.; Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, O., and Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kan.

Unofficial estimates place the total sum that will be sought in all of the recovery suits contemplated at more than $75,000,000. In one camp costing $13,000,000 auditors were said to have found indications of an excess expenditure of $5,000,000.

In the first group of four suits in which action is to be instituted the Government seeks to recover a total of $21,500,000. The Camp Upton suit involves $5,000,000, the Camp Jackson suit $6,500,000, the Camp Sherman suit $5,000,000, and the Camp Funston suite $4,000,000.

RADIO AS A LIFE-SAVER!

WASHINGTON, D.C. Oct 25.—The one place on earth where radio is real serious business is at sea.

There entertainment by radiophone is only secondary to the great cause of preventing loss of lives by drowning Saving ships from destruction also comes ahead of the radio concert from some land station. For on the water, radio is the only means by which one ship can call another for help.

What brought home to shipping officials the real importance of radio at sea was the Titanic disaster, when that giant liner struck an iceberg in the night of April 14, 1912. This calamity resulted in a conference of maritime nations on the problem of preventing further loss at sea, not only from icebergs but from any other causes.

Iceberg Patrol

Immediately there after an iceberg patrol was established by these nations. This patrol is under the control of the United States Coast Guard Service, but all the other nations that took part in the conference contribute toward its maintenance.

No record has been kept in Washington of the lives of ships saved by this service. But incidents are remembered by officials wherein lack of such service would have meant further destruction of lives and property.

The icebergs floating down from the north usually cross the main ocean liners' lane between America and Europe. Further Titanic disasters are prevented by radio flashes of the position, course and rate of drift of such obstacles

Other Services

In connection with other ship service, radio is just as important. Last year, officials of the U.S. Shipping Board say, more than 500 vessels flashed distress signals and nearly 200 were towed to port by arrangements made by radio.

At one time the radio apparatus of the "Western Hero", a U.S. Shipping Board vessel, got out of order. For two weeks she was "lost". She was "found" only after her radio set had been repaired

The radio officer of a cargo ship died, and the ship sailed without waiting for a replacement. Running this way, without radio, the ship rammed an iceberg in the northern trans-Atlantic lane. Repairs cost $10,000.

Had this ship had the use of her radio, she would have picked up the messages of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter on iceberg patrol, or the warnings of the Naval Hydr-o graphic Office, and would have steered clear of the obstruction.

WON GOLD MEDAL IN FRUIT EXHIBIT.

Nova Scotia Grower's Splendid Showing in Cox's Pippins.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(By Canadian Press)—Messrs. H. L. Morse and Sons, Berwick, Nova Scotia, with a magnificent collection of Cox's pippins, were placed first, securing the gold medal in the dessert class at the recent Imperial Fruit Show, at the Crystal Palace. The Pomological and Fruit Growing Society of the Province of Quebec, Chateauguay Basin, were awarded the second prize with a rare display of "Snows". Another fine display of Cox's in this class was that of R. Stark, of Creston, B.C., who was highly commended and received a prize for the best entry from British Columbia in the Empire section.

In the second class, that for any culinary variety, Messrs. H. L. Morse & Sons gained another noteworthy success with the "King" variety, again securing the premier honor, the second and third prizes going to English competitors.

The Overseas section afforded the growers of Canada another opportunity of demonstrating the resources of their orchards, and visitors were particularly impressed by the successes of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association. There were fourteen asses for apples and this Association secured the premier gold medal award in eleven, devoted to the following varieties: Wealthy, Snow, McIntosh, King, Golden Russet, Spy, Blenheim Orange, Jonathan Greening, Newton Pippin and Stark. They also won nine silver medals. The competition would doubtless have been keener, had British Columbia made a larger entry, but there was no mistaking the excellence of the fruit exhibited.

In the class for Cox's Orange Pippin, Mr. Robert Stark, of Creston, B.C., secured the first prize, the Berwick Company, Nova Scotia, being second. Mr. Stark also gained the premier award in the class for "any other variety" with six splendid specimens of the "Winter Banana," an apple which attracted considerable attention from visitors. F. A. Parker, of Berwick, N.S., was second with a fine collection of Gravensteins which also gained the award for the best exhibit from Nova Scotia in this section. The Occidental Fruit Company, Kelowna, B.C., was well to the fore in the class for the Spitzenberg variety and secured the gold medal.

It was unfortunate that the exhibit of the United Fruit Companies of Nova Scotia arrived too late for the competition, but the apples were given prominence and enhanced the appearance of the Overseas display.

In addition to the excellence of the fruit, a feature of the whole Canadian exhibit that provoked considerable comment was the efficiency shown in the grading and packing of the fruit. There was, of course, regret that British Columbia was not more largely represented, but the display sustained the high reputation of the apple growing province of the Dominion. The pears, for which there was one class were not equal to the apples for exhibition purposes, the majority having suffered in course of transit.

P. J. Carey, the orchard demonstrator to the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, was one of the judges, and J. Forsyth Smith, Canadian Fruit Trade Commissioner, was in attendance at the exhibition watching the interests of growers in the Dominion. In addition to the fruit entered for competition, the Ontario Government arranged a stand upon which the products of that province were effectively displayed.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

Among certain African tribes, where poly/gamy is the custom and marriage laws are very lax, it is not infrequent for a chief to contract with a father for all his daughters rather than just one.

He may get three or four almost as cheaply as one, and since they serve as his slaves and do all the work in the fields as well as about the home, often it is decidedly advantageous.

America Leads in Home Comforts

The average American home has more comforts and conveniences than the palaces of Europe. Home for home, the American household has a well-kept look, an atmosphere of prosperity and contentment you cannot find in the homes of any other country in the world.

In foreign lands, the modernized dwelling, as we know it, is found only in limited numbers and then only in the larger cities.

In America, even in remote rural districts, you find pianos, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, up-to-date heating systems, telephones and numberless appliances that go far to make life easier, happier and more worth while.

You may not realize it, but America's high standard of home life is due largely to advertising. For the development of advertising is distinctively American. It has taken its place as a leading force in bringing together the interests and wants of a great, united people. And a large share of the credit for this development is due the newspapers.

Stop and think how many of the appliances you use, the foods you eat, the clothes you wear, and other articles entering into your every-day life, were popularized by newspaper advertising.

Then you will realize what a vital part advertising has played and is playing in your daily life.

You owe it to yourself to read the advertisements. They mean a lot to you.

It Aids Growth!

IS THE HERO OF A THRILLING STORY.

Andrew Malandack Came to Canada Nine Years Ago.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 28.—(By Canadian Press)—Andrew Malardack, now of this city, a Ukrainian, is the hero of a thrilling story of family love and sacrifice. He came to Canada nine years ago, just before the Great War, leaving behind him his wife and two children.

The call to arms found Malardack a true patriot, and he went overseas with the Canadian troops. He was wounded in both legs at the Somme, and when peace was declared came back to Ottawa.

But the ties of family held his heart bound to those who waited in the old land, and by dint of hard work and frugal fare, he managed to scrape enough money together to return to Europe to find his family. On June 21 last he left Ottawa for Roumania with the intention of smuggling his children and wife across the border and bringing them to Canada.

The family lived in the province of Podolsk, in a small village called Braga. Just across the river from this village lies the free land of Roumania, and over this river, when the night falls down to cover the risks, word is shouted to messengers by people who wish to communicate with Russian subjects. Down to this barrier the wife was led by those who knew Malardack was there, and he had his first conversation with her in that way, trying to persuade her to take a chance and cross the river with the children.

Money was paid to secret agents to bring her over, but the fear of the Bolshevist spy made her refuse the chance. The husband was not to be beaten, however, and he crossed into Poland, where it was reported to be easier to get over the frontier into Russia secretly. Malardack made his way to the frontier and by paying a woman the sum of 12,000 Polish marks, he was shown a way over the boundary, and after a walk of forty miles in his bare feet, he reached his family.

He was hidden for two days by his wife, and then by night returned to the frontier where he waited for them. After a day the wife and children reached his hiding place and crossed the river with him, after having bribed two Soviet guards.

Andrew Malardack and his happily reunited family reached Ottawa again on the 4th of November with little more than the clothes on their backs.

SPANISH CREAM.—1½ cupfuls St. Charles Milk, diluted with 1½ cupfuls water; ½ teaspoonful salt; 1 tablespoonful vanilla; ½ cupful sugar; 3 eggs; 1½ tablespoonfuls granulated gelatine.

Let the gelatine stand in the milk for five minutes, then scald the mixture. Combine the egg-yolks, sugar and salt with the scalded milk, and cook until slightly thickened like a custard. Then stir the mixture into the egg whites beaten stiff; add the vanilla. Turn into individual moulds which have been dipped in cold water and when set; unmould and serve with light cream, or any preserved fruit.

COCOA TAPIOCA.—1 cupful of St. Charles Milk, diluted with 2 cupfuls boiling water; ½ cupful sugar; ½ teaspoonful salt; ½ teaspoonful vanilla; ½ cupful quick-cooking tapioca; 3 teaspoonfuls powdered cocoa.

Mix together the tapioca, cocoa, sugar and salt and blend with a little of the diluted milk; then add to it the remaining milk which should be in the double-boiler top and cook over hot water until the tapioca is clear, about twenty-five minutes. Chill and serve with St. Charles Milk whipped, sweetened to taste and flavoured with vanilla.

OBREGON IS ALWAYS READY FOR A JAUNT

Travels Extensively and During Regime Has Visited Once a Month.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—(Associated Press)—President Obregon is not a stay-at-home. Contrary to the custom of his predecessor, President Carranza, who scarcely ever left the capital, the present executive travels extensively and during his administration he has "gone visiting" on an average of once a month. He never journeys more than a day's ride from Mexico City, but there is never a day of fiesta in any of the towns within that radius that it not attended by the president. His private car is stocked for travel at all times, and according to his aides, they are always prepared to go on a jaunt.

The president will take a swing through northern Mexico next December, going first to Tampico and then through Nuevo Leon, Coahuila and Chihuaha to his native state, Sonora, where he will spend the Christmas holidays.

Antharcite miners dig on an average two-thirds of a ton less of coal each day than those employed in bituminous mines.

EFFECTS OF WAR ON PEOPLE AND HOUSING

Decrease of Male and Increase of Female Population in Old London

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Some effects of the Great War on the population and housing in London are indicated in that part of the County series of the last census devoted to the Metropolis, published recently. In the Countyborough the present population is 4484,523 made up of 2,071,579 males and 2,413,044 females. This is a decrease of 54,762 of the male population in the last ten years, and an increase of 17,600 in the female population.

The total number of widowers and divorced persons in the County of London is given at 74,390 fifteen of whom are recorded as being between the ages of 10 and 19, the total having remained practically stationary in the past decade. Among women, however, there is an increase of 25,922 widows. Ovr 11,000 widows are in the age group 20-39, and might there fore be directly associated with the war.

The proportion of females in the County to 1,000 males has risen from 1,127 in 1911 to 1,165 in 1921, the numerical excess of females now being 341365—an increase of 72,362 over the figures for 1911. The ratio of unmarried females per 1,000 unmarried males has increased from 1,138 to 1,287 in the age group 29-29, and from 1,413 to 1886 in the age group 30-39. While the number of private families has increased by 9.5 percent in ten years, the growth in the number of occupied dwellings has been only 4.1 per cent. Of the 1,120,897 private families in the County only 38 per cent. (424,696) are in the single occupation of structurally separate dwellings; 32 per cent (360,758) are living two in a dwelling, while the balance of 30 percent. (355,443) are housed in dwellings containing three or more families apiece.

The population of Greater London, an aggregation of districts beyond the Country borough, is now 7,480,201—the highest on record.

Of the 41,000,000 wage-earners in the United States, the rate output of energy is a little more than 4,000,000 horsepower.

GURNSEY LISTENS TO SERMONS AT FIRESIDE

Small Island Been Enjoying Unique Telephone Service For Years.

GUERNSEY ISLAND, Eng., Nov 28.—(Associated Press)—The small island of Guernsey ,in the English channel, has been enjoying a unique telephone service for the past 24 years. Every Sunday morning telephone subscribers, at least some of them, sit at home and listen to the sermon from the church over the wires, and in summer they are entertained in the same way with the music of the local band. They simply ask central from the necessary connection, and a transmitter affixed to the pulpit or in front of the bandstand does the rest.

Guernsey developed this system as far back as 1898, when broadcasting was undreamed of and telephones were relatively few and far apart. For 24 years the natives of these unfrequented islands have been enjoying the benefits of a broadcasting system which today is becoming widespread through radio.

There are eight telephones to every 100 inhabitants of Guernsey, and the service is said to be the cheapest in the world. There is no installation charge, and for a business connection the cost is $15.00 a year; residence telephones are even cheaper. There were no increases made in the charges during the war, and the system has always been a paying proposition.

THE NEED OF DEFINITE NEWSPAPER INFORMATION

Advertisers at Home and Abroad Appreciate the Drawing Power of Newspapers.

It is only the advertiser who has used different methods of publicity who really appreciates the tremendous selling influence of the newspaper in an advertising campaign. This experience is not confined to Canadian advertisers but applies as well to advertisers in the United States. More and more every year, the advertisers in Canada and the United States are recognizing the great drawing power of the newspaper. For the large majority of commodities, there is no method of advertising which has proven so effective. Next in importance are the other periodicals—the weeklies, the monthlies, the quarterlies. Appreciating how necessary it is to have complete up-to-date information on all newspapers and other periodicals, the publishers of the Desbarats Newspaper Directory have done considerable research work and gone to a lot of expense to enable them to supply the very latest facts and statistics about these publications in their 1922-1923 edition. All information about the publication is given in concise form and this includes, name of paper, where published, by whom and when established; whether daily or weekly, if daily whether issued morning or evening; politics; price of subscription; size of paper; circulation; cost of advertising space, etc.

But the information in the Directory is not confined to publicattions alone. In it are found some interesting data about the different provinces, with their populations, area, leading cities and other important information—facts which are interesting to every business man and manufacturer. In addition to this information are the populations of the leading towns and cities, where they are situated and their leading industries and important resources. Every business man or executive will find the Desbarats Newspaper Directory a useful handbook. It is published by the Desbarats Advertising Agency Ltd. of Montreal and Toronto.

RUSSIA IMPORTS COTTON TO START SPINNING MILLS.

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—(Associated Press.)—The Russian textile industry is just now passing through a crisis and, in order to save 120,000 workmen from unemployment, the government has permitted the state cotton committee and the textile syndicate to import 2,000,000 poods or 35,000 tons of cotton, assigning for this purpose a six month's loan of 20,000,000 gold roubles.

The new economic policy of the Soviet government has given rise to a number of combined state trusts in the textile industry, and many factories which have been idle for the last. four years are now running. But the revolution ruined the cotton planting industry in Turkestan and the Caucasus, and no fresh supply of raw material was forthcoming. Thus the factories had to use up their small funds of cotton left over from pre-war days, but this, together with the expected harvest of this year, will hardly last them till next February.

Working at the rate of one-fifth of the pre-war production, the requirements of the Russian textile industry for the next year is estimated at 4,600,000 poods of raw material for 1,,600,000 spindles. This year's harvest of cotton is estimated at 700,-000 poods, while the remainder of the amount necessary for production will have to be purchased abroad, chiefly in Buckara, Persia and Khiva.

OLD LONDON'S WOMEN OUTNUMBER THE MEN

Increase of Feminine Gender Over Males 72,362 in Ten Years.

LONDON, November 27 (Associated Press). — A record increase in the number of females, as compared with males, in the city of London during the last year is shown in the census figures. In the interval between the census of 1911 and that of 1921, the female excess in London rose from 1,127 to 1,165 as compared with 1,000 males.

In actual figures the females excess in London is 341,365; an increase in ten years of 72,362. The effect of the war on the female population is shown by the fact that nearly 26,000 of this increase, or about 36 per cent., is accounted for by the widows. While, the enumerated population of London fell nearly 1 per cent. during this period, widows increased in number to 12 per cent.

Although there was a considerable increase in the number of persons between the ages of 95 and 100 in this period, the centenarians fell from twenty, five males and fifteen females, to sixteen, six males and ten females.

THE RAILROAD KEEPS SECRET A RECORD RUN

But Publishes Document at Last in Great Western Railway Magazine.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(Associated Press)—A record railway train run in England is described in a document kept secret for nearly 20 years, but now published in the Great Western Railway magazine.

On May 9, 1904, one of the Great Western boat specials from Plymouth to London attained an overall speed, exclusive of stops, of over 66 miles an hour, and at times during the journey exceeded 102 miles an hour.

The speed was officially recorded, but the company, for some reason not given, decided not to announce the accomplishment.

Skating on C.C.M. Chrome Nickel Steel Is Exhilarating

As one enthusiastic skater said: "Skating on C. C. M. Automobile Skates is just like flying. You glide along with hardly an effort."

Much of this exhilarating difference is the result of the steel used.

C. C. M. Automobile Skates are made of Special Chrome Nickel Steel as used in the costliest motor cars and the finest edge tools.

This steel takes a hard, keen, knife-like edge that grips the ice so you get full power out of every stroke. And it glides along the ice with marvelous ease and swiftness.

While hard as glass on the outside C. C. M. Skates are not brittle. The ingenious C. C. M. heat-treatment leaves an interior "core" of tough steel, that makes C. C. M. Skates practically unbreakable.

You've maybe skated on your old skates a long time now. Why not put on a pair of C. C. M. Skates and enjoy the thrill of skating on Special Chrome Nickel Steel?

Models and sizes to fit ladies, men, girls and boys.

DRUG PLAGUE IN MONTREAL

Its Growth and Numerous Arrests Offer an Unprecedented Situation.

QUEBEC, Nov. 28.—(Special)—The extent of the drug plague in Montreal and the numerous arrests resulting from the persistent chase of its victims and their suppliers has materialized in an unprecedented situation, which has brought the authorities to handle the overflow of the Bordeaux Jail here in the local jail. Twenty-five prisoners belonging to the dope fiend type or to the drug seller category have now been transferred to the Quebec Jail where they arrived late yesterday afternoon with eight guards. This is only the first contingent and another detachment of twenty to thirty will be brought here, most likely to-morrow There were eight Chinamen in the first group and a number of foreigners. They were met at the Palace Station by Governor Carbonneau and rode up to the local jail, where the necessary arrangements for their comfort had been made.

Jail Overcrowded

In addition to the fact that Bordeaux Jail is overcrowded and that additional cells are needed to lock in the unexpected number of drug addicts, it was learned that the fact that of the prisoners, whatever care could be taken, could get in easier touch with dope supply source in Montreal, the Quebec jail should be found a very good isolation point.

There was only 75 prisoners from this district in the Quebec jail up to the time of the arrival of this first contingent, and with additional guards, who are being supplied, the jail is well suited to handle 125 inmates. It has been occupied in the past for the Quebec Jail to receive the overflow of prisoners from Montreal, before the Bordeaux jail was completed, but in the present instance the increase in the drug fiend chase is responsible for the decision of the authorities.

REV. J. AND MRS. PRICE LIKE THEIR NEW HOME.

Former Rector of St. George's Writes to Friends in Peterborough.

In a letter received by a friend in Peterborough, from the Reverend James Price, former rector of St. George's church, Peterborough, Mr. Price states that both Mrs. Price and himself like Cardiff, their new home, very much.

Mr. Price is one of the assistant clergy at St. John's ancient parish church of Cardiff, of which there are four churches in the parish and five clergy, each one occupying the four churches in turn. St. John's church is considered to be the leading church, not only in Cardiff, but in Wales and is always alluded to as the Mother Church of Wales.

Mr. Price in his letter dwells on the fine public buildings of the city such as the town hall and other public buildings and the recently opened magnificent national art gallery, one of the finest in Great Britain.

Notwithstanding all the attractive points of their new home, both Mr. and Mrs. Price do not forget the many friends they made in Peterborough while resident here and look forward, at some future time, to a visit with their many friends here.

GREEK MINISTERS EXECUTED TODAY

Act May Mean Withdrawal of Assistance by Powers

LONDON, November 28. Canadian Press. — The Greek former ministers condemned to death by the military court at Athens, have been executed, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Athens this afternoon.

It was stated here that the immediate withdrawal of the British minister at Athens will result from the executions.

AMBASSADOR LEAVES

The British minister at Athens F. O. Lindley, recently informed the Greek government that if the prisoners were executed, he would depart. Upon receipt of the the news of the execution the foreign office stated that Mr. Lindley had probably already left the capital.

The action of the Greeks in the face of British representations may bring serious results to their government, according to official opinion, not only in the withdrawal of loyal support but also in the refusal of financial assistance by the Great Powers.

Sentence of life imprisonment and degradation was imposed upon Admiral Goudas and General Stratigos.

The execution of the condemned men was by shooting.

The men execpted were former Premiers Gounars, Protopapadakie and Stratos; M. Theotokis, a former War Minister; M. Ballazzis, a holdof portfolios in several former cabinets, and Geneal Hadjanestis, the commander of the Greek forces at the time of the Asia Minor military disaster.

One precedent of such action by the British would probably be a break in the diplomatic relations with Serbia in 1903 as a result of the murder of Serbian Majesties by the revolutionaries. It was pointed out however that there was still hope that the Greeks would not take such extreme measures as indicated.

There is a strong possibility that Great Britain will sever diplomatic relations with Greece if the death sentences imposed on the former Greek national ministers are carried out ,it was stated in official circles today

KINGSTON, Nov 28.—(Canadian Press).—No further word has been received in the City about the fate of the Schooner Katie Eccles, in charge of Capt. Mitchell of Portsmouth. DRUG PLAGUE IN MONTREAL

Its Growth and Numerous Arrests Offer an Unprecedented Situation.

QUEBEC, Nov. 28.—(Special).—The extent of the drug plague in Montreal and the numerous arrests resulting from the persistent chase of its victims and their suppliers has materialized in an unprecedented situation, which has brought the authorities to handle the overflow of the Bordeaux Jail here in the local jail. Twenty-five prisoners belonging to the dope fiend type or to the drug seller category have now been transferred to the Quebec Jail where they arrived late yesterday afternoon with eight guards. This is only the first contingent and another detachment of twenty to thirty will be brought here, most likely to-morrow There were eight Chinamen in the first group and a number of foreigners. They were met at the Palace Station by Governor Carbonneau and rode up to the local jail, where the necessary arrangements for their comfort had been made.

Jail Overcrowded

In addition to the fact that Bordeaux Jail is overcrowded and that additional cells are needed to lock in the unexpected number of drug addicts, it was learned that the fact that of the prisoners, whatever care could be taken, could get in easier touch with dope supply source in Montreal, the Quebec jail should be found a very good isolation point.

There was only 75 prisoners from this district in the Quebec jail up to the time of the arrival of this first contingent, and with additional guards, who are being supplied, the jail is well suited to handle 125 inmates. It has been occupied in the past for the Quebec Jail to receive the overflow of prisoners from Montreal, before the Bordeaux jail was completed, but in the present instance the increase in the drug fiend chase is responsible for the decision of the authorities.

REV. J. AND MRS. PRICE LIKE THEIR NEW HOME.

Former Rector of St. George's Writes to Friends in Peterborough.

In a letter received by a friend in Peterborough, from the Reverend James Price, former rector of St. George's church, Peterborough, Mr. Price states that both Mrs. Price and himself like Cardiff, their new home, very much.

Mr. Price is one of the assistant clergy at St. John's ancient parish church of Cardiff, of which there are four churches in the parish and five clergy, each one occupying the four churches in turn. St. John's church is considered to be the leading church, not only in Cardiff, but in Wales and is always alluded to as the Mother Church of Wales.

Mr. Price in his letter dwells on the fine public buildings of the city such as the town hall and other public buildings and the recently opened magnificent national art gallery, one of the finest in Great Britain.

Notwithstanding all the attractive points of their new home, both Mr. and Mrs. Price do not forget the many friends they made in Peterborough while resident here and look forward, at some future time, to a visit with their many friends here.

GREEK MINISTERS EXECUTED TODAY

Act May Mean Withdrawal of Assistance by Powers

LONDON, November 28. Canadian Press. — The Greek former ministers condemned to death by the military court at Athens, have been executed, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Athens this afternoon.

It was stated here that the immediate withdrawal of the British minister at Athens will result from the executions.

AMBASSADOR LEAVES

The British minister at Athens F. O. Lindley, recently informed the Greek government that if the prisoners were executed, he would depart. Upon receipt of the the news of the execution the foreign office stated that Mr. Lindley had probably already left the capital.

The action of the Greeks in the face of British representations may bring serious results to their government, according to official opinion, not only in the withdrawal of loyal support but also in the refusal of financial assistance by the Great Powers.

Sentence of life imprisonment and degradation was imposed upon Admiral Goudas and General Stratigos.

The execution of the condemned men was by shooting.

The men execpted were former Premiers Gounars, Protopapadakie and Stratos; M. Theotokis, a former War Minister; M. Ballazzis, a holder of portfolios in several former cabinets, and Geneal Hadjanestis, the commander of the Greek forces at the time of the Asia Minor military disaster.

One precedent of such action by the British would probably be a break in the diplomatic relations with Serbia in 1903 as a result of the murder of Serbian Majesties by the revolutionaries. It was pointed out however that there was still hope that the Greeks would not take such extreme measures as indicated.

There is a strong possibility that Great Britain will sever diplomatic relations with Greece if the death sentences imposed on the former Greek national ministers are carried out ,it was stated in official circles to-day

Marine Men Think the Katie Eccles Lying Somewhere for Shelter.

KINGSTON, Nov 28.—(Canadian Press).—No further word has been received in the City about the fate of the Schooner Katie Eccles, in charge of Capt. Mitchell of Portsmouth. Many marine men are of the opinion that the schooner is lost, but there are others of opinion that she is lying in somewhere for shelter.

When the Katie Eccles left Oswego, Sunday night, the crew consisted of Captain Harry Mitchell, a boy and woman cook inquiries were received this morning from Oswego about steamers Carter and Merrill, two coal boats which ply between Oswego and Lake Ports and as far east as Ogdensburg, which left Oswego Sunday evening, and nothing has been heard of them here.

KIWANIS GRABBED UNEXPECTED WIN

Victory Last Night Pulled Them Up Into a Tie With Lawn Bowlers For Last Place.

The Kiwanis pulled the unexpected last evening when they won a victory. They trounced the Lawn Bowlers by the score of 16 to 15 and are now tied with that fast team for last place. These two teams are planning to play an exhibition game after the schedule. The losing team will supply a oyster feed to the winners and league officials. They plan to have an umpire on each base to direct the runners and call everything.

Last evening Fox was on the rubber for the Bowlers and he did well considering the support he received. "Alex" Dick the Bowlers usual star was off colour at first base last evening, but when he moved to the field he immediately began spearing the hot one that came out his way.

The Bowlers got most of their runs in two big innings, the third and fourth. They batted around in both these innings. The Kiwanis also had a big innings in the third all getting a chance at Fox's offerings in that frame.

The players were:

Bowlers—Gilliam 2b, Freeman c, Foss ss, McCarther 3b, Martin ss, Curvin 1b, Fox p, Elliot lf, Hendry rf.

Kiwanis—Weber p, Craig c, Dick 1b, McLean 2b, Neil ss, Cummer 3b, Philips lf, Lacey ss, Henderson rf.

Score by innings:

Bowlers ..... 00742001I—15
Kiwanis ..... 23511301x—16

CONACHER MAY MOVE TO OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—The Journal on its sport page yesterday carried the following:

"Lionel Conacher is coming to Ottawa, according to a well-founded report in circulation yesterday. In fact it is stated that a position has been secured for him here, and Conny is said to be tired of Toronto, where his efforts have gone unappreciated in the main. Conacher has been reported going to Montreal, Hamilton and other centres, but this is the first time that Ottawa has definitely been hinted as his future residence. The Journal was skeptical of the report till its source was disclosed, and is in a position to state that a great effort is being made to bring him here. With Conacher here, Ottawa would have one sweet Rugby team to look forward to next year.

The Toronto Telegram has the following to say about the Ottawa report:

Conacher has started business in Toronto and has said he will try his hand in Toronto in business alone and fully expects to make a success of it.

Some Comments on The Queen's Victory

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—Commenting on Queen's victory over Argos on Saturday, the Citizen yesterday said:

"Queen's won because the collegians are a better balanced team. The tri-color made few mistakes, whereas, on the other hand, Argos blundered and blundered badly on several occasions. Argos' line was probably a little more effettive than Queen's, but behind the line Queen's was supreme. The work of Batstone, Leadley and Harding excelled that of Connacher, Sullivan and McCormick."

The Journal sporting editor writes:

"To Leadley goes the glory, for it was his educated boot that stemmed back the tide of black defeat that was slowly engulfing Queen's in the last peiod. It was Leadley who broke away when all seemed lost for a forty-five-yard run, twisting and dodging and fending off tacklers with his swinging right arm, while his flying feet ate up the ground that led to the Argo goal. It was Leadley who, poised on the 20-yard line a minute later, with 34,000 eyes focused on him, and his lion heart quickening its beat, who deftly whipped a drop goal off his toe straight and true as an arrow, for the three points that transferred the sable mantle of disaster from the triple-striped shoulders of Queen's to the light and dark blue of the Argo gladiators."

PAJAMA PARADE WHEN ARGOS LOST

Toronto Rugby Fans Pay For Their Misplaced Confidence — Spectators Delighted.

No, it isn't the woman who always pays. Several Argo supporters at Saturday's game will explain to the eager enquirers that the aftermath of a football victory is something awful if you are on the losing side.

One of them did penance this morning for his misplaced confidence. He paraded down Yonge street looking chic in le dernier cri in pyjamas, thereby attracting the attention of all the passersby from the noon hour procession of pretty stenographers. The vividness of the costume was heightened by the addition of a last year's straw hat. He wore on his back a neat sign "I bet on Argos."

After lunching in a King street restaurant to the huge delight of everybody in sight, he hurried off to see a man about a lot of dogs—and get some clothes.

Roth Eaton of the Yonge street Arcade startled the world of fashion about the same time by appearing in an outfit that would draw attention even in Greenwich village. Onlookers could not decide whether he was going to a wedding or the North Pole. The fact that he wore a silk topper would seem to indicate that he was on his way to some exclusive social function, but this would not account for the snow shoes which he wore. He was labelled, "I bet on Argos."

Verily, politicians are not the only one who are publicly pilloried for their mistakes.—Toronto Star.

McHenry was stricken while playing ball in Cincinnati.

He was twenty-seven years old, and leaves a widow and two children.

MILLION DOLLAR BABIES

Left to Right, Billy Kamm and Jack Bentley; Below, Jimmy O'Connell

By BILLY EVANS.

Presenting the "million-dollar babies" of baseball, Jimmy O'Connell, Billy Kamm and Jack Bentley.

In the spring the baseball fans of the country will give much attention to this costly trio. Publicity always arouses curiosity, and goodness knows these three young men have had more than their share of publicity.

Jimmy O'Connell goes to the New York Giants. About a year ago McGraw gave $75,000 to the San Francisco club for O'Connell. He was then a first baseman. In order to put through the deal McGraw was forced to allow O'Connell to play the following year on the coast.

Since McGraw intends to use O'Connell as an outfielder he stipulated that he be played in the outfield rather than at first. In all probability McGraw figures on O'Connell filling the center field gap on the Giants.

Billie Kamm comes to the Chicago White Sox with the reputation of being the best third sacker ever sent east from the Coast League. Kamm cost the Sox $100,000 in addition to a number of players. Chicago has already turned over three pitchers, Hodge, McWeeny and Courtney; also Third Baseman Eddie Mulligan as part payment.

Jack Bentley of the Baltimore club, known as the Babe Ruth of the minors, was only recently purchased by McGraw for the New York Giants. Bentley is said to have cost McGraw $75,000. He can play first or pitch. McGraw says he intends to use him on the rubber.

The showing of O'Connell and Kamm last year was a bit of a surprise. O'Connell, a natural left-handed hitter, was expected to show the way to Kamm, who is a right hander, and more or less a manufactured hitter. Kamm was a weak batter when he broke into the Coast League but has shifted his style until he got results.

Last season in the Coast League Kamm batted .343 while O'Connell hit only .335. Bentley batted .359, and when not playing first base won 13 out of 14 games as a pitcher. McGraw says he intends to use him in that capacity.

What will the spring bring forth? We shall see what we shall see.

COLLINS WOULD LIKE NEW YORK

Second Sacker of Chicago White Sox is Quite Willing to Go to the Yanks.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—The stories that Eddie Collins, the crack second baseman of the Chicago White Sox, will be with the New York Americans next year will not down. Collins, who winters in one of the suburbs of Philadelphia, was asked what he knew about it.

"All that I know of the reported deal that is to take me to New York is what I have read in the papers," he replied.

"Would you like to play there?" was the next question put to him.

"Most any player would welcome a chance to go to New York. The Chicago fans have always treated me great and I like the city, but I certainly wouldn't offer any objections if the Sox decided to send me to New York.

"Funny thing, but from the very first day I broke into major league ball I cherished a desire to wear a New York uniform. Perhaps it was because I made my baseball start at Columbia, which is located in that city.

"The financial possibilities in New York also appeal to the player. New York draws the big crowds and can pay the fancy salaries if they want a man. Then there is the world series to shoot at. New York has won two pennants and despite all the criticism that has been hurled at the Yankee club because of its poor showing in the series, it still is a mighty tough team to beat over the long route."

Sandy Says Make Central League "Pro" or Amateur

Sports Editor of the Port Hope Guide Has Some Pointed Remarks to Make About Conditions As He Thinks They Exist in the C.O.B.L.

The proposed January 1 residence rule for the C.O.B.L. has caused a lot of comment, pro and con, throughout the Central League loop. Sandy Lockington, head sporting scribe of our Port Hope contemporary, The Guide, has a very pertinent article on the question. Regardless of whether Mr. Lockington's point of view coincides with ours or not he has a few interesting and pointed remarks to make. This is what he says:—

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Central Ontario League will be held shortly at Belleville to consider certain recommendations from the O.B.A.A., principal among which is that all leagues affiliated with the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association adopt the residence rule of January 1. The Central League constitution fixes the residence rule at May 15, but there has been an agitation for some time to have this amended to conform with the Ontario Association, and from all appearances, the change is likely to go through this year. What the effect will be, time alone will tell but the matter should receive the very serious consideration of every officer of Central League. From here, it looks as if the small towns will be unable to remain in the League. Every year the number of importations by the different teams have increased and it is out of the question that the gate receipts will permit of carrying of players from January 1. Belleville Oshawa and Peterboro can afford to do it, but it is too expensive a proposition for the other clubs. But then some of the officials of the other clubs will endeavor to convince you that they are not carrying any players. They would have you believe that Al Heckman started out on an aeroplane trip last summer and by chance landed in Peterboro' on May 14, just in time to conform to the residence rule. Or by a similar turn of events, Gallagher, Evans and Saunders, of Kingston left on a sight-seeing trip, Oshawa becoming their destination. Our Belleville friends would like us to accept the story that out of sympathy for Williams who did practically all the pitching for Belleville last summer, Oulette, of Lindsay, has decided to cast his lot in with the Bay of Quinte team. Numerous examples, to include Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville teams, could be cited, but these are sufficient to show that we are simply kidding ourselves about being amateurs, and it is safe to say, that every team affiliated with the C.B.A.A. is in exactly the same position. To our mind, it is time to quit the kidding game, throw the residence rule to the winds and make baseball either out and out professional, or else strictly amateur.

BRAKE MAKERS TAKE THE LEAD

Strengthened Hold on First Place By Defeating the Engineers Last Evening.

The Raybestos strengthened their position as leaders of Mercantile section last evening, by giving the fast Engineer team the small end of 13 to 4 score. The leadership and practically the winning of the league depended on the game and as a result the Raybestos take the lead, the Engineers second and the Wollens trailing along at third place.

Last evening's game gave promise of being the fastest game of the season. The first four innings were filled with sparkling ball and good pitching. McLeod up for the Raybestos laid down a beautiful bunt, easily beating out the throw. He stole second and third and came in on a hit by Coursey. Langley retired the next three men on strikes. Snappy fielding and great pitching kept the Engineers from scoring in their half of the first. The fast work continued and there was no scoring until the fourth when a hit and two wild throws gave the Engineers their first run. Things broke then and the Raybestos chased across four runs in the fifth and sixth on long hits and numerous errors. The Engineers came back in their half of the sixth with two and another in the seventh. The Raybestos failed to score in the seventh but came back with four more in the eighth. Neither team scored in the ninth.

The teams were:

Raybestos—Ranger c, McLeod p, Russell 3b, Coursey 1b, Abbott lf, J. Russell rf, Wolfe ss, Byers ss, Van Peer 2b.

Engineers—McCarney rf, Metherall 2b, Helson c, Caruthers lf, Frost ss, Batten ss, Langley p, Jackson 3b, Munro 1b.

Score by innings:

Raybestos ..... 100044040—13
Engineers ..... 000102100— 4

The tentative schedule calls for the first appearance of the invaders at New Glasgow, Canada, on 14th January.

KINGSTON CROWD WAS DISAPPOINTED

Queen's Players Slipped Away From the Station and Celebration Failed to Materialize.

KINGSTON, Nov. 28.—Several thousand people turned out Sunday afternoon to welcome home Queen's team after their victory over the Argonauts in Toronto on Saturday. But they were very much disappointed, as they did not get a chance to cheer the victors. The train pulled into the inner G.T.R. station to a lively Scotch air played by the kilties of the 14th Regiment, and the crowd were standing on their toes to give the players a reception. They stood with their mouths pursed for a cheer, but they cheered not as their large eyes failed to see any of the well-known forms of the victorious tri-color.

After the crowd had waited impatiently for several seconds Mayor Corbett and others went into the car to investigate, but they found it empty. A newspaperman took up the trail and found the modest players going up a side street. When the crowd was waiting for them to emerge from the platform, they took a short cut through the station, and had disappeared before anybody awoke to the fact.

Several hundreds followed the players to Queen's gymnasium, but the gridiron heroes quietly disappeared, and there was no opportunity for cheering or oratory.

Apart from the great crowd at the station, the principal streets were lined with people, who expected the players would pass by, and they could express their approval of their work, and they, too, were much disappointed.

It is understood that the reason for the players avoiding the crowd was that there were only seven of them, the rest having remained over in Toronto.

CROSS-COUNTRY RACE WON BY SYRACUSE.

NEW YORK, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Syracuse University's well-balanced team of hill-and-dale runners, drove to brilliant victory yesterday in the inter-collegiate championship cross-country race, over a snow-swept course of six miles at Vancortlandt Park.

Walter Higgins, Columbia ace, carried off individual honours, after a spectacular duel from start to finish with Bob Hendrie, M.I.T., captain, and New England cross-country champion.

Orange Harriers outfooted twelve rival college teams, and finished with a point score of 75. Yale finished second with 108, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology third with 113 points.

Higgins' time, 32 minutes 21 8-10 seconds, was 1 3-10 seconds slower than the course record set a year ago by Robert E. Bown, of Cornell.

Penn. State won the annual three-mile freshman cross-country inter-collegiate race. W. E. Shipley, of Penn. State, was the individual winner, his time being 16 minutes 11 1-10 seconds. Barclay, of Penn. State, was second, and Homer Smith, of Syracuse, was third.

SPORTS OUTLOOK FOR LAKEFIELD

Hockey Prospects Very Good — Another Ball Game--Athletic Tourney

LAKEFIELD, November 28. — The prospects for hockey this winter are very good, and it is not at all unlikely that Lakefield will enter a team in the O.H.A., and probably also in the Peterborough City League.

Rumour says that the Veterans will take over the hockey team this year. Arrangements for the season will be made in the near future.

It is quite likely that the Ladies' Hockey team will be re-organised this season, as last year the team put themselves on the map. They may enter a team in the proposed Ladies' O.H.A. Miss Mary MacKenzie, whose splendid work last year is well remembered, is in Toronto now, and will not be with the local aggregation, but most of last year's team are keen for a more eventful season than last year.

Several newcomers will join, and the girls feel that they are sure of a strong team.

Another Game Baseball.

The baseball season is practically at an end, as the hard frosts will mean that the work of preparing the rink for the winter sports will soon begin.

At the athletic tournament on Thursday night, Robert Alford, the manager of the All-Stars, was heard to remark that he would like to arrange a game with the Veterans at an early date.

If this game comes off, it will be the last of the season, no doubt.

Athletic Tourney.

The Athletic Tournament held on Thursday evening in the rink, under the auspices of the G.W.V.A., was one of the best things we have had in Lakefield.

An open-air field day held in May and one in the rink in Octobe each year would be an advantage to the village and give pleasure to young and old alike. These, with a regatta a midsummer, would invite constant training for local athletes, and encourage the small boys along these lines, so that there would be always a crop of trained men for ball and hockey teams. Yes, and girls, too, for athletics mean as mulh to girls as to boys, and makes for better citizenship.

Statistics show that the average woman marries at the age of 25 years.

NIGHBOR WILL PLAY WITH OTTAWA CLUB.

OTTAWA, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Frank Nighbor, who is generally regarded as the greatest centre ice man in professional hockey, will figure on the Ottawa Hockey Club's squad in the National Hockey League during the coming season.

Rumours have been flying thick and fast during the past few days as to the intentions of the great and only poke-check artiste from Pembroke, and some of the local hockey lovers, with all of whom he is a popular idol, thought they had seen the celebrated athlete on blades for the last time; but officers of the Ottawa Club announced with natural elation last night that Nighbor had consented to help the old red, white and black again in their efforts to bring back the Stanley Cup to Ottawa.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE MOGULS CALL MEETING.

City Hockey League moguls have been called together for a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night at eight o'clock. A representative from the Lakefield Hockey Club will be present with a view to entering a team in the circuit. Application for membership from the northerners carries with it a request that some of the league games be played in Lakefield. Canadian Generals have organized and will be back again this coming winter with a strong team.

A large number of O.H.A. players and prospects attended the indoor training at the Y.M.C.A. gym last night. Don Loucks took charge of the class. The hockey committee are uncovering a number of intermediate and junior players who were with various clubs before coming here and there will be plenty of players for places on the two teams

Welland is not neglecting the members of the Junior O. B. A. A. team, runners-up for the Ontario title. The players on the team that put Adanacs away, were presented with gold watches and fobs.

The annual basketball campaign is about to be launched again. Two divisions have been organized for a city basketball series at the Y.M.C.A., with Rotary Club, Excelsiors, Belmonts and the junior team of last season, forming the first division.

The rink at Havelock is being enlarged and improved, with an ice area of 80 ft. x 180 ft. The railroaders hope to enter a team in the Trent Valley League. Campbellford High School boys are also building an open-air rink to accommodate their team, which will be a starter in the Trent race.

THE IRON HAND MUST CONTINUE

Only Way to Suppres Irish Irregulars Unless They Surrender.

LONDON, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Discussing the application of the "iron hand" with a representative of the Daily Mail yesterday, President Cosgrave, of the Dail Eireann declared that he feared more executions would be necessary before peace could be bought to Ireland. The only people who could stop executions were the Irregulars themselves.

"If they surrender their arms, executions will cease," he said. "If they come only five minutes before any execution, and say, they surrender, I will gladly reprieve the condemned. We only seek peace and prosperity. Executions are deterrent, not punishment. If I am shot, as many of my colleagues have been shot, it will make no diffeence. There are others ready to take our places."

Bread in Cobourg 8 cts. Small Loaf in Peterboro 10c.

Cobourg bakers have announced a drop of two cents in the price of bread, and now a small loaf which had been selling for ten cents can be bought for eight cents.

The public in Peterborough have for some time been looking for a drop in bread prices, which however still remain firm at, in one case, 9 cents the small loaf, and in others 10 cents. Taking the lower of these prices, a cent difference between it and that in Cobourg would not represent much perhaps to the family of two or three who enjoy the luxuries of life, with bread the smallest item of their daily diet. But to a struggling mother here in Peterborough, with no less than eight kiddies to feed, and many another poor family of five and six hungry mouths, bread is the main staff of life indeed, on which the saving of a cent or two cents a loaf would mean considerable financial relief.

And why cannot bread be sold here as cheaply as in Cobourg and many another community? That is a question bakers should answer, for surely they can buy their makings at the same figure as do those elsewhere who are underselling them.

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS CLOSE OF A PARTY

Dr. G. A. Still, President of American School of Osteopathy, the Victim

KIRKSVILLE, Miss., Nov. 28. — Dr. George A. Still, president of the American School of Osteopathy, and one of the best known surgeons in the United States, accidentally shot and killed himself at 10.30 in the evening in the long barn on his place on South Osteopathy avenue.

Dr. Still was exhibiting to his wife and a few friends an automtaic revolver which dropped out of his hand and fell to the concrete floor. As he picked it up the weapon was discharged, the bullet entering his head and killing him instantly.

The fatality occurred just after Dr. George and Mrs. Still had been entertaining the A. S. O. Hospital nurses and internes at a banquet. Dr. Still and Mrs. Still, a Mr. Monteith and two of the musicians were alone in the barn when the accident happened.

Dr. George was the only son of Doctor S. S. and Ella Still, and was born in Endora, Kansas, in 1882. He was a grand nephew of the late Andrew Taylor Still, M.D., founder of Osteopathy.

Dr. Still was a graduate of the Kirksville Teachers' College, B.S. Drake University; M.S. M.D. Northwestern, D.O. American School of Osteopathy.

The Peterborough students in the late Dr. Still's institution are: H. J. Taylor, Frederick D. Rutherford, J. Grant Braund.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THEATRES

ROYAL—SPECIAL FIRST RUN feature production "The Crusader" presented by William Fox with William Russell in the star role. Also high class Fox comedy Mutt and Jeff, World News and Western Drama.

CAPITOL — THEODORE ROBERTS in the super-play "The Old Homestead", adapted from Denman Thompson's play. Also balance of Capitol entertaining programme.

REGENT — Jack London in the "Son of the Wolf." Charlie Chaplin in "A Night in the Show."

AT THE ROYAL.

WILLIAM FOX NEW FILM WINS INSTANT SUCCESS.

The William Fox picture in which William Russell opened last night at the Regent Theatre scored an emphatic success. Entitled "The Crusader," and adapted from that popular author of adventure stories, Alan Sullivan, it caught the fancy of the audience at the start.

It deals with the story of a young farmer who is ambitious to embark on a career. He is the only support of his widowed mother. She realizes his ambitions and tells him to go forth into the world. He goes into a lumber camp and later to the Cobalt mining district.

The story is well stocked with exciting incidents, including a thrilling fight on the banks of some raipds, An unusual feature of the play is that there are two feminine roles of practically equal distinction—one played by Helen Ferguson, the leading woman, the other by Fritzi Brunette.

The star's work throughout is admirable, and the staging most attractive. It is a picture of powerful appeal to all lovers of rapid fire action on the screen.

Capitol Entertainment

"The Old Homestead," shown at the Capitol Theatre last evening, was well deserving of the words of praise which were unanimously accorded the picture by the local movie fans. Though the plot of the story is an old one the theme was handled in a manner that mingled, comedy, tragedy, pathos and laughter in the true spirit of the homestead life. Simple in its execution, the story had all the heart thrills of the home life of the sturdy country stock. The love of home, the tragedy of an unjust accusation based on a firm foundation of circumstantial evidence, the love of a lass for a lad who in spite of the indications, believes in the honesty and integrity of her lover, the stern code of Old Eph, who out-Shylockes Shylock in his demands for his pound of flesh, but is ever "a just man" even though his own son must pay the penalty, the calm dignity and supreme kindness of Uncle Josh all join with the gaiety of Happy Jack the Wanderer and the ludicrous escapades of Aunt Tillie's two suitors to make a human, moving story which is well worth seeing.

TOWN PLANNING

Board—shall have a plan prepared by the bureau at the expense of the municipality.

The Administration.

Local administration of the provisions of the Act is entrusted to the municipal Council or to a commission consisting of the Mayor and two ratepayers appointed by the Council for two years or until their successors are appointed, except that at the first appointment—one shall be for two years and one for one year.

This regulation applies where the town planning district does not extend beyond the limits of the municipality making application. When the district extends beyond the limits of the applicant municipality the administrative commission to be known as the Town Plan Commission of (Peterborough) and district shall consist of seven persons, viz., five ratepayers appointed by the City Council for five years, except that upon the first appointments they shall hold office for from one to five years, respectively; and two ratepayers from the district outside the city for four years, except that on the first appointment one shall be for two years only.

Bureau May Act.

If a municipality fails to appoint a Plan Commission within six months from the date of any order of the board establishing a town planning district, the board may order that the bureau shall have and exercise within such district all the powers of a Plan Commission.

Commissioners shall serve without remuneration, but are entitled to receive actual disbursements for expenses in connection with services undertaken by direction of the commission, which shall hold monthly meetings.

The commission may employ all necessary officers, clerks, etc., prescribe their duties and compensation.

Levy Special Rate.

Where a commission has been appointed for a town planning district, the Council of every city, town, village and township included in whole or part in the district shall levy a special annual maximum rate of one-tenth mill on the dollar upon the whole assessment, income and business, within the limits of the district, which amount shall be placed at the disposal of the Town Plan Commission.

The commission may solicit and receive grants and bequests of money or property and may deal in real estate. It shall submit to the Council of each municipality in the town planning district a priority list showing the order in which in its judgment the more urgent matters required to carry out the general plan as approval shall be undertaken, and except by a two-thirds vote of the Council none of such matters shall be undertaken by the municipality out of the order shown on the priority list without the consent of the commission.

Additional Grants.

When the annual estimates of the municipalities in the district are being considered the commission shall submit to each municipality a statement of the sums, in addition to the town planning rate, which in the judgment of the commission should be placed at its disposal by the municipality for the ensuing year in connection with the carrying out of the general plan.

The General Plan.

The Council may have proposed a general plan of development for the whole or any part of the town planning district, illustrating the proposed activities of and improvements contemplated by the Council. This plan must be submitted for the approval of the Railway Board, and after its approval the Council shall not pass a bylaw not in accordance with it without the consent of the board.

These are some of the provisions of the Act which the Legal Committee considers generally intrusive and otherwise objectionable.

MARY MacSWINEY WAS A MILITARY PRISONER.

Hence Minister of Defence Was Privileged to Act As He Deemed Expedient.

DUBLIN, Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press).—Popular surprise over the release of Mary MacSwiney was largely because early declarations from Government quarters were so unequivocal against permitting the prisoner's hunger. Strike to sway the authorities from their course.)

It is pointed out, however that she was really a military prisoner, and that Minister of Defence Mulcahy, was privileged to take whatever action he deemed expedient. He had been a close frind of her brother, Terence MacSwiney.

Her case is being treated as an exceptional one and will not set a precedent for any who wish to emulate her example. Physicians report that her recuperation will be only a question of a short time.

FARM HOUSE LOST IN MORNING FIRE

Defective Chimney Presumable Cause of Fire That Consumed Geo. Fallis' House.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 28.—Fire that is believed to have been caused by a defective chimney destroyed the two-storey frame building of Mr. George Fallis, on the Fallis Line, three miles west of here this morning. The family were all absent at the time, and when the blaze was discovered about 10.30 o'clock, the flames had spread through the upper part of the house. Threshers at the Sutton home on the next farm saved most of the furniture in the lower rooms. At noon the fire had nearly burned itself out, and the efforts to save the barns were successful.

THE DOMINION CAFE RE-OPENED TO-DAY

A Restaurant Home of Comfort, Elegance and Service.

Spick and span, clean and sanitary throughout, offering the very last word in appointments and service, the Dominion Cafe in the Market building, George street, opened its doors to-day after extensive alterations. Within and without, this restaurant, modelled on New York lines, in which class dominates, now presents surroundings and comforts "a la mode."

The store front, built up on a costly mottled marble base, and completed in burnished copper, softly tinted glass and cream-painted woodwork, is attractively imposing, and gracefully inviting. Interiorly, the windows present a tasty and unique adornment, in which two tempting, five-story wedding cakes made on the premises, form the central figures. These are prettily flanked by charming bouquets of choice 'mums in truly fascinating Chinese vases. And the decorative icing design on the cakes, the main feature of which is a wreath of delicate climbing roses ,shows real art-creative talent.

This altogether premier Cafe's interior has been entirely re-modelled and re-decorated in a dominant color scheme, mainly of blue and gold, which combining in softly blended shades, holds the eye in restful attraction. Both oak base and surmounting walls are in arresting panel design, while over the spacious hardwood floor area to the front are distributed ten spotless linen-clothed tables, affording maximum accommodation and comfort for the most discriminating guest. In the rear one finds six comfy stalls affording that semi-privacy which many guests look for, in all modern restaurants like the Dominion.

Then there is the kitchen, where the most delectable menus are prepared under conditions leaving nothing to be desired in the way of cleanliness and sanitation. One could eat from off the floor, as the saying goes ,while cooking utensils reflect like mirrors.

The architect for this ideal work of re-construction was W. H. Barry, the contractor Thomas Ephgrave, while the excellent millwork was supplied by the Alfred McDonald Co., all of this city.

Jim Hum, the proprietor of the Dominion Cafe, has catered to the public in this city for nine years now ,his service always being qualified as par excellence; and he is to be congratulated on his enterprise as reflected in this practically new and beautiful home of efficiency and service.

LITTLE GROUP MET DEATH IN MARTYR STYLE

One Man Was Carried to Scene of Execution on a Stretcher-Shot to Death by Firing Squad.

COURT'S JUDGMENT

(Copyright, 1922.)

ATHENS, Nov. 29. — (United Press.)—A little group of statesmen and one soldier, formerly a general in supreme command of the Greek armies, strolled into a stone flagged yard early yesterday and faced death like gentlemen.

To-day it is possible to relate, for the first time, the story of how five members of the cabinet that fell with King Constantine, and the man who led the troops of Greece against the Turks were executed by a firing squad.

Condemned to death for treason, held responsible for the crushing defeat administered to the Greeks by Mustapha Kemal, the ministers at first refused to believe the government would really go through with it. They were aware that the British threatened to sever relations if they were killed, and other powerful influences were called on in their behalf, in vain.

Finally the hour arrived. Priests arrived at the jail, and the doomed men were offered communion. They partook, kneeling in the barred chamber— the men who once were all-highest and all-powerful in Greece, whose words moved armies —now unable to save their own lives.

All were on hand except former Premier Gounaris, who was too ill to leave his bed for the pre-death ceremonies.

Were Hurried Out.

Immediately after the communion, the condemned men were hurried to the place of execution. Gounaris, scarce able to raise his head, was rolled out of bed on to a stretcher, placed in an ambulance and so conveyed to the spot set for the execution.

Six squads of soldiers, five riflemen in each, were waiting there to send the fallen statesmen into the next world. They stood like automatons, eyes straight ahead, as emotionless as wax figures, as the prisoners were brought in.

Gounaris was lifted out of the ambulance and placed before the firing squad. He was too sick to pay much attention to what was going on. Indifferent, huddled, with hands thrust deep in his pockets, he stood with his head bowed until the volley crashed.

Gounaris dreamed of making war and restoring "the ancient glory that was Greece." He failed and paid with his life.

Baltazzis, who has been a cabinet minister under several Premiers, was debonair to the last. He could not conceal his nervousness as he faced death. It manifested itself in his fidgety way he kept polishing his monocle, occasionally putting it to his eye to look over the preparations for the executions.

General Hadjanestis, commander of the armies of Greece in their fateful attempt to roll back the Turks in Asia Minor, was forced to suffer military degradation before being shot.

Deposed from his high office as war lord of the Greek military machine, he stood stiffly at attention when some of the very men he used to command approached him to cut the buttons off his uniform tunic, and tear his badges from his breast. They sawed off the buttons, ripped away the badges and left him disgraced—a row of ragged holes in his jacket where his marks of rank had been. Tears trickled slowly down his grim face. A few minutes later his body was carried out.

The others were haggard, pale and weary looking as they marched to death, but they kept their nerve to the finish.

Wipes Out Coalition.

These executions practically wiped out the coalition cabinet which was in power during the recent war with turkey.

The court martial which condemned these men stated their offence as follows: "They concealed from the people the danger of King Constantine's return which they sought in order to enjoy high office under him. They stifled public opinion against them by terroristic methods, and arranged a pretended offensive against Constantinople, thereby bringing about the enemy's offensive."

Whether Prince Andrew, of Greece, will have to stand trial on charges of disobeying orders of the Greek General Staff in the Asia Minor campaign is still an unanswered question here. No word as to his probable fate has been received from Athens since November 22 when it was stated that he would be tried by court martial when the trial of former cabinet members was completed. He was arrested at Corfu late in October and taken to Athens.

Britain will seek to prevent the execution of further Greek statesmen.

HALL MYSTERY CASE DROPPED

Grand Jury Failed to Return Indictments-Widow Kept Vigil Outside Jury Room Door.

SOMERPVILLE, N.J., Nov. 29. —(United Press).—The Hall-Mills case was listed as an "unsolved mystery" to-day following failure of the Grand Jury probing it to return indictments.

The jury voted "no indictments" late yesterday and while Foreman Gibb issued a statement declaring the action did not preclude action by a subsequent investigating body, it was believed to-day that no further action will be taken.

Special Prosecutor Mott declared he was in "suspended animation" as to what will be done next. Other officials intimated that unless new and startling evidence is discovered indictments will not be asked again.

Action of the jury yesterday was taken while Mrs. Frances Noel Hall widow of the slain rector, kept vigil outside the jury room, with her Attorney.

A WINDSOR POLICEMAN HAS BEEN EXONERATED.

WINDSOR, November 29. Canadian Press. — Albert MacCauley, the local police constable, who has been under investigation for several weeks on charges of ill-treating prisoners, is exonerated in a judgment handed out by Magistrate Gundy, chairman of the police commission to-day.

The judgment states that the charges made by R. A. Ballantyne were grossly exagerated and that nothing had shown that MacCauley was in the habit of striking prisoners. Judge J. J. Coughlin agreed with the judgment but Mayor Wilson favored the dismissal of MacCauley.

OMITTED NAME OF BELMONT IN TRANSCRIPTION

But Reeve Was Paid Special and Regular Grants for Road Work, E. M. Elliott Testified

JUDICIAL ENQUIRY

The judicial enquiry into the expenditure by ex-Warden Griffith of Belmont Township of monies said to have been received by him from the County for the improvement of roads in his township in 1920 and 1921, was opened by Judge Huycke this morning. Mr. F. D. Kerr K.C. represented the County Council and Mr. E. Gus Porter K.C., M.P., of Belleville, the defendant. The original sum the Council sought an accounting of was $350, but of that sum, Mr. Kerr said that the Council was satisfied with the payment of $150.

County Treasurer

Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, county treasurer was called first by Mr. Kerr He said that the defendant was Reeve of Belmont Township in 1920. The reeve of each township was appointed a commissioner for the expenditure of certain grants appropriated for roads and bridges in their respective municipalities.

Mr. Kerr filed as exhibits a number of cheques that had been paid by Mr. Elliott to the defedant. One dated July 14, 1920 was for $100 the regular grant to Belmont township and another for $150 a special grant for the improvement of the Stoney Lake Road.

In 1921 a cheque was issued to Mr. Griffith for $200 including regular and special grant to Belmont. Witness said that in September 1920 he received a paysheet from defendant for the $150 grant. As the names of the men were paid were not shown on it, witness returned it for these signatures.

After it had come back to the county treasurer, witness continued, some men whose names appeared on the paysheets called at the office and said they hadn't worked at the time and place indicated by Mr. Griffith.

Mr. Elliott said he had subsequently learned that $100 had been paid by the Ontario Government for the same time and to the same men. As a result the County Council desired that doubts about this $100 be cleared up.

Said Letters Lost

Regarding the $200 grant of June 5, 1921, witness said he wrote defendant on February 16th., 1922, for the paysheets covering the expenditure of this money. In March Mr. Griffith wrote that he had lost three letters one of which was from the County Treasurer as shown by the address in one corner of the envelope He asked what this letter was about. Subsequent exhibits filed by Mr. Kerr detailed the correspondence between Mr. Elliott and the County Council and Mr. Griffith with respect to the Council's request for an accounting of the $150 grants in 1921 and the $200, special and regular grants in 1922.

Upon the decision of the County Council at the June sessisn 1922, this matter passed into the hands of Mr. E. A. Peck, county solicitor. Replying on July 13 to one of Mr. Peck's letter defendant wrote in part as follows:—

"I have never received any notice whatever from County Treasurer, stating that paysheets for special grant for 1920 was wrong. It was two local foremen that expended the money, and I am sure I cannot make these pay sheets show any different amount than they gave me. If you will be good enough to send me exact copies of these paysheets I will have these two foremen certify to them as to their correctness and return same to you.

With regard to regular grant for 1921, which was the only grant authorized to be paid to me by resolution of the County Council and my friend Mr. Ed. Elliott has in is possession an acknowledgment from the treasurer of Belmont Township that he, Mr. Burgess, received this amount $100 from me, and I hold a copy of Mr. Burgess's letter to Mr. Elliott at the present time. The $100 that there has been no authority whatever given for me to receive and no instructions whatever where or how to expend the same has been promised and when I receive pay sheet for same I will forward it.

"If this is not satisfactory, the Solomons, (County Council Committee), can fire ahead and maybe I will get a square deal in court. One thing sure I cannot be scan-

NEARER A DRY WORLD RESULT THE MEETINGS

Co-operation of Religious Organizations Sought to This End-International Conference Closed Today.

TORONTO, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—That there will be remarkable strides towards total prohibition as the result of the International Convention of the World League against alcoholism, which is in its final session here to-day, is the confident assertion of leaders of the movement. The necessity for securing the fullest possible co-operation of religious organizations in the movement was emphasized by speakers of all denominations this morning. It was declared that prohibition and religion should go hand in hand.

At the regular morning session, at which Bishop James Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was chairman, there was a variety of addresses. Commissioner Charles Sowton, of the Salvation Army, expounded the view of that organization on the subject, and Miss Mary J. Campbell, of Lucknow, India, told of efforts in that country. R. L. Werry, of Montreal, Que., described the Quebec system of dealing with the liquor traffic, and Rev. J. G. Shearer described the work of the Social Service Council of Canada.

R. D. Warren, of Toronto, and J. S. Carson, of Montreal, presided at the other sessions of the convention to-day. To-night the convention will conclude with an immense mass meeting presided over by Professor Robert Hercod, of Switzerland.

Men Hog Fire Smoke and Spit In Market Hall

That men crowd around the stove in the market hall, shutting off its generous warmth from the weaker sex, and smoke and spit all over the floor, in violation of rules and health act, was the 'plaint of Chairman Malcolm McIntyre to his Property committee last night.

"What shall we do about it?" he enquired, "set the police on 'em?"

Ald. Jones thought it up to the police to stop such conduct, and committee expected they would give close attention to conditions in the market hall now that winter seems to have set in, and delinquents as complained of are more apt to gather there.

The chairman was authorized to placard the hall with "no smoking and spitting" notices.

TO SAVE $750 ON REMOVING CITY GARBAGE

Mitchell & Bennett Are Awarded Contract for This Work at $8,950 the Coming Year.

ALD. STOCKER'S PLAN

The city will save $750 this coming year in removal of garbage by Geo. C. Mitchell and J. Bennett for $8,950. Under contract with Anglesey & Withers, this work cost for the year just ending $9,700, and last night Council's Property Committee opened new tenders for the job as follows:

J. Blodgett, $10,000.

Patrick Anglesey and Herbert Withers (the present contractors), $9,000.

George C. Mitchell and J. Bennett $8,950.

The committee were unanimous in awarding the contract to the lowest tenderers, Mitchell and Bennett, who have had the contract before, when their duties were performed quite satisfactorily.

Stocker's Plan.

But Ald. Stocker, although not a member of the committee, came forward with a proposition that the city acquire a garbage outfit itself and have the garbage removed by day labor, but his figures were considered wide of the saving mark. He estimated that the cost of an outfit would be $1,500, upkeep of same $2,500 a year, wages $4,000, interest and depreciation $300, making a grand total of $8,300—less than the lowest tender, with the added advantage, he said, of the city owning the outfit at the end of a year.

To queries, Ald. Stocker replied that he figured $150 for each team and $100 for each waggon, but the committee were pretty well a unit in contending those estimates too low, while Chairman Ald. McIntyre was sure he would have to add another $500 to his $1,500 for initial outfit.

Ald. Stocker had figured that an average of four rigs the year round would be required, with a possible saving on this expenditure.

Ald. Jones countered with the work could not be done by less than five teams on an average for the year, that each waggon would probably cost up to $250, and then there is harness, shoeing, etc., which he did not think Ald. Stocker had taken into account. In his opinion, a contract with the lowest tenderers for $8,950 would be the cheapest way for removing garbage.

Ald. Morrison was quite positive a decent team of horses could not be bought for $150, while Ald. Stocker had confidence in being able to purchase the whole outfit needed from the present garbage removers, and then hire them to do the work at a cost not in excess of his estimate.

Can't Experiment.

Remarking that having been chairman of the Property Committee and knowing what garbage removal entails, Ald. Jones here told Ald. Stocker that to his mind his figures were away too low. Besides, he added the city cannot afford to experiment in the face of a tender of $8,950.

That the committee accept the tender of Mitchell and Bennett was the motion by Jones and Morrison, and the resolution carried.

There were present: Chairman Malcolm McIntyre, Mayor W. H. Taylor, Ald. R. N. Jones, Mel. Turner, W. T. Holloway.

MAY VOTE ON BYLAW TO FIX ASSESSMENT OF THE DE LAVAL CO.

Council in Committee Favors Proposition That Industry Pay on $50,000 Assessment for Ten Years.

SUBMIT BYLAW TO COUNCIL MONDAY

At the coming municipal elections, the ratepayers will be invited to vote on a by-law to fix the assessment of the De Laval Co. at $50,000 for ten years, they to pay full rates on school taxes and local improvements. The company are planning the erection in early spring of a new brick building 50 x 150 feet, in which to install a tinning plant, which will call for the employment of an increased number of hands.

Council in committee of the Whole last evening decided to put this measure to the people, and recommend that it be carried. Ald. Hamilton and the Mayor were named to, with City Solicitor Widdifield, arrange all details in connection with the by-law, which is to be ready for Council on Monday night.

On first coming to Peterborough, this company were voted exemption for ten years except for school taxes and local improvements. They were to employ not less than an average of 50 hands, but within the ten years their pay roll has at times accounted for 400 employees, with a yearly average during that period of 200 hands. Twice the size of plant has been built than the company were committed to, their wages the last ten years has totalled $2,400,000, to say nothing of employment given other industries in that time. This industry is to-day paying full taxes on an assessment of $102,000 for schools and local improvements.

A Rotten Tariff.

When addressing Council last evening on this question of fixed assessment, W. R. Breyfogle explained that the next few years are going to be lean ones for all manufacturers of farm and dairy appliances, consequent upon the rotten tariff of the United States; already some of the industries affected are curtailing in their operations, while others are running on one wheel, so to speak. He explained the company's prospects and resources, which are brighter and larger, respectively, than many other concerns in similar lines, and emphasized the fact of the De Laval Company having, during the war, while not engaged in munitions, paid war rates, for, as he aptly put it, "the boys had to live."

Ald. Halloway characterized the De Laval Co. as a good industry for Peterborough, of which the community should be proud, and, acquiescing in these sentiments, Ald. Jones contended that the city could well afford the fixed assessment of $50,000 projected.

Ald. Hamilton explained that as an inducement to locate here originally, the company had hoped for exemption for 20 years, but accepted the shorter period of ten years, Council assuring them that they could then in confidence approach the city for further consideration.

PEOPLE GOING DOWN FOR THE LAST TIME.

Writer Has a Gloomy View of the Issue Raised by Mr. R. R. Hall.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P., is the man of the hour, Peterborough needs such men and must have them or go down and out. People usually in most places have sense enough to make an effort to rescue themselves but our people seem to have thrown up their hands and are going down for the last time.

ANTI-HYDRO.

PROPERTY COM. SHORT OF CASH

Chairman Says If He's in Office Next Year, He'll Ask for Larger Appropriation.

At the meeting of the city's Property Committee last night, Chairman Ald. Malcolm McIntyre wondered were it not opportune that some report be made regarding the Dan. Spence ambulance.

Under contract this conveyance, bequeathed to the city for use by the poor, is in the care of A. Comstock & Sons, for $200.00 a year.

Ald. Hamilton, explaining that this ambulance question comes up every year, pointed out that the cost of conveying patients in straightened circumstances free of charge by the Comstocks in their own ambulance in one year far exceeds their $200.00 contract.

(The Dan. Spence rig, being a horse vehicle, cannot be used these days unless it is motorised, hence Comstocks resort to their own vehicle.)

Ald. McIntyre thought it not fair to other undertakers that Comstocks should have the contract for this ambulance for so long; and Ald. Hamilton replied that the cases which, under normal circumstances, would have been carried in the Dan. Spence outfit, but for whom Comstocks 'motor ambulance is used, are charity cases.

On Ald. Turner's suggestion this question was shelved till Comstocks' contract expires on 1st April, when new tenders can be invited for the maintenance of the Dan. Spence ambulance.

Ald. Jones did not think any other undertaker wanted the contract under existing conditions.

Black Diamonds.

There being not a week's supply of coal on hand for heating the City Building, the chairman was authorised to order coal in comparatively small quantities, such as 10-ton lots, so as to leave some coal for the citizens.

His Worship feared that but little hard coal is going to reach this city before the middle of February, and the city, in consequence, should not store up scarce fuel.

Repair Incinerator.

The matter of repairing the arches in the incinerator was left with the chairman for decision; but the committee being handicapped by lack of funds, it is hoped the work can be postponed till next year.

Ald. Jones, however, pointed out that from experience he had found that it is money saved to keep those arches in repair.

Funds Are Short.

The question of fixing up the Chief of Police's office and heating the police garage was sidetracked for the incoming committee to wrestle with.

Ald. Phelan suggested the use of a stove for the latter purpose, adding "There are enough of the police to keep it going."

And here Ald. McIntyre significantly remarked that were he chairman of this committee another year, he would see that he had a bigger appropriation.

TO-DAY'S BLUNDER CORRECTED

The postmaster says, thousands of packages are undeliverable because they have been improperly prepared or incorrectly addressed. In Chicago there is one building that is used as a storage place for mail of obvious value, other than first-class, which cannot be delivered. Twice a year this building is filled with undeliverable parcels and twice a year they are auctioned off. In this building there are bins of shoes, great quantities of clothing, dress goods, automobile parts and tires, sporting goods, suit cases, in fact, everything you can imagine, from a bird cage to a mouse trap. Last year there were sold at auction 10,000 pairs of shoes which were undeliverable, lost to both mailer or the addressee because some one was careless in tying it fast or used flimsy wrapping paper. This situation applies in a degree to every post office in the country.

Please save the heavy wrapping paper and twine you receive from your parcel post shipments and use them in sending out your own packages.

FAMOUS FRA ANGELICO STOLEN IN FLORENCE

ROME, Nov. 29. — (Associated Press)—The priceles picture of the Virgin and Child, by Fra Angelico, signed and dated 1443, has been stolen from Oratory of St.-Sebastion annex of the Church of St. Felix at Florence. The discovery of the loss was made when the church was opened in the morning, and all efforts to trace the thieves, or discover how the theft was effected, have been unsuccessful.

The picture, which has never left its position since the erection of the church in 1506, was one of the most valuable art treasures of Florence.

TEA PRICES WILL ADVANCE.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Associated Press)—Tea prices will be advanced during the coming winter, according to tea importers in London, the reason assigned being the failure of the tea crop.

This is 70,000,000 pounds below normal, and the effect will be shown by increases of from four to ten cents a pound in all tea using countries. The China crop, which is largely imported to the United States, is said to have suffered the most.

BRITISH ACTRESS NOW ASPIRES TO PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Associated Press)—The staid and stolid halls of Parliament are liable to reflect a lighter vein if Miss Kyrle Bellew, a London comedy actress, is successful in her fight to represent the Brighton (seaside) district in the next election.

Miss Bellew has been active in women's suffrage movements and she expects to carry on an extensive campaign at Brighton, despite the fact that she will continue her stage engagement without interruption.

WRIST HANDKERCHIEFS FIND FAVOR IN PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 29.— (Associated Press) — The wrist handkerchief which first appeared in Paris several weeks ago, has became quite the thing to wear this fall. The smartly dressed woman encouraged the craze with the result that the price has been run up as high as 100 francs each. JURY TOOK NO ACTION IN HALL MURDER CASE

Action Temporarily Drops the Curtain on One of the Most Baffling Mysteries in Criminal History.

MAY COME UP LATER.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., November 29 (Canadian Press). — "For reasons which seem to them sufficient and controlling, the Grand Jury took no action in the Halls-Mills murder case, and laid the matter over. This does not mean necessarily that the matter cannot be taken up again by this or a subsequent Grand Jury."

With these words, Foreman Gibbs of Somerset Court Grand Jury late yesterday made known the fact that no indictment had been returned in one of the most mystifying murder dramas that has faced the country in many years.

For five days Special Deputy Attorney-General Mott had been presenting evidence to bolster his theory as to who killed Rev. Edward [illegible]er Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, on Phillips' [illegible], the n[illegible] 14th September.

Outside the jury room someone else was waiting the decision. It was Mrs. Frances Noel Hall, the rector's widow, who had rushed to the Courthouse yesterday morning in the hope of appearing before the Grand Jury, and who had not been granted access.

She received the decision as she has received all other developments in the case—stoically, with scarcely a trace of emotion. A slight biting of the lips, a little tug at her handkerchief—that was all that showed the stress under which she must have been labouring.

Yesterday's decision of the Grand Jury dropped the curtain—temporarily, at least—on one of the most baffling mysteries in United States criminal history—a mystery that has claimed thousands of columns of type from Boston to 'Frisco.

It was on 16th September that the bodies of Mr. Hall, rector of the Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. Mills, were found lying in the middle of a trampled field on the outskirts of New Brunswick. Nearby was the ramshackle, deserted Phillips' Farmhouse.

Both rector and singer had been shot to death. In addition, the woman's throat had been slashed.

The pair had been dead two days.

Scattered about the bodies were love letters from the choir member to the rector. Placed at the clergyman's feet was his card, reading: "Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall."

His eyes had been carefully closed. Those of the woman were staring.

Searching for mushrooms, Raymond Schneider and Pearl Bahmer stumbled upon the bodies. Frightened, Schneider telephoned the police. The authorities fixed the of Thursday, 14th September.

It was not until thirteen days later that a real examination of the body of Mrs. Mills, exhumed after burial, was made. Three bullet wounds were in her head her throat had been slashed after death.

Still later exhumation of the minister's body and an autopsy showed he had been killed by a single bullet through the right temple.

RESULT OF MEETING WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

PARIS, November 29. Canadian Press. — What action France intends to take with respect to German reparations in the event that the Brussels conference falls through is not officially disclosed although details of the supposed plan of the government are published very fully by the Paris newspapers.

Two important meetings have been held, on one Monday at the Elysee Palace, at which President Millerand presided, and those present included Premier Poincare, Louis Barthou, President of the Reparations Commission; Marshal Foch, and various cabinet ministers and experts, and the other, a full cabinet council yesterday.

Lloyd George Ready For Liberal Reunion

LONDON, November 29 (Canadian Press). — Former Premier Lloyd-George, writing to a political friend, says he is willing to discuss at any time the question of a Liberal reunion, which he would in nowise oppose, inasmuch as he realised that disunion is now paralysing the influence and efficiency of Liberalism. He thought it necessary, however, first to ascertain the opinion of the rank and file of the Party, and suggested a meeting to that end.

The Parliamentary correspondent of the Times recently asserted that a movement was on foot in both camps for a reunion of the Asquithian and the Lloyd-George Liberals, and that Lloyd-George had introduced the subject at a meeting of his supporters, giving them to understand that he was willing to take the first step if assured that his approaches would not be rebuffed.

DEATH OF CHILDERS HAD GOOD EFFECT

Irish Government Will Make No Distinction Between Intellectual Men and Their Dupes—Arms Surrendered.

DUBLIN, November 29 (Canadian Press). — During the session of the Dail yesterday, when the financial estimates were under discussion, the execution of Erskine Childers and the treatment of Mary MacSwiney while she was in Mount Joy Prison on a hunger strike, came up.

The execution of Childers was brought forward by George Gavan Duffy, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the treatment of Miss MacSwiney by Cathal O'Shannon, Labourite.

The action of the Government in both cases was strongly upheld respectively by William Cosgrave, the President of the Dail, and Kevin O'Higgins, the Home Minister.

Mr. Duffy, during the debate, asked Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence, to explain the execution of Childers.

Duffy said Childers was a great Irishman, not merely in law but in fact. Continuing, Mr. Duffy said Childers had consecrated his life to independence for Ireland; he was perfectly sincere, brilliant of intellect, and extraordinarily modest; he had actually been elected by the Irish Government as Irish Ambassador to the United States.

It was argued by Mr. Duffy that owing to unscrupulous propaganda, Childers had been represented as a monster of wickedness and that for this reason the Government should have taken more precautions to prevent injustice being done him. Yet he was tried in secret on the sole charge of being in possession of a revolver in a private house.

Duffy a Coward.

Mr. Cosgrave, in an impassioned reply, said Duffy was afraid of his own shadow; that he made his speech to tell the people outside that he was not guilty, like the others. The members of the Dail, Mr. Cosgrave continued, were dealing with the situation in which the plan of assassination was in the minds of the people opposed to the Government, and their newspapers reeked with incentives to their dupes to commit these assassinations.

Mr. Duffy was denounced by Mr. Cosgrave for not being present in the Chamber to say anything regarding the four poor men from the President's own parish who were executed prior to Childers. He said Duffy had waited for the execution of an intellectual to make his case.

The President asked whether the Government was to spare intellectuals, with money at their backs and punish their unfortunate dupes. Some temporary madness had taken possession of practically every one of the Irregulars, he declared, and what really lay at the back of their position was lack of moral courage in men like Duffy.

Had Good Effect.

At the very moment he was speaking, Mr. Cosgrave went on, there was a gang actually at work to arrest members of the Parliament and destroy the treaty. What was the effect of the execution, he asked. Already, he said, stolen property was being restored; people were tumbling in to pay their debts, and a steadying effect was visible all over the country. The Government merely wanted a surrender of arms, and it was going to get them if it had to search every house in the country, the President exclaimed. Arms were coming in, and the bed of the River Liffey was accommodating a lot of them.

Armed persons robbing others, said Mr. Cosgrave, would in future be brought before military Courts, and every person guilty of robbing at the point of the gun would be executed.

Incidentally, Mr. Cosgrave denied that the Cabinet had ever contemplated sending Childers as Ambassador to the United States.

The President was loudly applauded as he concluded.

HON. G. H. FERGUSON FLAYS COURSE PURSUED BY DRURY GOVERNMENT DURING PAST TWO YEARS

Extremes of Extravagance and Absolute Failure to Fulfill Election Promises Formed the Keynote of Address Before Liberal-Conservative Association Last Night—Women's Association to Be Organized in Peterborough.

BAKUS DEAL CLEARLY EXPLAINED.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the West Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association held last evening in the G.W.V.A. Hall. His talk was preceded by the election of officers for the ensuing year and a short talk by Mrs. A. L. Edwards of London on the purposes and problems of an organization for the women voters of the riding.

A motion was presented by V. J. McElderry, Secretary of the organization, and seconded by Mrs. J. D. Craig, to amend the constitution to allow the formation of a women's association for the riding, and was unanimously carried. This move will necessitate virtually a complete reorganization of the association, but the feeling was expressed that the women could do much more effective work if organized separately.

The retiring President, Dr. M. A. Morrison, in announcing that he would be unable to run for re-election himself, pointed out that with the prospect of at least a Provincial election in 1923 the coming year promised to be a strenuous one, and for that reason urged the members to elect a man who could and would devote both time and energy to the job before him. The unanimous election of Roland Denne showed that his words had not fallen on barren ground.

In accepting his office, the new President said that the coming year would certainly be one of activity and that every effort would be made to carry the Liberal-Conservative standard to victory in the contest that was already in sight.

In the future, he said, instead of having one or two men foot the entire bill for the expenses of the organization, each member will be assessed $1 a year. Strong men will be picked as candidates for the various offices and the organization will get behind them and stay behind them throughout the campaign.

The elections of the other officers were also unanimous, and special tribute was paid to the work done by V. J. McElderry and W. G. Howden, the re-elected Secretary and Treasurer of the organization.

Mr. Denne took the chair immediately after his election and introduced the speakers for the evening. Mrs. A. L. Edwards was the first speaker.

Women's Franchise.

Mrs. Edwards in her address emphasized the responsibility of the franchise now enjoyed by women, of their duty to study public questions in order that they should make intelligent use of the ballot at elections.

"We didn't ask particularly for the vote," she said; "we simply did our duty during the war, and this is a little thank-offering for the work the women accomplished and the sacrifice the women of Canada made. For, after all, the men who went to war were the sons of the women of this country. The ballot has been a gift to us, and we wish to use it to the best advantage of Canada, and for the noblest part we can play in our country's affairs. The men have placed us side by side with them on the same pedestal, and we want them to feel that we will think and pray about it so that at the next elections the women of this Province will be educated to support the best men this country can produce. This is a serious problem and requires forethought. We should study public questions as the men have studied them in the years gone by. We do not want it said that women simply vote for the first name on a ballot."

One of the first things women should ask candidates, Mrs. Edwards continued, was whether they would do all in their power to condemn the drug habit and to legislate to stamp out this traffic, which she said, was becoming a terrible menace and more deadly than "drink."

By organization women could be a great strength to the party. They could organize along the lines of women's citizenship clubs, bring in speakers, hold debates and thereby get in touch with the questions before the country.

"The women are fifty-one per cent. of the population of this country. They hold the balance of power and they are going to use it with a gilt edge. We are not asking to be put into Parliament. We are leaving that to the men for some time to come, but we want to put the best men into Parliament."

Mrs. Edwards volunteered her assistance in the organization of the Conservative women of this riding at any time they called upon her.

Hon. Mr. Ferguson.

Referring first to the political activities of women in this country, Hon. Mr. Ferguson said they should be more interested in Provincial than in Dominion affairs. The Federal Government dealt largely with fiscal matters, whereas the Provincial Legislature came closer home, having jurisdiction over such questions as education, the administration of justice and things in which women can perform a great part.

"I am glad to know that there is to be a local organization of women," said Mr. Ferguson. "Aside altogether from a party organization, it is most important that that the best brains, regardless of sex, should be brought together in the determination of our future in Ontario.

Many Commissions.

Mr. Ferguson proceeded to give his audience an "idea of how your business is being carried on by the present administration in this Province." His first charge was that the Drury Government had departed from the principle of responsible government by deputing its duties and responsibilities to commissions of its appointing.

"When a knotty problem arises the Government, instead of dealing with it itself, engages a commission to investigate it and tell the Government what to do. In Queen's Park they have forgotten what Cabinet solidarity means, and when some measure comes up in the House it was not unusual to find one of the Ministers taking one position and another perhaps the opposite. In the last 36 months they have averaged about one commission a month, although this rate has been accelerating of late.

Cost of Commissions.

We have 110 members in the Legislature at Toronto, who are paid $1,400 a year, except when they can nick off an extra $600 for themselves. The Ministers are paid $6,000 to provide them with sufficient remuneration so that they can give all their time to public business. The present administration has paid to commissions an amount that would provide for the indemnity of every member of the Legislature for ten years. It cost you up to the end of last year for commissions and for legal advice from iniquitous lawyers, whom they intended to eliminate altogether from the public arena, the sum of one and a half million dollars. That is one of the great weaknesses of the present administration. And when they get the advice they don't take it. The reports are pidgeon-holed or thrown into the wastebasket."

Mr. Ferguson mentioned the Timber Commission, causing a ripple of laughter around the hall, which he himself started. That commission, he said, cost half a million dollars, "and they didn't get me after all. I was the fellow they were after. That commission said there were many things in the department that should be enquired into by the department. Then the department brought Judson Clark from the United States and asked him to take the report and go into the department and advise what should be done. After a time Clark said the report was all wrong. He suggested things that would have made a revolution in the carrying on of the things of the department. As a result, a big deputation of the mining, lumbering and pulp industries came down and said that if the Clark report was adopted the lumbering industry would be ruined."

Mr. Ferguson explained that the lumbering industry being seasonal required extended credits, which, because of the Clark proposals, the banks threatened to withdraw. "The Prime Minister decided he wouldn't do that either, and I might say I am still at large.

The Bon Echo Case.

The latest commission was appointed to enquire into a dispute in Addington County between a private citizen and a department road engineer. It was a matter which the department should have dealt with itself.

"In your own business wouldn't you call in your servant and settle a petty squable yourself? Government appointed Gordon Waldron, who is a King's Counsel, and Mr. Waldron is sitting in Queen's Park with all his trappings and formalities making enquiry into whether the road foreman was drunk and whether a road ran in the right direction or not. I know that sounds ludicrous and trivial, but it is a fact. The Minister was avoiding and trying to escape the responsibility which he should have properly assumed."

Mr. Ferguson cited as another illustration the enquiry that was held in Western Ontario into the escape of two prisoners who overcame the turnkey of the jail. "The Attorney-General sent a commission of two to make enquiry as to how these prisoners got out, although lots of people saw them go, instead of sending up a couple of Provincial policemen to try to get them back in jail. One can scarcely credit the desire of the administration to escape their responsibilities by the commission system they have brought into vogue and which they persistently practice."

Promises Recalled.

"What is the result of all this?" Mr. Ferguson asked. He recalled that from one end of the Province to the other candidates of the Government at the last elections had told the people that the old parties were decadent and no longer able to carry on; they said they would cut down expenses and wastefulness and give the people economy. Retrenchment and reform was their slogan. The plain people were going to take hold of the business affairs of this Province and run them economically.

Mr. Ferguson said the Conserva-

BREAKS RELATIONS WITH GREEK GOVT.

British Ambassador F. O. Lindley Leaving Athens As Result of Executions.

ATHENS, Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—The British Minister, F. O. Lindley, has notified the Greek Government that Great Britain has broken off relations with Greece and that he is leaving Athens, as the result of the execution of six former ministers, in the face of Britain's strong protest. C. H. Bentinck, British member of the financial control, remains here.

A statement issued by the court-martial which condemned to death the former ministers, giving reasons for imposing sentences of death, says in effect that the defendants knowingly concealed from the people the danger involved in King Constantine's return to the throne, and that, although Greece was breaking away from her alliances, they did their utmost to consolidate Constantine's throne in order to enjoy office under him.

LONDON, Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—A scene was created in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Jack Jones, Labor member for Silverton, West Ham, while Major Tryon was replying to questions regarding the treatment of mentally afflicted ex-service men.

Jones interrupted with the remark: "You are a lot of dirty dogs." There were cries of "turn him out," and the Speaker rebuked him, whereupon Jones shouted to the ministerial benches, "I don't care a damn." The Speaker ordered Jones to withdraw, and as the Laborite went out he again shouted, "A lot of dirty dogs slobbering over dead soldiers and starving the living."

MARY MACSWINEY SENT ABUSIVE NOTE TO HOME MINISTER

Could Not Expect to Be Allowed to Receive Visitors While in a State of Revolt and Insubordination.

JAILS CROWDED.

DUBLIN, Nov. 29. — (Canadian Press.)— George Gavan Duffy gave notice in the Dail Eireann yesterday that he would raise the question of the execution of Erskine Childers before the end of the present session. The remainder of the day was occupied with the consideration of the financial estimates.

The present session of the Dail is in reality its last, as when it is convened aagin it will be as the Lower House of the Free State Parliament.

During yesterday's debate Cathal O'Shannon, Laborite, said the Dail Ministry had shown neither sense, humanity nor ordinary decency in refusing to allow Annie MacSwiney to visit her sister Mary while Mary was incarcerated in the Mount Joy Prison and on a hunger strike. O'Shannon declared that such refusals of permission to make visits in cases of illness were intolerable.

Kevin O'Higgins, the Home Minister, replying to Mr. O'Shannon, said Mary MacSwiney had sent him a strongly abusive and offensive letter demanding admission to the jail for her sister, not on the ground of illness or imminent death, but to transact business. Mary MacSwiney was in a state of revolt and insubordination, and military prisoners, even those not in reovlt, had no right to receive visitors.

On the general question of prisoners, Mr. O'Higgins admitted an overcrowding of jails, particularly in Limerick, from which place he had just transferred 400. He added that he was glad to say Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence, had promised within a short time a great amelioration of present conditions.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 29TH, 1922.

WHAT IS THE SOLUTION?

While there is nothing radically new in Hon. Charles Stewart's announced immigration policy, it will be welcomed as a change from the negative to the positive.

Instead of putting up the bars to keep people out, Canada is going out into the world to bring new citizens here, although a standard most be maintained that will keep the Dominion from becoming a dumping ground for the riff-raff of Europe.

It is of the utmost importance that our population should be built up, and built up with sound, solid citizens, who will soon grasp the Canadian view-point and adapt themselves to Canadian conditions.

But, as The Examiner pointed out last week, it it even more important to keep our Canadians at home and stop the tide of migration across the border.

Hon. Mr. Stewart's plans call for a campaign aimed at the repatriation of Canadians who have taken up residence in the United States.

If in that respect they are successful it would be a much finer thing for Canada than the bringing in of twice their number of new settlers.

The boys and girls who have left the land of the maple to carve out their future "across the line," would need no shaking down, no education to make them Canadians.

They would merely be coming home, and what a glad home coming it would be.

Better than bringing in new citizens, better even than bringing back those we have lost, would be the keeping at home of our citizens who may be tempted to try their luck in the United States.

The problem has been with us since Confederation, and it must be confessed we have made very little progress towards its solution.

Nor does Hon. Mr. Stewart's announcement give us much ground for hope that he has found the answer.

A CHANGE OF OPINION.

"The drivers of automobiles must realize that pedestrians have some rights on the highways, and must be protected. By continuing to travel fast, drivers of automobiles invite stringent laws."—Mayor Maguire, Toronto.

"Is there no remedy, or must the daily murder of the innocents continue? I maintain that the cause in nine cases out of ten, in cases of motor accident, is speed. Fix a low speed limit for Toronto. Let it be known that the police are posted throughout the city to apprehend speeders, and the city will be a long way on the road to immunity from child murder by motors."—Sir Thomas White.

These two quotations from yesterday's Globe indicate how strongly public opinion is swinging against the speed fiend, stirred by the almost daily recital of a young life taken by a motor car.

The change in sentiment in Toronto in this respect is striking.

It is not long since a bill sponsored by Peterboro bodies, was introduced in the Legislature to reduce the speed limit to 15 miles an hour, and it was laughed out of court.

The Toronto members vied with each other in heaping ridicule on what they termed a reactionary measure.

"There was no need of a lower speed limit," they declared, and some of them hinted that Peterboro was not accustomed to seeing things move very fast.

The slaughter of children on Toronto's streets has worked a surprising shift of opinion and even those who sneered at the Peterboro bill last year, are beining to see that it was a move in the rigth direction.

The fact is, as Sir Thomas White points out in an eloquent plea for the protection of children, that the existing laws and regulations relating to automobiles, are wholly inadequate to properly deal with the situation.

And he points out, as will be noticed, that the best remedy would be a lower speed limit, strictly enforced.

ANOTHER ENCROACHMENT.

The trouble with the Town Planning Act, which the local Council has decided to oppose when it comes before the Legislative Committee at the Legislature at the next session, is that it is another demonstration of the ambition of the Ontario Government to infringe upon municipal rights.

Theoretically, the idea of a bureau of town planning is sound, and there is no disputing the fact that such an organization would be capable of much public service.

Most Ontario towns, are like Topsy — "Just growed."

Very little heed had been taken of future development, and very little thought given to the larger needs of a growing community.

Undoubtedly a town planing organization would help to remedy that condition of affairs.

Unfortunately, however, the municipalities feel that they are being legislated to death.

So much of the public expenditure is beyond their control at present that city councils declare that they cannot in justice be held responsible for higher tax rates.

The Provincial Government has encroached upon municipal preserves so persistently, that it is no wonder the Peterboro aldermen see in the new Town Planning Act merely another invasion by the Province of municipal rights.

Wide powers are to be given to the Bureau and if the Act were to pass municipalities would find themselves compelled to furnish returns and statements, fill plans for a town planning district that might include some of the land lying outside the present limits, appoint a local commission, or have one appointed by the Bureau, levy special rates for the Town Planning Commission, and also furnish aditional grants to carry on such work as the Commission may consider necessary. And, on top of all this, no improvements along the line of town planning can be carried out without the approval of the Railway Board.

There is more interference than benefit in the scheme and the Council does well in deciding to offer opposition to its passing.

THE FIRE RELIEF FUND.

The opinion of the local Council as to the Northern Ontario Fire Relief Fund seems to be that the raising of the necessary money should have been undertaken by the Provincial Government by means of a special levy, and with that view the Examiner is in complete sympathy.

There should be no delay in the matter, and while Premier Drury's theory that the milk of human kindness should be given a chance to operate may be all right as a theory, it should be fairly evident that the people of Ontario will be a long time raising the million dollars required by means of voluntary subscriptions.

But having practically condemned the Government for not clapping on a special levy are the members of the Council logical in the conclusion they seem to be arriving at that the best system of raising Peterborough's quota is by voluntary offerings?

Are they not simply doing as Premier Drury did and passing the buck on to the people?

It is realized that the condition of the people of the Northland calls for a comprehensive programme of relief, and that the estimate of a million dollars is not too high.

That being admitted, and the responsibility of the more fortunate communities of old Ontario being also conceded, it seems to be the opinion of many citizens that the fairest, simplest and quickest method of securing Peterborough's share, which has been estimated at a sum equal to an assessment of half a mill, or roughly $8,000, is to make a special levy.

The voluntary system imposes upon the people whose purses are expected to open at every call, while it allows to go Scott free the other class of citizen who turns a deaf ear to every appeal worthy or otherwise.

The levy method divides the burden in an equitable manner and ensures results.

One plan makes the securing of Peterborough's quota a matter of doubt; the other raises the necessary money without delay, and it is now that it is needed.

It, of course, is not to be expected that the adoption of the special assessment plan would be unanimously approved.

Undoubtedly there would be strong objection to a levy, but, for the most part, it would come from citizens who would not pay the least attention to an appeal for voluntary subscriptions.

With thousands of our fellow citizens in Northern Ontario entering upon the winter season under conditions that would be appalling to any people less lionhearted than themselves—and a winter in the Northland is not to be trifled with—the municipalities in other portions of the Province should settle this question with their eyes firmly fixed upon the need and upon the urgency of the call.

If the Province made a mistake in the policy it adopted, there does not seem to be any reason why the same error should be committed by the municipalities.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The retirement from public life of Robert Shaw, for many years reeve of Harvey, is a loss not only to his own township, but to the county, for Mr. Shaw has given splendid service on the County Council, and his counsel was always valuable.

Numerous Ontario municipalities are taking advantage of the opportunity offered them by the Legislature to hold their anual elections early in December. The result of the experiment, in so far as the size of the vote polled is concerned, will be studied with much interest.

CROP REPORTS

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Nearly all live stock are now in winter quarters, young cattle having has an unusually long stay on pasture this fall. Farm animals are in good condition generally, and the supply of fodder on hand was never fuller.

Fall wheat on the whole has an encouraging appearance as it enters the winter.

The touch of wintry weather now prevailing has halted fall plowing, but a larger area than usual has already been turned under.

Waterloo says that the milk flow has fallen off more during the last two weeks than it did during the summer and fall.

Frontenac farmers are receiving from $10 to $12 a ton for baled hay. Lennox and Addington reports good timothy hay going at $9 a ton. Waterloo places the price of hay at from $12 to $14 a ton.

Prices for turnips have been so low that many who raised them for shipment are pitting them, in the hope that they may be worth more in the winter.

A farmer in Lennox and Addington recently sold 41 bushels of red clover seed at $10 a bushel.

Prescott and Russell says: "All the bee hives to be wintered in cellars have been taken in. The clear and open weather of this fall has permitted a good many cleaning flights, and it is expected that under such circumstances they will winter very well."

Waterloo claims that farm hands can be procured with little difficulty. The Halton representative has also found employment for a number of good workers.

Kenora thus alludes to a source of winter revenue ayailable to many farmers in the northern districts: "Now that everything is frozen up all the farmers that can get away are busy in the bush with their teams, or hauling gravel for roads and the pulp mill for which they are receiving $6 per day.

Frontenac reports: "The lack of rain has seriously affected the water supply in this district. Many wells have given out and farmers are obliged to haul water several miles for their stock or drive them to the supply."

The Prescott and Russell representative speaks of the comparatively low egg production this fall, stating that only a few dozens seem to be available.

Many poultry raisers in the St. Lawrence and Ottawa counties are busy preparing for "Turkey Day."

Huron says: "Each week seems to be adding to the number of cattle being brought into the country for winter feeding and finishing. One drover told me this week, that eight car loads of stockers and feeders had been brought into their station already this fall. If this is representative of the rest of the shipping points in the county, it would mean that about 5,000 cattle have been brought in for winter feeding."

York states: "I was talking to one drover who loads for the farmers here, and he said that raisers are not very well satisfied with the hog grading, the complaint being that the farmer does not receive the credit for the bacon hog. His last two loads graded 21 percent and 23 percent selects. They are very anxious to have a marking system in order that each farmer may receive credit for his select products."

Kent says: "One farmer here brought in an exceptionally fine car load of Hereford calves. We will watch these with interest to use as a guide for future operations."

Bruce reports: "A consignment of Hereford cattle was held in Walkerton on Friday last. Fair individuals of good breeding were offered and brought from $50 to $200 according to condition and pedigree."

A carload of horses was brought in to Kenora from the west this week and teams weighing around 1,400 lbs. sold for $300.

Kent reports improvement in the quality of bacon hogs: "There is a keen demand for the bacon type hog in the country, and I am pleased to report considerable progress in the type of hogs kept on the average farm over last year. There is about 50 percent increase in bacon blood in the average load of hogs over last year."

Considering the general mess of things, it is probably just as well that Thanksgiving is an exclusively American institution.

CIGARETTES

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

It was with considerable disgust that

MARK ABLETT, bachelor proprietor of The Red House, had informed his house-party guests that his never-do-well brother,

ROBERT, who had been absent for 15 years in Australia, was to visit him that afternoon.

Mark and his companion,

MATT CAYLEY, awaited the arrival of Robert after lunch, the guests playing golf. Robert arrived, was ushered into Mark's office by the maid,

AUDREY STEVENS, who went to inform her master. Before she found Mark a shot was heard and

ANTONY GILLINGHAM, a friend of

BILL BEVERLEY, one of Mark's guests, entered the house to find Cayley pounding on the locked door and demanding admittance. The two men entered the office through a window and discovered a body on the floor with a shot in the head. Mark was not to be found and the dead man, Cayley told Anthony, was the brother who had just arrived.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

GUESTS at The Red House were allowed to do what they liked within reason—the reasonableness or otherwise of it being decided by Mark. But when once they (or Mark) had made up their minds as to what they wanted to do, the plan had to be kept. Mrs. Calladine, who knew this little weakness of their host's, resisted, therefore, the suggestion of Bill that they should have a second round of golf in the afternoon, and drive home comfortably after tea.

Antony was standing in front of the house, waiting for them. Bill waved, and he waved back. Then as the car drew up, Bill, who was in front with the chauffeur, jumped down and greeted him eagerly.

"Hallo, you madman, have you come to stay, or what?" He had a sudden idea. "Don't say you're Mark Ablett's long-lost brother from Australia, though I could quite believe it of you." He laughed boyishly.

"Hallo, Bill," said Antony quietly. Will you introduce me? I'm afraid I've got some bad news."

Bill, rather sobered by this, introduced him. The Major and Mrs. Calladine were on the near side of the car, and Antony spoke to them in a low voice.

"I'm afraid I'm going to give you rather a shock," he said. "Robert Ablett, Mr. Mark Ablett's brother, has been killed." He jerked a thumb over his shoulder, "In the house."

"Do you mean that he has just killed himself?" asked Mrs. Calladine.

"It was about two hours ago. I happened to come here,"—he half-turned to Beverley and explained—"I was coming to see you, Bill, and I arrived just after the—the death. Mr. Cayley and I found the body. Mr Cayley being busy just now—there are police and doctors and so on in the house—he asked me to tell you. He says that no doubt you would prefer, the house-party having been broken up in this tragic way, to leave as soon as possible." He gave a pleasant apologetic little smile.

Bill gazed with open mouth at Antony. Mrs. Calladine was quietly mistress of herself.

"We shall be in the way, yes, I quite understand," she said; "but we can't just shake the dust of the place off our shoes because something terrible has happened there. I must see Mark. He must know how very deeply we feel for him. Perhaps we—" she hesitated

The Major and I might be useful anyway," said Bill.

"Where is Mark?" said the Major suddenly, looking hard at Antony.

Antony looked back unwaveringly—and said nothing.

"I think," said the Major gently, leaning over to Mrs. Calladine, "that it would be better if you took Betty back to London tonight."

"Very well," she agreed quietly.

As Antony re-entered the hall, the Inspector from Middleston was just crossing into the library with Cayley. The latter stopped and nodded to Antony.

"Wait a moment, Inspector. Here's Mr. Gillingham." And then to Antony, "This is Inspector Birch."

Birch looked inquiringly from one to the other.

"Mr. Gillingham and I found the body together," explained Cayley.

"Oh! Well, come along, and let's get the facts sorted out a bit."

They went into the library. The inspector seated himself at a writing-table, and Cayley sat in a chair by the side of it. Antony made himself comfortable in an armchair and prepared to be interested.

"We'll start with the dead man," said the inspector. "Robert Ablett, didn't you say?" He took out his notebook.

"Yes. Brother of Mark Ablett, who lives here."

Antony listened attentively while

"I'M AFRAID I'VE GOT SOME BAD NEWS."

Cayley explained all that he knew about Robert. This was news to him.

"I see. Sent out of the country in disgrace. What had he done?"

"I hardly know."

"Mark Ablett never talked about him?"

"Hardly ever. He was very much ashamed of him, and—well, very glad he was in Australia."

"Now your own private opinion, Mr. Cayley. Do you think that Mark was unfair to his brother?"

"They'd never liked each other as boys. I don't know whose fault it was in the first place—if anybody's."

The inspector nodded.

"This letter that Mark got—did you see it?"

"Not at the time. He showed it to me afterward."

"Any address?"

"No. A half-sheet of rather dirty paper."

"Where is it now?"

"I don't know. In Mark's pocket, I expect."

"Ah!" He pulled at his beard. "Can you remember what it said?"

"As far as I remember, something like this: 'Mark, your loving brother is coming to see you tomorrow, all the way from Australia. I give you warning so that you will be able to conceal your surprise, but not I hope, your pleasure. Expect him at three, or thereabouts.'"

"Ah!" The inspector copied it down carefully. "Did you notice the postmark?"

"London"

"And what was Mark's attitude?"

"Annoyance, disgust—" Cayley hesitated.

"Apprehension?"

"N—no, not exactly. Or, rather, apprehension of an unpleasant interview, not of any unpleasant outcome for himself."

"You mean that he wasn't afraid of violence, or blackmail, or anything of that sort?"

"He didn't appear to be."

"Right. . . . Now then, he arrived, you say, about three o'clock?"

"Yes, about that."

"Who was in the house then?"

"Mark and myself, and some of the servants. I don't know which. Of course, you will ask them directly, no doubt."

"With your permission. No guests?"

"They were out all day playing golf."

"Where were you when Robert arrived?" asked Birch.

Cayley explained how he had been sitting in the hall, how Audrey had asked him where the master was, and how he had said that he had last seen him going up to the Temple.

"She went away, and I went on with my book. There was a step on the stairs, and I looked up to see Mark coming down. He went into the office, and I went on with my book again. I went into the library for a moment, to refer to another book, and when I was in there I heard a shot. At least, it was a loud bang, I wasn't sure if it was a shot. I stood and listened. Then I came slowly to the door and looked out. Then I went back again, hesitated a bit, you know, and finally decided to go across to the office, and make sure that it was all right. I turned the handle of the door and found it was locked. Then I got frightened, and I banged at the door, and shouted, and—well, that was when Mr. Gillingham arrived." He went on to explain how they had found the body.

The inspector looked at him with a smile.

"Yes, well, we shall have to go over some of that again, Mr. Cayley. Mr. Mark, now. Did he say anything?"

"He said, 'Robert's here?' or something of the sort. I said 'Yes,' and he gave a sort of shrug, and said, 'Don't go too far away, I might want you'; and then went in."

"What did you think he meant by that?"

"Well, he consults me a good deal, you know. I'm his sort of unofficial solicitor in a kind of way."

"Yes. How long was it before you heard the shot?"

"Two minutes, perhaps."

The inspector finished his writing, and then regarded Cayley thoughtfully. Suddenly he said:

"What is your theory of Robert's death?"

Cayley shrugged his shoulders.

"You've probably seen more than I've seen," he answered. "I can only speak as a layman—and Mark's friend."

"Well?"

"Then I should say that Robert came here meaning trouble, and bringing a revolver with him. He produced it almost at once. Mark tried to get it from him, there was a little struggle perhaps, and it went off. Mark lost his head, finding himself with a revolver in his hand and a dead man at his feet. His one idea was to escape. He locked the door almost instinctively, and then, when he heard me hammering at it, went out of the window."

"Y—yes. Well, that sounds reasonable enough. What do you say, Mr. Gillingham?"

"I should hardly call it 'reasonable' to lose your head," said Antony, getting up from his chair and coming toward them.

"Well, you know what I mean. It explains things."

"Oh, yes. Any other explanation would make them much more complicated."

"Have you any other explanation?"

"Not I."

"Well now, about yourself. You're not staying in the house, I gather?"

Antony explained his previous movements.

"Yes. Did you hear the shot?"

"Yes. Just as I came in sight of the house. It didn't make any impression at the time, but I remember it now."

"Where were you then?"

"Coming up the drive."

"Nobody left the house by the front door after the shot?"

"Nobody," he said. "No."

"Thank you. You're at 'The George,' if I want you?"

"Mr. Gillingham is staying here until after the inquest," explained Cayley.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT W.M.S. MEETINGS

Two Sessions Held in Lakefield Presbyterian Church.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 29.—It has become a practice in many Presbyterial W.M.S. to hold sectional meetings.

Peterboro Presbyterial is no exception. On Thursday, November 9 such a meeting was held in the Lakefield Presbyterian church.

The day was a beautiful Autumn one, bright sunshine, just a bit of frost reminding one that winter was not so very far off. The roads were in good condition so that no person could plead that excuse for non-attendance, motoring being the best way to reach Lakefield, which is characterized as the gateway to the Kawartha Lakes, so well known to tourists.

The Auxillaries and Mission Bands who were expected to attend this meeting were: St. Andrews, St. Pauls and Knox, all Peterboro Socities; Springville, Lakevale, Lakehurst, Buckhorn, Warsaw and Lakefield. Representatives were present from all these places with one exception and we hope that in the near future a W.M.S. will be fully organized and they will have a good representation at the next Sectional meeting.

Two sessions were held, a morning one at 10:30 and one at 2:30 p.m. At both of which Miss M. Dickson presided. At the morning meeting Mrs. McPherson gave a very helpful bible reading on prayer and Miss M. Dickson led in prayer Miss Cullen presided at the organ. Suitable hymns which always mean so much to a meeting were sung and a season of prayer followed in which a good number took part.

Mrs. Porteous also of Peterboro gave some interesting facts from the Ontario Provincial meeting held in Ottawa.

The delegates were strongly advised to make more use of the Messenger and the annual reports and if they would do this they could not fail to have a proper understanding of the work. At noon the meeting adjourned for luncheon which was served in the S.S. room by the Lakefield ladies.

The afternoon session opened at 2:30, Psalm selection 86 was sung. The 35th chapter of Isaiah was read after which Mrs. McKenzie of Knox Church, Peterboro, led in prayer. Miss Craw of St. Andrews church, spoke on the Messenger and we know that her appreciation of this organ of the society cannot fail to increase the number of subscribers. Miss Cullen of Lakefield, sang very sweetly a solo which was much enjoyed. Then followed an address by Miss McGregor one of the Field secretaries of the W.M.S. Her message was a wonderful one and delivered in such a way as to rivet the attention of every one in the audience, which by the way, was a record one, there must have been close on three hundred personel present.

Votes of thanks were passed to the speakers, the soloist and the Lakefield ladies for their hospitality. After the offering was taken a hymn was sung, a prayer was offered and the Sectional meeting was closed, which was felt by all present to have been a most helpful and inspiring meeting. Tea was served which all enjoyed as it gave an opportunity for social intercourse.

NEW ADVERTISING STUNT WAS TRIED IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, November 28, Canadian Press. — "Hello, U.S.A." was written in white letters a mile long across the pale blue of a winter sky above lower New York to-day.

Traffic was tied up as drivers, chauffeurs and pedestrians stopped to watch the white scrawl, and barely discerned airplanes which trailed lines like chalk marks behind it.

Not since the days when airplanes were a novelty has there been such a craning of necks and blocking of sidewalks.

The message was written by Capt. Cyril Turner of London, to demonstrate "Sky advertising" by means of a smoke generator and ejecting it from the fuselage of an airplane.

FARMER'S WIFE REGAINS HEALTH

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fork River, Manitoba.—"I saw in the newspapers where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing so much good to women, and as I needed something I began to take it. I used to be very sick but I am not now. I live on a farm in the homestead district and we have to do all our own work. I tell all the women I see what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for me. I think it saves me from going to a doctor and is the best medicine women can take."—Mrs. Wm. Coultas, Fork River, Manitoba.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for the ailments peculiar to women. It is prepared from medicinal plants, with care and accuracy. It can be taken by women of any age.

Women make a serious mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Such symptoms as pains and irregularities, all gone feelings, backache, headache, hot flashes, nervousness, with a general run-down condition, indicate some form of female trouble.

The Vegetable Compound has brought relief to thousands of women suffering from such ailments. Let it help you.

HON. G. H. FERGUSON FLAYS COURSE

tive party had felt that the new administration should be given a fair opportunity to put their views into operation, and to assist them. The Prime Minister had said that the Government owed a great deal to the Opposition for their constructive criticism in their first efforts.

Increased Expenditures.

"However, as things went on we thought it was time to ask the Government to account to the people for their actions. The total debt of Ontario, the richest Province of the Dominion, had accumulated in the 42 years from 1867 until 1919 to $97,000,000. Part of that was for the T. and N. O. Railway and the Hydro system in its early stages. Naturally we relied on those on the treasury benches to see that the debt was reduced and not increased. We began to enquire about it at the last session, and instead of being reduced that debt had mounted to $204,000,000. That's retrenchment and reform, but they've got it inside out, of wrongside out."

The household accounts for the ordinary public services were between nineteen and twenty million dollars when the Government took hold; in 1921, just two years after, they had jumped to thirty millions.

"They had said of Conservatives or Liberals that the public service was a refuge for broken-down politicians, and this Government was going to have efficient men and no more than the service required. On looking up the roll when we went out there were 760 employees in these services, and that was too many. Mr. Drury had said that old Tory heelers were falling all over themselves up and down the halls at Queen's Park. After two years we find that instead of a reduction there are 1,100 public servants. They learned that the boys have got to be taken care of even if they are U.F.O."

Budget Increases.

Referring to the budget, Mr. Ferguson said that the Conservative Government's last budget for capital and ordinary expenditures was $47,000,000. "And well I remember how it rang all over this Province that this was wasteful and extravagant, and how many rotten branches could be lopped off. Well, I've watched their fellow with the axe waiting to see how many branches fell. In the first year the budget increased to $83,000,000, and in their second year it jumped to $120,000,000, and this year it will be higher than last, although they have $25,000,000 less in Hydro expenditure than last year."

Mr. Ferguson made fun of the Prime Minister's assertions that all this was not costing the people one dollar. If the people of this Province were not paying, who were?

The People Pay.

"I know how the taxes on my farm are increasing. In two years they have gone up 75 per cent., and I think you would find the same statement made by every farmer who has his tax slip in his pocket. It is absurd to say that money can be secured from any source but the people. All these expenses will be borne by you—not by you, but by your children and grandchildren, perhaps your great grandchildren if this Province is to be governed in the uncontrolled way it is at present."

"There is a pretty heavy tax on your auto if you have one. If you come into this hall to see a show you've got to settle with us before you get in. If you buy a house and lot you can't get the deed registered until you have paid a special tax. I know of no source of revenue but one that has not been tapped, and that we have always tried to avoid—that is by direct tax. And I say that if continued in the way we are going we will not be much older before we are faced with the problem of paying a direct tax to the Province of Ontario, in addition to the direct tax we pay our municipalities."

Costly Shade Trees.

Another instance of what he regarded as unwarranted extravagance cited by Mr. Ferguson was the planting of shade trees along the Ottawa - Prescott highway. This work was undertaken just before the last Dominion election. These trees were oaks, brought in from a distance, and cost between five and six dollars each on account of the lack of business methods employed. In ten or fifteen years it is possible that one of them will be large enough to shelter a bird. It is such leakages as these which account for the abnormally high expenditure. Mr. Ferguson says he has watched work on the Provincial highways and it is nothing unusual to see men leaning on their shovels waiting for the wagons to come.

Mr. Ferguson explained why the work of road improvement had been taken up by a former government. Railway and waterways traffic had been developed to the limit, and for the benefit of the farmer highway transportation was taken up. To facilitate the getting of produce to market and so lowering the cost of living was the idea upon which was based the original road policy. The plan was to construct first of all trunk lines. These were denounced as schemes to develop speedways for the idle rich. The 420 miles originally planned were considered too much, but these same objectors have increased this mileage to 1,860. The former government aimed to spend six million dollars a year for five years, on road improvement, an outlay which could be met by the auto tax. Two years after the present government got into office, they spent twenty-seven millions on roads and this year have added to that twenty millions. The province has fifty-seven millions invested in highways that are not more than well begun. Of the roads built, 150 miles are of ordinary gravel and 60 miles are of macadam, which cannot stand the traffic.

"I leave it to you," continued the speaker, "to say whether you are getting value for your money or whether the work is being efficiently carried on. The money of the counties, the impost, is so heavy, that the county councils have been obliged to suspend their county roads systems."

Patronage and Nepotism.

Mr. Ferguson next took up the question of patronage. For the first time in the history of the province it had been found necessary to appoint a solicitor in the highway department. Hon. F. C. Biggs had placed his own cousin in the position in spite of all his former objections to anything like patronage or nepotism. Mr. Ferguson does not criticize that step, but does take issue with the reasons given by Mr. Biggs why his cousin had been recommended by the legal fraternity of Toronto as the one man for the job. Mr. Ferguson admitted that the cousin may be an excellent solicitor, but what the speaker did object to was hypocrisy. The men who assigned their seats to make way for Attorney-General Raney and Minister of Agriculture Doherty had been rewarded, the one by appointment on commission and the latter by being made registrar of his county. It had been solemnly declared in the House that neither were to receive any reward for stepping aside.

"I want to be frank with you," continued Mr. Ferguson. "I am in favour of patronage of the proper type. The Minister at the head of a department should have something to say in the selection of the members of his staff, as he is responsible for their acts. I have no objection to these things if they would be frank and honest about it. But I do object to their raising their hands high to heaven and acting like the Pharisee."

Premier Drury claimed credit for the Workmen's Compensation Act and the Mothers' Pension Law, but both were initiated by the late Conservative government. The same was true of the Minimum Wage Act.

Mr. Ferguson, in conclusion, dealt with the famous Backus affair. Backus, an alien millionaire, was given a lease of all the water power in the Kenora district. Premier Drury appears as the principal in this transanction, instead of the Minister of the department. He agreed to put up three thousand square miles of timber for sale, the successful bidder to put up this mill and manufacture the stock at Kenora. The competition with the Backus interests were chosen as the former controlled the water power. The sale was advertised, not for three months as usual in such cases, but for five weeks, not sufficient time in which to cruise and estimate that amount of timber. Only three bids were received and these were from business associates of Mr. Backus. There are ten million cords of spruce on the limit, which should have brought $2.33 a cord. Backus got it for one-half a cent a cord. There is on the limit a quantity of pine and other valuable timber, and this Mr. Backus gets for nothing. Mr. Ferguson figured that the province has lost between thirty and thirty-five million dollars in these transactions.

"When you nominate a good Liberal-Conservative candidate," said Mr. Ferguson in conclusion, "I will be glad to come back to Peterborough and do what I can to help him carry the riding."

Two resolutions were then put by President Denne and carried unanimously. The first, submitted by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, and seconded by Dr. Morrison, expressed confidence in and pledged loyalty to the Dominion leader, ex-Premier Meighen. The other resolution, moved by W. G. Howden and seconded by V. J. McElderry, was a hearty vote of thanks to and an expression of confidence in Mr. Ferguson as the Provincial leader.

The meeting dispersed with the singing of the National Anthem. A large number of the audience came to the platform to personally greet Mr. Ferguson and Mrs. Edwards.

BURNED OUT AND NEED ASSISTANCE

Recent Fire at Apsley More Disastrous Than First Reported.

APSLEY, Nov. 29.—The destruction at Archie Whitmore's when his home was destroyed by fire last Thursday is more disastrous than at first reported. It transpires that a sum of $400 belonging to the School Section together with all the books was lost in the fire and it is problem for the trustees how to replace this. Mr. Whitmore has been offered a house close to his former home, an offer which he has gladly accepted, thus enabling the family to keep together. Furniture, bedding and clothing is the great need for this unfortunate family just now, and contributions of this kind if sent to 326 Water street, will be brought to Apsley by George Stephens and Mr. Spence will see that they are delivered to A. Whitmore.

ROYAL QUALITY IS SERVICE

The Electric Suction Cleaner that gets both kinds of dirt

How Royal Suction gets all the Dirt

Note the large amount of dirt in bottom of jar. This is the embedded dirt—full of sharp grit that cuts and ruins rugs. It sinks because heavier, the surface litter floats. (From an actual photograph.)

THERE are two kinds of dirt in your rugs,—the powdery dust and litter on the surface, and the gritty, germ-laden dirt embedded in the pile.

The laboratory jar-of-water test, illustrated at left, shows clearly how the Royal removes both kinds of dirt in the only way it can be thoroughly removed,—with powerful suction scientifically applied. For the Royal cleans by air alone! It has no brushes, belts or gears to get out of order or slow up its strong, cleansing air-stream.

Its extra-wide, 14-inch nozzle is specially shaped to go under furniture and into corners readily, and may be quickly adjusted to any floor-surface by means of the patented Royal adjustment screw. Its light weight (barely 11 pounds), large rubberoid wheels, and positive oiling system make it exceptionally easy-running. The Royal is built to give years and years of service. And, because it cleans by air alone, it can never injure even the finest rugs or fabrics.

If you want a cleaner that will clean thoroughly and clean everything, let us give you a free Royal demonstration in your own home. Judge for yourself the merit of the Royal. Ask to-day for this demonstration and the terms of our partial-payment plan.

Made in Canada

The Royal Attachments are simply and easily connected. They clean hangings, upholstered furniture, mattresses, pillows, etc., as thoroughly as the Royal itself cleans rugs and hardwood floors. You need them if you wish to get maximum service from your machine.

Choral Society Concert

The Parish Hall, Rear Street, was well filled last evening, when the Choral Society under the able direction of Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O. and Miss Hawley, assisted by other local musicians rendered an excellent programme of part songs, solos, quartettes, male choruses and a brass quartette, Mr. C. L. Owen in his usual able manner acting as chairman.

The part songs "The Parting Kiss" (C. Pinsute); "The Canadian Boat Song" (Moore); "Kathleen Mavourneen" (Crouch); "Good-Night thou glorious sun" and "The Lost Chord" (O'Sullivan); were well rendered by the choir and showed precision of attack, careful modulation and shading reflecting much credit not only to the members, but to their able conductor.)

Rev. Fobert Fry of Burnbrae in his usual pleasing tenor voice rendered a couple of solos both of which were heartily encored and to both of which he responded with very pleasing encores. The male chorus "Comrades in Arms' was exceptionally well rendered by Messrs. Bygott, Payne, E. Henson, W. Henson, A. Bonney, Dr. Richardson, as was also their second number "The Village Christer". Miss Mary McBride's sweet voice was heard to advantage in "Come Back to Erin", and was heartily encored.

Miss Helen Bygott sang in her usual sweet voice "Carry me Back to Old Virginy" and also merited a most hearty encore. Little Miss Cherrie Turner, a budding musician of great promise contributed the piano solos (a) Valse in A Flat—Chopin and (b) "Dance of the Nymphs"—Kussner—quite captivating her audience by her skilful technique. Mr. Herb. Leonard rendered the solo "Bandeloro" in fine rich voice that completely delighted his hearers and replied to the hearty encore with "For a Man of the Desert am I" which all also well received. The brass quartette by Messrs. W. Lowe. Mr. Cowell in a brief little speech expressed his thanks to Miss Hawley and those who had assisted in making this entertainment such a success and brief ly stated his object in forming the choral society was to stimulate and encourage good music. The lengthy entertainment was then brought to a close by the "National Anthem".

Will Investigate

STIRLING, Nov. 29—The Provincial Gas Commissioner is expected to visit the village of Stirling this week to investigate the possibilities of commercializing the supply of natural gas recently discovered there near the high school building. In well digging operations a few weeks ago natural gas emitted from the well when being drilled and soon ignited causing a ten foot flame. The well was sunk nearly eighty-five feet and the water supply obtained was very salty to the taste. It is hoped that these existing possibilities may develop into a permanent supply of natural gas and much local interest is accordingly being manifested in the matter. The well was success fully capped and the flame extinguished, but the flow of gas still continues uninterruptedly.

Narrow Escape.

We are glad to report that in recent years, at least, we have never known an accident from drowning, but many a boy has had a good wetting at this season of the year by attempting to skate on the thin ice.

A number of spectators on Sunday shuddered to see the many youths who were gliding over what is commonly called "The Pond," evidently not fearing the danger which might befall them, but lo! the pleasure ceased when one grown-up broke through the ice and had to be rescued by two other young men.

Let us hope that this will be a warning to others, before it is too late.

Gave An Address.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church were favoured with a splendid talk from Miss Chase, who has been a missionary to the Ukrainians in Aberta for fifteen years.

Miss Chase is on a visit to her mother in Toronto, and while home has been visiting her many friends in the Lindsay district, and speaking before many auxiliaries, which she deems a high honour to represent. She believed in these societies heart and soul, believing they formed the prayer life of the Church. She had been called both a home and a foreign missionary. She worked on the home mission fields, but among the foreign element. And when we speak of foreigners, she said, just what do we mean? Three hundred years ago the Indian was the only Canadian. Then came the French and afterward the Anglo-Saxon. We call ourselves Anglo-Saxons and think we are the typical Canadians. Then, if we are the typical Canadians, what are we doing to make an ideal Canadianism? The future Canadian citizen would not be Anglo-Saxon, but a mixture of all the races, which are now coming to us. Foreigners coming to us from other lands take our actions toward them as our standard. Too often they have come to do the menial work on the farms and in the mines and at other work, and at the same time we called them Dagos and Sheenies. We did not believe that treatment of this kind was going to make good Canadian citizens.

What was the remedy? It was by applying kindness and being fair to them and giving them a fair deal. Other kind of treatment would only be the means of inciting them to make trouble. She gave a description of their school, which was built last summer at a cost of $15,000. It was a boarding school, and was composed principally of little waifs and others who were deprived of attending school in the winter. There they instructed them in the Bible as well as teaching the school curiculum. And by this means they were bringing boys and girls into what they believed to be good Canadian citizens of the future.

She said the Ruthenians numbered about 600,000, and were the third largest group in Canada. Their plan was to teach and act the Golden Rule, and nothing else than the Christian religion and kind, humane treatment would make them ideal citizens and Canadians.

WOMEN AT THE HAGUE TO URGE DISARMAMENT

AMSTERDAM, Nov.—(Associated)—A Women's Congress has been summoned by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, to meet at the Hague next month for the purpose of urging the necessity of a new peace which will secure equal rights to all nations, large and small.

"GIRL THE BUMMEST OF THE THREE BUMS."

Twenty-Three - Year-Old Girl Masqueraded in Male Attire at Westmount.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.— Alice Martin, a twenty-year-old girl, who claims she is from Winnipeg, was arrested by the Westmount police for masquerading in male attire in the company of two Ottawa men, who gave their names as Peter Trudeau, aged 22 ,and Rene Ouilet, aged 26. When apprehended the trio were loitering under the balcony of a house on Prince Albert avenue. Brought before Magistrate Raddon in the Westmount Police Court this morning, the masquerader received a thirty-day sentence, while her companions, neither of whom had a cent, were sentenced to 15 days in jail with the option of a fine of $20. The girl's sex was not discovered until her strenuous objections to being stripped and searched at headquarters aroused the suspicions of the police. Westmount authorities describe her as "the bummest of the three bums."

STATE DIVIDED INTO TWO FACTIONS OVER A SUIT WITH GOVERNOR

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 29.—The whole state of Mississippi finds itself divided into two opposing factions as a result of the $100,000 suit for alleged betrayal brought by Miss Frances Birkhead against Governor Lee M. Russell.

The suit, brought by the chief executive's former stenographer, is to come up for trial in the federal court at Oxford, Miss., Dec. 4. Since the charges were made last February, factions have formed and there have been many heated quarrels over the case.

Miss Birkhead charges in her complaint that, while she was employed by Russell, he betrayed her. Russell not only denies her charges, but rejoins with a counter-charge that Miss Birkhead is merely the tool of is political enemies who are trying to wreck his life.

The case means either make or break for Russell, those who followed the developments from the beginning say.

Governor Russell is being mentioned as the probable opponent of Senator Pat Harrison, whose term ends in 1925. The elections will not take place until 1924, but it is the belief of Russell's supporters that, if he comes out victorious at this trial he will be remembered favorably by the majority of the people at the primary.

RUMORS WITHOUT ANY FOUNDATION IN GARNEAU CASE

All Stories Regarding the Murder Were Thoroughly Sifted By the Police, According to Chief Walsh

STILL BEING TOLD.

QUEBEC, Nov. 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Rumors which started early after the discovery of the body of Blanche Garneau two years ago, and which were still being peddled about in the city of Quebec and in other parts of the province, associated the relatives of well known public men with the murder of the young Quebec girl, according to Chief of Detectives Thomas Walsh, of the Quebec Municipal Police force.

Chief Walsh was the principal witness before the Royal Commission which is investigating the conduct of the Attorney General's Department in connection with that sensational case when the enquiry was resumed here yesterday.

All the rumors, all the stories regarding the Blanche Garneau murder had been sifted and thoroughly tested, said Chief Walsh and they had been found baseless and without the slightest foundation. In spite of all there were still rumors going around and the police were still on the alert.

Chief Emile Trudele of the Quebec Municipal Police force, who was one of the other witnesses, gave an account of how he had been notified of the disappearance of the young girl and told what had been done before and after the body had been found.

At the morning session the comsioners announced that all witnesses who appeared before the commission would be fully protected against all civil and criminal action in the courts, and they would be entirely immune from any prosecution even if the evidence they gave was incriminating and against themselves.

Invited by Chas. Lanctot, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General to name "two persons related to Deputies," declared to be connected by public rumor with the Blanche Garneau murder, Armand Lavergne, K.C., counsel for John H. Roberts, flatly refused to do so.

"Name them," insisted Mr. Lanctot ,when Mr. Lavergne was cross-examining him on the mysterious "two persons."

"I don't wish to," replied Mr. Lavergne, and then added: "They are related to deputies."

Mr. Lanctot in repeating his invitation, said that if Mr. Lavergne would name them "we will take steps to give them the opportunity to come before the commission and clear themselves of any suspicion that may lurk."

NEWCOMERS MUST BE OF A GOOD CLASS

Stories That Immigration Will Be Unrestricted are Reported.

QUEBEC, Nov. 29.—Col. Obed Smith, Canadian Immigration Agent General of London, England, was a passenger on the Empress of Britain when she sailed for Europe on her last trip of the season from this part.

In an interview Co. Smith said that stories going around in regard to the coming out of an unlimited number of Continental Europeans was without foundation. That Canada would be protected by a rigid regulation of inspections against undesirables even as regards Great Britain. None but desirable class will be selected. The departure of the Empress on her last trip of the season in the St. Lawrence route recalls to minds the efficiency of the Canadian Pacific Railway in handling of passenger traffic during past season of navigation in connection with the landing of passengers and their transportation to their western destinations. The despatch carried on in regard to this feature of passenger transportation has been, to say the least remarkable, and is worthy of mentioning with the arrival of every steamer. The railway handling of passengers has been quickly and efficiently carried out in a manner that is worthy of all praise.

PHILADELPHIA, November 28 (Canadian Press). — James P. A. O'Connor, managing director of the Bellevue-Stratford oHtel, where the Navy Ball was held on Saturday night, yesterday denied that there was any unseemly conduct by midshipmen or others that attended the dance.

"It was a nice dance, and one of the quietest affairs I have ever seen for a big event. There were about 4,000 persons present."

PROMINENT WORKER DEVOUT CHRISTIAN

This Was Eulogy of the Late George E. Williams at Funeral Service.

The late George E. Williams, a former secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., who died recently in Montreal, was the fourth son of the late Rev. Wm. Williams, Hampton Hill, Middlesex, England.

Born in New York city 62 years ago, and educated in Sheffield, N. B., Mr. Williams came to Montreal at an early age, subsequently leaving to take up Y.M.C.A. work in Ontario, Quebec and abroad, and finally returning to Montreal to reside. His Y.M.C.A. career included secretaryships at Peterboro, Kingston and St. John; several years' indentification with the association in England, and as a director on the metropolitan board in Montreal. Always taking a keen interest in charitable organizations and religious extension, Mr. Williams was president of the foreign missionary board of the Congregational Missionaries of Canada. He was a member of Emmanuel Congregational Church, Montreal, being secretary of that church and deacon for many years. In business, Mr. Williams was provincial representative for the North America Life Assurance Company. Previously he had been connected with the New York Life Insurance Company and the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna M. Williams, nee Stewart and one daughter, Mrs. Anna Louis Shearman. Several brothers also survive.

"A rare specimen of a Christian citizen" was the appreciation of the Rev. George Adam in a eulogy pronounced at the funeral service of the late Geo. E. Williams in Emmanuel Church. In his address the Rev. Mr. Adam reviewed the numerous activities of Mr. Williams in church and Y.M.C.A. work, pointing out that his interests had not been confined to the church in which they were met, but reached out to the Church at large, especially in the matter of foreign missionary enterprise. It was characteristic of the man that he had not put business claims first, but had tended to sacrifice personal advancement to his work for the community. His religious faith was seen when he was smitten by a malady which precluded recovery, for throughout many months of suffering the utmost tranquillity and deep confidence had fortified him. As a Christian worker and business figure in the community he had left an impression that would not be easily lost.

Following the service, the remains were conveyed from the Mount Royal Tunnel terminal to St. Eustache, where interment took place in the Grand Fresnier cemetery, the graveside service being conducted by Rev. R. Scott.

SIX-YEAR-OLD HAD BRONCHITIS EVERY WINTER

Bronchitis generally begins with chills, followed by fever and a harsh dry, hacking cough. There is a raising of phlegm, whi at first is of a light color, but, as t e trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blood.

All those who are troubled with bronchitis will find in Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup a remedy that will stis.late the bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, sooths the irritated parts, and loosen the phlegm.

Mrs. Oliver C. Le"-ge, South Rustiso, P. E. I., writes:—"My little six-year-old girl had very ba! attacks of bronchitis every winter. In the evening and during the night, .he would have fever and cho.e up, and had a wheezing in her chest. We tried several cough medicines, but they never seemed to do her any good. A neighbor advised us to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which we did, and after she had taken two bottles she got perfectly well."

EASTER ISLAND IS BAD PLACE TO LIVE

Virtually Devoid of Vegetation and Without any Bird Life.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Associated Press)—Easter Island, the land of mystery of the South Pacific, virtually devoid of vegetation and without bird life of any kind, is a horrible place to live, according to a New Zealand scientist who is now in London after a five months stay on the island.

No trees grow on Easter Island because it lacks water and the heavy winds wreck them. No birds live there because there are no worms in the dry soil; there are no mosquitoes, but this lack is more than compensated by vicious local flies.

The island is triangular, 12 miles by nine by seven, and is remote from the track of ships. Two hundred Polynesians inhabit it, and they suffer perpetually from hunger, according to the investigator, who is Professor J. Macmillan Brown.

It is famous for its high carved stone images, the origin of which never has been determined. Professor Brown says the island cannot have been long inhabitated. He fixes 1600 as the date of the first settlers, and consequently of the setting up of the strange stone gods. It was first sighted by white men in 1686, and first explored in 1722, when it had 2,000 inhabitants.

An additional allowaice of $50 a month is to be made for former service men of the United States army who are blind, legless or armless. his money is intended for the employment of extra attendants for the men.

REFORM NEEDED IN THE STATES

Faults of Modern Education—Elementary Training Too Extended.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 29.—"The United States faces the need of a drastic and thorough-going reform of its whole scheme of education, that our children and our youth may be more effectively trained, and that time may be saved in the process."

This is the declaration of Dr. Samuel P. Capen, chancellor of the University of Buffalo and formerly director of the American Council of Education.

Dr. Capen is considered one of the nation's foremost educators. In addition to directing the education council, he has been specialist in higher education in the U.S. Bureau of Education, and during the war assisted the National Defense Council and the War Department's committee on special training.

Dr. Capen suggests a process by which the student will be suitably fitted for the job he is to undertake on his graduation, by "job analysis." This, he says, will set children on the right road to their chosen trades or professions even before they enter college.

Faults of Modern Education

Some of the things wrong with education to-day, Dr. Capen lists as follows:

"1. The period devoted to elementary subjects is too long. Efficiency is offset. by new subjects Nor is there proof that such change has increased pupils' intellectual power.

"2. Secondary education begins too late and ends too soon. It is too diffuse and therefore superficial, providing very imperfectly for the preparation of those who straightway must earn a livelihood.

"3. Fifty per cent of the work done in colleges of arts and sciences rightly belongs in the secondary schools. Thus it becomes necessary to provide teaching methods and discipline in college for immature boys and girls, rather than for men and women seriously entering upon preparation for their life work. There is a great waste of time in college.

Reform Suggested

"Ignoring for the moment the splendid achievements of the professional schools, the first thing demanding correction is the fact that Americans enter upon professional careers at least two years later than citizens of other countries. his delay constantly is being increased by professional interests themselves. These interests seek to extend the time devoted to training and impose higher requirements without reference to their effect on the educational scheme as a whole."

As improvements of our educational system, Dr. Capen suggests: "Admission to college and continuance there should depend on a process of selection far more searching than any that now prevails.

"As early as possible in the college course there should be provision of opportunities for independent study for the definite mastery of some field of knowledge.

"The college should adopt all means possible to place secondary education where it properly belongs, and enter into cooperation with the school systems from which the majority of its students come."

dalized any more than what I am now and I am not afraid to face court and explain my actions."

Entitled to Information

Replying on July 20th 1922, Mr. Peck write: — "What the County Council requires, and is entitled to, is a definite statement, in writing, showing the persons to whom the moneys in question were paid, the dates when paid and the purpose for which such payments were made. these payments to be vouched by the receipts of the parties in question."

Another exhibit was a letter to Mr. Elliott from Wellington Burgess treasurer of Belmont township, on May 1st 1922, in which reference is made to a cheque for $100 from the County Treasurer.

"The latter was a cheque in favor of W. E. Griffith handed to me about the middle of January 1922 stating it was a grant from County but through some oversight he had not given it over to the Municipality before December 31, 1921."

"That was the Warden's indemnity for 1921", Mr. Elliott testified. "It is endorsed by Mr. Griffith and also by Mr. Burgess

In discussing this payment Mr. Kerr said he was willing to admit that $100 reached the township treasurer but not by a proper method.

Error in Transcription

Mr. Porter—The $100 reaching Belmont would it be the same thing?

Mr. Elliott—It depends on the view the Council took if it. It is not in conformity with the Council's report.

Mr. Porter—There is nothing on the records of the Council requiring reeves to account for the grants?—No. but the auditors ask for it.

Mr. Porter —There is no resolution and no authoritiy recorded in the minutes of the County Council of 1921 of any special grant for road purposes to Belmont?

Mr. Kerr objected that there was a resolution but it was not recorded

Mr. Porter —Is there any record of a special grant to Belmont for 1921?

M. Elliott—No. Mr. Griffith moved, seconded by Mr. Brown that in addition to $100 to the back town ships a special grant of $100 be made for road work providing the townships provide an equal amount.

Mr. Porter—You have no record or minute of a special part for Belmont?

Paid in Good Faith

Mr. Elliott—No, but I paid it in good faith. The resolution was moved by Mr. Griffith but Belmont's name was omitted either by myself or the typewriter.

Were the grants to Belmont paid direct to the treasurer of the township or to the reeve?—They were paid to the reeve.

Had you any authority for paying him?—Only by the Council's resolution making the reeves commissioners of their municipalities.

For the expenditure of the grants, but not for the receipt of them?—Yes.

Paid all the Reeves

Mr. Elliott said he paid all the reeves of the back townships. He explained that in transcribing the first draft of the minutes of the Roads and Bridges Committee comprising the whole Council the name of Belmont township was inadvertently omitted.

Judge Huycke—What has this got to do with Mr. Griffith? There's a lot of noise but it's not hitting anyone.

Mr. Kerr remarked that the final argument of the defense would be that Mr. Griffith didn't understand what the $100 grant was for.

Mr. Kerr—When did you first learn of the omission? Some time last spring when Mr. Griffith told me the grant had never been made.

Duncan Brown.

Reeve Brown of Burleigh and Anstruther recalled having seconded the motion in 1921 for the usual grant of $100 to the poorer townships supplemented by a special grant of $100 on condition the township raised a like amount. Belmont and Methuen, he said, were included.

Letters witness received in the spring of this year from Mr. Griffith proposing to contribute $100 for the improvement of the road to Jack's Lake, were produced by Mr. Kerr, but were not followed up. He said that these letters were written after Mr. Griffith was no longer a member of the County or Belmont councils.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrup, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont

CIRCUS PROPRIETOR FAVOURS A CLEAN SHOW.

Would Abolish Shows for "Men Only," and Similar Swindles.

TORONTO, November 29. Canadian Press. — Charles Ringling of Ringling Bros., and Barnum and Bailey, before the International Association of Fairs Convention to-day urged that the Association pledge itself not to tolerate on the grounds of any of its fairs: "A" gambling for money, either with or without apparatus; "B" squeeze, tilt or other unfair spindle wheel or apparatus; "C" "Hoochie-Koochie" dance; "D" so called camps or other concessions in which hired women dance with men patrons; "E" any secret or 'behind curtain" show given for men only.

Mr. Ringling expressed the opinion that fairs do not think enough of athletics and declared that the introduction of school games into fairs would be a decided improvement.

Matters of interest and importance to management and development of fairs and exhibitions, covering a wide range of subjects, from attractions for kiddies to the betterment of live stock and mechanical equipment of all kinds, were under discussion at to-day's session.

Most of the State, Provincial and County Fairs of the United States and Canada are members of the organization.

Joseph Rogers, Superintendent of the Ontario Provincial Police, described methods of this province in dealing with the travelling show.

"The greatest show window of the world," is the way Guy Hall of Chicago, referred to the work of the Association. "Toronto fairs," said Mr. Hall, who is director of the National Institute of Progressive Farming, "are probably the greatest held on the North American continent. It is not too much to say that these fairs, county, state or national, provincial or dominion, are the greatest single factor on the continent in educating the farmer, improving his home life, and stimulating trade. The rich acres of Canada have been a wonderful field for developing farm machinery. Canada was the experimental arena of the first tractor. In the great bonanza wheat fields, where the farmers had faith even during the often discouraging experimental operations, the tractor is now seen everywhere, a perfected machine, which is adding enormously to Canada's wealth."

Lack of Appetite

When Due to Indigestion, Acid, Sour, Bloated Stomach, Is Restored By a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet After Meals.

When there is indigestion and the stomach does not seem to relish food it is a great mistake to starve or to use stimulants to force appetite. The best way is to woo the stomach back to health by giving it the help it needs, the alkaline effect that arrests acidity, prevents gassiness, belching, sour risings, flatulence, pressure that seems to crowd the heart and such distresses due to indigestion. Chew one or two of the large, white tablets after eating, no water needed, and the stomach settles down to restful digestion, you feel eased and comfortable and you get the good of food. You now tackle pie, cheese, pickles, sausage or anything you like without fear as you have the means to prevent the distresses arising from indigestion. Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to-day of any druggist.

WORK-A-DAY PIPE

Not mine to stretch poetic wings
And soar 'mid thin, ethereal things
With head lost in the sky!
Nay,—but with heart and harp atune
To catch the rich and rythmic rune—
In lowly life wait I.

Of course, not saying but I could
Scale Mount Olympus if I would,
And on the heights be found.
What do such frenzied flights avail?
'Tis pleasant in the friendly dale
With feet firm on the ground.

Tis fine to cook a wholesome meal.
A glowing thrill of joy I feel
To see my family eat it.
Tis sweet to tuck my Babes in bed
And cuddle each small, towsled head—
For bliss you cannot beat it!

Aspasia, with her 'lustrious lyre,
May draw from heaven her mystic fire
But earth can also give it.
And those whose tuneful nights and days
Find poesy in common ways
Not only Sing—but LIVE it.

ST. LUKE'S BAZAAR UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS.

Hat Trimming Competition for Men Causes Lots of Fun.

St. Luke's bazaar opened yesterday in the local market hall with one of the largest attendance on record. The event is under the auspices of the Woman's Guild.

The hall is beautifully decorated with pennants and streamers, and the numerous booths are most artistically adorned, presenting a colorful aspect. The ladies responsible for the success of this annual affair are: Mrs. Geo. Curtis, president of the Guild and Mrs. (Rev.) G. Bousfield, head convenor of the bazaar; Mrs. A. Nichols of the candy booth, Mrs. Harry Butcher of the home cooking booth, Misses Calcutt of the tea room, Mrs. Thomas Moore of the jack-in-the-box, Mrs. Reg. Turner of the fortune telling, Mr. Frank Patterson (A.Y.P.A.) of the country store, Mrs. Harry Adams of the fancy work booth, Mrs. J. J. Turner of the plain sewing booth, Mrs. Jack Lush of the doll booth, Miss Clara Adams of the handkerchief booth, Mrs. Manece and Miss Gaskell of the hat trimming contest, St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. of the dancing.

The feature of last evening was the hat trimming contest which proved to be one of the best funmaking events in the history of the church bazaars. There were about twelve of the masculine sex entered in this altogether unique competition, in which Mrs. Gus Hayes and and Mrs. Reg. Turner acted as judges, while Mrs. (Rev.) G. Bousfield presented the prizes to the following: 1st, Heber Rogers, 2nd Stanley Curtis, conciliation prize, R. B. Rogers.

The talent displayed by the men in hat trimming yesterday leads to the conclusion that men will soon replace women in the millinery art.

The latter part of yesterday evening was greatly enjoyed by the young people in dancing, under the direction of the members of the A.Y.P.A. This organization, as well as the executive of ladies, are to be congratulated on the gratifying success of one of the best bazaars and sale of cookery and work ever. This evening will be the last opportunity for attending and having a good time at this attraction.

TWELVE CHILDREN ARE MISSING SINCE FIRES.

COVINGTON, Ga., Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Twelve children are reported missing following a fire which late yesterday destroyed High Point community school. The fire cost the lives of at least three children, caused burns and injuries to about fifty. The search party is combing the debris for bodies of those reported missing.

DRINK WATER WHEN YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder is troubling you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. An excess of meat may form uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

DEMPSEY MAY GET A MILLION FOR 3 FIGHTS

Verbal Contract Has Been Made With Big New York Theatre Magnate.

DETAILS UNSETTLED.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 29.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, who with the world's heavyweight champion, is now playing at a local theatre, announced the conditional acceptance of an offer that practically assures the champion of being seen in the arena early next Summer. Kearns announced that he had tentatively accepted an offer by Al H. Woods, theatrical manager of New York, of $1,000,000 for the services of Dempsey in three bouts. The offer, Kearns stated, was made after several long distance telephone conversations between here and New York last week.

The only hitch that looms up in the agreement is the division of the money that would be obtained from the motion picture rights.

Mionr details only were given out by Kearns. Probable opponets were mentioned, but the time and place are yet to be named. However, according to Kearns, the new home of the New York Yankees is the logical scene of the contests which will be afternoon bouts.

According to Kearns, its is practically a certainty that the champion's first appearance will be a mixed affair with Strangler Lewis, wrestler. Kearns believes such a contest would be a big box office attraction. The champion's manager was a bit reluctant in going into the details of the match, such as Dempsey's chances against the wrestler or what tactics the champion would employ. The outcome of the match with Lewis has nothing to do with the fulfillment of the remainder of the contract, Kearns stated.

Regarding Dempsey's two other opponents, Kearns stated that that matter is mostly in the hands of Woods, as Dempsey was willing to meet any one. Kearns hinted that Harry Wills, the brown panther of New Orleans, and Joe Beckett, the Englishman, had been mentioned as likely opponents. In the event that plans for bringing together Dempsey and either Wills or Beckett go awry, Kearns stated that Harry Grebb, Tom Gibbons and Jess Willard might be considered.

While any agreement so far is only verbal, Kearns stated that he thought it would go through with some changes.

Dempsey's theatrical contract has but three more weeks to run. As soon as the contract expires, Kearns stated that he and the champion would go to New York.

Tremaine Leading Contender For the Bantamweight Title

Carl Tremaine.

By BILLY EVANS.

Who is the leading contender for the bantamweight title? Joe Lynch is the present champion.

I nominate Carl Tremaine of Cleveland, O., for that honor. I am sure the nomination will be unanimously seconded by everyone who has ever seen that little battler in action.

Lynch says he is ready to meet anybody in the world at 118 pounds. Jimmy Dunn, who looks after the interest of Tremaine, rises to remark that his protege is ready, yes anxious, for such a clash.

Tremaine boasts a wonderful record. He has knocked out more opponents than any other bantam in the ring. When he goes into action fight fans get a real run for their money.

Only recently Tremaine knocked out Phil O'Dowd, one of the few bantams holding a decision over Lynch. A few months previous Lynch had lost his title to Pete Herman.

Another notable knockout scored by Tremaine was at the expense of Eddie Pinchott of Pittsburg, who has to his credit an even break with Lynch over the 10-round route.

New Yorkers are still talking about Tremaine's meeting with Harold Farese, a big favorite in that city, and touted as the next bantam title holder. Farese lasted only three rounds in one of the most sensational bouts staged in New York.

Jimmy Dunn, who has developed such great performers as Johnny Kilbane, Bryan Downey, Johnny Karr and a host of others, is confident that in Tremaine he has the next bantam champ. As a matter of fact, Dunn says that Lynch will be shorn of the title the first time he steps into the ring with Tremaine.

Tremaine is the unusual type, very clever, yet a great hitter and aggressive. At times he throws cleverness to the winds, and swaps punches standing toe to toe with his opponent. It is said of Tremaine that no battler has ever made him back up, and that he always has the last punch in a clinch. In many ways Tremaine reminds one of Terry McGovern when that great fighter was in his prime. He has plenty of color.

Tremaine is certainly entitled to a crack at the bantam title. His records justifies that assertion. To fail to bring him together with Lynch is an injustice to the fight fans of New York.

Tremaine is 23 years old. He has been fighting since 1917.

Present-Day Champs Are Addicted to Employing Safety First Tactics to Hold Title.

WANT BIG MONEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—While the action of the New York State Boxing Commission in declaring a number of titles void has been much ridiculed, it is becoming more apparent that at least a step has been made in the right direction.

While the Marquis of Queensbury rules cover the boxing game very thoroughly, it seems that the code would have been more complete had it contained some definite word as to the defending of their titles by the champions of various classes.

It doesn't seem fair to the logical contenders for the various title to have some veteran holder of a championship put his title in camphor balls and practically refuse to defend it in a decision bout unless given most of the loose money available.

There certainly should be a definite ruling as to how often a champion should defend his title during the course of a year. It seems that he should take a chance in a decision bout at least once every six months.

The case of Champion Johnny Kilbane of the featherweight division is the most glaring example of how this condition is abused. Kilbane absolutely refuses to defend his title unless guaranteed a sum that is out of proportion with his drawing possibilities. The promoters are entitled to a good cut and the challenger a fair sum, but the demands made by Kilbane make such a thing out of the question.

Fight fans are a bit tired of conditions in several classes, notably the middleweight and featherweight. Johnny Wilson and Johnny Kilbane are anything but popular with followers of the ring game at this time, simply because of the safety-first tactis employed.

Scott Explains Failure To Star at Short

Shortstop Everett Scott of the New York Yankees, who like Babe Ruth was one of the big disappointments of the world series, has an explanation for his failure to show his old-time form that sounds logical.

"A lot of people were surprised at my failure to get certain balls that were hit in my territory during the series," says Scott. "I was one of them, although it had been apparent to me all year that I wasn't covering as much ground as formerly.

"The idea has already been advanced that I am old and slipping in my play. Possibly there is some truth to that. I realize that I can't go as far for them as I could 10 years ago. However, I feel that the Polo Grounds was more responsible for making it seem that I was slowing up than any one other thing.

"Don't get the impression that I am offering this as an alibi, or that there is anything wrong with the Polo Grounds. As a matter of fact, the infield is so very fast at the Polo Grounds that it has had me a bit off balance all year.

"National and American League players will tell you that the Polo Grounds infield is the fastest in either league. The infield at the where I have spent most of my career, is correspondingly slow. Players always jokingly referred to the Red Sox park as the swamp as the infield was low and always seemed inclined to be damp and slow.

"It was the irony of fate that I should be transferred to New York as I am nearing the end of my career and be forced to play on so fast an infield. I feel that I could switch back to the Boston park and seem as brilliant as ever.

"True, age is beginning to tell, but the speed of the New York infield has been my greatest woe."

OLD RIVALS PLAY GOOD CLEAN GAME

Only One Penalty Was Inflicted During the Game Between Wisconsin and Michigan.

By BILLY EVANS.

ANN HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 29.—Football enthusiasts who witnessed Michigan defeat Wisconsin saw two great football teams in action, elevens capable of holding their own with the best from any section of the country.

Wisconsin was far from disgraced in defeat. The margin of difference between the two teams was very slight. In the final minutes of play, Wisconsin, trailing by a 13 to 0 score, opened up its bag of tricks, showed a fighting spirit that was admirable and crossed Michigan's goal line, the first time that it has been done this year.

Only One Penalty.

The meeting between Wisconsin and Michigan was unusual in a number of respects. It proved beyond a doubt that two teams can play hard football, yet do it in a clean manner that calls for no rebuke from the officials.

Only one penalty was inflicted during the entire game. Wisconsin suffered a loss of fifteen yards because of tripping on the part of Sykes, which was largely accidental.

Wisconsin's touchdown was the result of five forward passes. Four were completed in succession, then a couple of line plays were tried and failed, followed by a pass across the goal line, which Pulaski, a substitute Wisconsin player, caught despite the fact that three Michigan players surrounded him.

A peculiar feature was that Michigan beat Wisconsin at its own game. In the first two periods neither team was able to score. Michigan had relied largely on straight football. Coach Yost must have told the boys something in between halves, because Michigan opened up the very first time it secured the ball in the third period. Both Michigan scores were the result of forward passes.

Three Great Ends.

The game produced three of the best ends of the year, Kirke and Goebel of Michigan and Tebell of Wisconsin. Likewise it placed on exhibition two great halfbacks in Kipke of Michigan and Williams of Wisconsin. Williams, who had been stopped more or less in the Illionis game, was at his best in the Ann Harbor encounter.

Wisconsin in the last few minutes of the game showed a varied assortment of forward passes that had the tired Michiganders bewildered. Had Wisconsin opened up earlier there might have been a different tale to tell.

It was a great game, one that reflects great credit to both Michigan and Wisconsin as well as western football.

Baseball Fan Gets Damages From Yanks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Louis E. Birsch, music composer, won a verdict of $750 yesterday in Justice Isidor Wasservogel's part of the Supreme Court for his ejectment from the Polo Grounds on May 20, 1920, during a baseball game between the Yankees and Detroit. The defendants in the suit was the American League Baseball Club of New York (The Yankees).

On hearing the verdict Mr. Hirsch said: "I am glad I have been vindicated. I shall contribute the money to various charities—the Actors' Fund, the Jewish Relief Drive, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and others."

The baseball club's representatives said Mr. Hirsch had changed his seat several times in violation of rules which were made to prevent gamblers from operating. Mr. Hirsch said he had changed his seat twice, once when smoke fro the pipe of a "fan" sitting next to him annoyed him and once when one of the special police stood in front of him just as "Babe" Ruth came to bat.

Victor Herbert testified as a character witness for Mr. Hirsch.

QUEEN'S PREPARES TO MEET ESKIMOS.

KINGSTON, November 29 (Canadian Press). — Those in charge of Queens field are sparing no pains to have it in shape for the game on Saturday between the Tri-colour and the Eskimos of Edmonton.

Yesterday the snow was removed and several loads of straw placed on the field.

The weather is turning colder, and clear, cold weather is hoped for until after Saturday.

Queens team will take no chances with the Eskimos, and intend to practice faithfully and follow closely the training rules.

They all went into the Arena yesterday at noon, and will live there until the game.

The players had their first workout to-day, and while the practice was secret, it is understood that it was a vigorous one.

CALEDONIANS TOOK ONE FROM PRIVATES.

The Caledonians came through with a victory last night, when they defeated the Privates 15 to 7 in a Softball League game at the Armouries. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning on account of the lateness of the hour.

The Caledonians were right on deck from the start, scoring four runs in each of the first two innings. They continued the good work by collecting at least two runs in every inning except the fifth.

The Privates made their only show in strength in the early stages of the game, getting all their runs in the first three innings, four of them coming in the first.

The players were:

Caledonians—MacKenzie, 1b; McMillan, p; Ackford, c; Burgess, ss; Thompson, 3b; Jackson, 2b; Anderson, f; French, ss; Murray, f.

Privates—Thomas, p; Hamblyn, c; LeBarr, 1b; Williams, 2b; Morris, 3b; Armstrong, ss; McBride, ss; Moore, f; Sommers, f.

Score by innings:

Caledonians ..... 442203—15
Privates ..... 421000— 7

DOPE MEANS NOTHING IN FOOTBALL GAME.

Take nothing for granted has long been an accepted theory as regards baseball. On the diamond no game is over until the last man is out and out and you are on the big end of the score.

The take-nothing-for-granted theory will soon be just as applicable to football if teams all over the country continue to upset the dope.

The forward pass and the many other deceptive formations that have crept into the open game makes victory uncertain until the final second of play is over and the whistle has sounded the finish.

A few weeks ago Penn flashed a real surprise by defeating the Navy. It was believed Penn had finally arrived, that Heisman has developed a great team.

Then Penn met Alabama, a team that had been overwhelmed by Georgia Tech, which had been beaten by the Navy. Penn was defeated, 9 to 6, in favor of the biggest form reversals of the year. Then came a 7 to 6 defeat by Pittsburg.

Penn is now in the dumps, nothing but a victory over the great Cornell team can restore some of the prestige that has been tossed away.

AT THE BIG GAME.

MOOSE JAW, November 29 (Canadian Press). — E. Murray Thomson has been notified that he has been appointed to officiate at the rugby game at Kingston between Queens and Edmonton Eskimos on Saturday afternoon next.

Mr. Thomson will leave at once for the East.

MECHANIC'S ACTION TO RECOVER WAGES

Ira Lennox Claimed $300 From R. J. Bullock, of Lakefield.

At a special sittings of the County Court yesterday His Honor E. C. S. Huycke tried the case of Ira Lennox vs. Roland J. Bullock. This was an action brought by Ira Lennox, who worked as a mechanic in Bullock's garage at Lakefield, for the balance of three hundred dollars wages claimed by Lennox to be due him from Bullock for the early part of 1922, and the latter part of 1921.

Bullock asserted a counter claim and mantained that he had over paid him, which Lennox denied. Mr. J. A. O'Brien appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. C. R. Widdifield for the defendant. Judgment was reserved by His Honor. Evidence was adduced by Mr. and Mrs. Lennox that Mrs. Bullock admitted that there was a balance of $287.00 owin gto Lennox which Lennox did not deny.

LOU SKUCE CARTOONIST—ALSO VIOLA DANA IN CAVEMAN PICTURE.

Lou Skuce, opens three days engagement at the Capitol Theatre in a novelty act which will prove more interesting to persons who like the cartoonist's work in the Toronto Sunday world, and in numerous other periodicals, as well as those who have been fortunate enough to have seen him before in vaudeville or motion picture houses.

This act is a different sort of thing altogether from anything else Mr. Skuce has done, in Toronto some years ago, he presented a sketch of rapid cartoon making, but now there new phases altogether to his work, several hundred feet of film showing the process of drawing, finishing and reproducing the likeness which are published as "Impressions" will be used, and before the finish of the act, you will be more familiar with "Lou" than ever, and more convinced of his ability.

As told in some short sketches of his life, Lou Skuce is a veteran newspaper man, a sport, an athlete an artist, and a Canadian his country may well be proud of. Seats will be in extraordinary demand for Mr. Skuce's engagement, and you should get them early so as not to miss the whole show.

"They Like 'Em Rough" is the title of the latest Metro picture starring Viola Dana which will come to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday for a run of three days. Miss Dana plays the role of a girl whose aversion to discipline and authority is almost a mania. Discovering that her aunt and uncle, with whom she lives, are plotting to marry her off to a certain young man whom they regard as a most desirable husband, Katherine decides to take matters into her own hands.

"I'll show 'em," she says, "I'll go out and marry the first man I meet and bring him back as my husband to the wedding."

Now it happened that the first man that she met was a big, bearded, rough-looking customer dressed in lumberman's garb. Nothing daunted Katherine offers him $100 to marry her and after the ceremony says: "Thanks a lot, see you again some time, maybe." He informs her that she will see him from now on, jumps into her car and carries her off to a lumber camp in the mountains. The resulting complications furnish much fun and thrills to everyone but Katherine.

The bride, who was assisted by her sister, Gladys, entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mr. John Ball. YOUTH WAS CHASED OUT BY CONSTABLE.

Alleged to Have Committed a Number of Robberies in Omemee.

OMEMEE, Nov. 29.—Many stories have been related and no little excitement has been caused by a youth of about 16 years of age, who claims his name is Elliott, and that his home is in Belleville. Sometime after midnight on Sunday evening, he entered the G.T.R. Station by breaking a pane of glass, and took a number of railway tickets. He then proceeded down the track to the home of Mrs. J. B. Hayes, where he gained entrance, through the back door. Here he took as his booty, two pairs of gloves, a suitcase and other articles, and made his escape but not without alarming the lady of the house who woke her boarder, Mr. Walter Eggleton, and together they make an investigation and found he had ramsacked several drawers. Later he tracked him in the fresh snoy to Mr. Percy Race's verandah where they found him asleep with the stolen articles in his possession. He also had a number of other trinkets, a bank book containing about $40 and also $5 in cash. Mr. Eggleton took him back with him, where he returned the stolen property and afterward turned him over to the Village Constable, who placed him on the train, enroute for his home in Belleville.

GAVE A BANQUET FOR C.P.C. FOOTBALL TEAM.

Twenty-five Members and Supporters Gather at the Louis Cafe.

Last evening, at the Louis Cafe, Charlotte Street, Mr. Gordon Matthews gave a banquet for the football team of the Canadian Packing Company. The team made a strong bid for the Yeotes Cup, but lost out by a narrow margin. About twenty-five supporters and players of the C. P. C. team were on hand, and the speakers in their addresses reviewed the work of the past season and expressed the hope that the team would capture the trophy next year.

DOUBLES

The double life is appealing strongly to fashion at the present moment. It is best exemplified in reversible wraps, and in frocks which may be made to do double duty. The wraps are generally of broadcloth with fur on the reverse side. The frocks consist primarily of a one-piece slip, suitable gown by the addition of a befrilled tunic.

STARTLING DOCTRINE OF COUEISM IS BEING TAUGHT AT GRIMSBY

Patients Flocking to Clinic Seeking a New and Remarkable Road to Health —Power of Imagination Can Cure All Ills?

A "FAITH CURE"

GRIMSBY, Nov. 30.—(Special.)—"Every day in every way I am getting better and better." On these words Emile Coue, the famous French healer, has based one of the most startling doctrines of the age, and this is being introduced in Canada by an English-born, Canadian-bred disciple of this exponent of auto suggestion.

The doctrine is emanating from a white stucco house in Grimsby, where dwells Francis Paget Macklem, sonof Rev. Sutherland Macklem, son of Rev. Sutherland Mack-Church of St. Thomas, Toronto. During the last year Mr. Macklem has studied extensively under M. Coue, at Nancy, France, and he has returned to his former residence in this fruit-growing town, intending to make it the centre for Coueism, in Canada.

Using methods identical with those of the French healer, Mr. Macklem has opened a clinic of applied psychology there. There have been but four meetings of this clinic, but already patients have come to him from all sections of the district, from Hamilton, even from Toronto, and he has had letters from Quebec asking information about Coueism as a road to health.

A "Faith Cure."

This system, as established by M. Coue twenty years ago, is a "faith cure." It hangs on the theory that our mental make-ups embrace the conscious and the unconscious, or what is sometimes called the subconscious. Mr. Coue combines both these latter terms as imagination. The power of this imagination it is claimed, is the means of curing all ills. Before going to sleep at night and after waking, during the day, the patient repeats over and over, "Every day in every way I am getting better and better." When the patient is not thinking of these phrases the imagiantion is working on them, and suggesting them to the conscious mind. Thus the idea of getting better and better is always in the mind of the patient until he finally becomes cured of whatever ill he is afflicted with.

In a clinic the patients are given lectures on the powers of suggestion by a lecturer, who questions them as to their ailments, ridicules these ills, brands them as the result of a warped imagination and then injecting a little auto suggestion, sends them all away to work it out for themselves. And thus it is that M. Coue feels that he should not take any fees for his services, He deserves no rewards. The patient is the one who is responsible for a cure, for it is completed within the self.

In connection with the Coue clinic at Nancy there is the Lorraine Association of Applied Physchology. It is a policy of M. Coue's that if any of his cured patients insist on paying

Suggests a Cure For Unemployed

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Lieut.-Col. L. C. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, in Manchester yesterday, said a better distribution of population of the Empire was a key to the solution of all economic, serial and Imperial problems which had been aggravated ten-fold by the war. It would be a vital mistake, in his opinion, to say that Empire migration was the immediate cure for unemployment, but the prevention of unemployment in future would find its greatest asset in the development of the population of the Empire.

BROKEN HEARTS ARE YET KNOWN

Human Nature is Unchanged Even in This Cynic Age.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Cynics scoff at the sentiments of lovers, the swearing of everlasting fidelity, the "yours for eternity," and that kind of thing. No doubt they have some cause. The history of life and love proves the hollowness of many lovers' vows ,writes Alfred Edye in the London Mail.

Young people of to-day, it is said, do not usually express themselves in extravagant terms. They take each other "for better or for worse," without much ardent protestation on a practical basis.

It may seem so. But, however much the language of love may have altered, the sentiment is there all the same. Human nature has not changed. Hearts can still be broken.

The love emotion is not dependent upon verbal expression. Those who say the least — deep, quiet silent souls—may feel the most.

Love Still Sacred.

There are many to-day, as there have been always, to whom love is the symbol of a sacred thing. When they love they love with the utmost capacity of their whole being.

It is all or nothing with them. There are no half measures. They stake everything on the hazard of their passion.

The philanders who flit from flower to flower, those who fall in and out of love at frequent intervals, and those who regard love as a kind of game, cannot understand this type of character.

The tragic lover is often regarded as a figure of fun. But only those who have never experienced "the real thing" will laugh at him.

Hostages to Fortune.

To love intensely is to give a hostage to fortune, to lay oneself open to the possibility of pain. The sufferings of the lover whose idol has been shattered, whose beloved has proved false ,are more poignant than any physical pain or other mental anguish. Unreunited love is hard to bear, but broken faith and lost illusions are irreparable.

"'Tis an awkward thing to play with souls," and men and women who are inclined to enter upon love affairse lightly should remember always the element of tragedy that lurks in all great passion. What was meant to be a comedy may culminate in great tragedy.

"Unless you can die when the dream is past—

"O, never call it loving!"

Men have killed themselves for love. But women are the greatest sufferers.

How many, I wonder, have actually died for love? Not always violently and suddenly, but perhaps just fading and pining away.

There is no cure for the broken heart. And the most pitiful cases of all are those who go on living when their zest for life is gone and all that made it worth while has perished irrevocably.

KLONDIKE BABY ROMANCE TOLD FROM ALASKA

Live Infant Found 25 Years Ago Beside Bodies of Four Adults in Snow Drift.

PARENTS DEAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Something like twenty-five years ago a lonely trapper burrowed beneath the drifts of snow along the Chilkoot pass in the heart of Alaska and salvaged a tiny bundle of humanity—a live baby By its side lay the bodies of four persons, three men and a woman, who had given their heavier clothing that the baby might live.

And now a young man known as David Schmidt "somewhere in his twenties", as come from those barren wastes of the Klondike to take up his place in the world. He entered this semester in the University of California at Berkeley and for the first time the story of the mystery surrounding his origin has been given to the world.

It reads like fiction.

For some days in that late Alaskan summer twenty odd years ago a snow storm had raged. Along with the snow came biting winds from the north and the mercury dropped precipitately. In a solitary cabin near the pass 150 miles from Dawson, that gateway to the cold, bleak country a fur trapper named Schmidt browsed in a few books that he had carried "in" and waited for the storm to abate that he might venture forth to care for his traps. After many days the fury of the storm lashed out and Schmidt left his cabin warmth.

Found the Bodies

Not many yards from his hut he paused. Near the trial, drifted deep with snow, were several snow clad hummocks of peculiar shape. Schmidt paused, brushed the snow aside from one of them,and stood erect, startled, It was a human body. Quickly the trapper plunged into the other three heaps—each proved to be a human body, frozen. One was that of a beautiful young woman. All were lightly clad. No one was wrapped in the furs or skin coats usually carried by travellers who dared the pass.

Schmidt stopped to examine the fifth hummock. It proved to be a huge bundle of furs, overcoats and-blankets. Apparently the entire warmth-giving clothing of the outfit had been piled there layer on layer and the trapper wondered why the three men and woman had chosen death when they had coats and blankets to protect them from the icy winds.

While he wondered he worked. In the midst of the big bundle Schmidt came upon a lively baby boy, warm and snuggly and sound asleep. The coverings had been so arranged as to leave a tiny opening for air.

Baby of the Klondike

Schmidt picked the baby up with some of its trappings and hurried back to his cabin. There being no milk, a hurried preparation of bear meat broth supplied the infant nourishment when it awoke.

And thus "David Schmidt" came into the world—a baby of the Klondike.

From that day until the young man arrived in Berkeley to enter the engineering department of the University of California, the story is one of devotion and saacrifice on the part of the fur trapper.

None of the four bodies supplied a clew for identification of the child The trapper buried them as best he could and then turned to the development of the boy. Through the long years he taught him as best he could versed him n the ways of the wilderness and of the outside world as well Maybe a woman could have done these things more efficiently, but no woman could have done them more affectionately.

Left the Klondike

Last year however, Schmidt's knowledge ran out. He had taught the youth everything he knew and plans were made for a better education. Dave picked the nearest large institution, the University of California, and so it came that before the winter drifts piled high again the boy sailed away to San Francisco.

Now he is earning his way through school by four or five jobs gleaned from the campus, because money is scarte in the back country, and has taken his place in school life. Foot ball experts have already begun to look with admiration upon his well developed form, and it is rumored that he will be drafted to join Berkeley's varsity squad.

ANOTHER BOOK TELLS HOW WAR WAS WON

This Time Two Authors Combine to Tell the Long Suffering Public Just Who Won the War —Haig is the Hero This Time

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Another book telling just who won the war is off the press. But this one by George A. B. Dewar and Lieut. Col. B. Oraston, entitled "Sir Douglas Haig's Command," is of especial interest to the British public, because it makes astonishing statement that it was Haig, and not Foch, who planned the counter offensive which ended the war. It is stated that Haig rejected Foch's plan of attacking on the Roye-Chaulnes line and submitted a different plan which Foch accepted after a heated debate, and which was for a drive on the Hindenburg line. When the attack succeeded, Foch adopted all Haig's proposals and thereby the war was won.

Seeks Position as 'Professional Executioner' Offers Attractive Rate for Jobs at Sing Sing

TRENTON, N.J., Nov. 30.—This city boasts of a man, employed as a night watchman here, who seeks to make a living as an executioner on a "cut-rate" basis and who will go anywhere in the United States if he gets a "case". His fee varies from $175 in nearby States to $200 and "expenses" further away.

This became known today through a letter written by William S. Gilbert 43, of 106 Fountain avenue, to Circuit Judge Hartwell presiding at the trial of the five men charged with murder in connection with the Herrin mine killings, in which he requests the appointment of hangman should the five men be sentenced to death.

Gilbert was not at home here this evening, but his wife admitted her husband had not only written to Judge Hartwell; but also has sent communications to virtually all sheriffs and wardens in the country offering his services as executioner regardless of methods that prevail in the particular State.

Mrs. Gilbert admitted her husband had written to the warden of Sing Sing prison offering a "particularly attractive reduction in rate." According to Mrs. Gilbert her husband fixed a rate of $175 for 'either a single or double execution in Sing Sing, whereas in West Virginia his price is $175 to $180 for a single job. This was explained by her husband, she said, "because there are so many in New York it would pay to do the job cheaper than elsewhere.")

"My husband, so far as I know, has never executed anyone, but he has made a study of electrical switch boards and knows their workings thoroughly," said Mrs. Gilbert. She added that her husband has constructed a double, portable scaffold.

"My husband has a living to make,' she said, "and would rather make it this way than by working for from thirty-five to forty cents an hour for capitalists."

PROPOSES RE-UNION OF THE TWO WINGS.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—H. H. Asquith has written a letter to the Right Hon. George Lambert, a prominent Liberal member of the House of Commons, regarding a proposed re-union of the two wings of the Liberal party, in which he states that he regards the "United Liberal party pursuing a liberal policy on liberal lines as vital necessity to the state. I have never placed and never shall place, obstacles in the way of its achievement."

KU KLUX KLAN GOING INTO BRITISH COLUMBIA

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 30.—(Special.)—Ku Klux Klan invades British Columbia; seeks recruits in Cranbrook. May aim to stop liquor smuggling.

DOGS FIND SLEDDING HARD IN SOUTH-END.

Another case of dog poisoning occurred last night when the water spaniel belonging to Wm. Henry, 12 Brown street, and a Pomeranian belonging to Mr. Stewart, of Brownton, were poisoned. Dr. Thomas Johnston declared that the two dogs were killed by a dose of strychnine.

This makes the second case of dog poisoning in that district, the other two occurred some days ago when the northern mail carrier dog of Mr. Martin was poisoned .

Means are being taken to find the guilty party or parties and bring this practice to a stop at once.

SEVENTEEN DROWNED.

ROME, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.)— A violent storm raged in the Adriatic Sea yesterday. A large fishing vessel capsized and was driven ashore at San Benedetto Del Tronto. Seventeen of the fishermen were drowned .Another fishing boat is missing.

SAY LAWYERS VULTURES OF CAN. SOCIETY

Members of Toronto Bar Resent Magistrate Paterson's Reference to Them as Scavengers.

CREATES A STIR

TORONTO, Nov. 30— (Special) —Dr. Margaret Patterson's descriptions of lawyers as scavengers and vultures, has met with much adverse comment in legal circles.

It was felt that it was scarcely a pretty dish to set before a king's counsel and that Portia might at least temper truth with politeness and without temper.

"I think that her remarks are ill advised and inappropriate for a wom an occupying the position she does", said Mr. Austin Ross. "The members of the profession feel that it is a gratuitous insult without the least foundation. It is feminine spitefulness like the verbal revenge of an amateur lawyer.'

Mr. R. H. Greer took a very light-hearted view of the affair. "She didn't hit me at all,' he laughed "and I'm not worrying about the other fellow. Anyway we're all well able to take care of ourselves."

It seems that no amount of feminine upbraiding can disturb Mr. Greer's composure.

Pressed to give an opinion on the propriety of the Magistrate's conduct, "he wasn't speaking judicially,' he said and let it go at that.)

ANNIVERSARY OF SHOP OF PRIMEAU

Local Fashion Craft Store Celebrates Fourth Anniversary Under Jack Primeau.

The fourth anniversary of the taking over of the local shop of Fashion Craft by Jack Primeau is now being celebrated, and as usual the occasion is marked by a great anniversary sale.

Under the management of Mr. Primeau the store has been completely remodelled, until to-day it is a fifth avenue store with Hunter street prices. The stock equals that of any big city store in quality and exclusiveness.

Recently a shoe department has been added, making possible the boast, that now this shop can outfit a man from head to foot.

The Shop of Fashion Craft has built up a reputation for quality and exclusiveness in clothing, haberdashery and shoes among the men of Peterborough, and this season its stock is larger and more attractive than ever.

On another page of this issue appears an announcement of the Fourth Anniversary Sale of this store containing unusual bargains in men's wear particularly designed for the Christmas trade.

DELEGATES REPRESENT FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS

Will Meet Peterborough's Industrial and Business Heads.

A. B. Cunningham of the local Prohibition association, has received word from the Executive of the World's League against Alcoholism that the delegates from this league who are to visit Peterborough, commencing Sunday next will include several representatives of foreign governments. Their main objective is to inspect the industrial and commercial situation here, as affected by prohibition, and they will be consequently brought into touch with local industrial and business heads.

Fashion in Paris Once Again Raids French Barnyards

PARIS, Nov. 30.—(Associated Press)—Fashion, in her ever insistent search for novelty, again has invaded the barnyard. Rooster feathers have come back. They are the latest thing on smart Paris hats, and even on evening gowns. All colors are used, and when the rooster can't supply the shade, the dyer does. However, natural black and white are the most popular colors.

Rooster feathers probably are about as cheap a material as can be found, but their use on chic hats has not lowered the price of bonnets. One litte hat shop is displaying these "simple but smart" things at 750 francs, while other stores ask 500 and 600 francs.

WON'T NAME BOY'S FATHER

But Miss Jordan and Son Permitted to Land in New York.

NEW YORK, November 30. — Nancy Jordan, the young Englishwoman who arived a week ago with her three year old son Francis, and who was detained by the Immigration officials as an unmarried mother will be admitted to the United States when a bond of $500 cash for herself and her son has been deposited at Ellis Island. Assistant Commissioner of Immigration Harry R. Landis said that the board of special enquiry had decided to admit the mother and child but he did not know whether Mrs. Frank G. Warren, who was on her way from Kansas City to provide the bonds.

When questioned by the reporters at Ellis Island, Miss Jordan said she was unaware of a divorce between Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Warren of Kansas City, who had interested themselves in her case.

"Mrs. Warren wrote me before I sailed," she said, "that she would likely meet me in New York, and it was through her kindness that I had the money for myself and the boy to pay the fare across the Atlantic."

"Do you know the reason for the divorce between the Warrens?" she was asked.

"I do not know of the particulars, though I wish it well understood that my situation has nothing to do with the matter. I have never seen Mrs. Warren and the arrangement for me to bring Francis to the United States was done by way of letter."

When attention was called to the plain gold ring that she was wearing Miss Jordan replied that it was just to protect her little boy. "I think of him first and last," she said. "As for myself it is inconsequential. One must pay for everything and I must pay. I want to have my boy adopted by good people. I want him to have a chance."

Miss Jordan offered no explanation of the parentage of her son except that he was born three years ago while she was in her twenty-first year. "He is my child and no less than if it had been different," she said.

When asked about the report that Mr. and Mrs. Warren would adopt the child, the young woman said: "I never mentioned Mr. Warren whatever. I only mentioned Mrs. Warren, and hope that she may come here when the case goes to Washington for consideration."

Commissioner Robert E. Tod said the first intimation the Immigration Department at Ellis Island had that Mr. and Mrs. Warren had been divorced was from the despatches printed in the morning papers. "We were advised of the case at the time of Miss Jordan's sailing from England," he said. Commissioner Tod, when asked if the matter of Miss Jordan and her son's entry would be solved if Miss Jordan were to marry an American, replied that that was a phase of the matter he did not care to speculate upon, as a case not very dissimilar had turned out embarrassing to the government several years ago.

THE WEATHER

November is nearing its close. It has proved to be a milder and less-wintry month than many of its predecessors. There has been a little snow but an absence of severe cold. In many respects it has been much like that of November last year. To-day is a duplicate of the same day a year ago. Two years ago at this date there was good sleighing, a heavy fall of snow having occurred about the middle of the month. The month of last year was unusually mild, a little snow [illegible] no low temperatures.—W.P.

DISCOVER PLOT ISOLATE DUBLIN BY IRREGULARS

Assistant Director of Engineering is Ordered to Speed Up Wholesale Destruction Plans.

BLOCK RAILWAYS

DUBLIN, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Defence Minister Mulcahy has informed the Dail Eireann of the capture from irregulars of a document containing instructions from the Republican "Assistant Director of Engineering," ordering a "speeding up of all destruction plans," and outlining a scheme for the wholesale blocking of railways, roads and canals. The plans provide that stations shall be burned, lines torn up, roads blocked, bridges blown up and wires cut. This campaign is to be continued for six weeks, during which it is intended that Dublin shall be isolated.

The Minister added: "The document continues by giving details regarding the way in which the demolition is to be accomplished, and says trams can be blocked in a number of ways, but care must be taken to avoid loss of life."

THREE EXECUTED.

The three men executed to-day were John Murphy, Joseph Scooer and Patrick Farrell. All were arrested during the night attack on the Oriel House, headquarters of the Government's Investigation Department.

ARREST YOUTH WANTED HERE

But Belleville Has Prior Claim on William Edwards—A Clever Thief

The local police were informed this morning of the arrest in Sherbrooke, Que., of William Edwards, the sixteen-year-old Marchmont Home boy who broke into the G.T.R. Station and a private residence at Omemee last Monday. The Marchmont Home is an organization similar to the Barnardo Home. Edwards was brought out from Liverpool as one of their wards last summer, and went to work with John McIntosh of North Monaghan, from whom he stole $60 and immediately disappeared, turning up with a farmer named Wilson near Ida.

He was taken back to Belleville, and the Marchmont Home authorities there made restitution of the stolen money. While an inmate of the Home he made his way from the dormitory undetected, went down town and "jimmied" a store, making a haul of $160, and the next night he worked on a garage. Latterly he was traced through Millbrook and up to Omemee, where last Sunday he forced an entrance into the station, helped himself to tickets, and stole silverware from a house. Monday morning of this week he was found sleeping on a verandah with the "swag" beside him. The town constable arrested him and put him on the morning train in charge of the conductor for transportation to Peterborough.

Arriving here, the conductor called up the police station, and when Constable Thomas responded he met the conductor on the station platform. The boy had been left unwatched in the waiting-room, and when the conductor returned to the room with P. C. Thomas there was no trace of this youthful and artful dodger.

Edwards had made good his escape. The police combed the town for him, but the only information they turned up was a story that some G.T.R. official had told him the police were looking for him. Today's news tells of his arrest below Montreal. He will likely be brought back to Belleville for eventual deportation.

TO-DAY'S BLUNDER CORRECTED

The postmaster says, all mail with the stamp in the proper place, in the upper right-hand corner, is postmarked by machinery. If the stamp is too low, or is on another part of the envelope, it is necessary to withdraw it from the regular mails for hand stamping, which results in delay. If the address is too near the stamp, a part of it is obscured by the postmark.

The abbreviation of State names should be avoided. Pa., Ia., and La. frequently look very much alike when written. It is hard to distinguish between Me., Mo., Md. and Ind. It is almost impossible to tell the difference between Cal. and Col. as abbreviations for California and Colorado; Calif. and Colo. are safer.

PRICE THREE CENTS — PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1922 — PRICE THREE CENTS

IRELAND WILL NOT BE RUN BY NEUROTIC WOMEN AND MEGALOMANIAC MEN SAYS KEVIN O'HIGGINS IN DEFENDING ACTIONS

Executions Were Result of Test of Supremacy of the People's Will Over Armed Minorities.

A QUICK TRIAL.

DUBLIN, November 30 (Canadian Press), — The execution of Erskine Childers caused further acrimonious scenes in the Dail Eireann yesterday when it came under discussion. Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Home Affairs, declared that Ireland was not at a stage where neurotic women or megalomaniac men would be allowed to cut capers. If the nation was to live, many men might have to die, even at seven o'clock in the morning. He provoked a bitter scene by accusing the Labour leaders of approving the Republican campaign.

The Labourite, Johnson, angrily repudiated the charge, and retorted that the Ministry was taking the attitude the Irregulars had adopted that men must die for the nation.

Resuming, Mr. O'Higgins asserted that the test was the supremacy of the people's will over armed minorities. The Government, he declared, would leave nothing undone to shock the public conscience into recognising the enormity of the crimes now occurring in Ireland.

Dr. Patrick McCartan, former Sinn Fein representative in the United States, denounced the execution of Childers, who, he said, was a patriot of the type that redeemed England, and his personal prejudice against him was blotted out by the bullets of his executioners. The Government had no mandate from the people for civil war, and they and the Irregulars were equally to blame. The execution of Childers, he said, was the murder of a prisoner of war; the Irregulars had the same rights as the Republicans had when the English were in Ireland.

Prof. John McNeil, Minister of Education, said he and all the other members were under sentence of death by the men complaining that this Parliament had been set up by the British Government; yet the men who issued these sentences of death had no authority from the people. He could testify that Childers was honest and honourable, but, he added, diseased conditions sometimes made it necessary to amputate. He agreed that force was no remedy, but adjured the Republicans to abandon force, and the whole trouble would be settled.

Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence, replying to all the criticisms of the Army, explained the estimates in detail. He said that 85 per cent. of the Army uniforms were of Irish manufacture. Field pieces and other supplies were purchased from the British, as the most economic way, and not paid for, but would form part of the financial adjustment between the two countries. The Army numbered 30,000, and cost approximately $240.00 a year per man. He contended that the Army had been successful in a difficult situation, and had saved the treaty.

He explained that Childers before his execution had asked for two Roman Catholic priests, but not as chaplains, and he was allowed chaplains of his own faith. With regard to executions, he said that the men were executed because they were part of a scheme which would destroy the national life, and it was impossible to discriminate between the leaders and the rank and file.

It was unfair and unreasonable to contend that men were being put to death for the possession of arms; these people, said the Minister, were executed because they were a part of the whole scheme of destruction.

If the country were in a different stage of organisation, it might be possible to make the trial of such people more elaborate matters, he continued, "but we do not propose when we get men in ambush or destroying things which are the life of the country, to find out who they are before we deal with them."

Mr. Mulcahy also announced that the Government was working at a scheme under which every prisoner at present held would be passed in review, and if it was possible to release men from the internment camps they would be released in the near future.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities, and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odour, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street, W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $400 per month.

CALGARY, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press)—Pearl Lawson aged 9, whose father Constable S. O. She testified that she did not see the man shoot nor did she see who fired the last shot when er father fell.

Attorney Thinks Good People Don't Want Prohibition

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Prohibition is not wanted in Tulsa, declared Prosecuting Attorney W. F. Seaver, yesterday, in explaining why he has ordered a wholesale dismissal of liquor cases in the County Court.

"People don't want prohibition and I am not going to force anything down their throats that they don't want," Seaver emphatically stated.

"It isn't the bootleggers and moonshiners that care so much, but the 'good' people of the community who are putting up every impediment in the path of honest officials. I have lived 74 years and I have just concluded after two years in the County Attorney's office that the people want liquor and that there is no use tryng to force prohibition on them."

IRISH BILLS HAVE PASSED THE HOUSE

Had Third Reading Yesterday and Were Sent to the House of Lords—No Difficulties Expected.

LONDON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — The Irish Bills unanimously passed their third reading in the House of Commons yesterday, and were sent without amendment to the House of Lords, where no difficulties are expected. The remaining stages will be concluded this week, and the Bills will be law well before 6th December, the last day allowed, according to special provisions.

The debate in the Commons yesterday was again tame, and there was only a small attendance of the members. ohn Robert Clynes associated the Labour Party with the final stages of this legislation, which, he said, offered England an opportunity of atonement to Ireland, and, like many other members, he appealed to the leaders in both the north and south to bury the hatchet and work for unity.

The only Government spokesman was Douglas Hogg, the Attorney-General, who expressed confidence that the Free State Government would loyally carry out the treaty, which would expunge the memories of the past on both sides. He did not wish to discuss unity in Ireland, merely saying that if unity was desired by both parties, it would come much better without either party being preached at from this country or any pressure being exerted. The British Government looked to the future with great hopes.

GERMANS WAGE BATTLE AGAINST SMUGGLERS

Fresh Instances of Ingenuity Are Brought to Light Every Day.

DRESDEN, Nov. 30.—(Associated Press)—Fresh instances of ingenuity are brought to light daily in the battle of wits which Germany's border officials are waging against smugglers.

On the Bohemian line the authorities operated for a time on the principle that every German coat has, or should have, a German lining. They previously had lost much time in arguing with travelers as to whether or not the clothing in their possession at departure had been brought in with them, or was of material newly acquired in Germany. These discussions were obviated finally by stamping the linings of all articles of clothing at the time of entry into the country.

Smugglers were not slow to vitiate this means of indentification. They had double linings put into their old wearing apparel. After the top one had been stamped, it was used for any new article of clothing later purchased in Germany. When the officials detected this circumvention of their scheme, the stamping was abandoned. Instead, expert German tailors are now engaged on the customs staffs to examine all clothing and establish its place of origin.

LIBERAL PARTIES MAY REUNITE IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Question of Leadership Seems to Be the Only Difficulty in the Way Now.

STRENGTHEN LAW.

LONDON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — The possibility of re-uniting the two wings of the Liberal Party is developing in a practical direction more quickly than had been expected. The only real difficulty seems to be the question of leadership, and this may turn out to be a stumbling block.

Both Lloyd-George and Mr. Asquith, through indirect channels, have sent out statements intimating their willingness to sink personal questions. One such statement credits Lloyd-George with willingness to serve under Mr. Asquith, but adds the qualifying proviso, "if the united parties desire it."

Lloyd-George's own view is said to be that it would be advisable to leave the question of leadership in abeyance for a time. He met a large group of Liberal peers yesterday, and discussed the subject in all its aspects. As an outcome a meeting of all the Liberal peers will be held in the House of Lords to-day to consider the subject further.

Should unity become accomplished, it will have the important result of having men like Lord Birkenhead, Mr. Chamberlain, and Sir Robert S. Horne, who accompanied Lloyd-George into the wilderness, returning to the Conservative fold, to the great benefit of Bonar Law's Government, which is notably lacking in debating power.

PLEASANT SOCIAL HELD, BAILIEBORO.

An Evening With the Epworth Leaguers Well Spent--News Paragraphs

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 30.—A very interesting meeting was held by the Epworth League on Tuesday evening. The occasion was under the direction of the 4th Vice-President, Citizenship Department, and was taken by Rev. R. M. Patterson.

Rev. Baird, pastor of the Port Hope Methodist church, and Elwood Brown, of Port Hope, were present, Mr. Brown giving an illustrated talk on the winter school, which will be held in Cobourg in the month of January. He showed various picture slides of last year's school at that place, at which the Bailieboro Epworth League was represented.

Rev. Baird gave an illustrated talk on the Pilgrim's Progress, which was much enjoyed. During the story, Rev. Patterson rendered that well known hymn, "The Holy City," and pictures illustrating that beautiful solo were thrown on the screen.

A nominal fee of fifteen cents for adults and ten cents for children was charged and quite a nice sum realized.

After the meeting, Mrs. Bateson very kindly offered her home to serve lunch and entertain the visitors. The offer was gladly accepted and a very enjoyable evening spent.

The death occurred on Wednesday morning of Mabel Johnston, beloved wife of Victor Morton, of Hope township, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Morton leaves to mourn her loss her husband and two small daughters, Berdina and Dorothy, besides her mother, Mrs. Jas. Johnston and her sister, Irene, both of this village. Her father predeceased her several years ago.

Figures Show More Women Are Leaving U.S. Farms Than Men

WASHINGTON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Larger numbers of women than of men are leaving the farms of the United States in search of more lucrative fields of endeavour, the Census Bureau says, basing its statement on an analysis of the 1920 census statistics.

The enumeration shows the ratio of males to females was higher for farm population than for the total population, despite the fact that the foreign-born element, in which the males considerably outnumber the females, is found mainly in the cities.

The sex ratio of farm population on 1st July, 1920, was 109.1 males to 100 females, while the ratio for the entire population was 104 males to 100 females.

VOCABULARY NEEDED.

SALEM, Orgeon, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Teachers should have a vocabulary of between 1,500 and 4,000 words. The professional men should have from 1,500 to 3,000 words, while the ditch-digger may get along with 300 words. This was told to a teachers' institute here by Dr. Carl G. Carroll, President of Williamette University.

Russians Refused Conference Request

LAUSANNE, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press)—The Russian delegation tonight received a communication from the Near East Conference, rejecting the Russian request to be allowed participation in the discussion of all questions before that body without being limited to the Straits problem.

France, Great Britain and Italy are unanimous in standing by the Poincare note inviting the Russians to participate only in the discussion af the Straits.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.) — Whether investigation of the Hall-Mills murder case is to be pushed along new lines or the inquiry to be dropped, hung yesterday on a conference which Attorny-General Thomas F. McCrann has indicated he will hold with Special Deputy Attorney General Wilber A. Mott. Tuesday Mott mailed to obtain from the Somerset County Grand Jury in Somerville indictment of three persons whom the State indicated it believed responsible for the shooting of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills approximately ten weeks ago.

FRIENDS FEAR FOR SAFETY OF PRINCE ANDREW OF GREECE

Was Arrested on Island of Corfu and Is Now Held in Athens Under Strong Guard.

FEAR EXECUTION.

LAUSANNE, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Friends here of Prince Andrew of Greece, brother of former King Constantine, yesterday voiced anxiety as to his fate in view of the revolutionary Government's execution of the six former Cabinet officials and army officers yesterday.

Prince Andrew was arrested recently on the island of Corfu where he had taken refuge, and was removed to Athens for trial, charged with disobeying the orders of the General Staff while at the head of a division in Asia Minor during the conflict with the Turks.

Andrew is interned at Athens under heavy guard, and is not even allowed to receive food sent by his European friends because of the suspicion that he might in this manner receive secret messages.

Prince Christopher, husband of the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, was given a week in which to return to Greece and settle his personal affairs. He had planned to land at Corfu on the return trip to visit Prince Andrew, but abandoned this intention because of his fear that the Revolutionary Committee might have changed its decision in the meantime and arrest him.

WILL LOSE MONEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press).—All the money that is invested in Turkey in the next 25 years is going to be lost, Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, declared last night in an address at a dinner of the Associatioin of Foreign Press Correspondents.

"I am amused that concessions are wanted in Turkey," he said. "It is an unsafe country to put money into. You might as well throw it in the river. All the money that is put into Turkey in the next 25 or 30 years is going to be lost, and we don't want an open door in Turkey."

HAMILTON'S EXAMPLE.

The promptness with which the City Council of Hamilton has dealt with the Northern Ontario fire relief question is in marked contrast to the hesitancy shown by the local aldermen.

The Hamilton Council has passed a grant of $46,000, which, with the $14,000 already raised by voluntary subscriptions, brings the quota of the Ambitious City to the required one-half mill on the city's total assessment.

Mayor Coppley declared that it was the duty of every municipality to give from a humanitarian point of view.

That seems the logical way to look at this question.

Northern Ontario requires a million dollars to re-establish and take care of her thousands of citizens who were left homeless and destitute.

Municipal representatives who saw the conditions for themselves agreed as to the urgency of the call and adopted the plan that the money should be raised by the municipalities.

That being the case, what is the use of the local Council sitting around to wait for the Ontario Government to do what the Premier has already said that it had no intention of doing?

Peterborough is expected to raise a sum equal to a half mill on the assessment, and it might as well be raised in the only business-like, equitable and speedy way that suggests itself.

Hamilton has shown the way

Let us wipe off this obligation by distributing the burden fairly over the whole community.

When winter is at the door there is no time to be lost in discussing ways and means.

"YOU MAY MEET A FOOL."

A slogan that is being used to good effect in the United States to stop reckless driving of motor cars, and that should also be given wide publicity on this side of the line, is "Drive slowly. You may meet a fool."

There is a sting to that advice that drives it home.

Nobody likes to be called a fool, and once many of the drivers who have been careless about how they handle their cars realize that reckless driving is regarded as the height of folly, they may possibly decide that in their case at least the classification "fool" will henceforth be a misnomer.

"Drive slowly. You may meet a fool."

It usually takes two to make an accident, and the slogan merely draws attention to that fact and suggests the thought that it is necessary to be doubly careful to make up for the recklessness of the other fellow.

There are drivers who consider themselves experts, and in the ordinary conception of that word they are, who nevertheless put themselves in the same class as the fool at the wheel simply because they are stubborn enough to insist on their rights when insistence is inviting accident.

Men in this class hold their share of the road, regardless of the fact that an approaching car is appropriating more than its share.

They expect the other fellow to turn out, and usually he does.

But if he doesn't there are head lines in the newspapers.

Similarly such men, knowing they have the right-of-way at a street intersection, hold on their course, regardless of what may develop.

They are safe from an action for damages perhaps, but that is poor protection if the other driver happens to be a fool too.

"Drive slowly, you may meet a fool," is a motto that every motor car driver should have posted somewhere in his car where he can see it frequently.

THE SEASON OF UNEMPLOYMENT.

While there is reason to hope that unemployment will not present as serious a problem in Peterborough this winter as it has for the past two years, there is bound to be a certain amount of distress from this cause.

Like other industrial centres, Peterborough has an influx of workless individuals at this time of the year who come in from the smaller communities in the hope either of securing work or of participating in any relief scheme that may be in operation.

While there is no desire of suggesting inhospitality to the stranger within our gates, it nevertheless might be well to have it made known that Peterborough is in no shape at the present time to furnish either jobs or relief doles to those who have been unsuccessful in securing them elsewhere.

We will have quite enough to do to look after our own people who may find themselves out of work when the closing in of winter has to a great extent cut off outdoor employment.

It must be remembered that the wages for unskilled labor have not been high during the past few months, and that even the most provident of workers has had trouble in putting by a nest egg for the period of enforced idleness.

There will necessarily be cases of suffering which cannot be ignored, and it would seem to be a wise procedure to let it be circulated that Peterborough does not propose to add to their numbers by taking in the workless of the whole district. At the same time there are able-bodied single men with no family obligations to interfere with them, who prefer idling in the city to taking jobs that are open in the lumber camps. They should be told emphatically that Peterborough does not propose to take care of them during the winter and made to understand that it would be wisdom for them to take the work that is offered or go somewhere else where the relief system may offer better pickings.

It Pays To Advertise

THE COLLAPSE OF BRITISH AGRICULTURE.

The excitements of the week have been political, in England; but the most important news has been the announcement that practically all British farmers have had a bad year.

There will be no "Harvest Home Festivals" in England this month. There will be no autumnal rejoicing.

The tale of the British farmer for 1922 is the tale of "Casey at the Bat." He has struck out.

There are 135 bankruptcies among farmers in the first half of this year; and at present there is a general condition of insolvency in nearly all farming districts.

Thousands of new owners, who bought their farms in the prosperous years after the war, have paid one instalment and can pay no more. They are now in the hands of their banks.

The cheapest bargains in Britain, at the moment, are the large landed estates. These are now being sold and broken up into small holdings.

It is no longer true to say that English land is owned by a thousand families. It has passed largely into the hands of actual farmers, and today all landowners alike—big and little—are involved in a common disaster.

For this disaster, nature is not to blame. True, there has been a wet chilly summer; but most crops have been unusually good.

The potato crop of England and Wales has been 3,860,000 tons. This is 25 per cent. more than last year. But for some unaccountable reason, there was a sudden fall in the price of potatoes.

The cost of growing potatoes in England is $25 per ton, and the price last month fell as low as $4 per ton. One eight-acre field of potatoes was sold by a discouraged farmer for $25; and it contained a crop of fully forty tons.

There was a record-breaking plum crop, and the price fell to four cents a pound. This is less than the cost of picking and shipping.

As for wheat and oats, they are very little above 1914 prices. Wheat is 3 per cent. up; oats is 9 per cent., and barley is 30 per cent.; while the general cost of living is up 80 per cent. The margin of profits is entirely wiped out.

One Norfolk farmer told me that in 60 years' experience, he had never known so bad a year. Another farmer, with 150 acres, said he had lost $2,500 on the year's work; and a third said that his costs, on a large mixed farm, had risen to $160 per acre.

As to the causes for the slump in farm profits, the first is undoubtedly high taxation. "If the present rate of estate duty is not reduced," says Lord Bledisloe, "no large estate can hold itself together for more than two generations."

Local taxes average four times as much as in 1914, as the squandering of the cities has been duplicated by the farming districts.

The next most universal cause of loss has been high wages, coupled with low production. Labor is about 50 per cent. dearer and 50 per cent. slower.

In 1914, the pay of farm workers averaged $4 a week, while at present it is $6 a week. This is for a 48-hour week.

In many districts, there is only a 39-hour week, as the workers begin at 8 a.m. and stop at 4 a.m., with an hour off for luncheon; and they stop work at noon on Saturdays. The labor cost of working land is now about $60 per acre, which is as much as the total cost in 1913.

Other expenses, too, are crippling the farmers. In 1914 it cost 75 cents to line a horse-collar; today it costs $1.50. Horse-shoes were 14 cents apiece; now they are 50 cents. A set of harness was $12; now it is $20.

As one farmer said: "You cannot buy linseed cake at $70 a ton with wheat at $40 a ton; nor thresh cheap wheat with a threshing-machine that cost $2,200; nor transport potatoes, at $10 a ton, with a wagon that cost $200."

The high railroad rates have added to the farmers' costs; and the fall in slipping rates has brought in a flood of foreign foodstuffs. A bushel of wheat can now be sent from New York to Liverpool or very little more than the rate from Liverpool to London—a short haul of 200 miles.

The collapse of so many foreign markets has brought a great deal of farm produce to England. In almost every English grocery, you can buy butter from Denmark, tomatoes from Holland, flour from the United States and dried eggs from China.

As yet, the farmers have no plan of self-protection and no national leader. They have no bloc in Parliament and no political cohesion of any sort.

There are two large associations of farmers, but these have not yet risen to be of any noticeable strength in the direction of national affairs.

Many farmers want state credit facilities. Others are advocating co-operative buying and selling; organized collection of farm produce and the building of central dairies and bacon factories.

They agree, as usual, in denouncing the middleman, although possibly they need more middlemen instead of less, to steady the market, prevent slumps and to secure a wider distribution of products.—Herbert N. Casson in Barron's.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Canada will have no welcome either for the Ku Klux or that organization's deadly rival, "The Tiger's Eye."

The Greek method of destroying political rivals is not likely to make many people anxious to hold the reins of power at Athens.

Hon. Mr. Raney declares that the man who could please both the temperance people and the liquor trade is either "an honest-to-goodness wizard or just a common sleight-of-hand mountebank." The Attorney-General fogrets that the vast majority of citizens in Ontario cannot be classed either as "the temperance people" or "the liquor trade."

Hon. Howard Ferguson's opinion of the Ontario Government's road scheme seems to coincide with the views of members of the County Council on the same subject.

A Labor member of the British House has been ejected for calling members of the Government "dirty dogs." Members of that type do Labor more harm than anything enemies of Labor could say against it.

Evidently the Premier is not wearing a made-in-Peterborough label on that new suit of Canadian tweed the newspapers report him as having added to his wardrobe, for, as one despatch puts it, "the place of manufacture is not divulged."

Wife Tells of Happiness Ruined By Her Husband's Sudden Wealth—Wins Divorce.

DETROIT, Nov. 30.—A romance whch could not withstand prosperity ended in Wayne County Circuit Court when Judge Henry A. Mandell granted Mrs. Mildred Van Cleve a divorce from Paul M. Van Cleve, advertising man and bond salesman.

The Van Cleves were married Aug 4, 1919, and separately July 30, 1922. Mrs. Van Cleve testified that until a year before their separation, they were in moderate circumstances and she worked to aid the family exchequer. Then her husband began to earn $10,000 a year, she said, and their happiness ended abruptly. Van Cleve neglected her, beat her and finally deserted her, she related, leaving her to face an army of creditors. Van Cleve paid her tem porary alimony, with bad checks, she added.

Van Cleve at present is said to be serving a jail sentence for speeding at Orange, N.J. Mrs. Van Cleve was given permission to resume her maiden name, which was Mildred Meeker.

Mrs. Daisy S. Hisey, 5107 Lawton avenue told Judge Mandell that the only time her husband, Walter, ever contributed to his family's support was when she and their six children took money from his pockets while he slept. The Hiseys were married Dec. 5, 1908. She was awarded a divorce and custody of the children.

Harry Ambrose John Stevenson 2916 Warren avenue west obtained a divorce from Mrs. Laura Stevenson, whom he married Sept. 16, 1906 at Lynn, Mass., Stevenson testified that his wife fled from Lynn to Northampton, Eng., in 1915, to escape arrest on a charge of shoplifting and took their two children with her.

The Gents Were Hosts at A.Y.P.A. Regular Meeting—Curling Club Will Meet to Arrange Games.

LAKEFIELD, November 30. — Miss Edna Higgins, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Stanley Higgins, has received the certificate of honour for winning the highest number of points at the Rural School Fair held in Young's Point in September. The certificate will be framed and hung in the school for a year. The little girl is receiving many congratulations on her well deserved success.

Gents Were Hosts.

The gentlemen were the hosts on Monday evening at the A.Y.P.A. regular meeting, and their committee provided a delightful evening, which was spent in games, with progressive euchre as the main feature. Mrs. Sam White won the lady's prize, T. A. Simpson the gentleman's prize, and Miss Ida Webster the consolation prize.

The prizes were extremely pretty and well worth winning.

The supper was unique, and most enjoyable, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the gentlemen by the lady members.

The Curling Club.

The Lakefield Curling Club will meet in the Council Chamber on 15th December, at 8 o'clock, to arrange the schedule of games for the season. Skips will be appointed and the rinks drawn for. Anyone wishing to become a member should notify Mr. Percy Spence, the secretary, as soon as possible.

Last year was a good season, but this season is expected to be even better.

Anniversary Services.

The anniversary services held in the Baptist Church were very successful and well attended. In spite of the bad weather, there was a large crowd at the evening service, many coming over from Gilmour Memorial Church in Smith. Rev. H. P. Bennett, of Campbellford, was the special preacher, and was also kind enough to sing a solo. The musical part of the evening service was in the capable hands of the choir of Gilmour Memorial Church.

On the evening following, a congregational social was held, which was most enjoyable. A good programme was rendered, and a pleasant time spent. Mr. Bennett, who remained in the village for the event, sang a solo, which was much appreciated.

This congregational gathering added the social touch which crowned the anniversary with success.

CANADA NOW THE LAND OF PROMISE.

But Intending Farm Settlers From England With Money Are Not Common.

LONDON, November 30. Canadian Press. — The London newspapers printed the recent immigration pronouncement of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, Canada, giving the details in a fairly full manner, but so far there has been little editorial comment thereon.

The Times remarks that apparently the Canadian Government is going to concentrate on obtaining settlers who have money on which to conduct small farms but among the thousands of men looking from these shores towards Canada as the land of promise the men with training and capital to equip him as a tenant farmer is not particularly common. The recognition of this fact is found in Canada's determination to conduct a propaganda campaign here and also in Holland, Belgium and France.

The strongest pillar of Hon. Mr. Stewart and his colleagues of the Canadian government, the Times says, is the proposal that the Overseas Settlement Board should cooperate in securing the migration of 5000 or 6000 orphans. The Times adds that Mr. Stewart has not minimized the size of the problem confronting him and says that Canada is embarrassed by not having for disposal broad acres of unoccupied Crown lands available, as other still newer Dominions have, where the difficulties in the way of settlement are not so great as are the difficulties where the settler is denied such assistance.

The Dominion of Canada may find however that the responsibilities to the new farmer do not begin and end with helping him to find a farm the Times says, and adds that whatever problems arise Canada is assured of the sympathy and co-operation of the British people.

The Times notes that this is a memorable year for the Dominion of Canada, its record crop, the prospective removal of the cattle embargo, and the return of pre-war prosperity—all making an auspicious season.

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Within two minutes after ROBERT ABLETT, no'er-do-well brother of MARK ABLETT, bachelor proprietor of The Red House, had arrived and been ushered into Mark's office a shot was heard.

ANTONY GILLINGHAM, a friend of BILL BEVERLEY, one of Mark's guests, arrived at that mement to find Mark's companion,

MATT CAYLEY, pounding on the locked door of the office and demanding admittance. The two men entered the office by a window and on the floor found the body of Robert with a bullet through the head. Mark was nowhere to be found. Investigation by Inspector Birch showed that Mark had learned with considerable disgust and annoyance of the coming of Robert. Cayley refused to believe that Mark had deliberately murdered Robert.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

THE housekeeper's room had heard something of the news by this time, and Audrey had had a busy time explaining to other members of the staff exactly what he had said, and what she had said. The details were not quite established yet, but this much at least was certain: that Mr. Mark's brother had shot himself and spirited Mr. Mark away, and that Audrey had seen at once that he was that sort of man when she opened the door to him. Elsie had a contribution of her own to make. She had actually heard Mr. Mark in the office, threatening his brother.

"He said, I heard him say it with my own ears, 'It's my turn now,' he said, triumphant-like."

"Well, if you think that's a threat, dear, you're very particular, I must say."

But Audrey remembered Elsie's words when she was in front of Inspector Birch. She gave her own evidence with the readiness of one who had already repeated it several times.

"Then you didn't see Mr. Mark at all?"

"No, sir; he must have come in before and gone up to his room."

"Well, I think that's all that I want to know. Now what about the other servants?"

"Elsie heard the master and Mr. Robert talking together," said Audrey eagerly. "He was saying—Mr. Mark, I mean—"

"Ah! Who is Elsie, by the way?"

"One of the housemaids. Shall I send her to you, sir?"

"Please."

All that interested Inspector Birch was that Elsie was passing through the hall, and heard voices in the office.

"And stopped to listen?"

"Certainly not," said Elsie with dignity. "I was just passing through the hall, just as you might have been yourself, and not supposing they was talking secrets, didn't think to stop my ears, no doubt I ought to have done." And she sniffed slightly.

"Come, come," said the inspector soothingly. Now then, what was it you heard? Try to remember the exact words."

Something about working in a passage, thought Elsie.

"H'm. Working a passage over—could that have been it?"

"That's right, sir," said Elsie eagerly. "He'd worked his passage over."

"Well?"

"And then Mr. Mark said loudly—sort of triumphant-like—'It's my turn now. You wait.'"

"Triumphantly?"

"As much as to say his chance had come."

"And that's all you heard?"

"That's all, sir—not standing there listening, but just passing through the hall, as it might be any time."

"Yes Well, that's really very important, Elsie. Thank you."

Elsie gave him a smile, and returned eagerly to the kitchen.

Meanwhile Antony had been exploring a little on his own. There was a point which was puzzling him. He went through the hall to the front of the house and stood at the open door. He and Cayley had run round the house to the left. Surely it would have been quicker to have run round to the right? Undoubtedly they went the longest way round.

"Why?" he asked himself. "Was it to give Mark more time in which to escape? Only, in that case—why run? Also, how did Cayley know then that it was Mark who was trying to escape? If he had guessed—that one had shot the other, it was much more likely that Robert had shot Mark. Indeed, he had admitted that this was what he thought. The first thing he had said when he turned the body over was, 'Thank God! I was afraid it was Mark.' But why should he want to give Robert time in which to get away? And again—why run, if he did want to give him time?"

Antony went out of the house again to the lawns at the back, and sat down on a bench in view of the office windows.

"AND THAT'S ALL YOU HEARD?"

"Now then," he said, "let's go through Cayley's mind carefully, and see what we get."

Cayley had been in the hall when Robert was shown into the office. The servant goes off to look for Mark, and Cayley goes on with his book. Mark comes down the stairs, warns Cayley to stand by in case he is wanted, and goes to meet his brother. What does Cayley expect?

Possibly that he won't be wanted after all; possibly that his advice may be wanted in the matter, say, of paying Robert's debts, or getting him a passage back to Australia; possibly that his physical assistance may be wanted to get an obstreperous Robert out of the house. Well, he sits there for a moment, and then goes into the library. Suddenly he hears a pistol-shot. For the moment he would hardly realize what it was. He listens. Perhaps it wasn't a pistol-shot after all. After a moment or two he goes to the library door again. The profound silence makes him uneasy now. No harm in going into the office just to reassure himself. So he tries the door—and finds it locked!

What are his emotions now? Alarm, uncertainty. Something is happening. Incredible though it seems, it must have been a pistol-shot. He is banging at the door and calling out to Mark, and there is no answer. Alarm—yes. But alarm for whose safety? Mark's, obviously. Robert is a stranger; Mark is an intimate friend. Robert has written a letter that morning, the letter of a man in a dangerous temper. Robert is the tough customer; Mark the highly civilized gentleman. If there has been a quarrel, it is Robert who has shot Mark. He bangs at the door again.

Of course, to Antony, coming suddenly upon this scene, Cayley's conduct had seemed rather absurd, but then, just for the moment, Cayley had lost his head. But, as soon as Antony suggested trying the windows, Cayley saw that that was the obvious thing to do. So he leads the way to the windows—the longest way.

Why? To give the murderer time to escape? If he had thought then that Mark was the murderer, perhaps, yes. But he thinks that Robert is the murderer. If he is not hiding anything, he must think so. Indeed he says so, when he sees the body: "I was afraid it was Mark," he says, when he finds that it is Robert who is killed. No reason, then, for wishing to gain time. On the contrary, every instinct would urge him to get into the room as quickly as possible, and seize the wicked Robert. Yet he goes the longest way round. Why? And then, why run?

"That's the question," said Antony to himself, as he filled his pipe, "and bless me if I know the answer."

He sat there with his unlit pipe in his hand, thinking. There were one or two other things in the back of his brain, waiting to be taken out and looked at. For the moment he left them undisturbed. They would come back to him later when he wanted them.

He laughed suddenly, and lit his pipe.

"I was wanting a new profession," he thought, "and now I've found it. Antony Gillingham, our own private sleuthhound. I shall begin today."

Whatever Antony Gillingham's other qualifications for his new profession, he had at any rate a brain which worked clearly and quickly. And this clear brain of his had already told him that he was the only person in the house at that moment who was unhandicapped in the search for truth. The inspector had arrived in it to find a man dead and a man missing. It was extremely probable, no doubt, that the missing man had shot the dead man. But it was more than extremely probable, it was almost certain that the inspector would start with the idea that this extremely probable solution was the one true solution, and that, in consequence, he would be less disposed to consider without prejudice any other solution.

Inspector Birch was certainly prepared to believe that Mark had shot his brother. Robert had been shown into the office (witness Audrey); Mark had gone in to Robert (witness Cayley); Mark and Robert had been heard talking (witness Elsie); there was a shot (witness everybody); the room had been entered and Robert's body had been found (witness Cayley and Gillingham). And Mark was missing. Obviously, then, Mark had killed his brother: accidentally, as Cayley believed, or deliberately, as Elsie's evidence seemed to suggest.

But there were other possibilities. It would have interested Antony to know that, just at the time when he was feeling rather superior to the prejudiced inspector, the inspector himself was letting his mind dwell lovingly upon the possibilities in connection with Mr. Gillingham. Was it only a coincidence that Mr. Gillingham had turned up just when he did? And Mr. Beverley's curious answers when asked for some account of his friend. An assistant in a tobacconist's! An odd man, Mr. Gillingham, evidently. It might be as well to keep an eye on him.

CHAPTER VI

THE guests had said goodby to Cayley, according to their different manner.

Bill had seen them into the car, had taken his own farewells (with a special squeeze of the hand for Betty), and had wandered out to join Antony on his garden seat.

"Well, this is a rum show," said Bill as he sat down.

"Very rum, William."

"And you actually walked right into it?"

"Right into it," said Antony and proceeded to tell all that he had already told the inspector, Bill interrupting him here and there with appropriate "Good Lords" and whistles.

"I say, it's a bit of a business, isn't it? Where do I come in, exactly?"

Antony smiled at him.

"Well, there's nothing to worry about, you know. Besides, I need you. Things are going to happen here soon."

EX-WARDEN GRIFFITH TELLS HOW HE DISPOSED OF COUNTY GRANTS

Thought One Cheque Included Warden's Indemnity, But Later Accepted the Indemnity Cheque Without Mentioning His Misconception.

Judge Huycke reserved his decision on the Griffith's enquiry which was concluded at 7 o'clock at the Court House Wednesday evening. He had a bundle of exhibits to sift through, in addition to ex-Warden W. E. Griffith's testimony of the grants he received from the county in the years from 1919 to 1922, inclusive, and how he had disposed of those monies granted for road work in Belmont Township, including the stray $100 paid into court for disposal by the Judge.

Mr. E. Gus. Porter, K.C., M.P., of Belleville defended Mr. Griffith and Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., represented Peterborough County.

Warden Strickland.

The enquiry resumed yesterday after the luncheon adjournment.

Warden J. C. Strickland, Reeve of Lakefield, said he was a member of the County Council in 1921 when W. E. Griffith was Warden. He recalled that the usual grant of $100 f.. road work was made last year by the County Council to the northern townships of Burleigh, Chandos, Galway, Harvey and Belmont. An additional special grant of $100 was also made to these townships.

The Warden said he was a member of the committee appointed by the Council to interview Mr. Griffith, but he "refused to have anything to do with us."

Asking permission to make a statement, the Warden said he considered it only just to the County Council to say that the $100 turned into court by Mr. Griffith had not been produced until the Council took action against him. He also said there was no law compelling the Reeves to submit paysheets to the Council, but under the highways system the Council was required to furnish a paysheet of its expenditures to the Government, and it had been the Reeves' rule for years to supply their paysheets.

Reeve Nicholls testified that in his recollection the grant for the northern townships didn't include Belmont until Mr. Griffith claimed an equal grant. His township was accordingly given the regular and special grants of $100 each.

Reeve Shaw's testimony was along the same line, and he added that he had returned paysheets as long as he could remember.

Reeves Eason and Shaw gave corroboratory evidence, closing the county's case.

Wellington Burgess.

Mr. W. Burgess, Treasurer of Belmont Township, referring to his record book, said that it showed a receipt of $99.85—that was $100 less 15 cents discount—from the county for May 1st, 1920.

Mr. Porter: "What was that for?"

"I have no statement to verify it."

"To whom was it paid?"

"I can't positively state. It is credited in the bank book."

Mr. Kerr: "I'm instructed there was no such cheque?"

Entries were shown for Aug. 2 and Dec. 15, 1920, for $99.85 on each occasion. Witness thought he got the August cheque from Mr. Griffith.

"Did you get any county money in 1921?"

"No. In January, 1922, Mr. Griffith handed me a cheque for $100, saying it was a grant from the county for 1921."

Mr. Kerr: "Did you know that was part of the $200 he received in June, 1921?"

"No."

"Can you say whether the monies of 1920 were spent on any particular road?"

"No."

David Seabrook.

Mr. Seabrook said he had been foreman on work on the 6th Concession of Belmont opposite Lots 13 and 14, between August 11th and 17th, 1920. He and his wife started the paysheets and Mr. Griffith finished them from witness' time book.

One list sent to the County Treasurer accounted for $50 and another to the Ontario Government for $100. Mr. Seabrook could not explain how the same names of men appeared on each sheet as having worked on the two jobs at the same time. They certainly hadn't worked in double shifts of ten hours each.

Mr. Griffith's Accounting.

Mr. Griffith, under examination by Mr. Porter, said that in 1920 he had received $250 from the county for road purposes in Belmont. Of that amount $100 was the usual grant and $150 a special grant to be expended on the Stoney Lake road. Defendant paid $100 to the township Treasurer on August 2, another hundred to him on December 15th and $50 to David Seabrook, road foreman.

Coming to 1921 Mr. Griffith said he received a cheque for $200 from County Treasurer Elliott.

Reverting to the County Council's action, he said: "My recollection is that special grants were going and I made a request for Belmont Township, but was refused on the ground that I was participating in the county roads system and the colonization roads system."

On the closing day of the June session defendant had to leave on the noon train. He had little time when getting away and didn't notice when he received a cheque from Mr. Elliott and signed a voucher for it that the cheque was drawn for $200.

"I didn't realize I had $200 until I arrived at the bank. I was in a hurry and just caught the tail end of the train at that, I cashed the cheque on the way to the train."

Mr. Porter—"What did you do with that $200."

Mr. Griffith—"I paid $100 to Mr. Burgess, our township treasurer, in January of this year and I have paid the other hundred into court."

Believed It Indemnity.

"When you found the cheque was for $200 did you form any opinion?"—"I concluded that $100 was for the Warden's indemnnity and the regular grant. On January 12 of this year I received a cheque for $100, the indemnity for the Warden's office and I knew then for the first time that cheque for $200 in June, 1921 did not include the indemnity."

"Since January 1922 what did you do?"—"Both the township and County Council were after the other $100, but I had practically promised Mr. Brown of Burleigh and Anstruther assistance for the road to Jack's Lake and I calculated that was where that money would go."

Regarding the circumstance of the paysheets supplied the County and the Government in which the names of some men appeared on each paysheet for the same dates, Mr. Griffith said he had simply copied the entries from Mr. Seabrook's timebook.

Cross-Examination.

Beginning his cross-examination, Mr. Kerr reverted to the $300 received by Mr. Burgess from defendant in 1920. The first payment of $99.85, which was $100 less 15 cents discount, had not been indentified by Mr. Elliott in his evidence, and Mr. Kerr suggested that this was a grant received by Mr. Griffith on November 29th, 1919 and Mr. Griffith replied that perhaps it was.

Mr. Kerr—"That money in 1919 was for road work in your township?"—"Yes."

"You admit you didn't turn it over until the following May?"—"Yes."

"Without interest?"—"Yes."

Coming to 1920 Mr. Griffith said he received the usual $100 grant from the county for road work. Prior to July 12 the men who were working under Mr. Anderson, a foreman, wanted to be paid, and Mr. Griffith drew $200 from the bank from his own funds. Afterwards the township Council reimbursed him for the other $100 in addition to the $100 he received from the county, these monies squaring his account.

Diverted Road Money.

He also received in 1920 a special grant of $150 to be spent on the Stoney Lake road. To Mr. Porter he had said that he paid $50 to Seabrook, a foreman for road work and $100 to the township treasurer.

Mr. Kerr—"Did you receive any authority from the County to divert any part of that special grant for the Stoney Lake road?"—"I did not."

"Did you at any time furnish an explanation that you had diverted it until you wrote to the press in July 1922?"—"I don't recollect that I did."

"Although $150 grant was made in 1920 for that particular road not one cent of that money was spent on it?"—"Government money was spent on it, but County money wasn't."

"Of that $150 you paid Seabrook $50 and $100 to the township treasurer and that $100 was not earmarked or kept separate from the other monies of the municipality?"—"Not that I know of."

The 1921 Grants.

Mr. Kerr next dealt with the County Council's grants made in 1921.

"Will you put your memory against that of the other members of the County Council when they say that $200 was voted to the northern townships including Belmont and not $100?"—"I believe they are conscientious in their statement but my memory don't lead me that way."

"You did receive $200 in the hurried way you told us?"—"Yes."

"When did you tell Mr. Elliott he gave you $200 instead of $100?"—"I don't think I ever brought that up until last fall."

"You knew you had the $200?"—"Yes."

"When did it occur to you that $100 of it was not the Warden's indemnity?"—"When I received the indemnity cheque in Janary, 1922."

Money Was Unused.

"So that from June, 1921 until January, 1922, Belmont township didn't get the use of this money in roads or interest?"—"No."

Mr. Griffith said when his term of office as Warden expired last January and he received the $100 cheque for his indemnity he paid $100 to the township treasurer and still had $100 apart from the $100 indemnity.

Mr. Kerr—"In January you accepted the $100 cheque marked Warden's indemnity?"—"Yes."

"Did you point out to Mr. Elliott you had thought the $200 you received in June, 1921, included that indemnity?"—"I made no mention of it."

"You made over that cheque to Mr. Burgess?"—"I did."

"You had then disposed of all monies belonging to the township or county other than $100?"—"I had."

"You began to realize you had that $100 since June 1921?"—"Yes."

"What steps did you take to get rid of this $100 you found too much on hand?"—"I took no special steps whatever."

Mr. Griffith said he had expected to use that money on the road to Jack's Lake as proposed to Reeve Brown of Burleigh.

"When did you first take that up with Mr. Brown?"—"I think it was at the January session."

About March 24, 1922, defendant received a letter from Mr. Elliott asking for the paysheets for the $200 cheque of June 1921. Ten days later, about April 6, Mr. Griffith wrote to Reeve Brown about the road to Jack's Lake. Up to that time he had not answered Mr. Elliott. He wrote again to Mr. Brown on May 18, June 3, June 17, and July 6. Other than some words with Reeve Breckenbridge, defendant had received no demand in writing for that the $100, which was subsequently paid into court, be given Belmont municipality.

Mr. Kerr—"Did you not offer between January 1922 and July 1922 to Scott and Seabrook to put $100 into a walk to the cemetery?"—"Not a dollar. I said I would if Havelock would contribute, but I knew they wouldn't."

Mr. Griffith admitted that he would expect any person to look for an explanation of two paysheets showing the same names of men as having worked on the same day on different jobs. He had taken the names from Seabrook's time book after Seabrook had first put his own signature in that column of the sheet. He had no authority to sign the other men's names, but did it as an accommodation in helping make out the paysheets.

Mr. Kerr's Claim.

In his summary Mr. Kerr said that for the carrying on of the affairs of the country men must realize their duty of accounting for public money.

"We claim that Mr. Griffith must satisfy Your Honour with respect to the $100 of the $150 he got in 1920 fo the Stoney Lake road. Even if that money did reach the township it was given to him in trust for a specific purpose and that purpose was not carried out. If a Reeve can accept county money designated for a special purpose and turn it into the general fund of his township, he defeats the end the county had had in view. It makes it possible for him to make a good fellow out of himself by putting such money into the township's general fund and relieve its taxpayers to that extent. The county has a right to demand that money back from Mr. Griffith."

Referring to the 1921 grant of $200, Mr. Kerr said: "Mr. Griffith had $100 which he had no more right to than I had. He defied the township, and when the Reeve dropped it the county took it up. He was not pressed by the County Council in January last for this money, but was instructed by resolution of the Council to hand it over to the Belmont treasury or submit paysheets of its expenditure. He refused to meet the County Council and discuss the matter with them, but was determined to dispose of the money as he willed."

Do not put the Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Make the Rinso liquid first.

Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water and when the froth subsides put it in a tub of cool or lukewarm water and you will have enough for a batch of clothes.
If the clothes are extra soiled, use more Rinso.

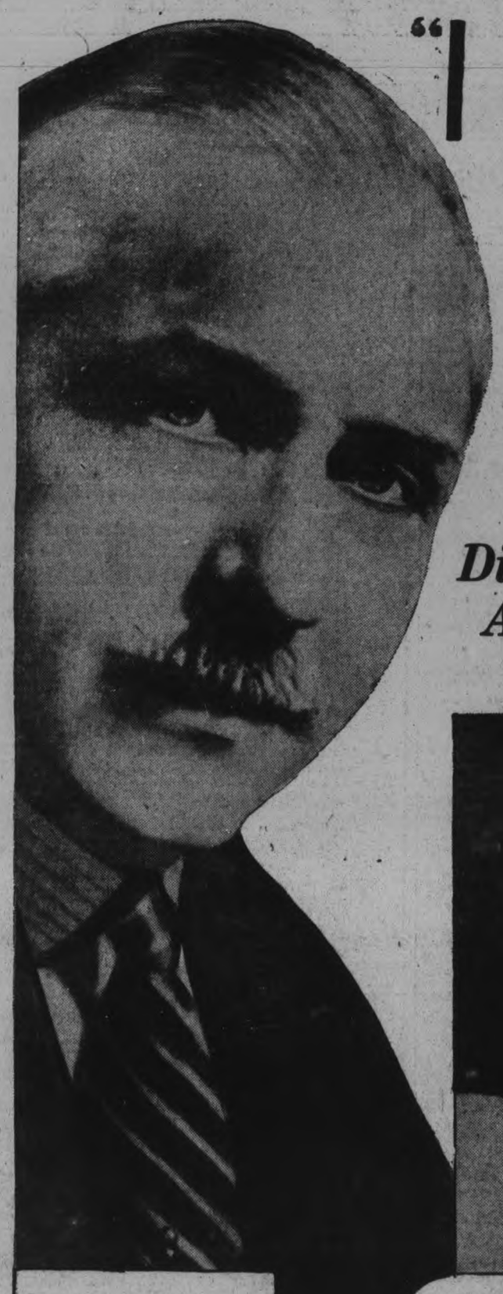
"I Couldn't Think of Promising to Stay Married!"

Astonishing Near-Confessions of Arthur Hammerstein, Broadway Adonis, Who, After Three Weddings and Two Divorces, Has Decided That Wives Are Changeable—Like His Own Famous Derby Hats



Arthur Hammerstein, Whose 1922 Philosophy Is: "Sometimes, wives, like hats, don't become us. And then one must change."

Mrs. Grace Weir Hoagland Became Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein, No. 2, in September, 1910. She Divorced Him in 1915.

The First Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein was Jean Kent Allison. They Were Married February, 1895, and Divorced in 1910.

Claire Nagel, Follies Queen, Became Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein, No. 3, in June, 1919. She Died While Awaiting a Divorce Decree.

"A WIFE is like a derby hat. When a man gets a new derby he may think it is a fine derby. But he doesn't fancy he must wear that particular derby till he dies."

The handsome Mr. Arthur Hammerstein, theatrical manager, son of the famous impresario, Oscar Hammerstein, and favorite Adonis of the Broadway peach belt, thus expressed himself after his third marriage.

"Really," he said, "I couldn't think of promising to stay married."

And he didn't. Two years later the third Mrs. Hammerstein was in Reno, establishing residence preliminary to suing for divorce. She died before the case ever came to trial.

Now that Broadway's "tipsters" declare Mr. Hammerstein is contemplating matrimony once more, they not only wonder who the fourth Mrs. Hammerstein will be, but how long she will be it.

Will Mr. Hammerstein change his philosophy when he becomes a bridegroom for the fourth time, or will he still maintain that a wife is like a derby hat—"a fine derby" this year, but out of date next?

Mr. Hammerstein was just about old enough to wear his first derby when he married his first wife. She was Jean Kent Allison, a seventeen-year-old school girl, and he was a youth of twenty. They eloped February 19, 1895.

In the nineties people were not so temperamental as they are to-day. Styles in derbies didn't change every year and divorces were not so numerous. Mr. Hammerstein and Jean Allison Hammerstein stayed married for twelve years. The record does not show whether Mr. Hammerstein wore one derby only during this period.

The first signs of a break-up came in 1906, when George W. Falk, a well-known New Yorker, named Hammerstein as co-respondent in a suit for divorce against his wife, Madeline Falk. The Hammersteins separated soon after this and in 1907 Mrs. Hammerstein got an interlocutory decree.

There was a reconciliation a year later, but it didn't last. Hammerstein was building an opera house in Philadelphia for his father, with whom he was intimately associated in all his productions. During this enterprise Arthur leased a home at Merion.

There he gave a house-party. His guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. De Jara-Almonte, the latter an orchestra conductor in the Hammerstein service, and Mrs. Grace Weir Hoagland. They did not include Mrs. Hammerstein.

Mrs. Hoagland was a famous beauty. She was a singer—first in the choir of Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, and later a pupil of De Reszke. When she married John A. Hoagland, son of the late baking powder king, she made a $3,000,000 match.

Neither Broadway nor Philadelphia was absolutely startled when two suits for divorce were filed almost simultaneously in 1910—one by Mrs. Jean Allison Hammerstein against the debonnair Arthur; another by Mrs. Hoagland against "Johnny," who was just beginning to get a name as a "favorite son" among the Broadway white lights.

Mrs. Hammerstein made no charge against her husband except desertion. She didn't mention anything about a new derby hat. But friends of Arthur say he bought a very snappy "kelly" about that time. They added, "I told you so!" when, five days after she obtained her final decree from Johnny Hoagland, Mrs. Hoagland became the second Mrs. Hammerstein on a September morning at Greenwich, Conn.

That was in 1910. Five years later, almost to the day, they were divorced. Hammerstein, tilting his derby slightly—was it a new one?—quoted Kipling to the reporters: "You never can tell till you've tried it, and then you are apt to be wrong."

"Will I be another Nat Goodwin?" he added. "Quien sabe? Marriage is a great institution. So is divorce. I'm not discouraged. I'm going to keep on looking till I find the right girl. Sometimes wives, like hats, don't become us. And then one must change."

Mr. Hammerstein evidently thought he had found the right girl when he met Claire Nagel, of Buffalo. She was pretty, blonde and twenty-five, famous to magazine readers as "the kodak girl" of the advertisement; to theatre-goers as a Follies queen and star of "Tumble In."

This was a Hammerstein production. When it closed its run Mr. Hammerstein married the star, June 9, 1919. She retired from the stage, but returned in December, 1920, playing opposite Frank Tinney in "Tickle Me." She charged later that her husband began, as it were, another "derby hunt" in the following Spring.

"Yes," admitted Mr. Hammerstein in April, "my wife's in Reno. She's a fascinating companion and a real pal. A great little sport—Claire. I never had a wife I was more interested in. That's all."

Claire Nagel died in Reno before the divorce litigation had progressed very far. Though they were separated, Mr. Hammerstein was a devoted husband during her fatal illness. He had her removed from her residence to a hospital, wired for the best physicians to attend to her, and did everything possible to save her life.

"She was a fine woman and a talented actress," was his only comment when news of her death was flashed to New York. "We were simply not suited to one another."

Since Claire Nagel's death in 1921 rumors of another Hammerstein marriage have been as thick along the Rialto as men's hats in the shop windows. But if Mr. Hammerstein has chosen one of the hats he has been wary about choosing Mrs. Hammerstein Number Four. Every week or two his name is linked with that of some reigning beauty, and just as often Mr. Hammerstein says, "Nothing to it!"

Thus he was "billed" as a leading candidate for the hand of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, when that winsome darling of three millionaire husbands returned recently from Europe. She and Arthur Hammerstein were seen riding along Fifth avenue in Peggy's "jewel-box" limousine, and immediately tongues began to clatter. But——

"Not me!" declared Mr. Hammerstein. "Peggy is a beautiful girl and a fine woman."

Mr. Hammerstein's expression as he made this remark was that of a man standing before a mirror and wondering whether the hat on his head wouldn't be troublesome when the wind began to blow.

Again his engagement was reported to Mrs. John A. Hoagland Number Two, who was "Billie Allen," beautiful cigarette girl, before she succeeded Mrs. Grace Weir Hoagland.

"No, indeed!" said Mr. Hammerstein to this. "Billie thinks in seven figures. I couldn't afford her as a wife, to begin with. And, besides, she already seems like a wife-in-law. I couldn't think of taking two wives from Johnny."

In spite of these emphatic denials Broadway insists that Mr. Hammerstein will wed again soon—if not either of these two beauties, then another in the flower garden that flourishes around Times Square. An announcement is expected this Autumn. And the new derbies are appearing then, by the way.

To all questions and rumors Mr. Hammerstein only smiles. He is used to this match-making. He knows that, when the Broadway gossips have nothing else to do, they start the subject, "I hear Arthur Hammerstein is going to marry So-and-So." Frances White, the dainty dancer, is the latest Broadway favorite so mentioned.

"I may not marry at all," he says. "I'm more interested in my daughter's career right now than I am in my own."

Elaine Hammerstein, his daughter, is the child of his first marriage. When Jean Allison Hammerstein got her divorce she did not ask for the permanent custody of Elaine. She stipulated only that the child might be allowed to choose for herself when she reached the age of maturity.

When Elaine graduated from Bryn Mawr College in 1913 she was seventeen. She went to her father, and soon after that he gave her a position in his own production, "High Jinks." From there she went to the motion pictures, in which she has become a star in her own right.

"My daughter means more to me than a wife right now," says Mr. Hammerstein. "But—who knows? I said I couldn't think of promising to stay married. I can't promise to stay single, either."

THE ANREP-MOORE MACHINE. PEAT MANUFACTURING PLANT

Description of the Plant Developed by the Joint Peat Committee at Alfred, Ontario, and of its Operation

The final experimental work of the Joint Peat Committee at Alfred, Ontario, is now in progress. A visit to the scene of operations to-day is highly instructive, and gives tangible evidence of the thoroughness and consistency with which the work of this Committee has been carried on during the last four seasons. As the experimental research now gives definite evidence of a successful issue, and as the advent of peat fuel will be so highly important to coal-less Central Canada, a description of the means by which this end will be accomplished is at this time decidedly in order.

The Problem

An un-drained peat bog contains about 95 per cent. water and five per cent. carbonaceous fuel. By ditching in an approved fashion, the proportion of solids can be raised to 12½ or 15 per cent., which is about the same as the solid constituents of milk. Thus the problem that the Joint Peat Committee has tackled with such confidence, and now with such good prospect of success, is to convert this quaking bog into a fuel for our cook-stoves, fire-places and steam boilers at a cost such that it can complete successfully with imported coal.

The reason that raw peat, with no greater a proportion of solids in its make-up than milk, is of a semi-solid nature, is, of course, that its structure is cellular. The plants, mostly mosses, whose remains compose the bog have combined sunlight, air and water to build up a myriad of little cells, each of which is now full of water. The interstices are also filled with water until the bog is drained; but it is not possible to lower the water content to less than 85 to 87½ per cent. by this means.

Many have been the attempts to remove the water from raw peat by squeezing or crushing it, or by artificial evaporation, followed by briquetting. A number of such processes have been devised that turn out good fuel; but invariably they have failed of commercial success, for the good and sufficient reason that more energy is consumed in the operation of producing the fuel by this means than is contained in it when finished. Thus the solution of the problem rests upon the use of energy that costs nothing—and plenty such energy is to be had from the sun.

Realizing that sun-power, free of cost, must be the principal agent in manufacturing the fuel, the problem is how to make use of this free power. This problem the Peat Committee have now solved. Their engineers have devised mechanisms that dig out the raw peat, break down the cell-walls in order that the peat pulp may condense when drying, and then spread the resulting pulp over the surface of the bog and cut it into blocks. After the sun has got in his good work, the blocks of peat are harvested by the aid of a separate "harvester" and stored in a stock-pile ready for loading into railway cars. These operations will be described consecutively after a general description of the whole scheme of operations has been given.

Plan of Operation

The general plan of operation is illustrated in the accompanying figure. The peat, which may vary from six feet up to, say, twelve or fifteen feet in depth, is dug in long strips in succession along one side and then the other of the excavation illustrated. The strip is 29 feet wide and nearly 1000 yards long, as is convenient. The "digger" moves backwards and forwards diagonally along a working face, dragging up the peat into the machine. The raw peat, a semi-fluid mass, is carried in screw conveyors to the "macerator", a hammer-mill revolving at about 1400 r.p.m., where the cell-walls are effectively broken down. This is the beginning and the end of the process of mechanical treatment, all the remaining steps being merely the conveyance of the material hither and thither.

The macerated pulp, now semi-fluid, is discharged by a screw conveyor to a belt conveyor 850 feet in length, beside which moves the "spreader." This spreader removes the pulp from the belt, spreads it evenly in a layer, 5 inches thick, on the surface of the bog, and marks it into blocks of convenient size. The sun does the rest. When the upper side is sufficiently dried, the blocks are turned over by hand with rakes. When the spreader has completed one row, 12 feet wide, conveyor and spreader both move forward to give room for the next row. These two pieces of machinery move independently of the main machine that excavates and macerates.

When the end of the cut on one side of the excavation is reached, the excavator and spreader are moved on their caterpillars to the opposite side, while the 850 foot conveyor, is moved bodily to its new position on the permanent narrow-gauge track that runs along both ends of the drying field. The whole machine now returns on its second cut, on drying field number two, which it likewise covers with its blocks of fuel.

The length of this excavation is so arranged that by the time the peat machine is ready to retrace its first path, making its third cut, the first of the peat crop is ready to harvest. Our figure shows the harvester feeding the finished peat into trucks on the narrow-gauge track laid temporarily after every eighth-row, where space for it has been left. Trains of these trucks are hauled off to the storage heaps at the railway.

The Excavator

A steel frame, mounted on caterpillars, carries the principal unit of the plant, consisting of digger, macerator and steam boiler and engines for motive power. The machine is of "Anrep" type. The excavating element is composed of an endless chain on which are mounted steel hoops, and occasional bottomless buckets. It moves along the working face, 40 feet, as shown in the photo and the plate. When it reaches either terminus, the whole machine moves forward automatically a distance of 5½ inches, and the digger commences its return journey. This type of digger will take care of the small roots and stumps that occur throughout the bed of peat, and the large roots are removed by an attendant when loosened by the machine. The digger is a very effective method of delivering the raw material to the macerator, and surprisingly littledela y results from interruptions in its operation.

After experiments with a number of macerating devices, an ordinary swing-hammer shredder, as used to shred wood into chips, has been found very satisfactory. Its high rate of speed effects athorough breaking-down of cell-walls in the peat through impact, and the flexibility of the hammer arms ensures against breakage when pieces of stray iron or unusually tough roots enter the machine. The mill at present installed is being used to handle a tonnage somewhat beyond its normal capacity, and consequently its consumption of power is unduly high; but otherwise it has proved itself thoroughly satisfactory.

The peat is now "manufactured," as far as mechanical agency is covered, and it remains only to give it over to the tender mercies of "Old Sol."

Belt Conveyor

As the macerated pulp must be spread fairly thin on the ground in order to dry within a reasonable length of time, it is expedient to have a wide drying field. A number of devices have been tried out to deliver the pulp throughout this field, and the final, and completely satisfactory one, is the conveyor belt shown in our plan and illustration. It is carried on a bridge composed of ten light steel trusses, which in turn rest on eleven caterpillars, driven by a single endless wire rope that engages each in turn and is actuated by a steam engine mounted on the innermost caterpillar, this same engine serving to drive the belt. The photo shows the large driving wheel of this conveyor, on its caterpillar close to the excavator, and two of the remaining caterpillars supporting the long bridge.

As the excavator moves along steadily, 5½ inches at a time, and as the belt conveyor moves ahead only when it has layed a row of peat 12 feet wide, it is obviously essential that the two should be independent in movement. A long trough fitted to the conveyor receives the pulp from the excavator, thus giving the desired flexibility of motion.

Spreader

Alongside the belt conveyor there moves slowly the spreader, driven by a gasoline motor. The pulp is continuously scraped off the travelling belt by a travelling plough, and distributed through the spreader evenly over a swath of the bog twelve feet wide to a depth of four or five inches. An arrangement like a disc harrow, with blades that also cut at right angles to the discs, marks the peat into oblong blocks. When the draining away of water underneath through the grass and moss and evaporation above cause the peat to shrink, it separates into blocks the size of common bricks along these lines.

As mentioned above, when the spreader has reached either end of the conveyor belt, the latter is stopped, and both conveyor and spreader move forward in preparation for laying another row.

Accessory Mechanisms

The efficient carrying-out of the cycle of operations necessary to win peat has involved the devising of numerous accessory machines, mainly to eliminate expensive hand labor. Prominent among these are the harvester and the combined stock-piling bridge and loader.

To devise either of these would tax the ingenuity of the average engineer; but here the problems they presented have been merely incidental to the main task. No separate description of these will be attempted here.

*Capacity of Plant

The present plant will when operating smoothly, deliver 100 tons of dry peat per day at the railway. This excludes wastage and the amount consumed by the steam boiler to provide power. As it takes 10 cubic yards of bog to put one ton of peat at the railway, the excavator must handle 1000 cubic yards a day to attain this production.

A row of peat, as layed out by the spreader, is 12 feet wide and about 775 feet long. At present it takes 90 minutes to lay a row and move the conveyor ahead ready for the next row. This time will probably be reduced to 70 minutes eventually. A row provides 14 to 16 tons of dried peat. The capacity of the conveyor set, the speed of the spread on the bog can all be varied in order to provide any necessary adjustment with the capacity of the excavator.

Costs

There is at present available no detailed estimate of the cost of making peat fuel by means of the Anrep-Moore plant. Very careful and complete records are being kept, and it is expected that the results of this season's operations will provide a reliable basis for calculations of cost. In the meantime it can be assumed confident, that the cost of dry peat at the railway will be considerably below the price at which it has been sold for the past three seasons, namely $5. per ton. The various mechanisms have been designed to operate with a minimum of supervision and of hand labor, and interest and other operating charge will not be high.

The cost of the excavator, belt conveyor and spreader, is estimated at about $35,000. Harvesting equipment, repair shop, track and cars, storage conveyor, power house, railway siding, etc., would nearly double this amount. With a working season of 100 days and a capacity of 100 tons per day of peat at the railway, it will produce 10,000 tons of fuel in a year.

It is clearly realized by those conversant with the problem that the production of peat fuel will never prove to be a "gold mine" to operators, but those best qualified to judge are confident that, with the apparatus now developed, a satisfactory net profit can be made.

Small Peat Machine

Along with the plant described above, there has been developed a smaller plant such as would be suitable for providing a neighbourhood with fuel, without a rail haul. This machine will cost about as much as a threshing machine—say $2,000 to $3,000—and will provide a 1000 tons or more of fuel in a season. It is designed particularly to win peat from bogs that are too small for the larger machine.

Most of this smaller machine, as well as a large part of the other, have been built in the well equipped little machine shop now on the ground at Alfred.

Electric Drive

As noted above, the power used at present to drive the machine is mainly steam. This involves an inordinate weight, the boiler and accessories weighing 15 tons out of a total of 30 tons for the excavator. It is proposed to use, in future machines, electric drive, which will be both convenient and economical, whether the current is obtained from a generator at the edge of the bog or from a public supply.

In conclusion, the writer wishes to acknowledge the courtesy shown him by those in charge of the Peat Committee's experimental work. E. V. Moore is the prime mover of the undertaking, and has proved himself to be one of those ardent spirits upon whose enthusiasm, tempered with judgment, most of our technical progress depends. The amount of mechanical invention involved in developing a successful peat manufacturing plant has been huge. Part of this work of invention was already done by the late A. Anrep, Sr., of Helsingburg, Sweden, whose son, A. Anrep, Jr., of the Dominion Geological Survey. Numerous other pioneers in the peat industry have added their quota. P. O. Orr, who is in charge of the actual operations at Alfred, is second only to Mr. Moore in his capacity for mechanical invention. To this handful of enthusiastic workers, aided by the Peat Committee and backed by the Departments of Mines of Ontario and the Dominion, is due the fact that the difficulties incidental to all experimental work have been overcome, one after another, until now a successful issue is in sight, and with it a partial solution of the fuel problem of Canada, and more particularly of Ontario and Quebec.

GASSED OVERSEAS SHELL SHOCKED AND RHEUMATISM

Mr. F. M. Blaquiere, Morinville, Alta., writes: "After three years service overseas I returned to Canada almost a complete wreck. I had been gassed and was suffering from shell shock and rheumatism, and was so nervous I could not sleep at night. I tried many medicines and doctors, but none of them did me any good for any length of time. I got so bad in the fall of 1919, my hands were so shaky I could scarcely hold anything, and it seemed as if I had a steel band pressing on my head. The least excitement would almost drive me into fits, and my whole system seemed to be in disorder. I had cramps in my legs nearly every night, and hot and cold chills running up and down my back nearly all the time. One day I decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after I had taken six boxes I began to feel better. I kept on using them and after a while I was completely relieved."

Mrs. James Wells, Udora, Ont., writes:—

"I took a severe pain in my right side. It was very bad at times. I tried oils and tablets without gaining any relief. The doctor pronounced it chronic appendicitis. I dreaded an operation and a friend advised Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Who Pays For Advertising?

THIS is a direct and reasonable question; and in the case of Daily Newspaper advertising, intelligently used, the answer is simple: Nobody. It pays its own way.

Nobody pays for the new carburetor that gives added mileage to your motor car. It pays for itself in the gasolene it saves.

Nobody pays for an improved cash system in a modern department store. It pays for itself in economy of human time.

Nobody pays for well planned and written Daily Newspaper advertising. It pays for itself by reducing the cost of sales and by increasing production. And it often receipts old bills for follies with advertising labels.

The advertisement in your own local Daily Newspaper tells you the best things to buy and where to buy them. Every new purchase helps the whole community to command cheaper and better goods.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Relieved Her of Headaches

Headache seems to be habitual with many people, and some, if any, are seldom free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief.

In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to the removal of the cause, and with the cause removed the headaches will vanish.

It is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of every description than can equal B. B. B., acting as it does on every organ of the system.

Mrs. Douglas Riseborough, 280 McKenzie St., Sarnia, Ont., writes: "Having suffered from severe headaches for a considerable length of time I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and found that it helped me wonderfully. It relieved the headaches, and I noticed a decided improvement in my health."

Burdock Blood Bitters is a remedy that has been on the market for the past forty-four years, so you don't experiment with some new and untried medicine. It is put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

STARTLING DOCTRINE

they may contribute to this society and so further the doctrine of applied psychology.

An Ardent Student.

And Francis Macklem has been such an ardent student of the Frenchman that this is also his ambition that some society associated with the Lorraine will eventually spread the gospel of applied phychology in Canada.

When questioned as to the efficiency of the doctrine of Coueism, Mr. Macklem points to himself as an example. He once was ill, not expected to recover, but through auto suggestion he regained his health, and was stimulated toward an ideal of handing this message to others.

The Examiner's representative visited the clinic of applied phychology at Grimsby and here met Mr. Macklem. To see him is to be impressed. He is of medium height and slim of build. His strength is the strength of mind. He has the brow of a savant, the gleaming eye of an idealist.

He was in the midst of a clinic. He stool before a gathering of seven patients—people who had come to be freed from their ills. There was a woman who suffered from "nerves." Here another who felt that she was slowly losing her sight. Here an aged lady who was afflicted with "tremblings." They were seated before this disciple of faith cure. They half leaned forward, tense with their desire for health Even as M. Coue would have done, he spoke to them first of auto suggestion. He told them that he would not effect a cure. They themselves would be the agents.

PRESENTATION MONDAY NIGHT

Prizes for the Examiner Road Road Race and City Championship Will Be Presented at the Capitol Theatre.

Arrangements have been made to present the prizes to the winners of the Examiner road race and the city track championships Monday evening at the Capitol Theatre. The theatre management has granted a few minutes time between acts, when the successful contestants will be presented with their prizes from the stage.

Though the presentation is later than the committee in charge of the affair had hoped, they were unavoidably delayed by the fact that the prizes for the city championship events could not be obtained from the manufacturers any sooner, though every effort was made to speed up their delivery.

The prize-winners are requested to be at the Capitol at 7.45 Monday evening, and arrangements will be made by the committee to have them seated at a convenient place in the theatre.

Holders of cups which were won last year in the city championship events are asked to return them to the Y.M.C.A. not later than Saturday night. So far but one of these trophies has been handed in.

We feel that the Board of Education and the citizens in general should know that the instruction given in the manual training department of our public schools is of a practical nature and has been amply demonstrated in the construction of our bungalow.

We hope that success will attend you in your work with the boys and that they in turn, seeing what can be accomplished may become increasingly enthusiastic in their work

KING OF GREECE IS A PRISONER IN PALACE.

He Made Every Eoffrt to Prevent the Execution of the Ministers.

PARIS, of. 30—(Canadian Press) The King of Greece is prisoner in his palace and is permitted to see only persons possessing the care of his cabinet, according to despatch received by the Matin by a Belgrade correspondent.

The king made every effort to prevent the executions of ministers, the despatch states, even requesting the Ministers of Rumania and Jugoslavia to make efforts to save the condemned men. This led to conflict between the ruler and the Gonatas government.

Following the executions the king informed the cabinet of his desire to quit the country, but the government refused its consent, and has taken measures to prevent the sovereig leaving palace.

The French government will not withdraw the French ministers from Athens as the result of the executions in the Greek capital, it was authoratively asserted yesterday.

The Kiwanis Minstrel Show

Last night's presentation of the Kiwanis Minstrels more than justified the nice things that have been said about the show in the advance notices. Considering the limited time that was available for rehearsal, Mr. Martin Chenhall, director of the show, has accomplished surprising results. Mr. Chenhall has produced a worth while show that will improve with repetition to-night. It is not unduly prolonged as is often the case with amateur productions. Had last night's audience assembled earlier than eight-thirty o'clock the grand finale would have been recorded at ten-thirty o'clock. For that reason those who intend to see the show this evening are asked to get to the Grand Opera House early and give the show a chance to start in good time.

The first half of the performance was in charge of interlocutor J. A. McKone, who as "Shorthand Johnson," keeps the end men busy with their jokes and songs. The end men are Jack Jarry, J. Johns, Rev. A. J. McKenzie, J. Wearing, J. Worth and Alex. Dick.

The work of the chorus is splendid and the Grand Opera House orchestra, augmented by a number of well known local musicians, has seldom been heard to better advantage. There were a number of splendid specialties including a telephone dialogue in which Rev. A. J. McKenzie and J. Johns, were able to produce some surprising results. The telephones used by these comedians is an improvement on the telephones at present in use in that you could get anything you wanted over the telephone line from a drink to a full grown male passenger as was edmonstrated when Doc Lacey was precipitaed on to the stage by means of a telephone wire. It was a clever piece of work and brought down the house.

Billy Phillips sang a song that was so good he had to respond to three encores before he could get away. This concluded the first half of the programme.

The second half opened up with an operatic sketch entitled "Bluenose," with Rev. A. J. McKenzie at the wheel, Joe Wearing impersonating Sinbad the sailor, and Alex Dick dolled us as a cannibal chief.

The good ship Bluenose sails from Nova Scotia for the Canary Islands. The compass having been deranged, their course has been altered to take them to the Cannibal Islands. During a race with a rival boat, a storm appears causing the wreck of the "Bluenose."

The ship-wrecked sailors appear on the islands just about the time Alex .Dicks' warriors are looking for some white meat to make a pot of soup. The result produces some funny situations and makes a lively ending for a good show.

ANNUAL BAZAAR OPENS ST. JOHN'S PARISH HALL.

Pretty Scene Created by Decorations and Booths.

The annual bazaar of St. John's Church was successfully launched at 3 p.m. to-day, Dr. Blagrave congratulating the president, Mrs. Mulholland, and the members of the Church Woman's Association for much arduous work in preparation for this annual event.

The parish house, in which the bazaar is being held, has been handsomely decorated, J. J. Turner & Sons being responsible for the flags, the C.W.A. and the A.Y.P.A. for the more detailed decorations.

The effect is very pleasing, and if the setting has a relative effect on the ultimate result, the bazaar will be a splendid success.

To the left of the south entrance stands a tent devoted to fortune-telling, in charge of Mrs. Rathbone, justly famed for skill in the art, A fine collection of books for sale are next to be found on the library table in charge of Mrs. Dubois and Miss M. Rogers. Ladies' and children's dresses and undies in great variety are courteously offered by Mrs. Tyrer and Miss G. Denne. Now we come to the candy stall, from where all dainty varieties of homemade confections will really "melt in one's mouth," as Mrs. Morphet and Mrs. G. S. Cameron will assure you. The doll department is a veritable well babies' clinic; tall, short, and thin (some not thin), but all, oh, so pretty, dressed beautifully and with complexions that positively won't come off. Mrs. Stratton and Miss Hugel are very proud of their large doll family, but will be glad to part with them in the good cause. A mysterious but perfectly inocuous scheme in connection with two very large dolls is in charge of Mrs. R. J. Devey. Crossing the room, Mrs. Holloway has some fine rugs for sale, woven from rags in the city; proceeds for the W.A. No church event should be without a mission feature, especially as to-day is St. Andrew's Day. Most appropriate to the winter season is the choice collection of woollen goods, which Miss Burnett and Miss F. Rubidge are justified in classing as one of the best skilfully made collections ever offered to discriminatin buyers. The fancy work offered by Miss English and Mrs. Vanstone must be seen to be appreciated. Most beautiful needlework will surely command ready purchasers. Miss Bell has some fine products of the farm to sell, and Mrs. J. Mills, with Mrs. Tully, come next into the view with household linen, aprons, towels, and many things for daily use as finely made as those classed as fancy. The flowers have been entrusted to Mrs. Lush, who, with a company of dainty girls, will make the most of their stall.

Mrs. R. G. Blagrave has greatly assisted the president, and this afternoon actively welcomed the visitors.

Afternoon tea is served from 4 to 6. At 6, super will be served. The committee in charge of this important depatment are Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Aylmer, Mrs. Coulthard, Mrs. Conway.

Vocal and instrumental numbers will be given this evening.

One result of Mr. McIver's visit to Peterborough was a meeting here yesterday of the company's district agents, numbering over forty. In the evening the entire party took in the Kiwanis Minstrel Show.

A Problem For Cobourg Electors—Farm Changes Hands.

COBOURG, November 30 (Special to The Examiner). — Cobourg electors in January next will be asked to vote upon a by-law as to whether or not the Town Council shall re-engage Miss McMahon as public health nurse at a salary of $125.00 per month for another year.

The Council on the 1st of September engaged Miss McMahon for a period of four months. It is now up to the electors to say whether or not her services will be continued.

Twelve schools of the eighteen in Hamilton Township asked for a medical examination of school children, and Miss Vrooman, of the Provincial Public Health Department, who conducted a demonstration course in Cobourg earlier in the year, has now completed her inspection of these twelve schools.

Some trustees in the township suggested that they had never had any of the reforms recommended, and that what was good enough for them was good enough for the children.

Others expressed a keen and appreciative interest in the work. Defective teeth, diseased tonsils, malnutrition were the most common defects, with some instances of impaired eyesight, but with few severe enough to require spectacles.

Mr. Isaiah Hickey has sold his farm, just east of the town of Cobourg, to Mr. William Hunter, of Toronto. This is a well-known property.

She said she did not think the fire was of very much consequence, and watched it for a time from her window, but did not think of sending in an alarm.

According to evidence given at the Provincial Fire Commissioner's investigation, the flames were discovered by members of the faculty at about two o'clock, and the Fire Brigade arrived at 2.25.

HON. A. MEIGHEN'S FIGHTING SPEECH.

Addressed a Meeting in Almonte Last Evening—Flays the Government.

ALMONTE, November 30. — Canadian Press. — In a fighting speech here last night the Right Hon Arthur Meighen once more assailed the government.

Addressing a large gathering in the town hall the Opposition leader blamed the government for increasing the living costs and charges the administration with extravagance and incompetence. He repeated his statement that the last budget constituted a gross betrayal of the people who had been promised tariff reductions previous to the general election and insisted that the government had adopted a policy of exploiting the Canadian National Railways for party purposes. He criticized the members of the government for spending their time and the people's money on expensive trips abroad. In touching upon the Canadian National Railways, Mr. Meighen referred to Sir Henry Thornton as an "experiment at high prices."

Dr. A. A. Metcalfe of Almonte, the chairman of the local Liberal-Conservative Association, opened the meeting. He described William Lyon Mackenzie King as a "nuisance" and an "agitator" who had repeatedly been thrown out of Parliament, "but always managed to scramble back." He referred to this merely because the ancestors of the present Prime Minister had been stressed by Liberal speakers during the present campaign, he said. When Mackenzie King was mayor of the city of York he had actually "put a woman in the stocks," declared Mr. Metcalfe.

T. A. Thompson, president of the Lanark County Association, asked the farmers in the audience why it was considered necessary to organize a separate party to guard the interests of agriculturists. He was a farmer himself but he realized that the interests of the farms were bound up with those of the city people. Farmers should be broad enough to support a party which represented all trades, all classes and all people. He charged the resent government with flagrant violation of pre-election promises.

Sager came at the same time from Los Angeles, California, and located at the same hotel. COMMUNITIES HAVE BEEN SEIZING COAL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Communities which have seized anthracite shipments in transit through their territory, and local authorities who have countenanced the step, were warned by Federal Fuel Distributor Spens in a statement yesterday that such practices would "only tend toward chaos and shortage all around."

There is no possibility, the distributor said, that enough anthracite of the prepared domestic sizes can be mined this year to take care of the normal demand, particularly in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, but there is ample supplies of substitutes, including bituminous coal, steam sizes of anthracite, coke and wood.

The Bathers at Deauville Lost No Time Displaying Their New Jazz Outfits Just Arrived from Paris.

Paris Presents the Jazz Bathing Outfit

Daring Syncopated Creations Designed to Match Parasols, Complexions, Eyes, and Even Poodles, and Famous Beauties Actually Are Wearing Them at Europe's Most Fashionable Seaside Resorts

ARE you fashionable? Then you don't own "a bathing suit," you own "bathing suits"—one for morning wear, one for afternoon, one to match your parasol, one to match your poodle, one to match your pearls, one for swimming, one for strolling, one for cloudy days, one for fair, one for—oh, for just everything you can possibly think of!

And along with many suits you have many caps and socks and shoes and capes, and even complexions—one shade of sunburn for this suit and another for that. In short, you possess a "bathing outfit." And if you're the last gurgle in style, it's a "jazz bathing outfit," so-called because it makes as much noise as a dozen saxophones and drums.

Of course, it was Paris that presented the jazz bathing outfit to a world of women who had been tripping along absolutely content with one snappy sea-suit until the Rue de la Paix bobbed up with this new wrinkle to make them fretful and green-eyed and perfectly miserable until they got what some other woman had.

Paris is always doing things like that to women—and to men's pocketbooks. Time was, away back in the crinoline age, when a girl could get married in one gown. Then Paris invented the trousseau, and fathers didn't know whether it was cheaper to give their daughters away or support them the rest of their lives. More recently, when women learned to smoke, they were satisfied with "a cunning cigarette holder." Now, every flapper knows she can't possibly take a puff without a dozen holders of different hues and materials. And Paris did that, too.

Just why Paris remained blind to its opportunities in bathing suits until this year is one of the world's great mysteries. But with the revival of European pleasure resorts since the war, it didn't take long for the Rue de la Paix to wake up, rub its eyes and exclaim, "Ma foi! Terrible! Likewise ouch! The very idea—women are going bathing with just one suit!"

Immediately Paris set about to correct such an outrageous state of affairs. The modistes of the Rue de la Paix were situated exactly right to start the new fashion. A few hours ride from Paris were Deauville, Lido, Ostend, Pourville, Dieppe and a dozen other gay resorts. At each of these garden spots were distinctive bathing suits. The modistes looked them over, and in Paris, clearing-house for Europe's fashions, assembled the cream of the lot in the chic "jazz bathing outfit."

From Deauville they took one pattern. From —— tend another. F... Lido a third. Did Betty Trelawney, former Follies beauty, promenade at Pourville, swathed in ribbons? Paris knew it and added Betty's frills to its collection. Did Lady Diana Manners Cooper startle Dieppe with a sky-blue "half-piece" suit beneath an organdie kimono? Paris immediately created the "Lady Di" beach costume. Did Gladys Cooper, Gaiety girl, appear at Deauville in a suit of fragile lace which would have been ruined by the slightest contact with salt water? Paris prescribed lace as the only proper thing for a very sunny day.

American tourists arriving in the French capital early in the season discovered that the purchase of a bathing suit was something not to be lightly accomplished. When Mrs. Goldenbucks from Newport said she wanted to buy a bathing suit, the sales lady murmured that "of course, madame will want a complete outfit." And, of course, Mrs. Goldenbucks said "yes" without realizing exactly what she was letting herself in for.

She soon found out. Across Mrs. Goldenbucks' vision in the show room paraded nine manikins. The first was decked in flowered cretonne with a tight rubber cap, and, "That is for the morning dip," murmured the sales lady. There was one in a cherry colored blazer under a cherry colored parasol, and, "That is for high noon, madame," Mrs. Goldenbucks was informed. One wore a tam o' shanter and one a "jazz bow." One had pearls around her neck and wore a pearly crepe suit. One carried a chow beneath her arm and her suit was the same green color as the chow's eyes. All this was politely explained to Mrs. Goldenbucks, with the added information that "one should really have at least a dozen suits for—is it Deauville madame will visit?"

And did Mrs. Goldenbucks quiver? Did she protest? Did she firmly and emphatically state that one bathing suit always had been good enough for her and always would be? Did she order that one bathing suit and march out of there, denouncing the utter foolishness of taking a dozen different sets of clothes for one dip?

She did not! Mrs. Goldenbucks could not have been more enraptured had she discovered a new dimple in her knee. She ordered every one of those nine suits, along with enough caps, capes, complexions and other dew-dabs to start a store.

And when Mr. Goldenbucks, presented with the bill, protested mildly that "it was an awful lot of clothes to go swimming in," Mrs. Goldenbucks crushed him with, "My dear, it's the fashion now!"

When the trend of traffic set toward the States in August, American tourists had to buy extra trunks to carry home their wives' bathing suits. The women came back to Newport and Southampton and Atlantic City and Long Beach and other Atlantic coast resorts in time to participate in the season before it closed. Of course, they didn't rush to the beaches immediately in their chic "jazz" suits. Oh, my, no! A number of them waited long enough to eat breakfast, anyway.

And did the beauties who had stayed in the States for the Summer turn up their noses at the new style and say, "How absurd to change one's bathing suit three times a day and a dozen times a week?" Did they laugh sneeringly and remark, "That may be all right for Paris, but we'll stick to the old American one-suit fashion?" Did they? You know they didn't!

KINDS OF CHEESE

Cheese is made from whole milk, skim-milk, or milk which is partially skimmed. It is also made from cream and whole milk to which is added. There are probably about 250 different kinds of cheese made through out the world and new types are introduced form time to time.

The different kinds or types made are roughly divided into hard or pressed cheese, and soft or unpressed. Another class is the mouldy or blue cheese, like Stilton, Roquefort, Gorgonzola, etc. The hard varieties include Cheddar, Cheshire, Swiss, Edam and other less known varieties. Among the soft varieties, the most prominent are Camembert, Brie, Limburger, Pont l'Evequue, Gervais, Neurchatel, and many kinds of cream cheese.

The hard or pressed, varieties are slow in ripening. Some of them, like Cheddar, Swiss or Cheshire, do not reach prime condition until they are about a year old. Soft varieties are usually made in small sizes and ripen more quickly. Some kinds such such as cottage cheese (made from sour milk), cream cheese and Neufchatel are ready for use almost as soon as made.

In the making of all cheese, with some minor exceptions, rennet is used as a coagulating agent. The factors which influence texture and flavour and thus produce the different types, are the age of the milk at the beginning of the process, the degree of heat employed at different stages, the amount of moisture retained, the time of salting and the handling of the curd during the early part of the process. The texture depends largely on the amount of moisture retained, while the flavour is determined by the kind of fermentation which is encouraged.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doutbless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bsmuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia — not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obatin from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

Comb Sage Te a in Hair to Darken It

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO KEEP HER LOCKS DARK, GLOSSY, BEAUTIFUL.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

FINE ART EXHIBIT IN LOCAL CONSERVATORY

Splendid Work by Miss Katherine E. Wallis of Peterborough.

The Woman's Art Association of Canada is again represented in Peterborough by Miss Katherine E. Wallis, who is making an exhibit in the Conservatory of Music. As Professor Sandwell stated in a recent lecture in this city that Canadian literature and art will never be appreciated ,and the value of it learned, until the people are educated and cultured in art in Canada, the Woman's Art Association is once more giving Peterborough citizens another opportunity to obtain that knowledge and culture, at the exhibition at the Conservatory of Music for the remainder of this week, afternoons and evenings. The total exhibit contains etches and colourings of scenes throughout Canada, and executed by Canadian artists.

In addition to a room full of creations by prominent artists throughout Canada and the United States, is the work of Miss Katherine Wallis, well known here as an artist of excellent merit. Her sculptures, represented by low relief portraits, show a commendable talent. Among her portraits there is one of Wilmot Gordon ,little son of G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., of this city, and one of Dollie Ross, the little daughter of Robert Ross, D.S.C., of Montreal.

Among her water colour scenes of Canada there are two from Charlottetown, two from the Gatineau, two or three from Lake Memphremagog, and a number from around Buckhorn. Then there are a couple decorative title plates created of coloured cement, mounted in silver. This is an entirely new art of its kind, and is very delicate as well as beautiful.

The only souvenir of Miss Wallis' long studies in Paris is in her exhibit of a beautiful bronze salt seller, which represents a little child playing on the sea shore; this is the work of her master, O. Waldmann.

Miss Wallis, who presented the exhibition in this city in January, 1921, is the only native artist of Peterborough who has exhibited work here and elsewhere. She is the daughter of the late James Wallis and was educated in this city. She has studied art a number of years at the Royal College of Art in Kensington and in Paris ,and at the London Royal Academy. She has made exhibits in Paris and in London, and has worked in the art galleries of the French capital and in Liverpool, as well as in galleries in Canada.

Miss Wallis wishes to emphasize the fact strongly that in this exhibit the Woman's art Association's main objective is to inculcate the desire for art in the public. This Association has alotted space to Henry Smith, a disabled and returned soldier, for exhibiting his toys, dolls, etc. Mr. Smith is a local man trying to support himself by making playthings for the little ones.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You know that second weddings are always very conservative, and elaborate ceremonies are out of place.

The woman marrying for the second time never wears white, nor does she wear a veil, carry orange blossoms or have flower girls or bridesmaids. There are no elaborate floral decorations. She may, however, have one maid of honor, if she desires.
